J. F. FISCHER, Lieut.-Col., R. E.,

District Engineer, Godaverg District.

MEMORANDUM BY THE INSPECTOR GENERAL OF IRRIGATION WORKS ON THE MADRAS IRRIGATION COMPANY'S WORKS.

Though almost every individual work along the whole line of this canal was inspected by me, it is not necessary for me to enter into a detailed description of their condition, as this was done by the responsible Officers of the Madras Government in July 1871 at the time when the expiry of the contract was at hand. The object of my inspection was rather to ascertain the general condition of the canal at the present time, its capability, or otherwise, of performing the duty originally contemplated for it, the extent to which it is being utilized, the reasons why irrigation has made so little progress, and whether any, and what, measures are necessary for securing a better pecuniary result at an earlier date than has as yet seemed possible.

I was accompanied in my tour by Colonel Mullins, Chief Engineer of Irrigation in Madras, and by Mr. Latham, the Chief Engineer of the Company. Having also the Report made by Captain Scott in July 1871, I was able to compare the present state of the works with the description given of them therein.

The canal was divided by the Company into ten sections as follows:—

Section	1,	from the	1st	to the	17th	mile,	or from the head-works to Kurnool.
„	2	„	18th	„	32nd	„
„	3	„	33rd	„	45th	„
„	4	„	46th	„	60th	„
„	5	„	61st	„	74th	„	or to the end of the deep cutting through the water-shed.
„	6	„	75th	„	93rd	„	to the head-works on the Caulee.
„	7	„	94th	„	115th	„
„	8	„	116th	„	143rd	„	to the head-works on the Kundar.
„	9	„	144th	„	178th	„	to near the River Pennair.
„	10	„	179th	„	189th	„	to the Town of Cuddapah.

It will, therefore, be most convenient to describe the works generally under these sections, specifying only such as call for any particular notice. As, however, we marched up the canal, that is, we commenced from Cuddapah, it is necessary to take the sections in reverse order.

The main source from which the Company's canal is fed is the River Toombuddra, but there are four* others from which intermediately a considerable supply is contributed during the rainy season, and which, as cultivation extends, will prove a valuable addition; at present they are only useful in sometimes affording a small supply before the 1st of June, the date on which the Company are permitted to draw off the Toombuddra water, and after the 31st December, when, by present rules, they are obliged to shut off that supply. Next to the Toombuddra the most important source is the Pennair, across which the Crmpany have built a weir at the village of Adamapully, from whence the canal, at present carried only as far as Cuddapah, is fed, but which, in the original projects, was intended to be continued down the valley of the Pennair to near Nellore, and from thence to meet the East Coast Canal from Madras. When, however, it became evident that the capital raised by the Company would be insufficient to complete the project that far, the short line only to Cuddapah was constructed with the view of giving the canal a kind of definite terminus, and enabling the traffic conveyed by it to take advantage of the Railway into Madras. Besides being navigable, this short line conveys about 75 cubic feet per second sufficient for 5,000 acres of rice, of which abount 1,500 acres are said to have been irrigated during the past season.

With the exception of one large aqueduct comprising seven 30 feet arches, there are no masonry works of importance between Cuddapah and the head-works on the Pennair. These last consist of the usual weir and sluices. The weir is about 1,900 feet long, pierced with one set of under-sluices on the right flank, close to which are placed the regulating sluices, while the lock by which boats enter the canal is situated a few hundred feet higher up. These head-works are decidedly well built, and the quality of the masonry merits the description given of it by Captain Scott as "very good," but not so that of the aqueduct previously mentioned, in which there had been considerable leakage. The banks of the canal in this 10th section are now fairly consolidated, a depth of nearly 4 feet, out of a maximum of 6 feet having been maintained uninterruptedly throughout the season. I think, however, there will be some difficulty experienced in keeping the navigation across the Pennair clear, for, from there being only one set of under-sluices in the weir, the tendency of the river is to maintain a channel only towards those sluices, and to throw up sand in front of the tail-lock on the left bank. It will be easy enough to excavate a channel across the sand as soon as the freshets are over, and when water is available in the canal to keep up a supply across the river during the dry months; but unless a portion of the stream can be permanently diverted to the left bank, and a scour kept up by another set of under-sluices, there will be difficulty in maintaining a passage for boats across the river during the monsoon months. Something, however, may perhaps be done at that time by dredging.

In the next section there is a flight of locks by which the fall in the country between the 171st mile and the River Pennair is overcome. The masonry of these locks appears outwardly, on the whole, to be fair, but from there being no water in this portion of the canal, there was no opportunity of testing the way in which the valves and gates worked, or whether the masonry in the chamber walls is sound. The quality of the mortar evidently varied very much. In some of the works it was good, but in others very inferior, and it will, in many cases, be necessary to take measures for rendering the masonry in this section more water-tight than it now is. The banks as far as the 171st mile are in fair order; much of the soil with which they had unavoidably to be formed is of an unfavorable quality, but when once thoroughly consolidated, there need be no fear of their ultimate stability, for every year there will be more or less deposit of strong clay silt which will effectually puddle both bed and slopes. There had been no accidents along this portion of the canal during the past season.

Between the 171st and the beginning of the 9th section at the 145th mile, the only important masonry works are three large aqueducts, two over drainage streams, and the third and the principal work over the Vaikalair, a tributary of the River Kundar. The masonry of the two first, though rough, was outwardly substantial, but sufficient care had not been taken with the mortar, for although the filtration had evidently considerably lessened, both works still showed sign of leakage through the face walls as well as through the arches. The aqueduct over the Vaikalair, comprising eleven 30 feet arches, is a fine structure and well built. More care had evidently been bestowed in the preparation of the mortar, but there was still greater leakage through the arches than there ought to be in works of this description. The banks throughout this portion of the 9th section are in good order. In some places the towing-path wants clearing of stones, and in others will require to be covered with sand or gravel before it can be thoroughly practicable during the rains.

At the commencement of the 9th section are situated the head-works on the River Kundar, from which the canal draws that portion of the Toombuddra water which is thrown into it 27 miles higher up its course. The Kundar is comparatively a small river, supplied spasmodically by local rains, and could not, therefore, be relied upon as an independent source. It, however, carries a considerable volume during the monsoon months, and when the local rains are uncertain, or fail altogether, it is supplemented by the water from the Toombuddra. By making use of the upper portion of its bed, the expense of excavating a channel of sufficient capacity to convey the Toombuddra volume was avoided, while the navigation for that portion is provided for by a separate still-water canal between the 145th and 118th mile, the intermediate fall being overcome by a series of 16 locks. The head-works across the River Kundar are situated at the village of Rajoli, where its bed consists of continuous slabs of lime-stone rock. The weir is a simple stone wall over which the water falls on the rock below. Owing, however, to its extremely laminated character, the shock of the fallen water has shaken these rocks and lifted the upper layer of slabs to a distance of between 20 and 40 feet from the wall. Though holes from 2 to 3 feet deep have thus been made, it is a matter of no consequence, as the water now plunges into the pool which overlies the rock, instead of, as before, on to the bare rock itself. The head-works are substantially built.

In the next section, comprised between the 143rd and 116th miles, are situated another flight of locks which overcome the difference of level between the head-works on the River Caulee and those on the Kundar. The masonry in this section is of decidedly better quality than those previously described. The walls are mostly founded on the laminated lime-stone rock. The weak points in these works appeared to me to be the sills, especially those on which the lower gates abut. The flat slabs of which they are composed are, I am told, let into the rock more or less according to the thickness of the bed on which the lock is built. If such is the case, the sills may possibly resist the pressure to which they will be subjected; but from the laminated character of the rock I should not be surprised if it is eventually found necessary to further secure the sills with iron cramps. The gates are well made and hung, and move easily on their pivots, but it is a pity that the bolt-heads were not countersunk instead of being allowed to project as they now do. This, however, can be remedied by nailing a batten over them. The banks throughout this section are well consolidated and in capital order, and have been well tested, as a depth of 5 feet has been maintained against them throughout the past season. Notwithstanding the heavy monsoon of the past season, there is little or no guttering of the slopes. The masonry of the bridges is also superior to that of the bridges in the previous section.

In the next or 7th section, the masonry works are likewise good, and the mortar is of better quality. In the upper portion, from which several irrigation channels are taken off, the requisite volume of water is passed round the locks by weirs. The latter require some slight repairs. Between the 109th and 93rd mile there are no locks, but there are several works for passing the drainage, both through and under the canal. The principal of these are the two aqueducts, the larger of which is that which spans the supply-stream to the large Nundial Tank, one of the principal irrigating reservoirs in the district. It consists of 22 vents of 10 feet, and is specified in Captain Scott's Report as very leaky. There were less signs here than in other similar works noticed above, and, therefore, probably the leakage has, meanwhile, been remedied. The two surplus escapes which consist of a weir wall, with sluices attached, are the next works. The masonry is rough, but sufficiently substantial, for it sustained a considerable trial during the past season. Near this spot the bank had to be breached to afford additional escape to the very heavy floods; so, to obviate this in future, two more weirs are to be added in these miles, and materials for their commencement were being collected. The banks in this section are in fair order, but the towing-path along that portion of the canal which is in cutting requires levelling.

At the head of the 7th section are the head-works across the River Caulee, a tributary of the Kundar. They consist of the usual weir and regulating sluices and lock. The bed on which the weir is founded is a loose and friable shale, and so a deep-water cushion has been provided for receiving the overfall which is considerable. The coping of the cushoin wall has been more or less torn off, as also a few feet of the coping of the weir wall itself, owing to defective setting. The stone used in the coping consists of very fine slabs, and the mortar is better than in most of the other works; but the masonry, though substantial, is not so well finished as on other works of this section. The loose apron of the weir requires to be re-laid, and probably a second wall built for its retention. A good deal of silt had accumulated owing to the under-sluices having been closed during the season. Some injury which the flooring had received, and which had not been repaired, necessitated their closure.

From this point the 6th section is entered. In it are situated 14 locks which overcome a fall of 190·5 feet, and connect the Toombuddra with the commencement of the Pennair tributaries at the River Caulee. Several of the locks are double, and, as far as can be judged of outwardly, they appear to have been carefully built. In Captain Scott's "general remarks" he observes "that the masonry work on this section generally cannot be said to be anything but inferior." This description was apparently not intended to apply to the locks, for, in the detailed mileage remarks, he terms their masonry to be of "fair quality," "apparently sound," &c. There is the same fault as to the lightness of the sills, some of which, however, have been recently replaced by heavier stone. The gates, too, are very roughly put together as regards the planking, which in the majority of the locks consists of ordinary timber. The framing, however, is of teak, but the balance beams, being the ordinary country timber, have, in many instances, already decayed.

For a length of about two miles from the River Caulee, the only soil available for the formation of the bank is of very bad quality, and before any considerable pressure can be applied to them, they must be further strengthened and protected both inside and outside the canal. For the rest of the distance the soil is better, and the banks have consolidated and are in good order, but the lower portion of this reach of the canal has not yet been filled and tested. Being intended simply for navigation purposes below the 2nd lock, the canal from that point has been kept purposely low to allow the banks to get thoroughly consolidated, the water for irrigation being passed down into the Caulee and Kundar beds higher up, and picked up again at the respective weirs across those rivers. At the commencement, or for about 5 miles of this section, the canal runs over a tract of country which consists of a rotten description of clay shale covered with a thin layer of soil. It was, therefore, impossible to make banks as in the other sections, and, therefore, the form of embankments adopted was a core of earth with slopes of shale. These banks at first gave a great deal of trouble, but this year they have been tested with a continuous presure of 4 feet, and have stood very well. As the maximum height they will ever require to carry is 6 feet, their present condition is so far satisfactory. Immediately above the head of this section is the cutting through the water-shed which separates the Toombuddra and Pennair basins. The canal through the deep cutting is 64 feet wide, capable of passing 300,000 cubic yards per hour, or 2,250 cubic feet per second, the greater part of which is passed off through regulating sluices to the nearest point on the River Caulee. Below the cutting the width is reduced to 50 feet, and the canal conveys 45,000 cubic yards per hour, or 337 cubic feet per second, as far as the 80th mile, where the water for irrigation is turned off and carried on by a separate channel, while the navigation is provided for in the locked still-water canal. The head-work of this section consists of two sets of regulating sluices and a lock.

The cutting which terminates the next or 5th section is about 1½ miles in length through rock, the greatest depth being 25 feet. The excavation cost on the average 9 annas per cubic yard, or at the rate of Rs. 20-13 per 1,000 cubic feet. The rock consisted of a very hard clay shale which required to be removed almost entirely by blasting, but the same rock when exposed to the action of the air rapidly disintegrates, and, therefore, but little of the out-turn proved useful for the masonry works. In this section the first work of any importance is the aqueduct which carries the canal over the drainage stream near the village of Terogopilly. It is 90 feet wide in the clear between the parapets, and the embankments by which it is approached are 25 to 30 feet high. These embankments have given great trouble from the first; and they are still not thoroughly consolidated, but they have this year borne a pressure of nearly 20 feet of water out of a maximum of 24 feet, so that their stability may be considered so far secure. The aqueduct, however, still leaks very badly, and some immediate measures should be taken to make it water-tight.

At the 61st mile, near the village of Tangadavancha, the canal runs across a deep hollow with a single bank, thereby forming a large tank over 2 square miles in area, containing, when full, about 20 millions of cubic yards. The maximum height of this embankment is 34 feet, its crest is 6 feet above highest water-mark, and it was this year filled to within 5 feet of that mark, so that the bank sustained a pressure of 23 feet. It is in very good order, and is supplying irrigation to villages which are growing a small area of second crop. The waste-weir of this tank is about 250 yards long, and is a well-built work.

At the 56th mile, at the village of Lutchmipooram, there is another of these tanks with a high embankment, but enclosing a smaller area. This also is in good order, and is similarly supplying irrigation for a second crop. Between these two tanks there is a large waste-weir for carrying off the storm waters which are allowed to drain into this portion of the canal.

The remainder of the 4th section, or from the 54th mile to the 45th mile, no special remarks are called for. From hence the canal runs for the most part with a single bank, the country being sidelying with a steep slope. At intervals there are flatter portions over which the water spreads, forming tanks similar to those just described. One of these is at the village of Nagatore. The banks at these places, when first thrown up, were more or less a source of anxiety, but each year they become more consolidated, and now their stability need no longer be considered doubtful, specially as it will only be by degrees that the maximum water-level in the canal will be required for irrigation.

In the 3rd section, or that which is contained between the 33rd and 45th miles, the high banks which had been in an unsatisfactory state are becoming consolidated, and I did not see any cause for doubting their stability, such as seems to have occurred to Captain Scott. Probably they have, meanwhile, been well saturated and so settled more firmly than they had done at the time of his inspection. At the 42nd mile, in lieu of an earthen bank there is a wall about 1,500 feet long; it consists of two masonry walls containing a dry rubble core. In the outside wall weep-holes are left by which any leakage from the top of the bank, or through the inside wall, is carried off. This particular design was, I was given to understand, adopted with the idea that it would prove more economical than an earthen bund, but I believe it has not proved so, for, either from defective design, mortar, or workmanship, the walls have proved a source of anxiety for some years. The leakage through them has, however, stopped, and their stability seems further secured by the subsequent addition of a heavy rubble backing.. There are three of these walls between the 45th and 37th miles, also two long surplus weirs with a set of sluices attached. The banks in this portion seem to have fairly consolidated, and have carried during the past season half of a full supply. A bridge near the village of Mulligola requires attention; there has been an unequal settlement in the arches. Additional surplus works are being constructed in this length of the canal in consequence of the unusually heavy rains during the past year, but, as far as I could learn, the existing weirs have never yet been called into action. At the same time, it has, however, to be remembered that the canal itself was only running at half-supply level. At the 37th mile the canal has been carried round a long contour past the village of Alloor, whereby its course is lengthened upwards of 2 miles. The Madras Government objected to the submersion of the land which would have been caused by carrying a bund straight across the hollow; but I think it was a mistake, as the land itself is by no means valuable, and it is doubtful whether the result has not been an expenditure on which the Government has to pay a larger amount of interest than it would have otherwise done. From the village of Alloor as far as Kurnool, the canal runs almost the whole distance with a single bank, the height of which for some miles is excessive, varying from 25 to 40 feet, and which might probably have been obviated to a considerable extent had greater judgment been used at the time of setting out the line. In the 2nd section, which is entered at the 32nd mile, occurs the long and high masonry retaining walls which have been a source of much anxiety. The country through which the line passes is unquestionably very difficult. In many places there was but a very thin layer of earth overlying rock of exceedingly hard texture, and the question was how the bank could be most economically made. One of the expedients was to raise a core-wall of puddle supported on both sides by slopes of loose rubble, or gravelly soil revetted with rubble stone. Had the soil for these puddle cores been carefully worked up, I do not see why this mode of construction should not have answered thoroughly, but good soil was difficult to procure; consequently, it has been necessary subsequently to substitute a masonry face-wall to most of the embankments, as it was only in this way that they could be rendered water-tight. Silt has been already deposited, and every year that the canal is filled an additional quantity will be brought in from the Toombuddra, so that in time there is no doubt but that all those portions where the canal runs over a laminated rock on beds of coarse gravel will become thoroughly water-tight and secured. Additional escapes for storm-water are being provided, but, as far as I could judge, the error appeared to be rather in excess than deficiency in this respect.

One of the principal works which was a source of anxiety on this section is the aqueduct at Kadrabagh in the 24th mile. The banks approaching it are very high, and though of large section, were a long time before they became consolidated. They appear to be in fair order now, and the aqueduct itself to be nearly water-tight. From this aqueduct, as far as Kurnool, the canal runs partly in bank, and partly in cutting, until the Hindry Aqueduct is reached. This last is a fine work, but the banks by which it is approached had to be protected by a masonry retaining wall before they could be made water-tight. They now seem secure and have, during the past season, carried the requisite volume of water without any accident. It is the 2nd section of the canal which proved so much more costly than was originally comtemplated. The masonry itself was executed at a reasonable rate, Rs. 4 per cubic yard, or Rs. 14 per 100 cubic feet, but so great a length and mass of it has been required as to make the total cost of these miles of the canal excessive.

As the Town of Kurnool is reached, the water is ponded up in the canal and serves to furnish a supply for a good deal of second crop cultivation, besides the supply to the Municipality. Almost the whole of the cultivable ground commanded by the canal in the adjacent villages appears to have been irrigated for the first crop, and were more water available at this time, probably the whole would be laid under a second crop also, for the cultivators appear to thoroughly understand the value of manuring their land. The soil in this neighbourhood is essentially the black cotton soil of the Deccan, the benefit of irrigating of which has been, and is still, by many considered doubtful, but there can be no better practical illustration of it than the neighbourhood of Kurnool where two crops are raised annually off the same ground, and a water-rate of Rs. 6 for each crop is readily paid. Between Kurnool and the head-works at Sunkasala, the canal is carried with a single bank, which has become well consolidated and is now in excellent order. Several escapes have been constructed, the aggregate length of which it was calculated would be sufficient to discharge the surplus of any rainfall of which there was a record, but in the extraordinary storm of 1870 the canal was filled to overflowing and the banks were breached in one or two spots. It has, therefore, been considered expedient to increase the water-way by lowering the crest of some of these works, and this is now being completed. Water is permitted to be drawn off by this section of the canal all the year round for the supply of the Town of Kurnool and irrigation of the second crop, of which there are about 600 acres. The surplus is returned to the Toombuddra over a waste-weir just above the town. Considerable silt has been deposited in the tank portions, and in some of the miles weeds have grown extensively. About 50,000 cubic yards per hour were passing through the head-sluices.

The weir across the Toombuddra is a simple vertical wall raised on the bed of trap rock which runs across the river, which at Sunkasala is divided into two branches. The weir, which is a fine massive work, is not built in one straight line, but follows the direction of the rock. An earthen embankment connects the wings of the two branches. The coping of the weir consists of fine large slabs of limestone laid in Portland cement. All the head-works were in good order. On the right flank of the weir is a set of under-sluices, but their action in keeping the channel to the head-sluices clear has not been successful, for the approach to the latter is much silted. The bed of the Toombuddra has also silted up almost the whole way across to the level of the crest of the weir. On a rough calculation there were about 150,000 cubic yards per hour, or 1,125 cubic feet per second, passing down the river, one-third of which was taken off by the canal; but as noticed above, returned again to the river just above Kurnool. If the whole of this stream were allowed to pass along the canal, it would be sufficient to have maintained a depth of 4 feet throughout it, sufficient for the navigation by boats drawing 3½ feet of water. I would here take the opportunity of alluding to the order issued by the Madras Government at the outset of the Company's operations, fixing the dates on which the Company were to open and shut the head-sluices on the canal, and so restricting the period during which the Toombuddra water might be used. Those dates were the 1st June and 1st January, respectively. These orders were issued in the interests of the Kistna Delta works which, of course, required to be secured of their full supply; but I think it was a mistake in arbitrarily fixing dates without reference to the volume of water which happened to be in the river at the time. It may so happen that in some years there is not more than enough passing Bezwada on the 1st January than the two Main Canals can carry off; but I suspect this very seldom occurs. This year, it is true, there was an exceptionally high volume flowing. According to measurements which I desired to be taken, there was no less than 5,000 cubic feet per second flowing uselessly to the sea, and in the majority of years there is a large quantity thus unutilized. As long as there is any surplus running to absolute waste, there can be no reason why it should not be turned to account in the Kurnool Canal, for whatever might not be utilized there by the second crop, would pass into the Pennair and be picked up by the Nellore Anicut for Government tanks in that District, while at the same time the time of navigation on the Kurnool Canal would be proportionately prolonged. Instead, therefore, of fixed absolute dates on which the water of the Toombuddra should be shut off from the Company's Canal, I would suggest that the Madras Government be invited to modify its former order, and allow the Kurnool works to utilize the water in the Toombuddra to the extent of the unutilized surplus at Bezwada. This is a matter which might easily be arranged by telegraph, and I may add that Colonel Mullins agreed with me in the expediency of such an arrangement.

Reservoirs.

One of the points in connection with these works on which I was instructed especially to confer with Colonel Mullins was that of reservoirs on the Rivers Toonga and Buddra, great exception to the sites on which had been taken by the Mysore Administration, who preferred a request that all further proceedings regarding the contemplated reservoirs might be stopped. The Government of India, however, considered that as reservoirs had always been acknowledged to be important accessories of this project, those sites which had been investigated should not be given up without further examination. Colonel Mullins and myself, therefore, discussed this subject with Mr. Latham, the Company's Chief Engineer.

Three sites had been investigated more or less in detail, viz. :—

At Luchowuly on the Buddra.
At Moodaba on the Toonga.
At Masoor on the Choardy.

The last presented the most favorable conditions, being, indeed, an ancient Native work which had been breached very many years ago, and remained unrepaired until restored lately on a very small scale by the Bombay Government. To re-construct this work to its original dimensions was the project proposed by the Irrigation Company, but as in order to do so large existing interests would suffer, great exception has been taken to it by the Mysore Administration.

Mr. Latham now produced plans and estimates for a reservoir on a reduced scale at the Masoor site, which seem to remove a great many of the objections which had been urged against the reservoir on its original scale. The particulars of this project on the reduced scale are—

The capacity of the reservoir			644 millions of cubic yards.
Deduct—
Loss by evaporation, &c. ...	90		" "
To Bombay	100		" "
Balance available for Kurnool Canal			454 millions of cubic yards.

This quantity would afford a volume of 150,000 cubic yards per hour for 130 days, or from the 1st December to the 10th May. The six weeks intervening between that date and the rising of the Toombuddra would probably, under any circumstances, be required for silt clearances, and, therefore, supposing the reservoir to be emptied by that date, the volume of 150,000 cubic yards, or 1,125 cubic feet per second, would preserve a minimum depth of 4 feet in the canal and admit of navigation, while for some years to come it would be sufficient to meet all the requirements of irrigation for a second crop. The cost of the reduced reservoir, exclusive of land compensation, is estimated at 5½ lakhs, which, after deducting the loss by evaporation, would make the cost of storage 1,000 cubic yards per rupee.

As far as can be judged from the detailed surveys, about one-half of the submerged area would still be cultivated land, the value of which can, of course, be easily ascertained from the Mysore Authorities:* but as the Masoor site, owing to a great portion of the old Native work being available, offers the most favorable conditions for the construction of a reservoir as regards economy of storage, I think it should be approved, and the Mysore Government instructed to report definitely the amount of compensation involved, and the extent to which waste lands could be given in exchange for those taken up. The number of villages involved in the reduced scheme is also less, and probably it will be found that many of them are individually very small.

As regards the Toonga site, it also seems that a lower bund would probably suffice for all the purposes required, and that, therefore, most of the serious objections urged against the larger project would be obviated. The town of Teerthully would not be interfered with, and, of course, a much smaller area would be submerged. Before, therefore, abandonment of this site, it would be well, at all events, to estimate roughly the cost in compensation which a smaller reservoir would involve.

The Madras Government having already represented that the objections against the Luckwuly site were in its opinion not insuperable, the Mysore Government might be finally asked to determine the matter of compensation connected therewith.

In a previous Note on the subject of these reservoirs, I expressed a doubt as to the necessity for providing so large a storage as that contemplated by the Company, viz., 2,600 millions of cubic yards. It appears that that quantity included what would be necessary if the upper or Bellary portion of the Toombuddra project were carried out. For the Kurnool Canal only, however, half that quantity would probably abundantly suffice for even all eventual wants, while for the present the quantity which the Masoor reservoir would provide will afford all that can be needed for some years to come. The cost is estimated at 5½ lakhs on the data which the works already executed afford, but supposing it should reach 7 lakhs, it would add less than 5 per cent. to the total cost of the scheme thus far constructed, while it would enormously extend its usefulness, not only furnishing irrigation for a second crop, but making navigation feasible throughout ten, instead of now only six, months of the year. The desirability of adding this reservoir to the projects seems unquestionable, and from what I have said regarding the navigation, it would in itself help to provide a not inconsiderable revenue from that source in addition to clearing a stimulus for production by providing cheap carriage to markets which are at present inaccessible owing to the badness and costliness of the existing means of communication.

Navigation.

When the Toombuddra Project was originally designed, it was considered that it would be incomplete if provision for a first-class navigation were omitted. At the time it was also thought that the works for this purpose would not entail any great proportional increase of expenditure, as from the large volume of water to be conveyed, the sectional area of the canal would be sufficient for purposes of the navigation, while from the presence of first-rate building material throughout the line the expense of the necessary masonry structures would be comparatively small. Had the item of navigation, however, been omitted, and irrigation alone been provided for, a good deal of expense in the formation of embankments, and in the width of aqueducts and other masonry drainage works, would probably have been saved. The current also in the canal could have been increased, and so its sectional area might have been diminished, and the cost of excavation lessened; but had the canal been laid out on such a principle, it could never afterwards have been adapted for navigation, and the opportunity of establishing a line of cheap water carriage for this tract of country would have been lost for ever. Taking all the above points into calculation, the total additional cost entailed by the navigation works is estimated by the Chief Engineer at Rs. 36,80,584, as follows :—

* As regards the mode of compensation, it is probable that present waste lands might to a great extent be given in exchange for those taken up, and prove more acceptable even than a cash payment.

	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Sections I to V.—At 10 per cent. of whole cost	6,10,058
„ VI.—Made entirely for navigation ...	5,44,144
„ VII.—At 10 per cent. of whole cost ...	79,731
„ VIII.—Made entirely for navigation ...	8,06,895
„ IX.—Proportion of ditto	3,12,465
„ X.—Ditto of ditto	1,00,430
TOTAL ...		24,53,723
Add proportion of Establishment and general charges at 50 per cent.		12,26,861
			36,80,584*

Without criticising too closely whether the whole of the above sum is absolutely debitable to the navigation works alone, it is certain that, up to this time, nothing whatever has been done in the way of obtaining a return for this portion of the expenditure. The irrigation has this year shown a promise of extension, many villages having taken water for small areas, thus indicating a desire on the part of cultivators generally to test its advantages. The canal having carried a considerable volume of water continuously, will have shown the cultivator that confidence may be reposed in the supply, and hence there is encouragement to expect that these experiments, which, so far as I could ascertain, had been generally successful, will lead gradually, if not rapidly, to a general adoption of a system of wet cultivation. If by the construction of a reservoir, the canal is made perennial, there can be little doubt of the irrigation spreading faster, but when to this is added a continuous navigation, a great additional stimulus to cultivation will be conferred by raising the value of almost every description of produce, especially of those grains which are at present unable to be transported, or to bear the high cost of transit entailed by the existing means of communication. The main line of road down the valley from Kurnool to Cuddapah is even now for miles and miles in such a state, that during the dry weather even carts take to the fields in preference, while in the wet weather it becomes so impassable that, after heavy rain, carts are detained for days before they can move. The country is thus virtually shut up. A good line of communication, available at all times and seasons, is, therefore, an essential requisite, and if at the same time the cost of transit on it be kept low, there can be little question as to the effect it will have in stimulating production.

It will be seen that the interest, amounting, at 5 per cent. on Rs. 36,80,584, to Rs. 1,84,000 on the sum expended for the navigation works, is a large sum, and that it is, therefore, essential that some endeavours should be made as soon as possible to obtain a revenue from that source. Under the peculiar circumstances of this canal, which, though nearly 190 miles long, has no terminus as yet in a navigable river, there is no opportunity of transferring any of the ordinary boats of the country on it such as would have been the case had it been connected as originally proposed with the East Coast Canal. As its terminus is close to the Madras Railway, which affords a cheaper continuation of the communication than the common roads of the country, there can be no question as to the desirability of working the canal that far by the Company's own boats exclusively at first. As half the distance between Kurnool and Madras would be performed by water, the present cost of conveying goods to that port would be considerably lessened.

The nearest point of the Railway is 60 miles from Kurnool, the cost of cartage is about 3 annas per ton mile, or Rs. 11-4 per ton, exclusive of the rail charges on 96 miles to Cuddapah. If a charge of even half an anna be made on the canal, it would be one-sixth of the rate by the road, and only Rs. 5-5 for the entire distance of 170 canal miles from Kurnool to Cuddapah. Judging by the cost of water-carriage in other parts of India, this charge, with proper arrangements on a perennial canal, should eventually be reduced to one-half the above, or to at least quarter of an anna per ton-mile. This result, I think, could be obtained even under the present disadvantages of the canal not having a terminus at the sea-board, but it is obvious that, if that could be secured by its extension to the East Coast Canal, and its connection with Madras itself, both the prosperity of the tract of country affected, and the interests of the project itself, would be greatly enhanced. The Madras Government has, I believe, decided to prosecute the East Coast Canal till it meets the Godavery and Kistna systems. If, therefore, the intermediate link between Cuddapah and the Coast were also completed, the Kurnool Canal would be placed in communication with those systems and form part of a connected series of Canal steam navigation 1,100 miles in length. A commencement of navigation between Kurnool and Cuddapah should, however, be made at once.

* This sum gives a rate of under £1,300 per mile for works, and £645 for general charges, or somewhat less than £2,000 per mile for combining with the irrigation project a first class canal adapted for steam navigation.

F. H. R.

To cover the interest now debitable for the works under this head would require a traffic of about Rs. 1,000 per mile per annum. Supposing the charge made was half an anna per ton-mile for goods, and 1 pie per mile for passengers, and that the proceeds were obtained two-thirds from goods, and one-third from passengers, a through traffic of 24,000 tons, and of 64,128 passengers per annum, equal to 66 tons of goods, and 175 passengers per day, or of half this both ways, would suffice. Of course, a good deal of both would probably not be through, but intermediate traffic. Reduced to ton and passenger mileage, the above traffic would be equivalent to 4,320,000 tons, and 11,543,000 passengers per mile. That this amount of traffic is within reasonable limits will be seen by comparing it with that which is carried on the Godavery and Kistna Canals, where, as shown before, the goods amount to 22,495,000 tons, and the passengers to 30,889,500, and where the charges for carriage are the same as those assumed here.

To convey the above quantity of traffic it would be necessary, as regards the passenger portion, to start a boat from each terminus every day, capable of holding 100 third class passengers, and for the goods one boat of 50 tons also each way. Allowing the passenger boats to perform the through journey in three days, and the goods boats in six days, a fleet of 7 passenger and 14 cargo boats would suffice. The probable cost of them would be at the following rate:—

		Rs.	Rs.
14 Cargo boats,	at Rs. 100 per ton	70,000
7 Passenger boats	„ 3,000 „ boat	21,000
			91,000
Add for sundries	... ...		9,000

The working expenses would probably amount to about Rs. 150 per day, or for six months to Rs. 27,000. This would include the establishments necessary for working the locks, at each of which at present only one man is entertained. The Company have not, I believe, the necessary capital to start the navigation, but I think it would be to the advantage of the Government if it were to work the canal itself, or to advance the funds for so doing on the clear understanding that all receipts therefrom should be credited to it towards meeting the guaranteed interest.

In this way it appears to me that additional receipts may be obtained which would help to lessen the amount of interest now annually paid for the works. The most economical way of working this canal would unquestionably be by steam-power for the conveyance of both passengers and goods; but as long as its practicability is confined to six months of the year, the economy of employing steam-power is somewhat doubtful, inasmuch as the outlay would necessarily involve a larger expenditure of capital which would be unproductive, and on which a corresponding amount of interest would accumulate during the six months in which the canal is closed.

Irrigation.

Out of a length of 382 miles of distribution channels, 313 miles commanding an area of 156,570 acres have been executed, but of this area, only about $\frac{1}{13}$ is as yet under irrigation.

I think the present season, however, holds out prospects of the progress being sure, though it will probably be very gradual.

According to a statement given me by Mr. Latham, water has been taken more or less in 132 villages. Those in the upper section of the canal, especially within the first 35 miles, have irrigated a considerable portion of the culturable area; while more in the lower section are apparently as yet only feeling their way by experimenting on small areas. The following shows the area irrigated in the last three years:—

	Regular irrigation area at Rs. 6.	Flooding areas at Re. 1.	Total areas	Increase.
				Rs.
Season, 1870-71	1,456	62	1,478	8,978
„ 1871-72	5,286	3,694	9,980	35,410
„ 1872-73	8,140	1,365	9,505	50,205

Though the total area is small, yet the increase in the regular irrigation seems to show that its value is beginning to be appreciated. Its further extension will, doubtless, still be gradual, for where the country is undulating, or has a steep fall, such as that through which the canal passes, the conversion of large uneven fields into small and level plots fit for rice cultivation is an operation which not only requires time, but entails considerable labor and some outlay on the part of the cultivators. Hence they are chary of effecting so great a change in the mode of husbandry which they have practised for generations until they have become thoroughly assured and feel that they can safely rely on the source from whence the irrigation necessary for wet crops is to be obtained. Moreover, under the system of dry cultivation hitherto practised, a succession of crops is obtainable throughout the year, whereas land once prepared for rice cultivation does not admit of the growth of what are termed dry crops, and, therefore, so long as the canal runs only for six months of the year, there will be hesitation on the part of the cultivators to adopt quickly a radical change on any extensive scale. Were there water available for a second crop, I was informed by the Native Deputy Collector that the conversions of dry into wet lands would, in all probability, proceed more rapidly. The readiness with which the cultivators in the first 30 miles have so converted their lands, on which about one-third are now laid also under a second crop, seems to confirm this view, and, therefore, if, as appears to be the case, reservoirs could be constructed at a comparatively small additional outlay, it would be politic not to delay their construction. It may, however, be said that this is but the second year that the cultivators in the lower sections have had an opportunity of seeing a continuous flow in the canal; and, perhaps, the fact that, in the second year, in 90 villages experimental patches of rice cultivation have been carried on, may be taken as an indication of a desire on the part of the cultivators to avail themselves of the water as soon as they become fully satisfied of its profitableness. So far as I could learn, the experiments have proved satisfactory.

One point, moreover, seemed clear, and that was that the majority of the villages commanded by the canal and its branches were really not aware of what the canal could do for them. No notices seemed to have been issued containing information as to the quantity of water available in each branch channel, the time during which it might run, the date on which cultivators might depend on commencing their seed-beds, and the date to which they might be sure of irrigation for their crop. I do not think that they are either aware of the rules under which, or of the rates at which, water would be supplied, or the mode in which, and the dates on which, applications for rice irrigation must be forwarded. The villages bordering immediately on the canal have probably learnt some of these particulars, but it seems very doubtful whether those at a distance are acquainted with them, and therefore one of the first things required seems to be the issue of authorized notices attested by Government Officers containing detailed information on the above points.

The present authorized method of obtaining water appears to be for the ryot to apply to the Kurnum (the Head Village Revenue Officer), stating the extent of land which he wants to irrigate. The Kurnum forwards the application to the Deputy Collector, who, in his turn, sends it to the Collector, from which it goes to the Company's Officers. This circuitous mode of proceeding must, under any circumstances, occupy considerable time, but the actual working hitherto has been so unsatisfactory, that the applications do not reach the Company's Officers until long after the lands have been supplied with water, for the cultivators have, meanwhile, been obliged to go direct to the Company's Officers, otherwise their fields would have been dried up, or their crops lost. It often happens also that the Kurnum of the village is absent miles away, having been summoned on other duties, and there is then no one to whom the cultivator can apply, hence the application for water often remains a month or more before it leaves the Kurnum's hands. If this happens when the applications are numbered by tens, how much will it be aggravated when they amount to thousands. The intention of the rules is, I believe, that the application for rice irrigation shall be made before a certain date, the 1st of May, but I doubt if, at the commencement of the new system of cultivation, it is possible to secure this, though when once any extent of rice cultivation is thoroughly established, the punctual irrigation of it from a given date becomes a necessity. When, however, the existing agriculture is principally confined to dry-crop irrigation to which is only occasionally required by floodings, applications for water to be of any use at all must be made in all cases direct to the Irrigation Officer. Some change, therefore, in the management of the irrigation seems called for. The best arrangement that occurs to me is the appointment of a special Revenue Officer, whose sole duty it should be to attend to all matters connected with the irrigation from the canal. Under the Contract this duty rests with the Government, the Company's Officers not being allowed to have any direct dealings with the cultivators. It might, therefore, possibly lead to a more rapid use of the water if the people knew that a Government Officer were on the spot to whom all applications and references could be made and disposed of without delay.

I understand from Colonel Mullins that some such arrangement was already under the consideration of the Madras Government. Again, the verification of irrigated lands ought to be conducted by Government Officers; whereas now it appears the Company's Officers have to measure every acre, notwithstanding that a Revenue and Field survey has been carried out in both the Districts of Kurnool and Cuddapah. It is true that, owing to the cultivation being almost exclusively confined to dry crops, the fields are very large, and, therefore, the identification of portions of fields may, in many cases, be impossible, but it would not entail much trouble to lay down roughly such a sub-division of the large fields as will be necessary for rice cultivation, and then their identification would be easy. This is a point which the Government of Madras might be invited to consider.

The water-rates at present in force are Rs. 6 per acre for regular irrigation of one crop, or Re. 1 for each flooding. Were not this rate now readily paid by the cultivators in the upper section, I should have been disposed to look on it as too high for a commencement, and even now it might be worth considering whether this rate should not rather be gradually worked up to than imposed all at once; but I think there can be little doubt of the expediency of substituting differential rates for the present uniform rate, as there are many crops for which water would be readily taken, but which cannot at the same time afford the maximum rate. For instance, Raggi crop, a very extensively grown and always irrigated crop, though an inferior grain to rice, is, I believe, considered a good introductory crop when land is first converted from dry into wet; and again, on the other hand, it is often grown as a second crop on land which has borne a first crop of rice. For this a water-rate of Rs. 4 would, I am told, be readily paid. In many villages Indigo is extensively grown, and has been advantageously irrigated in a few places by occasional floodings, but were it known that a lower rate would be charged, there is little doubt but that it would soon become one of the regularly irrigated crops.

It might, therefore, be expedient to consider whether there should not be a classification of crops and rates such as obtain in Upper India. This point would, however, have to be discussed with the Board of Directors, and the sanction of the Secretary of State would have to be obtained before any alteration could be made.

The maintenance of the canal is now being kept up principally by an establishment of men called "Bankers," one of whom is stationed at every mile. At present there are only two Officers, besides the Chief Engineer, to attend to the canal, as well as to carry out the minor distribution channels, and to regulate the irrigation. So small a staff is certainly inadequate, and it will be quite impossible for two Officers under the Chief Engineer to look after the maintenance of the works properly. Now that the works have been carried out, and are beginning to be availed of, there can be no question as to the necessity of maintaining them in the best possible state of efficiency.

The general conclusions, then, which my inspection led me to form on the points adverted to at the commencement of this Memorandum, are as follows :—

First.—That the condition of the canal at the present time is, on the whole, such as to enable it to fulfil all the duty likely to be required of it as regards irrigation for some years to come. That, before it will be necessary to pass down a full supply for that purpose, the few weak places in the embankments which I have noticed will have become consolidated. Also that, as far as I could judge outwardly in the absence of an opportunity of testing the locks, the canal is fit to fulfil its purpose for navigation as soon as the one weak length in the embankment near the River Caulee has been strengthened, and the decayed balance beams in the gates been replaced.

Secondly.—The extent to which the canal is being utilised for irrigation is, though at present still small, viz., 9,500 acres, yet from the fact of water having been taken in 130 villages, and the way in which those in the upper section of the canal have used it, there is little doubt of its gradual extension to the full extent of the supply of water conveyed by it.

Thirdly.—The reason why so little progress has as yet been made is, doubtless, primarily owing to the uncertainty which has prevailed hitherto that the supply of water would be constant; but I have little doubt that it is likewise owing to the majority of the villagers being ignorant of the terms, and the dates on which, water can be supplied, and of the absence of a proper system of Revenue management. I do not, however, expect that the adoption of irrigated crops will be rapid, for the conversion of a large tract of country from the usual dry crops into rice cultivation must necessarily be gradual, inasmuch as it requires both time, labor and outlay to accomplish it, but with greater facilities and a better system of Revenue management, the transition would be more rapid than it can possibly be without them.

Lastly.—The measures which are necessary for securing a better pecuniary result at an earlier date—

I.—A revision of the water-rates, substituting differential for the present fixed rates, and their gradual imposition until the maximum is reached.

II.—The opening of the navigation by the establishment of a regular system of transit.

III.—The construction of at least one reservoir capable of affording a supply of 1,125 cubic feet per second for four months of the year.

IV.—The completion of the canal to the Nellore District, and its connexion with the East Coast Canal, and so with the great Delta system of the Godavery and Kistna.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

AS TO THE EXISTENCE OF CANKER IN THE CINCHONA PLANTS ORIGINALLY SENT FROM THE NILGIRIS TO SIKKIM.

No. 1054, dated 2nd October 1873.

From—R. A. DALYELL, ESQ., Acting Secretary to the Government of Madras,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Dept. of Agriculture, Revenue, and Commerce.

Your letter, dated 1st October 1872, No. 418, gave cover to certain papers from the Government of Bengal, which, it was observed, left little doubt, in the opinion of the Government of India, of the correctness of the assertion as to the existence of canker in the cinchona plants originally sent up from the Nilgiris as stock for the Sikkim plantations.

2. I am now directed to forward the enclosed Proceedings* of this Government, embodying letters from the Commissioner of the Nilgiris and from Mr. McIvor, containing remarks on the subject, and to request that these papers may be published in the Gazette of India in continuation of provious correspondence.

* 12th September 1873, Nos. 90-91.

3. It appears to this Government that Mr. McIvor has shown that it is extremely improbable that canker existed in the plants in question when originally sent up from the Nilgiris, though it is possible that the disease may have been generated on the journey to Sikkim.

No. 978, dated 12th September 1873.

Proceedings of the Government of Madras, Revenue Department.

Read the following—

No. 32, dated 19th July 1873.

From—J. R. COCKERELL, ESQ., Commissioner of the Nilgiris,

To—The Acting Secretary to Government of Madras, Revenue Department.

I have the honor to enclose a letter from Mr. McIvor in reply to G. O., dated 14th October 1872, No. 1418.

2. Mr. McIvor submits that the Nilgiri plantations have proved themselves so singularly free from canker that it is unlikely 327 cinchona plants, exported for the Sikkim plantations, were on exportation affected with the disease; more especially as every precaution was taken to send away healthy plants, and the plants were chosen by skilled persons despatched from Bengal to select them.

3. From the same circumstances of the healthiness of the Nilgiri plantations, Mr. McIvor submits that other plants despatched must, in all probability, have been equally free from disease.

4. Mr. McIvor further submits that the written evidence recorded at the time shows all the Nilgiri plants to which it refers were healthy, and that it is only ten years afterwards that their freedom from disease on quitting the Nilgiris is called in question, and, then, upon the recollection of gentlemen interested in the propagation of the plants in Bengal.

5. Finally, Mr. McIvor defends himself against the imputations of inaccuracy brought against him by the witnesses on whom Dr. King relies, and submits that the witnesses have fallen into error in every instance they cite.

ENCLOSURE No. 1.

No. 33, dated 12th July 1873.

From—W. G. MCIVOR, ESQ., Superintendent to Government Cinchona Plantations,

To—The Commissioner of the Nilgiris.

I have the honor to acknowledge Government Official Memorandum, Revenue Department, No. 97, dated 7th of May last, desiring to know whether I have any remarks to make on a letter of the Government of India, recorded in G. O., dated 14th October 1872, No. 1418, in which the Government of India arrive at the conclusion that "canker is shown to have existed in the plants originally sent up from the Nilgiris as stock for the Sikkim plantations."

2. The Government of India form this decision upon an enquiry conducted by Dr. King, Superintendent of the Cinchona Cultivation in Bengal. Dr. King encloses in his report the evidence upon which he bases his judgment.

3. I shall venture first to remark upon Dr. King's arguments and summing up, and will then cursorily meet the adverse statements in the evidence he adduces.

4. Dr. King remarks in paragraph 4 of his letter: "It appears Mr. McIvor is not inclined to admit that any plants sent by him from the Nilgiri plantations to Sikkim, for either the Government plantation or that of the Cinchona Association, could, on arrival in Sikkim, have been affected with the disease which he calls canker." I beg to submit that my position as thus described by Dr. King is not the position I have adopted, and which I maintain. My position is not that the plants when received at Sikkim were not tainted with canker, but that there was no taint on the plants when they quitted the Nilgiris. I can only argue on the condition of the plants as they left my hands. Obviously I can know nothing of the condition in which they reached the Himalaya mountains. The distinction is of the utmost importance. My argument is that the plants left the Nilgiris free from disease, and that, if they reached the Himalayas as it is now stated they did with canker, they contracted the malady on the road.

5. I will proceed to show how probable it is that such a state of things occurred. I must first, however, meet the argument of Dr. King in paragraph 5 of his letter to the effect that argument from probability is negative argument. I oppose to this objection that Dr. King, while condemning a negative argument in me, is driven to a negative argument himself. In paragraph 4 of his letter, he admits that Dr. Anderson did not, as a matter of fact, mention in any of his reports the existence of canker in the Nilgiri plants; and he accounts for his silence by the negative argument that Dr. Anderson probably "did not think it (canker) worth mentioning." This argument of Dr. King even goes beyond the point of mere negation; for Dr. Anderson does not merely pass over the existence of canker in the Nilgiri plants, and so leave it to be inferred the possibility of the existence of canker, but he states at paragraph 6 of his letter, dated 11th February 1862, which was written from Calcutta after the arrival of the Nilgiri plants there, that the plants were "as healthy as they were at Ootacamund." At paragraph 2 of the same communication, speaking of the plants on the Nilgiris, he says: "Under such favourable circumstances the plants receive at once every condition necessary to their perfect health." In fact, all Dr. Anderson's reports of the Nilgiri plants not only make no mention of canker, but positively say the plants come from a healthy source, and are healthy. The matter stands thus: speaking of circumstances ten years after the event, which cannot be decided on evidence recorded at the time, Dr. King and I are both driven to negative arguments. I submit that, from the nature of the case, only negative arguments are possible.

6. Following this train of argument I shall, as I hope, demonstrate—1st.—That it is extremely unlikely the plants from the Nilgiris were affected with canker when they left the Nilgiris.

2nd.—That it is, on the other hand, highly probable that the plants spontaneously generated canker on their journey to Sikkim.

7. Upon the first point it is only necessary to say that Dr. King, in his letter under discussion, admits, at paragraph 11, the infrequency of canker on the Nilgiris. He says: "I saw examples of both forms of disease in the Cinchona plantations on the Nilgiris during my recent visit to them, although neither is common there;" and to add that on the Nilgiri the Government plantations cover 1,200 acres, and only 600 cankered trees have been discovered since the commencement. I refer also to paragraph 2 of Dr. Anderson's letter quoted above, and to the fact well known to physiologists, from the late eminent Mr. Knight downwards, that canker, even if introduced to a climate unfavourable to its diffusion, is arrested. The fact of canker never having gained a footing on the Nilgiris shows the Nilgiris possesses such a climate, and the inevitable inference appears to be that the plants did not leave the Nilgiris cankered.

8. The next point requires me, in the first instance, to demonstrate the nature of canker, and the conclusion that it might probably have been spontaneously generated between the date the plants left the Nilgiris and their arrival at Sikkim.

9. Upon the nature of canker it is stated in Loudon's Suburban Horticulturist, Chapter VI., page 123, and Lindley's Gardeners' Chronicle, page 283, 2nd May 1846, canker is a disease caused by "unsuitableness of soil, unpropitiousness of climate, and want of access of air." The disease disappears when these conditions are changed. Mr. Scott, in his evidence before the Cinchona Commission, allows this; for he says, in reply to a question,—"Would you willingly propagate from a cankered stock-plant?" "As readily as from a healthy plant, provided I could find a healthy shoot to make a cutting of." The answer shows that, in his opinion, Mr. Scott could get rid of canker by judicious treatment; for it is clear that if the healthy shoot from a cankered plant was placed in unfavourable conditions, it would continue to develop disease.

10. But hypothesis is not needed in the matter, as we have positive proof that canker arises from damp in wardian cases. The whole of the plants conveyed to Java from South America in twenty wardian cases by Dr. Hasskarl were so affected with disease that, as stated by Dr. McPherson to the Madras Government, dated 19th December 1860, paragraph 8, "most of the young trees on being planted out speedily died, and of all the trees imported only two survived." With some of the consignments sent to India from South America the loss was even more complete. The whole stock of Calisaya collected by Mr. Markham perished from confinement in wardian cases. The entire collection of Mr. Pritchett similary perished before arrival in Bombay, and the only plants which survived long confinement in cases were those brought by Mr. Cross to Madras. These plants survived, because Mr. Cross kept the cases open, and daily forked up the earth about the roots. From these latter plants the Nilgiri stock was raised.

11. The opinion of Mr. Scott accords with these facts. Mr. Scott says in the correspondence under reference: "Even supposing, however, that the plants were perfectly free from the disease when lifted out and despatched in wardian cases from the Nilgiris for Sikkim, I am quite of opinion that it might have originated during the journey, if the plants were kept in a wet soil and a close, hot, and moist atmosphere."

12. Thus it is shown positively that canker appears in wardian cases. And what was the treatment the Nilgiri plants received on the journey to Sikkim? Upon this point Dr. Anderson, in his report from the 1st April 1862 to 30th April 1863, writes: "That owing to the highly unfavourable circumstances in which the plants were placed after their arrival in Darjeeling, I was obliged to keep the Cinchona plants confined for two months in wardian cases, some of them having been already subjected to five months of this confinement." Further Dr. Anderson writes: "No packages of any kind ever reached Darjeeling from Calcutta in less than six weeks, the usual time occupied in the transit being two months." In fine, Dr. Anderson proves to demonstration that the time all plants passed in wardian cases in their journey from the Nilgiris to the Himalayas was invariably sufficient to generate canker.

13. I have, in my report on the Sikkim plantations, stated my opinion that the climate of Sikkim is favourable to the development of canker. Even, therefore, if the extreme supposition was adopted that the Nilgiri plants escaped the peril of the journey to Sikkim, on their arrival they would have been placed in conditions adverse to health. The climate of Sikkim is condemned for cinchona by Mr. Gammie, who writes in paragraph 1 of his letter, enclosure 4 in the letter of the Government of India: "I have every reason to believe that canker showed itself in the plants immediately after their arrival from Madras, but, at the same time, I think had even quite healthy plants been received, there would have been more or less canker in the Sikkim plantations."

14. The climate of Rungbee is much like the climate of the Travancore States, and is, I believe, too moist for Cinchona. I had the honour to report on the Travancore Government Cinchona Plantations in September 1872. I found the trees there permeated with canker. I am informed that they have now actually died out, and it is the intention to plant coffee on the sites. It will be seen in this report, and I beg to draw attention to the fact that I show there, that canker is a disease not only of the bark of Cinchona, but which attacks the roots also. From the correspondence now under reference, it seems that the Bengal authorities are under a misapprehension, and refer canker only to bark-disease.

15. I have thus endeavoured to show—

1st.—That it is not probable the plants should have had canker when they left the Nilgiris, as they were forwarded from a pure source.

2nd.—That nothing was easier than from them to contract the disease during their journey to Sikkim; and,

3rd.—That, in the extreme supposition that they escaped the peril of the journey, Sikkim has a climate and soil, described by the most eminent physiologists, as presenting conditions favourable to the origination of canker.

16. I will now address myself to minor points and to the inaccuracies ascribed to me by the witnesses cited by Dr. King.

17. Stress is laid by Dr. King on the evidence of Mr. Jaffrey, who, Dr. King states, has been on the Government plantation since its commencement. This is an error. Mr. Stubbs was originally in charge. Mr. Jaffrey took charge on the 13th of September 1862, or nine months afterwards. The statement is made at paragraph 2 of Dr. Anderson's report, 1862-63. Thus Mr. Jaffrey had no means of knowing the state of the original stock of plants until nine months after they had been submitted to the adverse climate of Sikkim.

18. In his evidence referred to by Dr. King, it is stated by Mr. Jaffrey: "I received, during April 1863, 327 plants from the Nilgiris, amongst which canker was fully developed." It is worthy of remark that Mr. Jaffrey made no mention of so important a fact until 1872, and withheld it in his evidence before the Cinchona Commission in 1871. The following are the facts with regard to these 327 plants:—Dr. Anderson sent down a European gardener and a Mallee from Calcutta to select and pack them; he writes, on the 9th March 1863, to the late Sir W. Denison, then Governor of Madras: "You will probably like to hear that the Cinchona plants supplied to me from Ootacamund arrived here in excellent condition, and are still in this garden (Botanic, Calcutta), and have grown much, most of them having made three pairs of leaves since their arrival here." Referring to these plants after their arrival in Darjeeling, he writes: "Of the original No. 350 received from Madras, only twenty-three had been lost between Calcutta and Darjeeling."

19. Referring to plants subsequently received by the Darjeeling Cinchona Association, Mr. Jaffrey, at paragraph 3 of his present letter, attributes their destruction "to their weakness and the wretched soil in which they had been transmitted." It may be permitted me to remark on the singularity of the circumstance, that taking the 327 plants received in April 1863 to have been affected with canker immediately recognizable by Mr. Jaffrey, and not to have been, as Mr. Anderson stated, quite healthy. Mr. Jaffrey could not detect the disease in plants received months afterwards, and was driven to attribute their decay to weakness and soil.

20. With regard to the evidence of Mr. Munro, referred to in paragraphs 5, 6, and 7 of Dr. King's letter, I observe that it shows the plants it refers to were received from a third party; that they were not ordered by Mr. Munro or for him; and he did not pay for them. This is the reason his name does not appear in my books.

21. With regard to the evidence of Mr. Munro before the Cinchona Commission, to which I took exception at the time, I wish to remark that, whether Mr. Munro refers in it to the first plants sent to Government or to the Darjeeling Cinchona Association, he was not qualified to give an opinion, as he was not in India when the plants were received. Mr. Munro, in paragraph 4 of his present letter, says: "Of the first consignment I know nothing." Dr. Simpson also states that the first instalment of plants was received long before the arrival of Mr. Munro. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Munro, in his evidence, said: "We received our first cuttings from the Nilgiris, and they were extensively affected with canker." The only plants upon the condition of which Mr. Munro was in a position to pronounce on their arrival on the Himalayas formed the last batch. With regard to these plants, Mr. Munro is silent in his evidence.

22. In his present letter, he speaks of the plants thus: He writes: "They showed symptoms of the disease we have since learned to call canker, as soon as it could be distinguished from injuries received during the journey." Mr. Munro does not state how long this interval was. The records would indicate it as an interval of many years after the arrival of the last instalment of plants in Sikkim.

23. Mr. Munro accuses me of inaccuracy with regard to some seeds I supplied the Association. He writes in his present letter: "Mr. McIvor takes care not to mention the quantity of seeds sent. I will do so for him. It was of C. Succirubra ¼ ounce." The letters noted in the margin, taken from my records, show that the quantity sent was 7½ ounces. I sent also about 2 ounces by pattern-post. My copy of the covering letter to this last consignment is mislaid, but no doubt the letter will be found on the records of the Association.

24. Dr. King, at paragraph 9 of his communication, calls in question my statement that the "Sikkim stock of Pahudiana, raised solely from Java plants, has also been destroyed by canker." He further expresses his surprise that I should be ignorant that the Pahudiana produces no quinine, and was on that account abandoned. In reply, I observe that it was I who brought the fact of the unproductiveness of the species in question to notice in my letter to Government of August 1861. I was aware the cultivation of the species has been stopped by the Secretary of State. But all this has nothing to do with the fact to which I alluded, namely, that of the 5,092 Pahudiana plants put out at Sikkim in 1865, all were affected with canker, and many had died out at the date of my visit in 1871.

25. Dr. King states, in paragraph 10 of his letter: "A third mistake into which Mr. McIvor has fallen in this same paragraph 7 is that of saying that the Java variety of C. Calisaya (C. Josephiana) has been so affected by canker that only one plant existed on the Sikkim plantations at the date of my visit in February 1871, out of all the seeds and plants received of this variety; whereas Mr. Gammie, in the concluding paragraph of his memorandum, estimates the number at 8,000." It is Dr. King who has here fallen into error; he confounds C. Calisaya and C. Josephiana Calisaya. Mr. Gammie does not speak in the memorandum at all of C. Josephiana.

26. Mr. Gammie apparently implies, at paragraph 5 of his letter, that all the varieties of tree Calisaya on the Sikkim plantation were raised from Java seeds. This is erroneous: all the varieties but one were raised from Mr. Ledger's collection of seeds purchased and imported to India by Mr. Money. The Dutch obtained the varieties in question also from Mr. Ledger's collection, having previously had only one variety of tree Calisaya.

27. I have omitted to notice that, at paragraph 4 of his letter, Mr. Gammie states that I am mistaken in my impression that the cultivation of C. Officinalis was abandoned on account of canker; but adds: "C. Officinalis certainly died out but from the roots, and not from what I understand to be canker which affects the bark and not the root. On the 31st of March 1870 there were 930,704 plants of C. Officinalis in the Government plantations in British Sikkim, of which 406,899 were in permanent plantations. On the 5th July 1872, Mr. Gammie informs us that these plants had certainly died out. I should remark here that these plants were raised from stock received from Ceylon, and not from the Nilgiris, and that they were raised principally from seeds. Their disappearance is attributable to nothing but canker, which, as I have shown above, attacks roots as well as bark.

Report on the Bengal Cinchona Plantations, dated Calcutta, 29th April 1870.

Order thereon by the Government of Madras.

The foregoing papers will be communicated to the Government of India, with reference to their Agricultural Secretary's letter, dated 1st October 1872, No. 418, and with the request that they may be published in the Gazette of India in continuation of previous correspondence.

2. It appears to the Governor in Council that Mr. McIvor has shown that it is extremely improbable that canker existed in the plants originally sent up from the Nilgiris as stock for the Sikkim plantations, though it is possible that the disease may have been generated on the journey.

To—The Acting Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1054 (Miscellaneous), dated the 2nd instant, and enclosures, on the question as to the existence of canker in the Cinchona plants originally sent from the Nilgiris as stock for the Sikkim plantations, and to state in reply that, while the Governor General in Council considers it needless to prolong the controversy, he is not prepared to accept the conclusions arrived at by His Excellency the Governor of Madras in Council.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS.

Fort William, the 13th November 1873.

No. 3002.—The following Notification regarding the withdrawal of Berar surplus cash balance for the season 1874 is published for general information :—

TENDERS FOR THE BERAR SURPLUS CASH BALANCES.

SEASON 1874.

NOTICE TO BANKERS, CAPITALISTS, AND OTHERS.

Tenders are invited for the purchase of Bills drawn against the Surplus Cash Balances of the Berar Treasuries, for the Calendar year 1874, on the conditions specified in the Rules noted below :—

1. Bills will be available for issue on the Treasuries of Akolah and Oomrawuttee in the months and to the probable extent noted in Statement at foot.

2. Nothing, however, in this Notification shall pledge the Resident at Hyderabad to provide the exact sums estimated to be available in the months specified, and such tenders as are approved will be registered for final acceptance, to the extent to which money may be actually available. As a guide, however, to Bankers, Capitalists, and others, to tender for the probable surplus during the year above quoted, it is hereby intimated that the surplus cash balances available annually for the preceding three years amounted to Rs. 1,40,50,000, or an average per annum of Rs. 46,83,000, and that the probable surplus for the ensuing season, it is estimated, will be about Rs. 40,00,000, as shown in Statement below.

3. The bills will be drawn at sight, in even thousands, and paid in Government Rupees at the Treasuries drawn upon. No bill will be drawn for less than 5,000 Government Rupees, but bills for sums in excess of this amount, in even thousands, will be issued to suit the convenience of purchasers.

4. Persons whose tenders may be finally accepted will be required to pay the equivalent into the Resident's Treasury at Hyderabad in new Halli Sicca Rupees prior to the issue of bills.

5. Tenders must specify the rate of exchange at which the tender is made, the par or assay value of 100 Government Rupees being equivalent to 116-14-6 in Halli Sicca Currency. The tenders should also specify the month or months for which the tenders are made.

6. Persons whose tenders may be finally accepted in whole, or in part, will be required, at the option of the Resident, to deposit 10 per cent. of the amount of their tenders on acceptance.

7. All tenders should be submitted in sealed envelopes, addressed as follows :—

TO THE FIRST ASSISTANT RESIDENT, Hyderabad, Deccan, and superscribed "TENDERS FOR THE BERAR SURPLUS CASH BALANCES OF 1874."

8. The name and address of the person tendering should be clearly written at foot of the tender.

9. The tenders will be opened at the Hyderabad Residency at noon, on Wednesday, the 7th of January 1874, and persons tendering are invited to be present, or to be represented by their Agents.

10. The Resident will not bind himself to accept the highest or any tender, nor will any reason be assigned for rejection of tenders.

11. Persons whose tenders may be finally accepted will be required to pay the amount of their tenders into the Resident's Treasury between the 15th of the month to which the tenders refer and the 14th of the month following.

12. Tenders may be for the whole or any portion of the amount advertised.

13. The deposit referred to in Rule 6 will be forfeited in whole, or in part, at the option of the Resident, in the event of non-compliance with the terms of the tender.

14. No portion of the deposit will be returned till the full amount of tender finally accepted is received.

15. Each tender must be accompanied by a deposit of Rs. 5,000 in Halli Sicca coin, or Government Securities, as a guarantee of good faith, which deposit will be returned in the event of non-acceptance of tender, but the tender itself will not be returned.

N. B.—If when the last instalment of land revenue has been paid up the state of the collections should warrant such a course, a supplementary notification will be issued stating whether any and what further limited amount will be avaliable for withdrawal.

Actual surplus available for withdrawal from Berar annually for the three years 1871 to 1873, and that estimated to be available for the year 1874.

EXPENDITURE.—ADMINISTRATION.

The 13*th November* 1873.

No.—3030.—Mr. D. M. Barbour received charge of the Office of the Under Secretary to the Government of India in this Department from Mr. J. W. Gardiner on the forenoon of the 1st November 1873

MISCELLANEOUS.

The 14*th November* 1873.

No. 2997.—RESOLUTION.—In consequence of the failure of the autumn rice-crop throughout a large part of the territories administered by the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, there is reason to fear that there may be a large expenditure of money for the relief of distress and a serious loss of revenue.

2. The Viceroy and Governor General accordingly deems it necessary to invite the attention of local Governments and chiefs of departments to the imperative necessity that is laid upon the Government and its officers for the immediate curtailment of all expenditure that can be reduced, postponed, or dispensed with. The scarcity in Bengal may cause a considerable strain on the general resources of the State, and expenditure that would be proper under ordinary circumstances would be out of place now.

3. His Excellency desires that each officer will take immediate steps to stop any expenditure in the present year that can be prevented, and that all estimates of charge for the coming year 1874-75 may be reconsidered and reduced to the utmost possible extent.

4. No increase of expense should for the present be suggested that can by any means be avoided.

5. The Viceroy and Governor General is confident that officers of the Government will recognise the necessity for these instructions, and he looks for their loyal co-operation in giving effect to them.

ORDERED, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded for information and guidance to each Department of the Government of India, to each Local Government, and to the Heads of Departments under the Government of India in this Department.

Copy is also to be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

The 14th November 1873.

No. 3006.—The Governor General in Council directs that the following be added as Rules 1 and 2 under Section 24 of the Civil Pension Code :—

1. The service of process-servers, before the Court Fees Act 1870 was passed, qualifies in the following cases :—

   In Bengal—

   Service paid from the fund formed under Act V of 1863, Bengal Council.

   In the North-Western Provinces—

   (a). Service under the civil courts after 31st December 1863.

   (b). Service under the revenue courts after 31st December 1865.

   Service rendered after 14th March 1859.

   In Oudh, the Central Provinces, and British Burmah —

   All service.

   In Bombay—

   Service paid from the Ameen's fee fund.

   [NOTE.—In Madras the service of process-servers previous to their appointment under the Court Fees Act, 1870, did not qualify.

2. Rule 1 applies also to naib nazirs, who were on the same footing in respect to the source of their pay as process-servers.

SEPARATE REVENUE.—POST OFFICE.

The 14th November 1873.

No. 2982.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 27 of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, the Governor General in Council is pleased to revoke all rules and regulations heretofore prescribed for the re-delivery of letters and articles delivered into any Post Office to the sender thereof and to prescribe the following rules in that behalf:—

(1). No letters or other article delivered into any Post Office shall be redelivered except under the orders of—

(a). The chief postal authority in a province;

(b). The Director General of the Post Office;

(c). The local Government or Administration; or (d). The Governor General in Council.

(2). A fee of one rupee shall be paid with any application for such redelivery.

(3). An application for the re-delivery of any such letter or article may be presented in writing to the said officers, Governments or Administrations, directly or through any officer in charge of a Post Office.

(4). Such application shall be received only from the writer of the letter or the sender of the article, or from some person duly authorised in this behalf by such writer or sender.

(5). The application shall be accompanied by a statement (which may be enclosed in a sealed cover) of the reasons why redelivery of the letter or article is sought. Such sealed cover shall be opened only by the officer or by a Secretary to the Government or Administration to whom or to which the application is presented.

(6). Upon receipt of such application and statement, together with a fee of one rupee as aforesaid, by a Post Master or other officer in charge of a Post Office, he shall immediately send the application and statement to the nearest officer or authority having power under Rule (I) to dispose of such application.

(7). If the letter or article of which redelivery is sought is in his possession, the said Post Master or other officer, instead of forwarding it to its address, shall send it with the application to the said officer or authority.

(8). If the letter or article is not in the possession of the said Post Master or other officer, he shall require any other officer of the Post Office in whose possession it may be to abstain from sending it to its address, and to send it instead to the authority or officer to which or to whom the application will be or has been sent. The requisition to such other officer may be sent by telegraph, but all expenses attending its transmission must be borne by the applicant.

(9). When the application reaches the officer or authority named in Rule (I) to whom it is thus sent, he or it may order redelivery of the letter or article upon being satisfied that the applicant is the writer or sender, and that sufficient reasons have been given for the redelivery, otherwise he shall send it at once to its address.

(10). No letter delivered into the post shall be redelivered in any case to any one but the writer or to some person authorized by the writer in writing to receive it, and no article not being a letter delivered into the post shall be redelivered to any one but the sender or to some person authorized by the sender in writing to receive it.

(11). In the foregoing rules the word "writer" does not include a person who writes a letter which another dictates or directs to be written, or who copies a letter which has been written by another; but in each of such cases the author of the letter shall, for the purposes of these rules, be held to be the "writer."

MILITARY

No. 184.

INDIA OFFICE,

LONDON, 8th September 1873.

MY LORD,—I have received and considered in Council your Military letter No. 58 of the 14th March 1873, relative to the case of Captain ——— 92nd Highlanders, A.-D.-C. to the General Officer Commanding the Rawul Pindee Division, who was granted in G. O. No. 438 of 1872 leave to Europe on urgent private affairs without pay under the rules of 1854.

2. I consider that Captain ——— should not have been granted leave under the Furlough Rules of 1854, which only apply to Officers of Her Majesty's British Army whose Regiments arrived in India before the date of the publication of the Passage Warrant of 1865.

3. As the 92nd Regiment was serving on the Indian Establishment, Captain ——— received the British pay of his Regimental rank from this Office. To this rate, he was entitled up to the date of his return to India.

I have, &c.,

N. B.—Maps are not sold at the Office of the Surveyor General of India, Calcutta, but applications for maps on payment should be made to Agents. This Department only issues maps, free of charge, on the Public Service. It is particularly requested that the nearest local Agent as above be first applied to for any map required on the Public Service before indenting on this Department. The cost of postage of parcels must be borne by applicants themselves, as also such incidental charges as may be incurred at their request for mounting and binding maps. The best maps are invariably supplied in lieu of those asked for which may not be available, and lists of all newly published maps are periodically notified in the Gazettes of India and of local Governments.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—JUDICIAL.

Fort William, the 21st November 1873.

No. 237*J*.—Ajmer Regulation No. I of 1873:—

A Regulation to make special provision for the hearing of suits involving questions regarding succession to the estates of Tálugdárs, Thákurs and Jágírdárs in Ajmer.

Preamble.

Whereas by a Resolution passed by the Secretary of State in Council on the sixteenth day of March 1871, the provisions of the thirty-third of Victoria, chapter three, section one, were declared applicable to Ajmer and Mairwára:

and whereas the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer has proposed to the Governor General in Council a draft of the following Regulation, together with the reasons for proposing the same:

and whereas the Governor General in Council has taken such draft and reasons into consideration, and has approved of such draft, and the same has received the Governor General's assent:

In pursuance of the direction contained in the said section, the said Regulation is now published in the Gazette of India, and will be published in the Local Gazette, and will thereupon have the force of law:—

Short title.

1. This Regulation may be called "The Ajmer Táluqdárs' Succession Regulation, 1873:"

Extent and application.

It shall extend to all Courts constituted by "The Ajmer Courts' Regulation, 1872," and it shall apply to all suits and appeals instituted in such Courts after it comes into force, and to all appeals pending in such Courts at the time it comes into force.

Suits not to be heard in Court of lower grade than that of Deputy Commissioner.

2. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections eleven, fifteen and sixteen of "The Ajmer Courts' Regulation, 1872," no suit in which any question regarding a right to inherit as heir by birth or adoption, or to succeed by any other little to the estates of any of the Táluqdárs, Thákurs or Jágírdárs entered in the schedule annexed to the Ajmer Regulation II of 1872, is in issue, shall be heard by any Court of a lower grade than that of the Deputy Commissioner.

All such suits shall be instituted in the Court of the Deputy Commissioner, and any such suit instituted in a Court of a lower grade shall be transferred to the Court of the Deputy Commissioner.

Chief Commissioner not to refer points to High Court.

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in section twenty-seven of the said Regulation, the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer shall not on appeal in such suits be bound to make any such reference to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, as is by the said section required.

Commissioner to refer points to Chief Commissioner instead of to High Court.

4. References made by the Commissioner of Ajmer on appeal in such suits under the said sections twenty-two and twenty-seven, shall be made not to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces as provided by the said sections, but to the Court of the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer. Provided that if, on any reference being made to him under this section, the Chief Commissioner is of opinion that such reference is one which should be disposed of by the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, he may return it to the Commissioner with a view to its being submitted to that Court as provided by the said sections.

Procedure on reference to Chief Commissioner.

5. The Chief Commissioner shall, on such a reference being made to him, unless he returns it for submission to the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, proceed to deal with it in the same manner in all respects as the High Court is required to do by sections twenty-three and twenty-seven respectively of the said Act, and his ruling or judgment thereon shall have the same effect as a ruling or judgment of the High Court, and the Commissioner shall dispose of the case in conformity therewith.

The costs (if any) consequent on such reference, shall be costs in the appeal out of which it arose.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORT ON THE EASTERN FRONTIER OF BENGAL BETWEEN CHITTAGONG AND CACHAR, EMBRACING PORTIONS OF HILL TIPPERAH AND THE LUSHAI AND NORTH CHITTAGONG HILLS.

No. $\frac{F}{408}$, dated Simla, the 15th July 1873.

From—Colonel H. L. THUILLIER, C. S. I., Surveyor General of India,

To—The Secretary to the Govt. of India, DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

With reference to the orders of the Government of India, conveyed to me in the correspondence received under cover of your office endorsements marginally noted, directing the completion of the exploration and survey of the eastern frontier of Bengal between Chittagong and Cachar, and embracing portions of Hill Tipperah and the Lushai and North Chittagong Hills, I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Government of India, copies of the reports, as per margin, by Captain W. F. Badgley, Officiating Deputy Superintendent, Topographical Survey, employed in the Tipperah and Lushai Hills, and by Gordon H. Cooke, Esquire, Assistant Superintendent, Revenue Survey, employed in the North Chittagong Hill Tracts.

No. 557, dated 9th September 1872.
No. 787, dated 14th December 1872.

No. 199, dated 17th May 1873, by Captain Badgley.
No. 86 A, dated 27th June 1873, by G. H. Cooke, Esq.

2. Captain Badgley, assisted by Mr. A. Chennell, Assistant Surveyor, after some detention in making the necessary arrangements for an expedition of such a peculiar character, entered Hill Tipperah from the Sylhet side on the 19th of December, with the object of laying down as much of the interior of the Rajah of Tipperah's territory, left unexplored by the old survey party under the late Mr. O'Donell, as could be effected, together with the north-east corner of the Chittagong Hill District, down as far as Demágiri southwards, and the Lushai country between Hill Tipperah to the west, "Peak Z" to the east, a well known and conspicuous hill previously fixed and determined, and the completed surveys of the previous season to the north and south, with the special view of a correct definition and demarcation between Hill Tipperah and the Lushai country, by the exploration of the Jampui and Hachik ranges of low hills.

3. By the programme sketched out and sufficiently detailed in Captain Badgley's narrative, the triangulation was carried across the abovenamed ranges of hills down to "Sirthe," a point about twenty miles north of Demágiri on the Kurnafulee river in the Chittagong Hills previously well determined, and from thence the return route was made across the Lushai Hills to "Peak Z," Jalnacharra, and the Chaturchura Hill in South Cachar.

4. In this manner, and under the instructions given for the conduct of the operations founded on the experience of the former seasons in similar ground, an area of about 2,432 square miles of triangulation, and 3,587 square miles of reconnaissance with the plane table, has been accomplished on a scale of 4 miles to the inch, exclusive of necessary overlap survey on the work of the previous season, amounting to about 500 square miles.

5. This area, explored and mapped, fills a large blank extending from the Atarmura range in Hill Tipperah (longitude 91° 48′) to the Chal Fil range (longitude 93°), and from "Sirthe," a depôt station in latitude 23° 12′ to the Chaturchura Hill, latitude 24° 15′. It contains the head waters of the "Dolai," "Manu," "Deo," "Lungai," "Pakwa," "Gutar," and "Sonai" streams, which flow northwards into the districts of Sylhet and Cachar, the "Gumti" stream which flowing westwards passes into the plains near the station of Comillah, and of several feeders of the Kurnafulee river draining southwards into the Chittagong district.

6. By the combined operations of the north and south column parties of the past season, and the work now executed by Captain Badgley, we have the means of checking certain places which were doubtful on the maps previously published. The position of "Bepari Bazar," on the Dallesar river, west of, and just below the well known "Peak Z," which has for a long time been the cause of considerable doubt and embarrassment in reconciling conflicting authorities, has now been well determined, and is sufficiently proved that the value assigned to it by Major Macdonald, marked on the map "approximate," is considerably out of its proper place, because he did not visit it from his southern exploration, and merely fixed it by approximation derived from information, whereas Captain Badgley having visited the spot and sufficiently proved his route by careful comparisons and observations, which are wanting in Major Macdonald's results, I have no further doubt whatever of the value now assigned to it on the present compilation map.

7. The elevations of the principal ranges crossed by Captain Badgley will be furnished on his final map, and after the completion of the computations for his season's triangulation, which must take time to work out. The present report is merely preliminary.

8. Captain Badgley was well supported throughout by Mr. Chennell, Assistant Surveyor, who performed the share of work allotted to him, both triangulation and topography, with great zeal and success.

9. Mr. Gordon Cooke's party started from Demágiri on the Kurnafulee river in the North Chittagong Hills on the 3rd December, and worked southwards along the "Oheepoom" and "Saichul" ranges to the hill of "Keokradong" on the Arracan frontier, about ten miles south-east of the frontier guard station of Polytai. He was quite unassisted, as the native sub-surveyor who started with him was found unfit for the arduous nature of the duties and personal risk required on this frontier, and he was able to accomplish little or nothing, having to be left behind at Demágiri.

10. The area triangulated and mapped by Mr. Cooke covers about 1,500 square miles, and forms a good connection with both Captain Badgley's work of the present season, as well as with the old survey of the North Chittagong Hill District by the late Mr. O'Donell, and with the survey by Major Macdonald of the previous season. It is drained by the "Tui-Chong" and "Thega-khal" streams. The former (Tui-Chong) flowing between the "Kansa-tong" and "Oheepoom" ranges, the head waters or source being in latitude 22°, immediately below the hill of "Keokradong" (north), where the ranges unite; and the latter (Thega-khal) flowing between the Oheepoom and Saichul ranges, having its source near the "Wey-boong-tong" hill station, at which point the Oheepoom range connects with the Saichul range.

11. The combined area mapped by Captain Badgley, Mr. Chennell, and Mr. Cooke covers about 5,087 square miles, and the secondary triangulation carried on from the north and from the south in previous seasons has been satisfactorily connected, so as to give a good basis to the whole of the topography laid down. The whole of this country was a perfect terra incognita hitherto; fully three-fourths of the area visited by Captain Badgley and Mr. Chennell in Hill Tipperah, and on the western border of the Lushai hills, is altogether uninhabited, and the same may be said of all the ground visited by Mr. Cooke.

12. Very interesting and full descriptions of the country and its climate, together with notes on the most suitable positions for frontier posts, are given in Captain Badgley's and Mr. Cooke's reports, to which attention is invited.

13. Both the survey parties have had to penetrate through very dense jungle, and often to cut their way step by step, and on several occasions suffered severely from want of food and water when they failed to reach the depôts of food placed at certain points at considerable expense and with great difficulty, by the civil authorities; and it is due solely to the energy and fertility of resource displayed by Captain Badgley in his more difficult task, and by Mr. Cooke in his comparatively easier sphere, that the season's operations on the frontier have terminated so successfully and happily. From Captain Badgley's report it appears that Sukpilál's guides did all in their power to mislead the party when they could, and the Chief, although passive, was not deemed very friendly at any time.

14. The Commissioners of the Dacca and Chittagong Divisions rendered all possible aid to the respective surveys, and this department is much indebted to those officers for the prompt measures adopted to provide for the wants of the survey establishments and for the courtesy and promptitude with which information relating to the progress of Captain Badgley and Mr. Cooke, when they were beyond the reach of postal communication, was rendered to this office.

15. Captain Badgley was accompanied by Mr. Power, the Political Agent, Hill Tipperah, and I am much indebted to this officer for the valuable assistance he rendered, and which Captain Badgley fully acknowledges. Mr. Cooke also received ready and cordial aid from Captain Lewin, Deputy Commissioner of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, from Mr. A. V. Knyvett, Superintendent of Police, Rungamuttea, and from Lieutenant Gordon, Assistant Commissioner, Sungoo Sub-division, and for which my best thanks are tendered.

16. But the main success of the whole expedition must be attributed to the admirable measures taken by the Government of Bengal and to the energetic action insisted on by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, and so ably carried out in every emergency which arose during the conduct of these survey operations on the Eastern Frontier, and I have gratefully to express my sense of the very efficient and thorough manner in which I have been supported in securing aid and co-operation from local officials for these survey parties under very exceptional circumstances by the Bengal Government. The personal interest evinced by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor in the success of the survey operations was most cheering to all concerned, and I trust the results obtained will be found fully satisfactory both to the Government of India and the Government of Bengal.

17. During the past two seasons, 1871-72 and 1872-73, the whole Eastern Frontier extending from Cachar on the north, or from latitude 25° to the frontier of British Burmah in latitude 22°, a direct distance of 206 miles, and representing a total area of 11,587 square miles of the most difficult and inhospitable hilly country, has been geographically mapped on the scale of 4 miles to the inch, based on triangulation depending on the operations of the great triangulation of India. These materials will now enable me, I hope, to complete an entirely new map of the whole frontier, on which my establishment is actively engaged at present. This compilation will soon be available for the Government to decide on the actual line of boundary which it may be pleased to adopt on this frontier between Munnipur and Arracan.

18. In conclusion, I beg to bring prominently to the notice of Government that this is the second year during which Captain Badgley and Mr. G. H. Cooke have rendered excellent service* on these difficult frontier exploratory surveys, and they have both had to undergo exposure and hardships of no ordinary kind. They have suffered greatly from the incessant fatigue and exposure which they have had to undergo in traversing such inhospitable and hitherto untrodden ground, their labors well deserve therefore recognition on the part of the Government of India; they are both officers of known ability, conspicuous for their zeal, energy, and professional attainments, and what has been achieved will, I am satisfied, uphold the character and prestige of the Survey Department in whatever operations they undertake, or in whatever description of country they are employed.

* Vide No. $\frac{F.}{160}$, dated 22nd June 1872, paras. 17 and 10.

19. The following maps are attached to illustrate this report :—

(2.) Mr. Cooke's preliminary map of a portion of the hill tracts. Scale 4 miles = 1 inch.*

(3.) Compilation of a portion of the Eastern Frontier of Bengal to illustrate the combined results of the survey operations and explorations in the Lushai and Tipperah Hills, South Cachar, North Chittagong Hills, and Munnipur Frontier, during seasons 1871-72 and 1872-73. Scale 8 miles = 1 inch. Colored, to show the area accomplished each season.*

(4.) Ditto ditto uncolored.

20. I beg to recommend that the reports of these explorations and successful attainment of entirely new geographical materials of a highly interesting and important frontier of the British possessions in India, be published in the Supplement to the Government Gazette.

21. A copy of the entire report has been furnished for the information of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal.

NARRATIVE REPORT OF THE HILL TIPPERAH, NORTH CHITTAGONG AND LUSHAI HILLS, TOPOGRAPHICAL SURVEY PARTY, FOR THE FIELD SEASON OF 1872-73.

No. 199, dated Shillong, the 17th May 1873.

From—Captain W. F. BADGLEY, Offg. Depy. Supdt., 3rd Grade, No. 6 Topographical Party, To—Colonel H. L. THUILLIER, C. S. I., Surveyor General of India.

I have the honor to submit a report of the operations of the small party under my charge, detached from No. 6 party for the survey of parts of the Hill Tipperah, North Chittagong and the Lushai Hills.

2. Strength of Party.—The party was as follows :—

Captain W. F. Badgley, B. S. C., Deputy Superintendent in charge; Mr. A. W. Chennell, Assistant Surveyor, 1st grade; Moung Hay, Sub-Surveyor, 3rd grade.

3. Plan of operations.—The work proposed to be done by the party was the survey of as much as they could finish of the unsurveyed interior of Hill Tipperah, the north-east corner of Chittagong to near Demágiri southwards, and the Lushai country between Hill Tipperah to the west, Peak Z to the east, and the finished surveys of the previous field season to the north and south; and besides, with a view to a correct demarcation of the boundary between Hill Tipperah and the Lushai country, to furnish a special report on the Jampui and Hachik ranges. In consultation with Mr. Abercrombie, the Commissioner of Dacca, a plan of operations was drawn up, which met with approval both by yourself and His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, by which the work was distributed as follows:—Mr. Chennell to fill in the gap in Hill Tipperah, clearing stations and plane-tabling southwards, from South Sylhet to North Chittagong, and then to return triangulating. Captain Badgley to visit the Jampui and Hachik ranges, carrying the triangulation across them, to work southwards to Sirthe, twenty miles north of Demágiri, and then from thence to cross the Lushai Hills to Peak Z and Jalnacharra in South Cachar. In this way it was hoped to sketch in the whole gap of unsurveyed country above detailed, and also to cover it with a series of trigonometrical points for the after-verification of the sketch maps, in doing both of which the party has been very successful. Depôts for the storing of provisions for the party were to be formed on the Deo river at Sardeng, at Sirthe, and at Bepari Bazar.

4. Party breaking ground.—The party left Shillong on the 16th of November, and marching by Sylhet to Koilashur on the frontier of Hill Tipperah, after some little delay, on account of provisions and coolies to carry them, began work, Mr. Chennell on the 5th, and Captain Badgley on the 19th of December.

5. Plan of triangulation.—From the side Batchia to Komanatah of the Great Trigonometrical Survey, eastern frontier series, the triangulation was to be extended south and southeastwards to meet the triangulation of former surveys in Chittagong, tertiary points being observed to as far eastward as could be from the Hachik range, beyond which the secondary triangulation could not be carried, for which fortunately there was no absolute necessity, as there were several correctly fixed and prominent points in and round this part which were quite sufficient for plane-table work, with the addition of those to be observed from the Hachik stations.

6. Exertions of Members of the Party.—After finishing the arrangements for the equipment of the several detached parties into which No. 6 was broken up, that is, to the Naga Hills, Garo Hills, and his own detachment to the Lushai Hills, and after making over the office to Major Austen on the 12th November, Captain Badgley marched to Sylhet to meet the Commissioner of Dacca, and then on to Koilashur, arriving on the 3rd December. Here Mr. Power was making arrangements for storing a godown in the interior on the Deo river, and as soon as it was thought there would be sufficient stores at that depôt for Captain Badgley's party on its arrival, he went to the Komanatah and Sipir Hills, which he cleared and marked with signals, and from the latter through the Deo depôt to the Jampui and Hachik ranges, the whole length of each of which he marched over, and on them cleared and marked five stations. During this time stores were being carried further up the Deo, and on to the southern end of the Jampui range, from which, when sufficient had been collected for the southern march with Mr. Power, he left for the Chittagong depôt at Sirthe. Thence, after a few days' rest, he crossed to the Hachik range, and then on to Bepari Bazar and Peak Z, and thence viâ Jalnacharra to the Chaturchura ridge, having finished which, he marched into Cachar on the 10th April, and arrived at recess quarters at Shillong on the 19th April. Captain Badgley cleared seven and observed at five stations, and completed about 807 square miles of triangulation and 2,574 miles of topography.

7. Mr. Chennell left Koilashur on the 5th December for Komulpoor, where he was delayed about a week engaging coolies and taking in supplies for his trip to the Lonktharai range; he cleared and marked the peaks Batchia, Sim Basia, and Feing Pui; reconnoitred the ridge southwards to its termination, and returned to Koilashur on the 28th. He left the following day for the Sakkan-klang range, selected and cleared two stations, and marched westwards to Sardeng, cleared a station there, and en route the intermediate points Kohoisib X and South Lonktharai. At Sardeng Mr. Chennell having got fresh supplies started for the Dolajeri ridge, on which he put up a mark and returned, observing to South Sylhet on the 1st April, and arrived at recess quarters, Shillong, on the 9th April. Mr. Chennell cleared ten and observed at thirteen stations, and completed about 2,117 square miles of triangulation and 1,513 square miles of topography.

8. Moung Hay, Sub-Surveyor, a very promising young fellow, accompanied Captain Badgley to study surveying practically and to keep the ration accounts, for which purpose also the Jemadar of the party went with Mr. Chennell.

9. Mr. Power, the Political Agent at Hill Tipperah, accompanied Captain Badgley, taking charge of the commissariat for the party and its carriage; and the department owes him much for his active assistance and thorough management, without which the undertaking could not have been carried through. It was by his exertions that a sufficient number of the Kuki coolies who were employed to carry provisions for the party through these uninhabited or unfriendly tracts were kept to their work, and he had the storing of the depôts on the Deo, which formed the basis of the provisioning arrangements. The depôts on the Deo were supplied from Sylhet and Dacca, the others at Sardeng and Sirthe stored from Chittagong, and that at Bepari Bazar from Cachar; in these provisions were collected for the party for the season, an expensive arrangement, necessitated by the desolateness of the greater part of the country, and because the Lushais in the inhabited part could not be depended on for supplies.

10. Remarks on the country triangulated.—The hills running in parallel ridges, it was easy to lay down a plan of triangulation, and but little difficulty was found in selecting peaks on the ridges which answered the plan. Three points, Komanatah, Sipir, and Jampui, were cleared or nearly cleared for us by Kukis sent in advance, all other points by the surveyors' parties (Captain Badgley and Mr. Chennell having each twelve khalasees and thirty Khasia coolies) and as many Kukis as happened to be in camp at the time. On the Chittagong side poles were put up for us at Kuchet, Koteer, and Gopasuri; but these did not come into the triangulation. Mr. Chennell found no points cleared for him in his part of the work, except those already mentioned, but he met a party who had travelled down the Lonktharai ridge, after he himself had cleared what points he wanted, who had at short intervals along it fastened slips of wood, about ten inches by two, with the word "mark" on them, to the tops of the most convenient trees for climbing up. Till January, the weather was favorable for triangulation; it afterwards became so misty as no heliotropes could be employed as to make the accurate intersection of the signals,—a matter of difficulty, and very trying to the eyes of the observer.

11. Duration of the field season.—The party left Shillong on the 16th November and returned on the 9th and 19th April.

12. Cost.—The cost of the party for the field season from November to April is about Rs. 14,940; this, however, does not include expenses on account of provisions and their carriage. The country in which the work lay being uninhabited, or inhabited by Lushais on whom we could not depend for assistance of any sort, our provisions and those for our military guards had to be carried with us throughout, thereby necessitating the employment of a large number of Kuki coolies at a great but unavoidable expense. These, with the guards, military and police, boatmen, overseers, provisions and other incidental expenses, will amount at a guess to about Rs. 25,000.

13. Total area surveyed.—The triangulation amounts to 2,432 square miles, and the topography to about 3,587, exclusive of overlap, which is 500 square miles.

14. Health of the Party.—Though two men died of jungle fever, the health of the party was generally good during the season, but unfortunately just at the close cholera had begun to show itself in the plains, and I am sorry to say that the Khassias, who appear to be peculiarly liable to this disease, lost six of their number on the day they reached their hills. I had sent them unladen from Jalnacharra, carrying the baggage by boat, and had warned them against eating certain things and drinking too much; but precautions did not avail, seven were taken, and one only recovered; most of the cases were fatal in three hours. The Europeans of the party all suffered from disagreeable ulcers on the legs, like Delhi boils, which broke out after the first rains, which set in about the middle of March, and were probably caused by impurities in the water, the products of decaying vegetation washed into the streams by the rain.

15. Supplementary Report.—As soon as the computations and mapping of the surveys in the field have been finished, an accurate report of the areas and other points which are approximately entered or omitted in this report will be furnished. I have thought it better to make this report as full as can be, sending it, as you desire, out of the regular course, which would detain it till October next, as much of it refers to matters which Government would probably wish to decide on at once.

16. Description of the country hills.—The country surveyed is crossed by parallel ridges running north and south, which increase in height from west to east, gradually narrowing the valleys between them, till from a broad flat swamp of some seven miles wide between Atarmura and Batchia the ends of the spur ranges form cliffs on the sides of the Dallesar under Durklang, the peak Z ridge. These ranges also increase in height southwards from the plains of Sylhet, and northwards from the Chittagong District, till they reach their highest near the water-shed line of the rivers, running north and south, a line which west of the Ainkung makes an irregular zig-zag between 23° 30′ and 23° 45′, not marked by any east and west cross-line range, but merely by the level of the valleys, like the level of the ridges, being a little higher than to north and south. The ranges do not join to make continuous lines from one district to the other, but lose themselves at the water-shed, the ends of the northern ranges coming in between the ends of those from the south. The hills are narrow ridges, sometimes so narrow at top as to be only knife-edged rocks dangerous to walk along, covered with forest, thinner along the edges of the ridges and spurs, and close and tangled, and often impenetrable in the ravines and the valleys, which from the hills appear as undulating plains, into which the sides of the ranges dip abruptly, are puzzling net-works of ridges of very little height, the main lines of which run in the same north and south direction as the high hills, and which are joined like them, where they do join, by low saddles not to be distinguished from their little valleys between. These tilas are higher, steeper, and more irregularly disposed near the water-sheds, becoming low, long ridges as they recede from it, and disappearing—that is, those to the north—in the swamps of South Sylhet.

17. Rivers.—The western rivers I will leave to Mr. Chennell to describe. The Deo is navigable for ten-maund boats all through the year to latitude 24°. The Lungai, a clear stream with a sandy bed and good current, where I crossed it at the same latitude, had an average depth of 18 inches, and would therefore hardly be navigable so far. This stream runs directly northwards through Sylhet to the Kuseara. The other streams to the east of the Hachik range pass through Cachar to the Barak. The first of these is the "Pakwa;" this is probably navigable for canoes to 23° 53′ till December. Some Lushais sent out to meet me on the Hachik, came by boat from Cachar to nearly this latitude. The next, the "Gutar," where I saw it under Raiek-klang, had a rocky bed, and was quite a small stream at that season, but I am told is navigable for eight miles from its mouth. Both the streams run north, the first between the Hachik and Ainkung, and the other between the Ainkung and Rulpui, and fall into the Dallesar. This large stream, which comes from the south in the Howlong country, runs northward between the Rulpui and Durklang ranges, bends slightly to the west to receive the Gutar and Pakwa, and then passing through South Cachar falls into the Barak. It is not navigable much above Bepari Bazar (latitude 23° 52′) on account of falls and rapids, but so far for small boats of 10 maunds throughout the year. About Bepari Bazar it is deep, narrow, and slow, running through dark pools with high rocks or steep banks on either side; further down, the hills receding further from the river, it gains in breadth, the bottom is sandy, and the banks are more open, but throughout its course are steep and not less than thirty feet high, (as is the case with all these rivers) to which or above which the stream rises during the rains, while in the dryer months it is fordable in many places along its entire course. The Sonai, which I have not seen, is not, I am told, navigable beyond Lushai Hat, about latitude 23° 55′. The Tulenpui, called in late maps the Sajjak, falls into the Kurnafulee above Demágiri, and is navigable probably to where the Mar falls into it, latitude 23° 15′; all these streams are much obstructed by snags, which collecting cause banks and rapids, which make the navigation difficult by day and impossible by night. The Dallesar again is almost spoiled for traffic in the dry months by rapids near Kuchila.

18. Mr. Chennell's notes.—The following is Mr. Chennell's report of the country he visited, which lay between the Jampui and Atarmura ranges and latitudes 23° 25′ and 24° 10′:—

"The whole of the area is quite uninhabited and densely covered with high forest and "bamboo jungle, with entanglements of thorny scrub, canes, creepers, and nettle, through "which it is impossible to force a passage without much cutting and clearing, excepting along "the regularly used tracks of wild elephants, which are numerous and afford great facilities "for moving about the country, which otherwise would be almost impenetrable.

"Village sites.—I have met with many sites of old villages on the higher positions and "summits of the ridges indicated by broken pieces of pottery and rough slates erect and pros-"trate, which leads one to suppose that the country was once fairly populated; these sites are "now overgrown with high grass, bamboo, and forest trees, among which a few mango and "lemon are still to be seen.

"Hill ranges.—The principal hill ranges beginning from the east are the Jampui, Sakkan-"klang, Lonktharai, and Atarmura, presenting remarkably straight lines north of latitude "23° 40′; while south of it they are, generally speaking, more broken and irregular; these ranges, "without exception, continue from Chittagong in the south, running in a northerly direction, "almost parallel into the plains of Sylhet, where they gradually disappear. Numerous peaks "stand out above the general level, the most conspicuous being the Jampui, Sakkan, Kohoisib, "and Klang-bong-sib; the three former have been selected as stations of observation, and "command an extensive view of the country. From Kohoisib, the most southerly, the plains of "Sylhet and peaks far away into Lushai are distinctly visible on a clear day. Klang-bong is "said by the Kukis to be the abode of the Great Bong, the evil spirit of the forest, whose "displeasure the ancient inhabitants had incurred, and were turned by him into wild animals, "thus accounting for their numbers in the forest. The northern portions of the valleys be-"tween these ranges are for the most part flat, swampy, and covered with rank vegetation, "while to the south they are a wild and broken character, intersected by an infinity of deep-cut "ravines and low, intricate, narrow-topped ridges.

"Rivers.—The drainage of the northern half of the country is effected through the "Manu and its tributaries, the Deo and Dolai. The Manu takes its rise from the Kohoisib "peak of the Sakkan-klang range, and for some distance passes through various narrow "gorges with escarpments of naked rock rising often 100 feet and more, and cutting into deep "and clear pools swarming with fish; as it descends into the more level country, it becomes a "broad sluggish stream, with a tortuous course, sandy bed, and low banks, covered with high "coarse grass, clustered here and there with wild plantains and dwarf palms, which furnished "a very pleasing sight; its course is north, until it reaches the Sylhet plains, when it changes "to north-west.

"The Deo has its rise on the Jampui range, 12 miles south of the Betleing Sib peak; it "continues on a northerly course for nearly 30 miles, makes a detour to the west, cuts "through the Sakkan-klang range of hills, and joins the Manu 10 miles north-west of the "G. T. station of Komanatah. The Dolai has its rise on the Dolajeri ridge, from which it is "named, runs due north for nearly 50 miles, and joins the Manu near the village of Kudam-"hata in the plains of Sylhet. These rivers are all navigable up to latitude 24° 0′ for small "boats carrying about ten maunds (a couple of feet of water being sufficient to float them), and "are also utilised by the people of Sylhet during the rains, when they become roaring torrents for "floating down bamboos, thatching grass, and timber for boat-building purposes. The country "to the south is drained by the Keslong and its affluent, the Miani, which flow southwards to "Chittagong, and the Gumti, so called after the junction of its two main feeders, the Sima and "the Rima, the former taking its rise on the Atarmura, and the latter on the Lonktharai "range. The Gumti flows in a south-westerly direction for 20 miles, and then swerves "round due west, cutting through the Atarmura range of hills, where it passes over a succes-"sion of rapids and falls, the most noteworthy being those at Doomra, the site of the ancient "capital of Tipperah; here it becomes a considerable stream with a large volume of water, and "navigable for boats of a large size.

"Rainfall and climate.—The rainfall here must be very great, as during March it "rained almost every day, while out of the belt of hill and forest in the plains of Sylhet, "where the average for the district is given at 120 inches, there were but a few occasional "showers. The climate was very pleasant throughout, a couple of blankets being very accept-"able at nights. As a rule, it is much colder in the valleys than on the high ridges, owing, "I fancy, to the dense foliage, through which the sun seldom penetrates, and heavy fogs which "settle down after nightfall, from which the ridges are quite free. I found a marked change on "returning to the open plains in April, there being, I should say, a difference of at least 10 "degrees in temperature.

"Water.—Water, which is to be had in abundance in the valleys, is very scarce on the ridges. "One occasionally meets with a clear spring oozing out of the side of the hill, but, generally "speaking, water is only to be found in small stagnant pools choked with decayed vegetation.

"Salt springs.—There are several saline springs in the valleys, round which are spaces "trampled down and kept clear of vegetation by wild elephants, bison, and deer, which fre-"quent them in great numbers to drink the water.

"Wild animals—Of the wild animals, elephants and bison are the most numerous; tigers, "bears, samber, and hog-deer are also to be found, and I have met with frequent traces of "rhinoceros, but never came across one. Of the monkey tribe, there are the "huluk," or black, "tailless, howling monkey, the grey and common brown monkey. Of the lesser animals, a black "squirrel with long velvetty hair, measuring more than forty inches from nose to tip of tail, "hedgehogs, and land turtles, some of enormous size.

"Game and other birds.—Of game birds, there are the argus and kalidge pheasant, wood "and green pigeon, and jungle fowl in abundance. Three distinct species of the horn-bill are "to be met with, as also a variety of singing birds, and birds of beautiful plumage.

"Serpents and insects.—Four huge pythons, the longest measuring 18 feet, were killed "and eaten by the Kukis. Mosquitoes, ticks, leeches, and a large fly, called the das, are the "curse of the forest, making it almost untenable after the first few showers of rain. The coolies "from want of proper clothing suffered considerably from them, and were only too glad, when "the work was completed, to get out of the country."

19. Botanical.—The entire country, except where cultivated by Lushais, is covered with forests of timber and bamboos, with undergrowth of canes and thorny plants, which tangle into impassable belts in low and swampy places, which are the favorite cover of the larger game during the winter, when they desert the hills for want of water, to return when the rains have well set in. Of timber trees and bamboos there are many varieties, of which it is useless attempting to give a list, as doubtless the district officers of Sylhet and Cachar could furnish much better ones. Nearly all the hills west of the Ainkung and Hachik ranges are below the limit of bamboos, but there are one or two points above the line, and the tops of all the ranges to the east are so, where my men were often put to shifts to carry their water for want of bamboo "chongas," the best substitute being a water-proof sheet tied in a bag. The timber floated down during the rains is mostly used for boat-building, for which it is excellent. On deserted village sites we found lemons, with abundance of fruit of a large size, one which I measured being 5½ inches long by 13 round. In the low ground there is a harmless looking plant with large green leaves, the edges of which give a burning nettle-like sting, which lasts for two days, and is felt even on the fourth, if the part be rubbed. Water makes it worse, and nothing tried alleviated it. There are several roots to be found in the jungles, and the shoots of a species of cane and a small palm; the inside of the plantain flowers are good for food; it was on these that the Kuki coolies subsisted when they deserted. Mr. Power has written of our difficulties with these people, whom it was impossible to keep if they would not stay. Money was no inducement, and no amount of vigilance could keep men who brought nothing with them but the cloth on their backs.

20. Marching.—Although there are elephant tracks along every ridge, both large and small, still travelling is most difficult, even in the easiest, the north and south, directions, till once the path has been well cleared and marked, when it becomes a mere matter of muscle and daylight. It took me three marching days from Jalnacharra to a point between the Chaturchura and Hachik hills, a distance in straight lines of about fourteen miles; but having seen the path, and avoiding our blunders in going out, we returned in one day; this, however, was a most difficult bit among the low "tilas" between the two ranges. Six miles, as the crow flies, is the average which can be done on any unexplored line and in the most favorable places that are along the ridges. In marching from the southern end of the Jampui to Sirthe, we took this rate to calculate the length of our journey, and having some heavy clearing to do in one or two places, we did less. We had only seven days' provisions and no guides, as no one had lived in the country for more than a generation, and I had to pioneer the party across. No view could be got without clearing or climbing; every spur had its misleading path; the ridge itself zig-zagged in many places in a very confusing way, and a site for the camp had to be selected wherever there seemed a chance of finding water while daylight lasted to search for it. On the morning the provisions were finished, we reached Sirthe, and found nothing there, the country was a jumble of low hills between the ends of the two ranges, Lungsir and Sirthe, and it took two days of blundering along blind-paths, searching for marks, and tree-climbing before we found the depôt, which was not five miles off, the camp starving the while; for though we got what game we could and distributed it with our live stock, what were they, two goats and a dozen birds among two hundred empty stomachs. I think that I was right in taking the task of direction on myself, but I found it a great strain; the Kukis invariably replied—"We know nothing" to any question about the road, and I hear that Mr. Chennell, who at first trusted to them, gave them up, in favor of a pocket compass, after making a long three days' march under their guidance, and finding himself at the end only seven miles from his starting point. We were never again so hard-pushed for food as on this occasion, but four times my camp went to bed starving for want of water, and had to march next morning thirsting to search for it. In crossing from one range to another, one has either to try for the connection between the "tilas" or wade along the streams, both very crooked routes, or to push straight across over everything, which, though harder work, takes less time. The wading along streams is most fatiguing; our shortest and most difficult march was on the Gutar under Raiek-klang, where we only managed three miles in the day.

21. Scenery and climate.—Throughout the uninhabited part of the country there may be said to be no scenery, as the jungle obstructs the view entirely beyond a few yards, and from such hills as were cleared, the landscape was a mere monotonous repetition of unpicturesque, unbroken ridges. In the inhabited and higher ranges there were many points whence the views were magnificent, though the most extensive, that westwards from Hachik, which, with the range south, rises like a gigantic wall to bound the Chittagong District, was, except in extent, not at all so; it was most tame; from this greater height the hills in Chittagong and even in Hill Tipperah looked insignificant, the valleys seemed level, and the rivers were quite hidden in the jungle, the view conveying no idea of how difficult a country it was to march over. In the valleys on the streams there were some lovely bits of scenery, especially on the Dallesar. During the cold weather, and until the rains set in, in March, the climate is very pleasant; the temperature is lowest about the middle of January. During the dry weather there is a marked difference between the temperature of the hills and valleys, being in the valleys colder at night and warmer during the day than on the hills, the cold being due to heavy fogs which fill them from 10 at night to 10 in the morning. After the first rains set in about the 15th March, the valleys are clear at night, and are then hotter than the hills both by day and night, that is, in the shade, the sun in open places on the hills being fiercer than in opens in the valleys. From a few observations I found a difference of 29° between the maxima in sun and shade on the hills, but only of 23° between like observations in the valleys. The following maxima and minima are from such observations as I was able to take; minima were taken every night, but maxima could seldom be taken except during halts of camp:—

	On the hills.		In the valleys.
	Max.	Min.	Max.	Min.
From 22nd to 31st December	72·5	59·4	80·0	48·8
During January	69·1	54·4	75·5	46·3
„ February	77·9	59·4	...	54·1
From 1st to 14th March	85·0	60·0	85·2	52·0
„ 15th to 31st „	...	58·2	...	61·0
„ 1st to 6th April	86·0	68·5	...	...

The greatest cold we experienced in the valleys was 41°, and on the hills 48°.

22. Mr. Baker's route.—The ridge of which Hutchet (Kuchet of the last map) is a peak is the true Sorphuel ridge, and Sorphuel hill is at its northern end. The Kukis have transferred the names of all the ranges a range westwards, and having no names, but these traditional names which they have given to the wrong hills, it is somewhat difficult to know what to call them. This Sorphuel is the Sorphuel of Mr. Baker's expedition. He encamped on the site of the village "Arta" on a spur of Raiek, the people of which turned out to attack him, his camp being then on the Gutar, just below the village. His force had to return for want of provisions, but unfortunately left their cooking pots behind, which, with the intrenching tools, were taken by the Lushais, who considered them a magnificent prize, valuing, as they do, iron more than anything; and Sukpuilál, to whose tribe the men belonged, and to punish whom the expedition was sent, having been after this let alone and made much of, has naturally been insolent ever since. His treatment of us was very different from that of Von-Kunga and the Howlongs (Von-Kunga, by the way, is not a Howlong, but a Savalong; the tribes to the east are Howlongs, those on the Chittagong border Savalongs). Von-Kunga made much of us and took us into his house. Sukpuilál surrounded us with armed men to see that we did not come near him. Single policemen can go where they like among the Howlongs, while with a smaller guard than the thirty men we took with us, I doubt not we might have been robbed by Sukpuilál's people. However, as he is going to move his villages, Captain Lewin, on the borders of whose district the new village is to be, will have an opportunity of putting his thumb on him. Sukpuilál did what he could to mislead us throughout. The men sent by him to us as guides invariably tried to misguide us, and it was only by taking routes which seemed to us the best, and not those recommended by them, that I managed to lead the party to Bepari Bazar before the provisions gave out. Fortunately they had pointed out to me, while on the Hachik, the position which they said Sukpuilál's village occupied, many miles north of where it really was, and finding out this deceit soon after, I was always prepared to disbelieve them. Mr. Baker's route can now be clearly traced from the corrected position of Sorphuel. The place chosen for our godown, first set up on the Deo, was also the site of his godown.

23. Geological.—The hills are of sandstone, overlying a saliferous arenaceous shale. The dip in the strata of the hills north of the Chittagong and Sylhet water-shed line is to the east; south of that line, where the direction of the ridges changes somewhat from direct north and south, it is inclined a little north of east, and throughout varies from 30° to 60°. There are several salt springs in different places; some of them warm. On either side of the ridge between Komanátah and Sipir there rises a stream; both are called Nuncharra, and both at their source are salt and slightly warm; at the southern end of the Jámpui range there is a salt spring (lat. 23° 41′) which has a temperature of 72°; at lat. 23° 28′ and lat. 23° 17′ from the Lungten range, there flow two salt springs, both cold; and about lat. 23° 37′, just under the true Sorphuel, I am told, there is another. That at the south of the Lungten and this last are much used by the Kukis. Sukpuilál and the more northerly Howlongs use the second, and the western Howlongs (or Savalongs) the other. The salt is manufactured by boiling down the water in cone-shaped earthen pots, made on the spot with a mixure of earth, and the clay washed out by the spring, arranged in rows over a low flat fire-place of stones and mud; it is always of a dull grey color, and from the shape of its crystals appears to have an admixture of other salts.

24. Game, &c.—Game and fish abound. Elephants, rhinoceros, buffalo, samber, serow, kakar, bear, tiger, leopard, and pigs among four-footed game; and for birds, kalij and polyplectron, pheasants, jungle fowl, hill partridges, green pigeon of four or more varieties, and imperial and blue pigeons. There are three species of horn-bill, and two of land tortoise, —all, I believe, good eating; and besides snakes—the python, a cobra, and the bamboo snake, an iguana, and two sorts of others; squirrels, porcupines, and field rats, all eaten by the Kukis. There are four monkeys, two red (one long-tailed, and one with a naked stump about an inch and a half long), a lungoor, and the howling monkey. Honey is occasionally to be found in hollows in trees, or in nests hung on bushes, the bees who build the latter being about the size of a house-fly, and stingless. The fish are all, so far as I have seen, varieties of carp; at the depôt on the Deo in three days, working for a few hours each day, 360 lbs. of fish were caught with one small cast-net, all the fish of fair size, the largest 38-lbs. weight. There are many lovely birds and many lovely butterflies, and a superfluity of insects of other sorts; some of these and leeches are distracting nuisances. Not in the cold weather, but about March, there appear five varieties of horsefly, which are almost as numerous as the mosquitoes, which also come out about the same month; one is bitten by the first all day, and stung by the other all night. Ticks attack one the season through; grass-seed and cobwebs also trouble one, and in wading in the streams a species of scabies attack the legs. For drinking, the water should either be boiled or filtered, to rid it of the larva of intestinal worms.

25. Inhabitants.—There are no inhabitants in the western half of the country mapped; beyond the edges there are small scattered Kuki villages. These Kukis are not different from the other tribes, unless in being smaller, weaker, and diseased—degenerate in fact. They keep their villages clean, but are dirty themselves, wear very little clothing, or none, while in their houses, keep pigs and fowls, but no metna or other cattle. All the children I saw (and compared with the crowds of youngsters in a Lushai village, there were very few) were covered with sores, some so wretchedly so as to be scarcely able to move; all were so, from those at the breast to those of seven or eight. This comes, I dare say, from the bad position of their villages, which are on low tilas hardly above the line, to which the rivers must rise during the rains, and usually surrounded with swamp and approached by bamboo causeways. We had men from three tribes with us as coolies, Tipperahs, Haláms, and those we call Kukis, each speaking their own dialect, as do the other tribes (the Howlongs differing from the Lushais, and these from the Manipuris, and so on). Though they have degenerated, they still, however, retain their hardy habits, and can sleep on a hill side on the coldest nights with a few leaves under them and a single sheet, the sheet which is their only clothing by day to cover them, and they are wonderful hands at cutting bamboo jungle, which falls before their little dhows like wheat before the reaper. They work well with bamboos in many ways; a dozen will build a roomy hut, raised from the ground, floored, and thatched, in a day; and on one occasion two of them, with half a dozen of my men to help, built a make-shift bridge across a stream four feet deep and sixty wide in forty minutes. The Haláms are the finest among these men.

26. Trading.—At the bazars in the Lushai country, Bepari Bazar and Lushai hát, a trade is carried on in India-rubber and wax from the Lushais for cornelian and glass-beads, cloth, brass, and iron-pots to cook their pigs' food in (they will not use them for their own), axe-heads, dhows, &c. Bepari Bazar is a much larger place than we supposed; there must be forty houses in it, and the trade must be profitable, though the shopkeepers complain that it is falling off, and that the Lushais are getting too sharp for them. Sukpuilál has also raised his levy of black-mail. This summer he wanted a thousand rupees to buy an amber necklace, and demanded twenty-five rupees from each house; the shop-keepers remonstrated, but had to pay up, as he threatened to burn and plunder the place, unless the money was given in a week. Lushai hát is, I believe, a much smaller bazar. They will, both of them, probably fall off soon, as the rubber trees are being rapidly destroyed.

27. The Hachik and Jampui ranges; special report.—The Jampui runs directly north and south upon longitude 92° 19′, between the rivers Deo and Lungai, and, beginning at latitude 23° 40′, ends at latitude 24° 10′. Its highest point, Betleing-Sib (Sorphuel of the old maps), is about 3,200 feet above the sea by barometer; thence it decreases in height both ways. To the north it is joined by small tilas with a low ridge which runs into Sylhet, and to the south with the Lungtein range of Chittagong. The Hachik, on longitude 92° 25′, between the rivers Lungai and Pakwa, begins at latitude 23° 40′, and ends at latitude 24° 5′. Its highest point, opposite Betleing-Sib, is almost 3,000 feet. It is joined by low hills to the Chaturchura ridge, the boundary between Sylhet and Cachar, and to the south joins the Sorphuel range, which runs on longitude 92° 28′, and is the eastern boundary of Chittagong. The ridges are precipitous to the west, and steep to the east, generally narrow at top (from 5 to 50 feet broad), expanding a little in one or two places, where, especially if they are at the foot of a peak, there is usually some stagnant water. I found three such places on the Hachik—(latitude 23° 51′ 0″, 23° 56′ 30″, 24° 0′ 30″)—and one on the Jampui (latitude 23° 56′ 30″.) Usually water cannot be found nearer than half a mile from the top, and then more certainly to the east side; in some places the springs do not show till half-way down the slope. But for the scarcity of water, stockaded posts, easy of defence, might be built on any part of the ranges. Elephant tracks run along both ranges, and connect them with the others north and south of them. Water can be found sufficiently near the top to supply a camp at Chaturchura peak, and in two places between it and the present police post on that range, and also at its south end; but there is none on the Sorphuel range, except at its north and south ends. Water is also scarce about the middle of the Lungten range. All these ranges are thickly wooded.

28. If a line of outposts was placed on the Hachik, and if the men holding them could be depended on to do their duty, patrolling daily to meet patrols from the posts on either side, some good would doubtless be done, as the best route to the south-western Cachar tea gardens would be closed to raiding parties of Lushais, and Sylhet guarded; but as patrolling would not be kept up, and as the forest is so heavy that armies might encamp in the valleys (burning fires night and day), or pass close to a post without being seen, such a cordon would be of little use, except as keeping men near at hand to make reprisals, and the expense for carriage of provisions alone would be enormous, besides, such a system (for native officers cannot be trusted, as I found by experience at Chaturchura) would be as bad as could be devised as regards maintenance of discipline and efficiency of the men, to say nothing of exposing them and their arms to considerable and perhaps useless risk. There is a plan, if I might be allowed to give an opinion, whereby that part of the frontier would be protected, which, whatever objection there might be to it, would at least be economical. There has been and is still going on a movement westwards among the Lushai Kukis. Sukpuilál intends moving his village next autumn to the borders of Chittagong; Lallei has left Vanvong for Senvong; Poiboi has occupied Vanvong and part of Chalfil; Lal Bur and his relations are on the ranges south of Chalfil, and the whole country through which the expedition from Cachar passed last year is deserted, except Lal Bur's village of Lungvel, which is occupied by his enemies, the Sukties. All these families are now crowding on to the hills south of Cachar, and as "Joom" cultivation must soon exhaust these hills, they must soon again move on elsewhere. If one clan was invited to occupy Hachik and Chaturchura, and obliged, as a return for such permission, to feed a police guard on each range, I imagine that raids westwards of these ranges would be impossible, and that news of intended attacks on south Cachar would be obtained in time to prevent them. A still more effective plan, however, would be to keep a guard at Bepari Bazar. It is near the larger villages, and a strong party under an officer might be sent there at once to protect our shop-keepers; this, with another at Sukpuilál's new village, would entirely stop any aggressive acts on the part of the inhabitants.

29. If either of the ranges is chosen as the boundary between Hill Tipperah and the independent tribes, and should eventually be inhabited by the latter, there would certainly be disputes as to the ownership of the western slopes, which could not occur if a river was taken as the boundary, as the valleys would not be inhabited, nor cultivated, for many years to come;

the present race of Kukis using the ridges and their spurs only, a road along either range would not be used by native merchants as long as they are now uninhabited, on account of the distance for which goods and provisions must be carried by land only. From our depôt on the Deo, which is almost as far as boats can go on that river along the Lungten and Jampui ranges, to the river south of Pukzing (the Sajjak river of last map) is sixty-five miles, and from Jalnacharra (the Pakwa is practicably unnavigable), along the Chaturchura, Hachik, and Sorphuel ranges, to the same point is seventy-five miles, both measured as the crow flies, the marching distances being almost double.

Concluding remarks.—This country (that surveyed during the season) was not so interesting as that we saw in 1871-72. The hills were lower, the jungle too dense, and there was nothing new to see in the way of people, for even in the part inhabited they were too suspicious to allow us even to pass through their villages, except at peak Z, where there are the villages of Sukormur and Mintang's. At the former they were very friendly when I first came up, allowed me to go into the village, and gave me a place to encamp on inside their stockade, but they turned suspicious when some of my men came up late with provisions, and surrounded us with some two hundred men, armed with flintlocks, through the night. I had no one to talk to them, as both my interpreters had gone to drink in the villages, and my unfortunate camp-followers and guard, only fifteen sepoys, neither ate nor slept till I moved to my next camp next day. Should you desire a preliminary map of the survey, I request the favor of your telegraphing to me to that effect, when I will send one, though it must be a rough one, as our best draughtsmen are still in the field.

NARRATIVE REPORT OF SURVEY OPERATIONS TO THE SOUTH OF DEMÁGIRI, CHITTAGONG HILL TRACTS, 1872-73.

No. 86 A, dated 27th June 1873.

From—G. H. Cooke, Esq., Assistant Superintendent of Surveys, To—Colonel H. L. Thuillier, R. A., Surveyor General of India.

I have the honor to submit for your information a brief report of the results of the survey operations on our Eastern Frontier, south of Demágiri.

2. Having received orders from the Superintendent of Revenue Surveys, Lower Circle, at the end of October, to proceed to join Captain Lewin, the Deputy Commissioner of the Hill Tracts and Chittagong, at Rungamuttee, with as little delay as possible, for the purpose of demarcating the boundary on the Eastern Frontier, the notice being very short, I made all speed in getting together the necessary instrumental equipment and native establishment, and started by the first out-going steamer, reaching Rungamuttee, the Deputy Commissioner's head quarters, on 9th November. Here I found that no preparations of any kind had been made for a Surveyor to accompany the Political Officer, and was in consequence delayed some two or three weeks on account of the Deputy Commissioner being unable to supply me with provisions and necessary carriage for the whole of my party. Captain Lewin's locum tenens informed me that he had not received sufficient notice, and that he had only heard a short time previously that a survey party was to accompany Captain Lewin in the exploration of the country for the purpose of establishing a boundary line between British and foreign territory to the south of Demágiri.

3. The Deputy Commissioner being away from Rungamuttee at the time of my arrival there, I proceeded up the Kurnafulee river and met him at Burkal on 13th November, and from what passed between us, I saw that no preparations had been made for my party, and that it would not be possible or safe for the present to take even the small number of men who were told off to accompany me into a country where no provisions of any kind were obtainable. I decided therefore on pushing on myself with as few men as possible, leaving a Sub-Surveyor and the remainder at Rungamuttee. These were placed at the disposal of Mr. A. V. Knyvett, Assistant Commissioner, for the survey of some village lands for the re-settlement of the revenue. They were engaged at this work until the middle of December, when they were ordered to join me at Demágiri, but did not reach that place until the beginning of January.

4. The actual field operations commenced on the 3rd December, when Captain Lewin and myself with a hundred men, all told, including survey party, police guard, coolies, and followers, started from Demágiri on our southward course, commencing from Major Macdonald's triangulation of last year. The field work continued (with the exception of two interruptions from want of carriage) until the end of April, when heavy rain set in for several days continuously, making the mountain torrents impassable and cutting off our party from all communication.

5. System of survey.—As the country over which the survey had to pass was precisely similar to that traversed by the right column of the Lushai expeditionary force, where the triangulation and plane-tabling have to keep pace with one another, and be carried on at one and the same time, I adopted the method practised by the survey party under Major Macdonald in the late Lushai expedition, of plotting the points as soon as observed by working out their values by rectangular co-ordinates on the meridian of the nearest Great Trigonometrical Station —a most speedy and simple way, compared with that of computing points by deductions of latitudes and longitudes. By this means, starting from a given base and azimuth, I was enabled to provide myself with a sufficient number of plotted points on my board for interpolation, and taking up the detail and drainage of the country by plane-table at the same time that the triangulation was being carried on, saving me an immense deal of time, labor, hard marching, and going over the same ground twice. No method could be better adapted for a small scale survey of such a wild and difficult country.

6. Triangulation.—Acting on your letter of instructions, No. 1601, dated Calcutta, 25th November 1872 (to every clause of which I adhered as strictly as possible throughout the field season, and which was of constant service to me as a reference in all cases of difficulty), I based the whole of the topography of the country on triangulation; starting from the given base between Oheepoom No. 2 and Phooka-muin of last year's triangulation, I extended it for about 90 miles due south along the two ranges of Oheepoom and Saichul, and closed on the Great Trigonometrical base of Bhatti-tong and Lurain-tong, covering an area of 15 or 16 hundred square miles, and giving a very fair value for the common side connected from the northern to the southern base, thereby proving the accuracy of the work both of this and last year.

7. Observations were made from 23 different stations, giving about 48 second-class triangles and about 20 minor triangles, observed merely for the purpose of fixing the position and heights of distant hill peaks to the east in the North Arracan and Shendoo country.

8. Heights.—The heights of 20 points were determined by two or more observations to each station. The common value of two deductions to the same point is very fair, considering the size of the instrument used and the impossibility of clearing thoroughly the immense forest jungle that covers these vast mountain ranges. The average discrepancy between two observations to the same hill is 5 feet. In many cases gaps merely were cut in the direction of the stations to which observations had to be made, the clearing of the whole hill of trees, 12 and 14 feet in circumference, being quite an impossibility with the means at my disposal. The heights of valleys, rivers and saddles were carefully recorded by a compensated aneroid barometer, giving very true heights, and these are shown on the map.

9. Description of country.—The country over which the survey extends comprises the three hill ranges of Saichul, Oheepoom, and Kansa-tong, with the two large rivers of Thega-khal and Tuichong, flowing northwards and draining the whole of that part of the country up to the borders of the Arracan district, and eventually emptying themselves into the Kurnafulee river. The two ranges of Kansa-tong and Oheepoom run almost parallel with the Saichul range, gradually approaching each other towards the south, until they both connect and become spurs of the Saichul range, which is the backbone or main ridge, extending south far down the Arracan border and in those parts known by another name. The "Saichul" has a more gentle slope to the westward, the opposite face being very precipitous and descending several hundred feet perpendicularly; this feature extends many many miles further south. The Oheepoom range, on the other hand, is generally precipitous to the west, with a more gentle slope on the eastern face, as is also the case with the Kansa-tong range.

10. The formation of the hill ranges of this part of the country consists of sandstone and schistous clay; not a hard rock of any kind is ever met with. The Kansa-tong and distant ranges to the east are composed of a harder rock, of a dark-brown color, and evidently of an igneous formation. The valleys of the Tui Chong and Thega-khal rivers consist of a rich alluvial soil covered with immense timber. The "gurjun," several varieties of the ash, the oak, and the lance-wood abound on these ranges; several specimens of the sandal-wood tree were also met with. The most useful and the one most valued by the hillmen is the "gurjun" tree, from which a kind of black wood oil is extracted, and it is also extensively used by the Chukmas and hillmen, on account of its close grain and oily nature, which enables it to withstand the heat of the sun, for making their country boats or canoes. I met several parties of the Chukma wood-cutters on the Thega-khal engaged at their trade; they all appeared to be in mortal fear of being carried off by the much-dreaded Kukis, who are said to be in the habit of coming over into these valleys for the purpose of taking captives, and many a tale they told me of how their friends had been surrounded and carried off into captivity whilst engaged at their trade of boat-making.

11. Outturn of work.—The actual ground mapped and triangulated covers an area of fifteen hundred (1,500) square miles, including the portion, to the north of Demágiri, of the valley of the "Bur-Hurin-khal," which I surveyed at Captain Badgley's request. The difficulties of this country, almost destitute of inhabitants, are too well known for me to enlarge on them; and yet few people know the real extent of the hardships a Surveyor working in this country has to suffer from hunger, thirst, and weary marching, having to cut every inch of your way through the densest of forest jungle; and, perhaps, coming to the end of your "tether," miles away from your nearest goal, you find yourself and your party reduced to the shortest commons and on the brink of starvation for days together.

12. Routes from Demágiri to the southward.—The road along the Oheepoom range, starting from Demágiri and commencing at an elevation of 1,200 feet, continues at about the same level with a very slight incline as far as Rutton Poya's village, which is 1,300 feet and about four hours' march from Demágiri. The road from here to No. 2 Oheepoom rises by a steady incline and an easy path to a little over 2,000 feet, again gradually descending to 1,100, and, leaving the ridge about a mile to the east, crosses a small stream where a provision godown has been erected, and is about a day and a half or two days' march from Demágiri. The road, now again mounting the ridge by a rather stiff ascent, from this point becomes more hilly, the inclines sharper and shorter, but more difficult, and the general features of the country precipitous, ascending and descending some 200 or 300 feet, until it reaches an elevation of over 2,400 feet.

13. At this point, a survey station, called on the map Oheepoom No. 4, has been fixed and cleared on a very sharp and prominent peak, commanding a view of the whole of the two valleys on either side and the distant hills for miles to the south. A beacon fire or the flash of a heliotrope from this station can plainly be seen from either Wey-boong-tong, Keokradong, or Polytai Guard, although the distance between the hills is not less than 50 miles in a direct line, the distance from Demágiri not being more than 3 or 3½ days' march. This station is also plainly visible from all the points on Sirthe and to the north of Demágiri. A constant through communication could therefore be kept up by means of the heliotrope or fires from the northernmost outpost of the Arracan frontier (viz., Keokradong) to Sirthe No. 1. From Oheepoom No. 4 the ridge suddenly dips, and a mile and a half to the south of that station the elevation decreases to 1,200 feet, and from this point I would recommend the boundary to cross the valley of the Thega-khal in a south-westerly direction towards a high and prominent hill feature called on the map Saichul No. 2.

14. Although the country is a good deal broken and inclined to be precipitous at this point, by following a wild elephant track which leads off the ridge I found the descent to the Thega-khal and across to the Saichul range anything but difficult for laden coolies. From No. 4 to No. 5 Oheepoom, a distance of some five miles as the crow flies, the road is good and water moderately plentiful on the hill sides, but the elevation not more than 1,600 feet, and gradually lowering towards the south. From this point, which has also been cleared for a survey station, the road becomes intricate, crossing and recrossing small streams with high and steep banks, difficult for coolies and almost impracticable for elephants, continuing at an elevation of not more than 1,200 or 1,300 feet. This low country is completely commanded and overlooked on either side by the two ranges—on the east the Kunsa-tong, lying on the borders of the Shendoo country, and on the west by the precipitous face of the Saichul range, at this point over 2,000 feet high. Several other stations have been cleared further to the south on this same range, but there being nothing further of note to be mentioned about the remaining portion of the Oheepoom range, except that the ridge becomes intricate and tortuous, and almost entirely disappears, and is lost to the eye in long low level spurs, shooting out for several miles in all directions (in utter confusion), and covered with immense primeval forest jungle and impassable undergrowth, and the whole of this intersected by a complete net-work of tracks of elephants and wild beasts of every kind.

15. This description of country continues until the Oheepoom range, narrowing towards the Saichul as the watershed of the Thega-khal is reached, disappears altogether and becomes connected by a low saddle with the Saichul range about 8 miles due east of Wey-boong-tong. The Saichul range is easiest reached from "Burkul," by going along the old road made during the Lushai expedition, until reaching a small stream called the "Aibursurra," which has to be waded about 2 miles up stream, when a Bunjoogee village, named after the stream, is reached; from here the path ascends by some sharp inclines until it mounts the ridge at about 1,200 feet, and becomes comparatively level until it reaches Saichul No. 1 (see map). Still south, for about 2½ miles, the path leads off the ridge, descends 300 or 400 feet, and crosses a small stream running south-west, then again re-ascends about the same height in a south-easterly direction, on to a flat ridge for about 3 miles, when the path, taking a turn to the westward again and lowering the elevation to 800 feet, crosses a horse-shoe formed by the junction of three small streams, all tending away to the west; this being crossed, the path ascends a spur shooting out due north from a high and prominent hill called Saichul No. 2, which is about 2½ days' march from Burkul.

16. From this station the features of the range become changed, the eastern face of the hill becoming very precipitous, and in most parts impassable for laden coolies, the slope on the western face of the ridge being more gradual. Saichul No. 2, over 2,000 feet, a cleared survey station, is situated on a round hill, the highest and most prominently marked feature of the northern part of the Saichul range; and it is at this point that I before mentioned I would recommend the boundary to cross the Thega-khal from the Oheepoom to the Saichul range. Water is to be found on the ridge at the foot of this hill, a short distance to the north of the station, and a small encamping ground was cleared on the spot by my party. From here the path gradually descends for 2 or 3 miles, and runs along the ledge of the scarp, on the eastern face, overlooking the valley of the Thega-khal. Water generally is plentiful, and invariably to be found in the ravines on the eastern face of the hill, which has an easy gradient. From No. 2 to No. 3, a distance of about 8 miles, the path is somewhat rougher and more broken.

17. From this point the road continues about S. S. E., with little change, excepting that one or two sharp ascents are met with, but quite practicable for laden coolies or even elephants the whole way from Burkul. The ridge from here still continues at an elevation of about 2,000 feet, until it reaches a hill two miles N. E. of Wey-boong-tong in lat. 22° 11′ N., long. 92° 36′ E., about eight marches from Burkul, and it is between this point and Polytai Guard, the easternmost police outpost of the Sungoo sub-division, where any difficulty is experienced in the route. The country about here becomes exceedingly precipitous and wild, and the marches from Wey-boong-tong H. S. to Polytai Guard Station, crossing the valley of the Ryug Kheong, are very trying, and the ground in some parts dangerous and practicable only for hill coolies.

18. This portion of the road, which must necessarily be crossed to make the communication with the Sungoo Sub-division complete, is of no great distance, and might, with a little labor, be very much improved. From Wey-boong-tong No. 1, which is a continuation of the Saichul range, the road still follows the ridge due south, descending 1,200 feet in a distance of a mile and a half to a low saddle which connects the northern end of the Keokradong range with the Wey-boong-tong hill. From this point the road again ascends to an elevation of 2,300 feet, and keeping along the ridge and following a broad flat elephant path gradually rises to a height above sea-level of over 3,000 feet, where a survey station has been cleared and a prominent single tree left standing as a mark; keeping to the ridge, the road still traverses along the eastern ledge of the scarp with a comparatively gentle slope to the west, increasing the height to over 3,500 feet until Keokradong hill is reached. To the east of this hill the Karama Kheong takes its rise, and flowing in a south-easterly direction, joins the Kola Khal, which again joins the "Koladyne" and flows down past "Tulukmai." The difficulty of opening a line of communication from the junction of the Kurama Kheong abovementioned to the Keokradong hill would not be great, and by establishing a post at Keokradong the line of communication between Demágiri, Tulukmai, and the Sungoo valley would be complete.

19. Outposts.—With regard to the qualification of the different hill peaks on the Oheepoom and Saichul ranges as to water, commanding position, natural features of the country, and facilities for telegraphic communication, I would recommend the following:—

Principal Posts.	Direct distance from Demágiri.	Approximate distance by the road.
1. Oheepoom ... ... No. 2	8 miles ..	14 miles .	Chittagong District.
2. Oheepoom ... ... „ 4	21½ „ ...	34 „ ...
3. Saichul ... ... „ 2	30 „ ...	50 „ .
4. Saichul ... ... „ 3	37¾ „ ..	62 „ ...

6. Wey-boong-tong	56 „ ...	92 „ ...
7. Keokradong	65 „ ...	107 „ ...

20. The wild and trackless country between the north-east and south-east of Polytai Guard has, no doubt, been the "rendezvous" of all the raiders of the Sungoo valley, and it is at this point that the strongest and closest outpost would be required, both on account of the difficulty of that part of the country and on account of its being the nearest approach to some of the most prosperous villages on the Sungoo river.

21. Rivers.—The two principal rivers are the Thega-khal and the Tui Chong; the former, flowing northward between the Saichul and Oheepoom ranges, drains the whole of that valley, an area of some 300 square miles, and empties itself into the Kurnafulee, 3 miles south of Demágiri. This river is navigable for the smallest kind of boats for about 30 miles from the junction, and should outposts be established on Oheepoom, might be utilised for the carriage of provisions at least as far as station No. 4, where the boundary should cross the valley of the "Thega-khal." The Tui Chong is another large river flowing towards the north, and carrying off the drainage of a valley of some 400 square miles between the Oheepoom and Kansa Tong ranges, and joining the Kurnafulee a few miles north of Demágiri. This river has many rapids, and the smallest kind of boats cannot be taken more than two days' journey up its source. Elephants, rhinoceros, deer, pigs, and other game abound in these valleys. There is also another large river called the "Phyrang," flowing between the Lungman and Lung-Sin ranges, and from its size appears to drain a considerable area of country, but its source has not been explored nor is it navigable.

22. The following documents and maps will be submitted with the report:—

1. Preliminary map, showing the routes marked and outposts.
2. Fair map of the country, adapted for photography, for final record.
3. Chart of triangulation.
4. Angle book.
5. Computation of triangles and deduction of latitude and longitude.
6. Computation of heights.

23. Carriage.—The coolie carriage I was able to obtain was exceedingly limited, and I can safely say that my area would have been at least 500 square miles more had I obtained sufficient hill coolies to enable me to extend my tours to a greater distance.

The difficulty of obtaining free coolie-labor in the Chittagong hill tracts is immense, and unless men are pressed they refuse to serve as coolies. For any future survey operations that may have to be carried on in these parts, I would strongly recommend the officer in charge, if possible, to import his coolies from another district, and not rely on the local labor.

Elephant carriage in these hills, except on made-roads and at the base of operations, is useless.

24. In conclusion, I must gratefully acknowledge the kind and cordial assistance I received from Captain Lewin at Demágiri and from his locum tenens, Mr. A. V. Knyvett, at Rungamuttee. I had necessarily to rely on the local authorities for everything, and it is solely due to the ready assent they gave to my numerous requisitions that the survey operations were so successfully carried on.

25. I must also especially bring to your notice the willing help that I received from Lieutenant Gordon, the Assistant Commissioner of the Sungoo Sub-division, who spared himself no personal inconvenience in his zeal to forward the wishes of Government with regard to the survey operations.

* Ryungtong station is situated about a mile to the west of the road, but there is a cleared Survey Station about three miles to the south of it, which would perhaps be better adapted for an outpost, as it is situated on a more commanding position.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

TRADE OF LADÁKH FROM 22ND DECEMBER 1872 TO 31ST JULY 1873.

No. 21, dated Ladákh, 18th September 1873.

From—R. B. SHAW, Esq, British Joint-Commissioner, Ladákh,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

Has the honor to forward returns of the Imports and Exports of Ladákh from 22nd December 1872 to 31st July 1873, prepared in accordance with the orders conveyed in his Office letter No. 903, dated 16th June, viz., so as to distinguish the value of Imports and Exports by each of the several routes, instead of giving merely the amount of goods by each route, together with total value, as formerly. It will be noticed that a considerable increase has taken place since last year in the same period (the last eight days of December 1872 being the only addition in point of time), viz., Imports from Rs. 1,25,040 (in 1872) to Rs. 2,28,319 (in 1873), and Exports from Rs. 1,25,920 to Rs. 3,59,934. Thus the total of Imports and Exports has more than doubled since the same period last year.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES, AND THE EASTERN STATES OF RAJPOOTANA FOR THE FORTNIGHT ENDING THE 15th NOVEMBER 1873.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
N. W. Pros. (Nov. 14th)—
Ghazeepoor „ (13th)	...	Hope of rain gone; wheat slightly dearer than last week; about a three-fourth rubbee crop expected; no actual distress at present.
Benares	...	One-fourth of rubbee area not sown, but where sown looks well; prices stationary.
Mirzapoor ... „ 9th	...	Prospects worse than reported last week; as to rice crop in. north, which is only a four-anna crop; in the south there is grain sufficient to support the people up to January or February; new bajra coming into market, 17 seers per rupee, one seer cheaper than last week.
Goruckpoor ... „ (10th)	...	Reports less gloomy; the land unsown with rubbee is land which had been sown with rice; other rubbee land sown after being irrigated; sugarcane pretty good; no export as yet to Bengal; prices little easier.
Bustee „ „	...	Prospects much the same as last; prices stationary; condition depends greatly on the winter rains.
Azimgurh	...	Distress anticipated, but not famine.
Jounpore	...	Maize crop short; early rice scanty, late rice a total failure; rubbee area nearly up to average, and its prospects fair.
Allahabad	..	No report received.
Banda	...	Cotton and Jowar less good than expected; rubbee sowings good.
Humeerpoor	...	Khureef pretty good, and rubbee prospects good.
Jaloun	...	Harvest a fair average.
Jhansi	..	Prices lower; import from Cawnpoor stopped; khureef below average, but rubbee prospects good.
Cawnpoor	...	Prices usual; crops look well.
Agra	...	Prospects continue good; Rail choked with grain for Gwalior, &c.; rubbee area more than usual.
Meerut	...	Millet crops poor; pulses good; rubbee area above average.
Saharunpoor	...	Khureef good; rubbee prospects very good.
Moradabad	...	Cotton and rice below average; other crops good; rubbee area more than usual; no export.
Bareilly	...	Rice half a crop; other khureef good; rubbee area average; young crops look well General Remarks—West of Allahabad khureef, except cotton and rice, not less than average, and in some parts above average; rubbee harvest should be very good with favorable winter rain; a full area sown.
Rajpootana—
Eastern States (Nov. 17th)	...	Spring crops promise well if rain falls; health fair, except in Bhurtpoor, where much fever.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORT AND STATEMENTS ON THE OPERATIONS OF THE PAPER CURRENCY DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1872 73.

No. 506A, dated Calcutta, the 23rd September 1873.

From—H. A. MANGLES, Esq., Head Commissioner of Paper Currency,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT

I have the honor to submit, for the information of Government, the following Report and Statements on the operations of the Paper Currency Department under my control, for the year 1872-73 :—

No. I.—Statement of the value of Government Currency Notes in circulation throughout India during 1872-73 and for previous years.

No. II.—Ditto of Notes issued, received and cancelled during 1872-73.

No. III.—Ditto of kinds and value of the Reserve against Notes in circulation during 1872-73.

No. IV.—Ditto of amount of Notes of other circles held by each circle during 1872-73.

No. V.—Ditto of the number of Notes cancelled up to, and outstanding on, the 31st December 1872, out of the numbers issued from 1st March 1862 to 31st December 1872.

No. VI.—Ditto of the composition per hundred of Currency employed in business and in trade.

No. VII.—Ditto of Currency Notes issued from, and received into, the several Government Treasuries throughout India during the year 1872-73.

No. VIII.—Ditto of Receipts and Expenses of the Paper Currency Department for the year 1872-73.

Total Circulation.

2. The maximum, minimum, and average value of Notes in circulation throughout India for the last two years have been as follow :—

Year.	Maximum.	Month	Minimum	Month.
1871-72	13,16,79,170	March 1872 ...	10,13,06,840	April 1871
1872-73	13,50,80,330	June „	11,13,50,610	March 1873
Average of 1871-72, Rs 11,41,57,442.			Average of 1872-73, Rs 12,86,40,367.

showing an increase in the average, during the year under review, of Rs. 1,44,82,925 or of 12·68 per cent. The maximum was attained in June 1872, and the minimum recorded in March 1873.

The average circulation dating from the commencement of currency operations has been as follows :—

	Rs.
In 1862-63	4,41,94,285
„ 1863-64	5,23,25,000
„ 1864-65	6,88,20,116
„ 1865-66	7,72,57,983
„ 1866-67	8,98,93,179
„ 1867-68	9,28,50,848
„ 1868-69	10,14,55,327
„ 1869-70	10,66,90,777
„ 1870-71	9,81,32,240
„ 1871-72	11,41,57,442

4. The remarkable falling off in the year 1870-71 requires notice, as no explanation of it has, it is believed, as yet appeared in any official report. The cause was the following :—Up to the 30th June 1869, a sum of 27 lakhs, or thereabouts, was considered to be a sufficient working balance in silver for the Head Office of the Bank of Bengal. The difference was of course held in Notes. In the middle of 1869, however, perhaps owing to a change of management, a new policy was introduced into the Cashier's Department of the Bank, whereby its silver balance was added to month by month for nearly two years, until it culminated in a reserve of 144 lakhs of coin in the middle of 1871. This maximum was gradually attained thus. In the first half-year the silver rose from 27 to 35 lakhs; in the second half-year it reached 81 lakhs; in the third 134 lakhs; and in the fourth 144 lakhs.

5. The average percentages for the second half of 1869 and first half of 1870 were 81 per cent. of Notes, and 19 per cent. of silver. The average percentages for the latter half of 1870 and the first half of 1871 were 38 per cent. of Notes and 62 per cent. of silver. The lowest point to which the Notes fell was 36 per cent. of the whole balance. This occurred in January 1871.

6. Since the middle of 1871 the composition of the Bank balance has been gradually returning to its normal percentages.

7. The increase of circulation in 1872-73 is particularly gratifying, inasmuch as a small diminution might reasonably have been expected, as a set-off to the artificial inflation caused by the sudden investment of 270 lakhs in the previous year. The real improvement of the year must therefore be taken as something more than the difference between the averages of 1871-72 and 1872-73.

Calcutta Circle.

8. The average circulation of Calcutta Notes was Rs. 4,78,04,952 in value, or Rs. 47,71,483 more than the average of the preceding year. The increase is equal to 11·08 per cent. The highest circulation was Rs. 5,20,70,520, or only Rs. 8,67,780 less than the highest circulation of the preceding year; but this occurred in April 1872 or the very first month of the year, and therefore the nearest to the investment of the preceding January. Throwing out of the figures, for the twelve months immediately following the purchase, the 100 lakhs of Notes invested in securities in Calcutta in January 1872, the circulation of March of each year would be—

	Rs.
1870-71, March	3,54,30,050
1871-72, „	4,29,28,300
1872-73, „	4,45,41,425

9. The fall to Rs. 4,31,16,460 in the early part of March last, and the subsequent rise to Rs. 4,78,60,445 in the present month (September) would seem to indicate that the effect of the investment on the circulation has completely passed away.

10. The following amounts were paid in Notes to the Mint Master for value of silver bullion, transferred to the Currency Department during the year:—

In April 1872	21,50,000
„ May „	7,50,000
„ January 1873	2,00,000
TOTAL ...	31,00,000

against 171 lakhs in the preceding year.

MADRAS CIRCLE.

11. The average circulation of Madras Notes was Rs. 99,46,533 in value, or Rs. 3,89,766 less than the average of the preceding year. The decrease is equal to 3·77 per cent. The highest circulation was Rs. 1,06,60,500 in December 1872, or Rs. 9,24,770 less than the highest circulation of the preceding year.

12. No cause for this slight falling off has been assigned by the Commissioner; but it has been of a temporary nature, for the circulation now stands in the month of September at Rs. 1,38,44,500.

BOMBAY CIRCLE.

13. The average circulation of Bombay Notes was Rs. 5,15,90,469 in value, or Rs. 1,01,38,145 more than the average of the preceding year. The increase is equal to 24·45 per cent. The highest circulation was Rs. 5,83,94,850 in May 1872, or Rs. 53,95,000 more than the highest circulation of the preceding year.

14. This high figure for the circulation is attributable to the very large investment of 120 lakhs, and to the unusually large treasury balance on the top of it. On the 15th of January 1872 the Government balance at the new Bank of Bombay stood at 242 lakhs, from which it was raised to 372 lakhs on the 22nd by the investment, and to 400 lakhs on the 29th by ordinary revenue. Its fluctuations between this latter date and June were inconsiderable, but on 24th June it reached the enormous sum of 474 lakhs. A very considerable portion of this must have been held in Notes. I find that, in the month of May 1872, the circulation was nearly 584 lakhs, while the Government balance was 402 lakhs. In the month of July 1873 the circulation was 316 lakhs and the Government balance 93 lakhs. Decrease in Government balance 309 lakhs, falling off in circulation 268 lakhs.

15. The lowest circulation during 1872-73 was in the month of March, when it fell to Rs. 3,68,22,355.

CALCUTTA BRANCH CIRCLES.

The average circulation of these circles was as follows:—

Allahabad	... Rs. 52,18,260,	showing an increase of Rs. 15,57,936
Lahore	... Rs. 47,59,828,	ditto a decrease of „ 4,74,797 or a net increase of Rs. 10,83,139 in the circulation of the year.

16. In the preceding year the figures were exactly reversed. Allahabad showed a small falling off, and Lahore a very considerable increase. The latter was caused by the investment of 20 lakhs in securities, the artificial effect of which is now being shown. The net result of the two years is—

Allahabad . . increase Rs.	10,84,138
Lahore . ... ditto „	20,85,527
Total Rs. ...	31,69,665

17. In the last report it was pointed out that, owing to the public making use of the Paper Currency for remittance purposes, the encashment of Allahabad and Lahore Notes at Head Office in Calcutta was increasing very rapidly. The following figures show that this year, at any rate, no advance has been made. The dulness of trade may perhaps account for the actual falling off, but the interruption to the hitherto steady rise would seem to indicate that the maximum has been nearly reached. If so, the demand for remittances from the Upper Provinces to Calcutta may be put at $2\frac{1}{4}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ millions sterling yearly.

18. No Bombay Presidency Notes were cashed at Allahabad or Lahore during the year, as in consequence of the small margins available the Currency Officers were directed to refuse encashment of notes of that Presidency. The effect of this refusal was to drive remitters from Bombay to send silver as far as Allahabad, where it was exchanged for notes which were sent on to Calcutta or elsewhere. The Bank of Bengal alone transported 65 lakhs of silver from Bombay for this purpose.

19. Since the beginning of the present month, Bombay notes have been again cashed at these places.

MADRAS BRANCH CIRCLES.

20. The average circulation at these circles was as follows:—

Calicut Rs. 18,10,467, showing an increase of Rs. 6,13,934.
Vizagapatam and Coconada Rs. 4,63,376, showing an increase of Rs. 1,26,597.

21. By Financial Notification of the 10th October 1872, the closing of the Currency Office at Trichinopoly was directed. The order was carried out on the 31st of the same month. Further, under Government Notification of the 23rd August last, the head-quarters of the northern circle were transferred from Vizagapatam to Coconada on the 18th December 1872, on the ground that the latter station being the chief centre of trade in the northern Circars, would be better adapted for the developement of the Currency. Results testify to the advantage of the transfer. The maximum circulation reached by Vizagapatam in 1871-72 was Rs. 3,91,340. The maximum reached by the Coconada Office during the first six-months of its establishment was Rs. 6,57,685.

BOMBAY BRANCH CIRCLES.

22. The average circulation at these circles was as follows:—

Nagpore ...	Rs. 31,66,639,	showing an increase of	...	Rs.	1,49,796
Kurrachee ...	" 20,30,310	ditto decrease of	...	"	2,02,704
Akola ...	" 15,56,326	ditto ditto	...	"	17,10,942

23. The circulation of each of these Branch circles is of a very unsatisfactory nature, as the following statement will show :—

Branch Circle.	Average Gross Circulation in 1872-73.	Average Retired by other Offices.	Percentage of Circulation retired.
Nagpore	38 lakhs	8 lakhs	21·050
Kurrachee	42 „	22 „	52·381
Akola	19 „	3 „	15·789

24. The fluctuations are also excessive, showing that even of the small balance retained in circulation, a very considerable portion of it is held in Bombay, ready to be remitted up-country to be exchanged for silver as soon as the cotton, or other produce season, sets in.

The maximum and minimum of these circles were as follow :—

	Maximum.	Minimum.

26. The aggregate issues and receipts in all Currency Offices of the several denominations of notes were as follows: -

Excess of receipt over issue			10,060			572	33,483			3,39,70,200

27. The very large excess of issues over receipts of 5-rupee notes must be taken as evidence of their meeting an existing want. The annual issue of 10-rupee notes after a trial of 8 years amounted to 16 lakhs of pieces. The issue of 5-rupee notes during 9 months only of the first year reached 5 lakhs of pieces.

28. During the year 41,93,629 notes were received and 21,50,041 cancelled, being 51·26 per cent. of the total number received, against 49·67 of last year, showing an increase of 1·59 per cent.

29. The following statement gives the gross circulation of the several denominations on 31st March 1873 in numbers and value.

30. The accompanying table classifies the percentages of the several denominations of notes under three heads. The smaller notes ranging from 5 to 20 Rs. are placed in Column I, those of 50 and 100 Rs. in Column II, and those of 500 Rs. and over in Column III. It will be observed that the Calcutta Circle heads the list in the circulation of the smallest notes, and Allahabad in that of the largest notes.

circles for notes of the smaller value to increase at a greater ratio than those of the larger denominations:—

32. The work in the Calcutta office shows a decrease in value of both issues and receipts. On the other hand, while 23,32,931 pieces were cashed, and 23,86,667 issued in 1871-72, during the year under review, 25,01,568 pieces were cashed, and 26,02,131 issued. The issues of 5, 10, and 20-rupee notes show an increase of over 2 lakhs of pieces, the number having been 17,89,916 in 1872-73, against 15,19,465 in 1871-72. There has been a decrease in the circulation of the 10 and 20-rupee notes, as compared with last year, owing to the introduction of the 5-rupee notes, the circulation of which amounts to close upon 3 lakhs of pieces. The average number of notes that passed over the counters in the Calcutta office in one day during the past three years has been—

	1870-71.	1871-72.	1872-73.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Cashed	7,770	8,332	8,686
Issued	7,850	8,524	9,035

33. The daily average of cancellations has been 3,773.

34. The amount of coin paid to the public during the year under review was Rs. 3,27,19,079, or an increase of 23 lakhs over the figures for last year.

Reserve.

35. The coin and bullion reserve at the beginning of the year stood at 743 lacs or 55·6 per cent. At the close of the year, viz., on the 31st March 1873, it was 544 lacs or 48·8 per cent. The value of Government Securities at the beginning of the year was 591 lacs, or 44·3 per cent of the total circulation. In December 1872, it was reduced to 569 lacs by the sale of some 22 lacs of 4 per cent. securities in Calcutta. At the close of the year, the reserve of securities was Rs. 569 lacs or 51·1 of the total circulation.

Forged Notes.

38. No cases of forgery occurred in Bengal during the year under review.

39. Mention was made in last year's report of the extensive forgery of Madras 1,000 Rs. notes. The Commissioner of Madras now reports as follows:—

"In June 1872, 18 forged notes (of the Madras Circle) for Rs. 1,000 each "were presented at the Currency Office, Madras, for encashment by the ser- "vants of certain sowcars of that city. The non-genuineness of these note, "was immediately detected, and the presenters were handed over to the Police. "The notes were lithographed in bicolor on paper of a clumsy nature; the "impression from the stone of the black ink portion was blurred; the figures "of the numbering were unevenly stamped, but the substitute for water-mark "showed clear lines.

"The Mint Master at Calcutta, to whom three of the forged notes were "sent for examination, gave his opinion in the following words:—

"1st.—That the water-mark has been made by an impression from the "metal plate; all the notes sent to me are from one plate.

"2nd.—That the note has been forged by tracing from an original note, "and thereby transferring the tracing to stone, and from the stone lithographing the forged notes.

"3rd.—That the notes are all off one stone, and are evidently the work of "a very ordinary native lithographer.

"This is the first occasion that has come to light in which an imitation of "the new form of notes has been attempted.

"The notes were traced to Benares, in which place alone they were "uttered by a native of the Madras Presidency, who called himself Venouta "Chellawyah, but who was in reality Juggunatha Puntooloo, a member of the "Annapuntooloo family in the Chicakole taluq of the Ganjam district. He "and his accomplice, who passed as Streenerassa Jyah, but who was his brother Duchnamoorty were eventually apprehended at Negapatam; but while "being taken to the sacred hill of Tripatty in the district of North Arcot "where he promised to disclose particulars connected with the forgery, they "put an end to their lives by throwing themselves into the tank on the Tripatty hill.

"The investigation into this forgery was entrusted to Captain Weldon, "whose successful conduct of the case, detailed in his report to the Madras "Government, dated 10th December 1872, led to two of the men connected "with the forgery being convicted and sentenced to transportation for life by "the High Court, Madras.

"The total number of the forged notes that have been accounted for is "reported by Captain Weldon to be 253, and he considers that this may fairly "be taken as the number that was available for use."

40. In Bombay one forged note for Rs. 1,000 was tendered at the counters of the Exchange Department, which was easily detected, the presenter and the note being handed over to the police. The result of the trial in this case has not yet been communicated to me. Another forged note, well executed, for Rs. 100 was tendered at the Agency of the Bank of Bengal, and on its being sent over to the Currency Office for inspection, the party who presented it and the note were made over to the police.

41. The tenderer in the second instance was released on his satisfying the Police authorities that he received it in good faith as a genuine note in the way of business. There were three other forged notes for Rs. 100 each, sent by the local Banks to the Currency Office for inspection, and forwarded to the police for enquiry. The police during the year had also secured 14 forged notes of Rs. 1,000 each; and the persons, in whose possession they were found, are under trial before the Magistrate. One forged note for Rs. 1,000 was discovered by the police in the possession of a resident in the Kaira district, who was upon satisfactory evidence convicted, and sentenced by the Judge to 3 years rigorous imprisonment.

GOLD.

42. The transactions in gold during the year have been even more insignificant than in previous years. At Akola alone one half-sovereign was received and again issued. No gold transaction took place at any other circle.

SMALL SILVER COIN AND COPPER.

43. The receipts and issues of small change during the year were as follow:—

	Receipts.	Issue.
Half-Rupees	8,744	3,32,781
Quarter „	4,127	4,37,130
One-eighth „	2,780	2,63,970
Copper	525	13,460

44. At the Calcutta Office the average daily receipts and issues of small silver coin during the year, compared with those of the previous year, have been as follows:—

	1871-72.			1872-73.
	Rs.	As.	P.	Rs.	As.	P.
Receipts	50	8	0	32	8	0

Ten Thousand-Rupee Notes.

46. Financial Notification No. 4107 of the 9th November 1872 declared that notes for ten thousand rupees would be issued at the head offices of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. The issue took effect from the 18th idem.

47. The following statement shows the issues and receipts from that period up to the 31st March 1873:—

	Issues.	Receipts.	Balance outstanding.
Calcutta	156	124	32
Madras	50	...	50
Bombay	1,924	1,430	494

Subsequent to the 1st April transactions increased considerably. Between that date and the 1st September the issues have been—

Calcutta	204
Bombay	1,072

Five-Rupee Notes.

48. These notes were issued simultaneously from every currency office in India in the 10th July 1872. The issues during the year 1872-73 were 5,11,711 pieces of the value of Rs. 25,58,555. The following figures show the issue by the several circles for one complete year, namely, from July 1872 to the 30th June 1873:—

	Pieces.
Calcutta	341,511
Madras	51,585
Bombay	108,952
Allahabad	29,362
Lahore	17,871
Calicut	13,997
Coconada	3,748
Nagpore	9,352
Kurrachee	11,201
TOTAL Pieces ..	595,851

or at the rate of say 50,000 pieces per mensem. This progress, taken as a whole, cannot be deemed satisfactory, but there is evidence that the demand is only now commencing. During July and August of this year notes to the number of 153,211 were issued, or at the rate of say 76,000 per mensem.

49. In reporting upon the result of the issues of the 5-rupee note during the past year, the Deputy Commissioner of Currency, Allahabad, states that "a marked feature in this year's operations is the result of the issue of the "lowest denomination of 5-rupee notes, which promises well for the popularity "of the Government Paper Currency."

50. The Deputy Commissioner of Nagpore also reports "that the 5-rupee "notes seem already to have established themselves as a favourite instrument of "domestic exchange, all classes taking them gladly. I was particularly struck "by this fact in November 1872 when on duty in the Nursingpore district. "Being on a visit to the mines of the Narbadha Coal Company on pay day I "witnessed a gathering of headmen of gangs who asked eagerly for 5-rupee "pieces in place of coin"

51. The following extracts from reports of District Officers in Bengal on the note circulation generally in the Lower Provinces are submitted for the information of Government.

BALASORE.

20 and 10-rupee notes.—"The petty shop-keepers of this place also take "a large quantity of these notes when they go up to Calcutta to make pur-"chases."

BANCOORAH.

"Zemindars and rich mahajans (traders and bankers) now and then keep "them (1,000 and 500-rupee notes) in reserve. Traders use these notes (20 and "10 Rs.) in making payments to each other."

"There is an increasing disposition in the bazar to cash these notes (5-rupee) readily."

"Notes are often used by the natives in their ordinary business transactions."

"The people of this district other than those who use notes as hoondies "value very much and avail themselves of the privilege of the free exchange of "notes for cash and cash for notes."

BEERBHOOM.

"5-rupee notes are popular among the natives of my district."

BHAUGULPORE.

"Only very few of the educated class of natives keep them (1,000 and 500-"rupee notes) as a reserve."

5-rupee notes.—"These notes are largely used by natives for use in the "district."

"At present these notes are said to be much in local circulation."

NOAKHALLY.

"I have made particular enquiries on this point and learn that notes are "freely used in business transactions."

BURDWAN.

"Notes of Rs. 10 and 20 have to some extent taken the place of silver in "the mofussil."

CHUMPARAN.

5-rupee notes.—"These notes are issued to Amlas and largely to the regi-"ment at Seegowlee and are, it appears, getting popular.

"The travelling merchants also carry notes with them instead of silver "which is fraught with danger."

CUTTACK.

1,000 and 500-rupee notes.—"A small number of persons keep them, partly "for convenience and partly for sale at a profit when not procurable at "Treasury."

"20 and 10-rupee notes are used I believe, also to a considerable "extent for convenience by persons travelling to and from Calcutta; and "the passengers by the steamers both take and bring them. The use of notes "for remittances and for convenience of travellers is doing more to popularise "notes than any expedient that could be tried."

DACCA.

"The 5-rupee notes have not yet had time to get popular, but they are used, "and will, I think, increase in circulation. There is a pretty large circulation "of notes in the town."

DARJEELING.

100 and 50-rupee notes.—"There seems to be some local use for them, "probably this is confined to travellers going down to the plains for the pur-"chase of articles for sale taking their money in notes instead of cash."

DINAGEPORE.

"I believe that very many of the large traders make use of 1,000 and "500-rupee notes very extensively in their commercial transactions, and to do "so they must, I conclude, keep a reserve of them."

"The 5-rupee notes are popular among the natives; they are not only used "for remittances, but for local use and reserve also."

"There can be no doubt whatever that notes are now used by natives in "their ordinary business transactions; for instance, of my own personal know-"ledge, I can say that you can usually get a note up to Rs. 100 cashed in "any of the large marts or gunjes, where the trade in staple products of the "district is carried on."

FURREEDPORE.

"The popularity of the note is merely a matter of time. The present "rules about free exchange have given notes, used as they are for purposes of "remittance, a considerable value."

HAZAREEBAUGH.

"5-rupee notes seem to be popular among the natives, seeing the large "number of issues since its currency in this district. The use of the notes of "this denomination is, I may say, exclusively confined to local use. What "are issued from the Treasury are absorbed in the bazars, where they find free "circulation."

"The remark that outside of the Presidency town, notes are not even "now used by the natives in their ordinary business transactions does not "apply to this district. Notes are freely used in this district, and any native "taking out a large sum from the Treasury would prefer the whole in notes to "hard cash."

HOOGHLY.

"1,000 and 500-rupee notes are not exclusively used as remittances. They "are kept as a reserve by money-lenders."

"20 and 10-rupee notes are principally devoted to local purposes."

"5-rupee notes are popular among the natives of this district; they are "not often used as remittances. The excess of issues of these notes over "receipts is for the keeping of them as a reserve by the lower order of the "people."

"In this district notes are freely used by the natives in their ordinary "business transactions; almost all payments from the treasury are received by "the payees in notes, and this shows that currency notes have taken to some "extent the place of silver."

"The people do avail of the present privilege of free exchange of notes "for cash, and cash for notes, so much so, that a day does not pass in which "these transactions do not take place."

JESSORE.

"1,000 and 500-rupee notes are not used in this district exclusively for "remittance, but are also kept as a reserve by the pleaders, zemindars and "persons."

"At the head-quarters of the district and sub-divisions, where it is "convenient to cash them, when necessary, notes are considered to be more "safe and convenient to keep than silver."

"The 5-rupee notes are popular among the natives of this district.

"Instances of this are observed every day. Persons purchasing stamps, "clothes and other things are often seen to pay in notes. Notes are also used "in payment of consideration-money in cases of purchase of land or other "immoveable property."

"The people of this district, other than those who use the notes for "remittance purposes, appreciate and avail themselves of the privilege of the "free exchange of notes for cash, and cash for notes."

JULPIGOOREE.

"5-rupee notes are seldom brought to the Treasury to be cashed. They "appear to remain in circulation."

LOHARDAGGA.

"There has been a fair issue lately, owing to the large number of travel-"ling merchants, who visit this place annually about this time; these men "simply take the notes as being not so heavy as cash."

"Putting aside the aborigines, notes appear to me to be very popular "in the district; the receipt and issue of them is increasing yearly."

MALDAH.

1,000 and 500-rupee notes.—"Now and then these notes are kept as reserve "by the wealthy zemindars and mahajans for short periods, to be exchanged "when occasion requires."

MAUNBHOOM.

"Notes of Rs. 5 are not so conveniently used for remittances.

"They are steadily rising in popularity and pass readily from hand to hand "in payments.

"Currency notes are used in ordinary business transactions, especially in "the large towns and bazars."

MOORSHEDABAD.

"In exceptional cases of repletion of the market, when the rate of interest "is very low, mahajans keep such notes as a reserve.

"5-rupee notes are very popular, and a far greater circulation is prac- "ticable.

"The Treasury gives the following instances in which notes were taken "for purposes other than remittances.

29th January 1873	Rai Luchmiput Singh Bahadoor	Rs. 30,000	for reserve.
30th " "	Bhugwan Gopal ...	" 4,000
31st " "	Mirza Mahomed ...	" 4,000
30th " "	Oghar Nauth Mookerjee ...	" 1,300	for advances to Paikers."
27th February "	Mrs. Rose ...	" 3,960

MYMENSING.

"I have known cases of jute merchants taking cargoes to Serajgunge and "getting paid in notes, but this was merely to save the trouble and risk of "transporting cash."

NOWGONG, ASSAM.

"5-rupee notes seem to be getting popular among the natives.

"Notes are being used, I am told, by the natives of this station in their "ordinary business transactions. They are paid to traders who receive them "and circulate them. Some people keep and collect notes of small values, "and when they amount to a large sum an exchange is made for a note of "higher value which they send to Calcutta or elsewhere. In one case a vil- "lager brought a few notes for such exchange to the Treasury and accounted "for their dirty color to his having kept them in his money-box made of the "common bamboo."

NUDDEA.

1,000 and 500-rupee notes.—"These notes are usually, but not always, used "for remittances. But I am informed that natives in good circumstances do "sometimes keep them instead of silver, as being less liable to depredation "and safer.

"5-rupee notes are certainly popular on account of their convenience.

"In the large towns, notes are used in ordinary business transactions. I "myself, when travelling in the district, have usually taken notes with me, and "have had no difficulty in getting them changed as required. I have heard of "one case in which a woman in bad circumstances hoarded three notes, but find- "ing them a little damaged changed them for silver.

"The people of this District do value the privilege in question, and it is "obvious that the popularity of the Paper Currency must depend on its "continuance."

PATNA.

"In large towns they are used, but not to a large extent by bankers and money "lenders for local purposes. The rich keep them occasionally as a reserve.

"5-rupee notes are very popular—much used by the smaller dealers in "their transactions in the market—hence the excess of issues to receipts.

"Notes are used in all towns by natives in transacting business, both in "lending and borrowing money and in the payment of debts. The native "officials take them freely in part payment of their salaries; and that they have "found their way into the interior, I need only mention that the other day a "man was taken up on suspicion by the Police for having seven 100-rupee "notes on him. He turned out to be a coolie from the Mauritius returning "to his home."

PURNEAH.

5-rupee notes.—"These notes are popular among all classes of natives; "they are frequently used for remittance purposes. Being of low value, they "circulate freely in the district.

"From enquiries and from the personal knowledge of the Treasurer and "myself, I think it a mistake to say that notes are not even now used by the "natives in their ordinary business transactions outside of the Presidency Town. "In this district they are extensively used by the merchants and land-holders "and sometimes by traders and cultivators in their ordinary business transac-"tions, such for instance in the purchase of land and country produce.

"The privilege of the free exchange of notes for cash and cash for notes is "evidently appreciated by people of all professions, by shop-keepers, by traders "in grain, &c., other than those who use notes as hoondies":—

The Collector adds "I fully endorse all that the Deputy Collector has "written."

RAJSHAHYE.

"In a few instances they are kept for convenience temporarily, but not for "very prolonged periods.—

"These 5-rupee notes are popular among the natives.

"Notes often change hands in loans and other transactions with mahajans "in the bazars. Actual instances are mentioned by my Treasurer."

RUNGPORE.

"5-rupee notes are used by poor people in making remittances, and are "popular among them."

SARUN.

"20 and 10-rupee notes are kept principally for local use, and are also kept "as reserve by people of ordinary circumstances in life.

"5-rupee notes are principally used by travellers passing this district and also "for local use. The reason why this kind of notes is so largely issued from "the Treasury while its receipt is so little, is that it is always in circulation "amongst the people, and is susceptible of easy change in the market for "cash and vice versâ.

"Notes of lower denominations are no doubt used by the natives of this "district in their ordinary business transactions. Some people (the mahajans) "keep notes of higher values as a reserve for a time, preliminary to the "investments of their capital in speculation."

SHAHABAD.

"5-rupee notes are popular; at Sasseram they are largely issued, no doubt "owing to the irrigation works that are now being carried on at Dehri.

"The present privilege, judging from results of the free exchange, cer-"tainly appears to be valued and liked by the people, more particularly in the "matter of exchanging notes for cash.

SYLHET.

"5-rupee notes are gradually gaining ground.

"Currency notes are making their way slowly but steadily. With a peo-"ple like the natives of Bengal, who are as timid as they are suspicious, we "must not look for wonders all of a heap."

TIPPERAH.

"I believe in large towns where commercial transactions are carried on "extensively 5-rupee notes are often used as ordinary coin."

COMPOSITION OF THE CURRENCY.

53. Statement No. VII shows the composition of the Currency used in trade during the month of March 1873. No returns are submitted for Calcutta. By some oversight the forms for March 1873 were never transmitted to the Chamber of Commerce or the Trades' Association. After the expiry of the year it was of course too late to get the information.

54. No returns have been received from Allahabad. The Deputy Commissioner reported last year that if they were supplied the information would be untrustworthy. It is presumed that they have not been submitted this year for the same reason.

55. The returns received from Lahore show the following averages:—

63. The increase in Lower Bengal is so considerable that it is worth while enquiring how it came about. I have ascertained from the Accountant General that the only steps taken by him in 1870-71 were to instruct Treasury Officers, in accordance with the orders of the Supreme Government, 1st.—To cash all notes of their circle up to the available means of their Treasuries. 2nd.—To receive notes of all circles in payment of Government demands. 3rd.—To cash the same for the convenience of travellers. 4th.—To freely issue notes in exchange for coin, and in discharge of Government obligations. The Accountant General states that on his part he freely met the indents of Treasury Officers for notes—supplying notes of Rs. 100 and under from Calcutta, and those of larger denominations from neighbouring mofussil Treasuries.

64. It must not be supposed that the wants of the public can be fully met except at some considerable trouble in the way of remittances, though not necessarily at the cost of any extra expense to the State. The following statements illustrate this in the case of Lower Bengal. The note remittances to Treasuries for the public convenience were—

From Calcutta and other Treasuries ..	Rs. 28,00,320	99,87,390	1,16,43,365

65. The corresponding remittances for the same years in other Presidencies and Administrations were—

* The figures received from the Deputy Commissioner at Lahore, being evidently inaccurate, have been corrected in this office.

Thus the supply from Calcutta and interchange between mofussil Treasuries in Lower Bengal were 100 lacs in 1871-72 and 116 lacs in 1872-73. The same class of transactions in all the other Presidencies and Provinces in India was 110 lacs in 1871-72 and 156 lacs in 1872-73. One of two conclusions must be drawn from these figures. Either Lower Bengal was surfeited with notes, or the rest of India was starved of them.

66. The North-Western Provinces and Oudh are more particularly conspicuous by the absence of supply and transfers. Their cash balance is about the same as that of Lower Bengal.

67. The following table shows the cost of remittances (specie and notes) for the whole of India during the years 1869-70, 1870-71, 1871-72, and 1872-73:—

68. Judging by Lower Bengal the free use of notes would appear to decrease rather than increase the cost of remittances.

69. I will complete this subject by detailing the effect of these supplies and transfers on the transactions of some of the more important District Treasuries in Lower Bengal. The increase in the use of notes is general throughout the province, but those treasuries only have been inserted in which the use or progress has been more particularly marked.

69. In the exchange transactions of Treasuries the figures of Lower Bengal are also interesting and instructive, as showing that no greater repletion of silver is to be apprehended under a bold and liberal régime, than under a nervous and tentative policy. It will be observed in the following table that in 1867-68 exchange transactions reached their highest point during the first 6 years of the Government note circulation. In that year the excess of silver received over silver issued amounted to 21 lacs, the total business done being 97 lakhs,—whereas, in 1872-73, the excess of silver received was 13 lakhs only, when the business done was 272 lakhs.

Excess or deficiency of silver	—12	+10	+21	—8*	—14	—31	+2	+13

70. It must not be concluded from this table that the net result of the year 1872-73 was an addition of 13 lakhs to the Bengal mofussil silver balance. To arrive at a correct idea of the effects of the note circulation on Treasury balances, the receipts and payments in notes on Government account must be taken into calculation. They were in 1872-73—Receipts Rs. 1,70,79,495, Payments Rs. 1,05,61,010 or a deficiency of 65 lakhs of silver. The one being set against the other, the net result becomes a displacement of 52 lakhs of silver, caused by the introduction and free use of currency notes.

Currency Agencies.

71. During the year 19 currency agencies have been open in the Bengal Presidency, namely, 10 in Lower Bengal, 5 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and 4 in the Punjab. The transactions in notes were the following :—

Province	Notes received for Silver	Notes issued for silver.
Lower Bengal	4,66,300	10,66,100
North-Western Provinces and Oudh	1,95,555	3,82,555
Punjab	Nil.	8,09,000
Total	6,61,855	22,57,655

that is to say the demand for notes was more than three times as great as the demand for silver.

72. Such being the apparent demand, according to results, it is worth enquiring whether the note-balances of the agencies from month to month will justify one in assuming that the demand for notes was met to its fullest extent. I find that in Lower Bengal one agency had no notes throughout the year on the first of the month; while another agency was out of notes for 6 months and held low stocks for 3 months. In the North-West Provinces and Oudh one agency was out of notes for 4, and held low stocks for 2 months; one was out for 2, and with low stocks for 6 months; and a third was out for 1, and low-stocked for 5 months. In the Punjab one was out of notes for 10 months;

* The cause of the sudden falling off in the issues in 1868-69 and two following years was an order from the Financial Secretary to the Government of India to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, directing as the best way to check the use of notes for remittances, that they should not be issued for silver from surplus Treasuries.

a second was out for 4, and low-stocked for 1; a third was out for 3, and low-stocked for 6 months; and a fourth was out for 10 months. Thus, in Lower Bengal 2 agencies, out of 10, were not fully utilized; in the North-West Provinces and Oudh 3, out of 5; and in the Punjab the whole 4. The figures above given must not therefore be taken to represent the full demand for notes, though they will probably nearly approximate the full demand for silver.

73. In the Madras Presidency the establishment of currency agencies at the following stations was sanctioned by Government in January 1872:—

Cuddapah	Madras Circle.
Bellary
Bangalore
Negapatam	Trichinopoly Circle.
Tuticorin
Ootacamund	Calicut Circle.
Manantoddy
Coconada ...	Vizagapatam Circle.

Agencies were opened at only one station in each circle, namely Bangalore, Ootacamund and Negapatam, and were closed under the orders of my predecessor, after an experience of some months, for the following reasons:—

The agency at Bangalore was opened on the 24th April 1872 with a stock of notes of the value of one lakh of rupees. By the following month all these notes had been converted into silver, and there was no demand for cash in exchange for notes. The agency was kept open for one year, but never replenished, and was closed on 1st April 1873.

The agency at Ootacamund was opened in May 1872 with a stock of notes of the value of one lakh of rupees. There was little or no demand for notes, cash in exchange for notes being the great want. It was closed in November 1872.

The agency at Negapatam was opened on 1st May 1872, with a stock of notes of the value of one lakh of rupees, and was closed on the abolition of the sub-circle office at Trichinopoly on 31st October 1872.

On the abolition of the currency office at Trichinopoly, an agency was established at that place on the 1st November 1872, with a stock of notes of the value of one lakh of rupees, and silver for one and a half lakhs. The demand at this station was almost exclusively for notes in exchange for silver. This agency was closed on 1st April 1873.

The only agency now in existence is that at Vizagapatam, opened in September 1872, on the removal of the Branch-circle office to Coconada. It commenced business with notes for two and half lakhs of rupees, and silver for one lakh. The transactions appear to have been small.

74. The Collector of South Canara has recently recommended an agency for Mangalore. The proposal has been forwarded to the Accountant General, Madras, for his opinion.

75. It is understood that the establishment of agencies at the principal towns in the Bombay Presidency is still under the consideration of Government. The delay has now extended over twelve months.

76. Enquiry is now being made in the Berars. There seems to be little doubt that agencies will meet a want in that part of India.

77. As regards the general question of the expediency of currency agencies, I am of opinion that they have already been of considerable use, and will be much more so as soon as Treasury balances begin to decline. In opening new offices, two points should be kept in view,—one is that preference should be given to places at which Branch Banks have not been established; the other, that notes mainly should be supplied at starting. The objection on the part of the Banks to the free circulation of notes is only what was to be expected on the introduction of a medium of exchange which must considerably reduce their inland exchange profits. The Accountant General, Bengal, refers to this subject in a recent memorandum, thus—"In both of these towns (Dacca and Patna) there are branches of the Bank "of Bengal, and as the Bank does what it can to oppose the local use of "large notes which interferes with its remittance business, we find a smaller "proportion of notes in the receipts of the treasuries than we would expect from "the large local circulation." The Collector of South Canara similarly accounts for the "poorness" of the Paper Currency in his district—"It is obviously inimical," he writes, "to Bank interests to encourage the circulation of Govern-"ment Notes; so inimical is it, that my efforts to do so were styled an attack on "the Banks exchange business. The money being wanted for Bank loans, it "is not likely to be freely forthcoming for the cashing of notes, and the notes "being convenient for the Bank's own remittances, and inconvenient when in-"terfering with the Bank's exchange business, are sent out of the District by "the Bank itself for the former purpose, and withheld from circulation with the "latter end in view. It only requires to be well known, as it is here, that the "Bank is averse to the circulation of notes, and few of the Bank's constituents "will dare to ask for them. The Bank has thorough command of the purse "strings, and the abler and more zealous the agent, the more effectually are they "used; and no blame can attach to an agent thus doing duty by his employers. "The native merchant, who is likely at any time to stand in need of accommoda-"tion till such time as he can realize on his purchased and expected merchandize, "will not risk incurring the displeasure of the Bank by asking for notes or "presenting notes for encashment; he will rather pay the Bank discount for an "exchange bill, or the bazar discount for cash." I would add that I believe these remarks of the Collector to be generally applicable to all places of trade at which Branch banks have been established, and that they seem to me to afford strong grounds for the early introduction of some arrangements whereby it may be to the interest of the Banks to foster and encourage, instead of to neutralize, a local circulation.

78. Statement No. VIII shows the receipts of the department to have been Rs. 23,92,227-6-4, or nearly 10 lakhs more than those of last year. The disbursements amount to Rs. 3,13,525-6-5, or about Rs. 28,000 more than the expenses of last year. This increase is mainly due to the addition to the stock of note forms, which, during the past year, has more than doubled that of the previous year. Taking the one from the other, the net profits of the year amount to Rs. 20,78,711-15-11. This result is due to the additional interest derived from the 270 lakhs invested in Securities in January 1872.

79. In conclusion, I would ask the Government to overlook any short-comings in this Report. On the 3rd September, or subsequent to the usual date of submission of the annual report, my chief Assistant, pressed by pecuniary embarrassment, tendered the resignation of his appointment. It was then discovered that many of the figured statements required to accompany this letter had not been even received, that many of those to hand contained important omissions, and that nothing appeared to have been noted during the year to assist in the preparation of the annual report of the administration of the Department. On such scanty and incomplete material the temporary incumbent of the appointment, fresh to the duties of the Currency office, had to commence the statistical work; leaving little time for me, on the eve of the holidays and with other work pressing, to record, before making over charge of the department, my observations and comments on the general results of the year.

No. 3125, dated the 20th November 1873.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPT.

Read—

A letter from the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, No. 506 A, dated 23rd September, being a report on the operations of the Paper Currency Department for the year 1872-73.

RESOLUTION.—The average circulation of the Government Paper Currency at the end of each month during the year 1872-73 was £12,864,037, being more by £1,448,293 (12·68 per cent.) than the average circulation of the year 1871-72, £11,415,744.

2. Much of this increase must be attributed to the investment, in January 1872, of £2,700,000 of the reserve, the whole of which was taken out in notes, causing an abnormal inflation of the circulation. The operation affected the circulation on the last days of each of three months only in 1871-72, whereat its effects were plainly perceptible throughout the year 1872-73 and have probably not yet wholly subsided.

3. Money has been for the last three years and more, and still is, so plentiful that it can by no means, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, be concluded that the circulation has yet receded to its normal limits. The increase in 1872-73, as compared with 1871-72, is probably due to temporary causes, and cannot be accepted as indicative of permanent progress in the circulation.

4. The average circulation of the notes of each circle during the last three years has been as follows:—

CIRCLES.	1870-71.	1871-72.	1872-73.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Calcutta	3,50,93,392	4,30,33,469	4,78,04,952
Madras	80,93,566	1,03,36,299	99,46,533
Bombay	3,88,07,454	4,14,52,324	5,15,90,469
Allahabad	41,34,122	36,60,324	52,18,260
Lahore	26,74,301	52,35,625	47,59,828
Calicut	8,63,419	11,96,533	18,10,467
Trichinopoly	3,21,477	3,89,964	closed.
Vizagapatam ... ... } Cocoanada	3,41,278	3,36,779	4,63,376
Nagpore	34,50,787	30,06,843	31,66,639
Kurrachee	22,59,591	22,33,014	20,30,310
Akola	20,92,853	32,67,268	15,56,326

5. The chief increase is shown by this table to have been in the circulation of the notes of the Bombay and Calcutta Circles. The Bombay circulation stood at one time (15th May 1872) at Rs. 5,93,92,570, nearly six crores of rupees, but has, of late, declined rapidly, till it is now lower than it has been since March 1866.

6. No cause for this phenomenon is suggested by the Head Commissioner: the investment of 120 lakhs in January 1872 doubtless contributed to the expansion of the circulation, but this cannot account fully for the subsequent contraction.

7. The Calcutta circulation reached its highest point (Rs. 53,49,738) on the 22nd March 1872; but it has not, since, fallen very materially.

8. The circulation of the Madras notes shows no sign of growth, and that of the notes of all the branch circles continues quite insignificant. The notes of the seven branch circles in circulation aggregate less than two crores of rupees, and it seems likely that the greater part of such circulation as there is would disappear if it were not for the privilege which these notes enjoy of being encashed at their respective presidency towns, which leads to their circulating to some extent in the presidency towns, at an advantage compared with the presidency notes.

9. Notes of the Calcutta Branch Circle have been cashed in Calcutta during the year to the amount of more than two crores of rupees, and more must have been cashed in like manner had not the Government preferred to pay directly to those interested, the cost of transferring from Allahabad to Calcutta silver which it was desired in the course of trade to bring thither.

10. The circulation of the Coconada Circle seems to be somewhat larger than it was when Vizagapatam was the place of issue.

11. The value of notes issued and received shews a falling off compared with last year. The following are the figures for the last four years :—

	Issued	Received
	Rs	Rs
1869-70	49,34,48,480 ..	... 48,70,24,340
1870-71 ..	56,63,62,620 ...	... 56,66,28,810
1871-72	62,13,48,390 ...	. 60,31,59,060
1872-73	57,39,09,525 .	59,91,88,825

12. The Bank of Bengal continues its practice of changing daily all the notes that it receives in the course of its business.

13. The proportion of notes received and found fit for re-issue has fallen off, as follows :—

	Per cent
1869-70	.. 43 14
1870-71	.. 47·20
1871-72	50 33
1872 73	... 48 74

14. Notes for Rs. 10,000 and notes for Rs. 5 were issued for the first time during the year. The Rs. 10,000 notes have not, as yet, been very freely taken, but the issues are increasing. Of the 5-rupee notes less than 600,000 pieces were taken out during the first complete year of their issue; but the use of these notes is believed to be growing.

15. The value of the several denominations of notes issued yearly during the last three years has been as follows :—

Denominations	1870-71		1871-72.		1872-73
	Value.	Percentage	Value	Percentage	Value	Percentage
	Rs.		Rs		Rs
Rupees 5 ...	.. ...	...	...	...	25,58,555	·45

	56,63 62,620		62,25,21,200		57,39,09,525

16. This table shows an increasing proportionate use of the smaller notes.

17. The investigation of the forgery of the Madras notes for Rs. 1,000, which took place in June 1872, was carried during the year to a highly successful issue, none of the guilty parties having escaped.

18. Small silver and copper were supplied to the public through the department as follows :—

	Small Silver.	Copper
	£	£
1870-71	14,500	1,206
1871-72	31,510	869
1872-73	30,866	2,346

19. The statistics of outstanding notes are well maintained. The proportion of notes of the earlier years that is still out is very small. Scarcely more than £300,000 worth in all of the notes issued during the first six years of the system are still uncashed.

20. Little progress has been made in ascertaining the composition of the currency in actual use. It is to be regretted that no returns are forthcoming for Calcutta.

21. £1,848,444 was held in notes in the Government treasuries on the 31st March 1873, besides the amount held on Government account by the presidency banks. This is a slight decrease compared with 1872, as follows :—

Held on 31st March.

1871	967,832
1872	... 2,203 391
1873	1,848 111

2. The transactions at the public treasuries (not including the presidency banks and their branches) in notes have greatly increased, as follows :—

	1869 70.	1870 71	1871-72	1872 73
Receipts.	£	£	£	£
In payment of dues	2,597,178	2,568,838	2,649,709	3,055,214
In exchange for silver	1,326,025	1,347,272	3,009,069	4,610,805
TOTAL ...	3,923,203	3,916,110	5,658,778	7,666,019
Payments
In payment of dues	1,662,023	1,554,666	1,571,047	1,729,362
In exchange for silver	1,702,418	2,001,014	3,370,533	5,588,421

23. The chief increase is in the Bengal treasuries and is attributable to the free supply of notes to the interior treasuries. Notes to the value of £998,739 were thus supplied in 1871-72 and notes to the value of £1,164,336 in 1872-73. Nothing like this was done elsewhere.

24. Owing to the large public balances in 1871-72 and 1872-73 this was possible in Bengal, and might have been possible elsewhere without inconvenience and at a little cost. The Government cannot pledge itself to keep up the practice when the balances are lower; nor can it be assumed that like concessions would effect elsewhere the same results as in Bengal.

25. The currency chests were again of little use, the public balances being so large that resort to the chests was not required.

26. The net revenue derived from the paper currency during the year was £207,871, being very much more than has yet been realised. This is due to the increase of the investment to £ 5,693,953. Experience only will shew whether it will be prudent to maintain so high an investment permanently.

27. It is satisfactory to know meanwhile that the securities stand upon the books at a price much below their present market value.

28. Upon the whole the working of the Currency Department during the year has been satisfactory.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department.

No. 3548—62.—Read again the following correspondence relating to the manufacture, importation, sale, transport, &c., of arms and ammunition under the provisions of Act XXXI of 1860, as amended by Act VI of 1866 :—

Foreign Department Notification No. 1707, dated the 26th November 1869, and the rules published under it for regulating the importation of arms and ammunition into or through the territories under the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

Letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 3582, dated the 29th July 1870.

To Financial Department, No. 5113, dated 23rd November 1870.

Circular to the Local Governments and Administrations, Nos. 5104—12, dated the 23rd November 1871, and replies to this circular.

Endorsement from the Foreign Department, No. 1959P, dated 19th November 1870, forwarding certain papers on the subject of the importation of fire-arms into Rajpootana.

Ditto, No. 1590, dated 28th July 1871.

Letter from Government of Bengal, No. 4491, dated 30th September 1870.

From Financial Department, No 4119, dated 28th December 1870.

Circular to all Local Governments and Administrations, Nos. 2923 to 2929, dated 14th June 1871, and replies received.

Letter from Government of Bengal, No. 2192, dated 10th May 1871.

Letter to Government of Bengal, No. 2922, dated 14th June 1871.

Endorsement from the Foreign Department, No. 1274 P, dated the 22nd June 1871, forwarding, for disposal, replies to a circular issued in May 1869, enquiring how far the rules sanctioned for Bengal to regulate the importation and transport of arms and ammunition would be suitable for the other provinces.

Circular to Local Governments and Administrations, Nos. 40—2630 to 2633, dated 14th August 1873, and replies received.

RESOLUTION.—In May 1869 the Government of India in the Foreign Department sanctioned certain rules for regulating the importation of fire-arms and ammunition into the Lower Provinces of Bengal, and their transport from place to place within the limits of those provinces, under the provisions of Sections 17 and 22 of Act XXXI of 1860, and at the same time issued a circular to the other Local Governments and Administrations inquiring how far such rules would meet their respective requirements.

2. From the replies received it appears necessary to frame uniform regulations for placing the importation and inland transport of cannon and arms and ammunition under systematic control throughout British India.

3. And from other portions of the correspondence read, it appears desirable to prohibit the transhipment of cannon and arms and ammunition at certain British Indian ports, and to restrict the granting of passes for the exportation of cannon and arms and ammunition from British India.

4. The Governor General in Council is, therefore, pleased to declare as follows :—

Firstly, as regards the importation of cannon and arms and ammunition, that licenses for import under Section 17, Act XXXI of 1860, will henceforward be granted only at places and by the officials named in the list appended to this Resolution. These orders will supersede the notifications issued from the Home Department in October 1860 and July 1866, which authorized the chief police officer in every town and frontier district to grant licenses, and so much of the Foreign Office notification of 1869 as relates to the importation of arms, &c., by sea or by land into India; also so much of the notification [dated 22nd July 1873] which appeared in the Calcutta Gazette of July 23rd 1873, as relates to the importation of fire-arms and ammunition into the territories under the Government of Bengal.

Secondly, as regards the transhipment of arms, &c., that a notification has issued under Section 6 of Act VI of 1873, prohibiting such transhipment at the ports to which that Act extends.

Thirdly, as regards the inland transport of arms, &c., from one part of India to another, that the rules of which a copy is appended to this Resolution are approved, and that they be published under Section 22 of Act XXXI of 1860; further that, in order to enable the Local Administrations under the Government of India to make similar rules for interior transport within their respective territories, a notification has issued delegating to the Chief Commissioners the power conferred upon a Local Government by Section 22 of Act XXXI of 1860.

Fourthly, as regards the granting of passes for exporting arms and ammunition, that no such passes shall in future be granted for exportation either by land or sea, except by the Secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department, and such other officers as the Government of India, or the Governments of Madras and Bombay within their respective Presidencies, may have expressly authorized, or may hereafter expressly authorize, in this behalf. That all such passes shall be granted subject, as far as may be, to the rules for the transport of arms within British India, and that, whenever there is a Political Agent, Cantonment Magistrate, or other British official at the place of destination, the pass shall be delivered to him within six days of the arrival there of the articles covered by it, with a view to his satisfying himself that there is no deficiency, in the same manner as a Magistrate of a British district is required to do by the inland transport rules.

Import by Land.

The officers authorized to grant licenses to import arms and ammunition [more than the reasonable quantity which requires by law no license] by Land into any part of the territories under the Government of India, are—the Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department, the Secretaries to the Governments of Bengal, North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, and such officers as the Governments of Madras and Bombay shall appoint for those Presidencies respectively.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copy of the above Resolution, with the appended rules and notifications, be forwarded to the Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance.

No. 3559.—In exercise of the power conferred by Section 6 of Act VI of 1873, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prohibit the transhipment of cannon and fire-arms and parts of fire-arms, and of gunpowder and other ammunition, at all ports to which the said Act extends or may hereafter be extended, except under license from the officer charged to grant license of import into British India.

No. 3560.—Under the authority vested in him by Section 22 of Act XXXI of 1860, the Governor General in Council is pleased, in supersession of all previous orders on the subject, to prohibit the transport of fire-arms, and parts of fire-arms and of gunpowder and other ammunition or military stores as described in Section 22 of the Act above cited, from any place in British India within the jurisdiction of one Local Government or Administration to any place in British India within the jurisdiction of another Local Government or Administration, except under the following rules and conditions.

2. Any person desirous of transporting any of the above-mentioned articles [except in reasonable quantities for his own private use] from any of the sea-port towns or frontier stations into which arms can be imported under license into the interior of British India beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the Local Government or Administration within the limits of which such sea-port or station is situated, must apply for a pass to the officer empowered by the Government of India to grant licenses under Section 17 of Act XXXI of 1860 for import to the sea-port or station.

3. When a person is desirous of transporting any such articles from any place in British India other than the sea-ports or stations referred to in the last preceding rule to any place in British India within the territories of another Local Government or Administration, he must apply for a pass to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Home Department, or to the Secretary to the Local Government of the territory out of which he desires to convey the articles, or to such other officer as the Government of India may have authorized by notification to grant such a pass.

4. The application must in either case be in writing; it must specify the town, station, or other place into which the articles are intended to be transported, and must contain full information as to the quantity, quality, and description of the articles and the purpose for which they are respectively designed. Where the articles have been imported from abroad, the license under which they have been imported must be appended.

5. It will be within the discretion of the authorized officer to grant the pass if from the information thus given and otherwise obtained he considers that such pass may be safely granted. A register shall be kept of all passes so granted, and a copy of each pass shall be sent to the Magistrate of the district within which the place to which the articles are to be transported is situated.

6. The articles covered by such pass shall be taken direct to the place of destination mentioned in the pass without being sold or made use of at any intermediate place.

7. On the articles reaching their destination, the person in charge thereof must deliver the pass to the Office of the Magistrate of the district within six days. It will be the duty of that officer to satisfy himself that the articles transported correspond with the entries in the pass, and to see that any deficiency that may exist is satisfactorily accounted for. The pass shall then be endorsed and returned to the holder if he may lawfully keep in his possession the articles of which it covers the transport.

No. 3561.—In the exercise of the power conferred by Act XXXII of 1867, the Governor General in Council is pleased to delegate to the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces and British Burma the power given to a Local Government by Section 22 of Act XXXI of 1860.

No. 3562.—Mr. E. R. Henry, of Her Majesty's Bengal Civil Service, reported his arrival at Allahabad on the 22nd ultimo.

JUDICIAL.

The 28th November 1873.

INDIA OFFICE; LONDON, 23rd October 1873.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

1. I have considered in Council your Military letter No. 168, dated 11th August 1873, requesting to be informed whether subscribers to the Indian Service Family Pension Fund may be permitted to subscribe for their wives only, and not for their children, and whether they have also the option of subscribing for some of their children only.

2. I see no reason for extending the arrangement under which an Officer, who made a provision for his wife when he had not the option of becoming a Member of a Fund, was allowed the privilege of subscribing to this Fund at the unmarried rate for his children only, and I have therefore decided that all subscribers should be required to subscribe for all their children who are within the age rendering them eligible for admission to the Fund.

I have, &c.,

An Act to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for other purposes.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for the police, conservancy and local improvements, and for education, and for the levying of rates and taxes, in the places to which this Act may be extended; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories for the time being respectively under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces and under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Acts Nos. XVIII of 1864 (to provide for the appointment of a Municipal Committee for the City of Lucknow), XXII of 1865 (to amend Act No. XVIII of 1864), XV of 1867 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the Panjáb, and for other purposes), and VI of 1868 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces, and for other purposes) are repealed.

But all extensions and appointments made, and all limits defined, under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to be respectively made and defined under this Act.

And all assessments, bye-laws, rules and regulations of any kind relating to matters provided for by this Act, which may heretofore have been made and approved by the Local Government, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act.

And all proceedings taken under any such assessment, bye-law, rule or regulation, shall be deemed to be as valid as if they had been taken under this Act.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Committee."

"Committee" means a Municipal Committee appointed under the provisions of this Act; and

"Municipality."

"Municipality" means any town or towns to which this Act may be extended.

Power to extend Act.

4. The Local Government may, by notification published in the local official Gazette, declare its intention to extend this Act, or any of its provisions, to any town or towns in the territories under such Government.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such extension may, within six weeks from the date of the said publication, send his objection in writing to the Secretary to the Local Government, and the Local Government shall take such objection into consideration.

When six weeks from the said publication have expired, the Local Government, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in its opinion, they are insufficient, may, by like notification, effect the proposed extension.

Power to define limits of places to which Act extends.

5. For the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, define the limits of any town, and may include within the limits of such town any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity:

Provided that no cantonment shall, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, be included within the limits of any town for the purposes of this Act.

The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare to be united for the purposes of this Act any two or more towns, and may also declare by what name the municipality so formed shall be designated.

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT OF MUNICIPAL COMMITTEES.

Appointment of Committees.

6. In any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, the Local Government may appoint or direct to be appointed by election, for such period, not exceeding two years, as to it may seem fit, any number of the inhabitants of, or of persons possessing property or carrying on any trade or business in, such municipality, to be members of a Committee for carrying out the purposes of the Act.

The persons so appointed shall continue in office for two years, or until their successors shall have been appointed, and shall be eligible for re-appointment.

In cases where the Local Government directs the appointment to be by election, it may fix the time and manner of the election and the qualifications of the electors, and of the candidates for office, and, generally, may make such rules as it thinks fit for regulating the election.

Removal of members.

7. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any of the members of the Committee so appointed who desire to be discharged, or refuse or become incapable to act, or are convicted of an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of not less than six months.

Addition of members.

8. The Local Government may also fill up vacancies occurring among the members of the Committee, and may, if it think fit, on the recommendation of the Committee, add to their number.

Every member so appointed shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities, and vacate his office, and be eligible for re-appointment, as if he had been originally appointed a member under section six.

Ex officio members.

9. In addition to the members appointed as aforesaid, the Local Government shall have power to appoint ex officio members of the Committee for every place in which they exercise their offices and to which this Act shall have been extended:

Provided that the number of such ex officio members shall not be more than one-third of the total number of the Committee.

Appointment of president and vice-president.

10. The Local Government may also appoint the president and vice-president, or either of them, of any Committee, or sanction the election by any Committee of one of their members as president or as vice-president.

Appointment of secretary.

The Committee may appoint any one of their members or any other person to be their secretary.

Notification of appointments and removals of members.

11. All appointments and removals of members of a Committee, made under this chapter, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

CHAPTER III.

OFFICE AND MEETINGS OF COMMITTEES.

Committee to have an office.

12. The Committee shall have an office, where they shall meet for the transaction of business at least once in every month.

Rules as to meetings.

13. (a). The president, or, in his absence, the vice-president, shall take the chair at every meeting of the Committee. In the absence of both the president and vice-president, the members present may elect a chairman for the occasion.

(b). The meetings shall be either general or special.

(d). Notice shall be given of every such meeting, and when the meeting is to be special, at least three days' notice thereof shall be given. Every notice shall state generally the nature of the business to be transacted at the meeting proposed to be called..

(e). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a general meeting shall be three.

(f). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting shall be one-half of the total number of the members of the Committee at the time of the meeting; and at least two-thirds of such quorum shall consist of non-official members.

(g). If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if summoned by the president or vice-president, shall be dissolved.

In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place. And if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

(h). All business may be transacted at a general meeting which this Act does not require to be transacted at a special meeting.

(i). All questions which may come before the Committee at any meetings shall be decided by a majority of votes. Every member shall have one vote. In case of equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

(j). Such decisions shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be published in some local English or vernacular newspaper (if any), or in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Correspondence between Committee and Local Government.

14. All correspondence between the Committee and the Local Government shall pass through the Commissioner of the Division.

The Commissioner of the Division shall be entitled to make such suggestions for the consideration of the Committee as he may deem fit; and the Committee shall furnish him with any information he may call for connected with the duties imposed upon them by this Act.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS OF COMMITTEES.

Power to make assessments and levy taxes.

15. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may from time to time make in this behalf, every Committee intending to impose taxes for the purposes of this Act, shall from time to time give notice of such intention, and shall in such notice define the persons or property within the municipality to be taxed for the purposes of this Act, and the amount or rate of the taxes to be imposed hereunder.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such notice may, within a fortnight from the date of the said notice, send his objection in writing to the chairman of the Committee, and the Committee shall take such objection into consideration and report their opinion thereon to the Local Government.

When a fortnight from the date of the said notice has expired, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in the opinion of the Committee, they are insufficient, the Committee may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to be notified in the official Gazette, define the persons or property to be taxed and the amount or rate of the taxes aforesaid, and may then at a special meeting impose such taxes accordingly.

The Committee may, at a special meeting, with the same sanction, cancel or vary any tax so imposed.

Specification of taxes.

16. Such taxes may (subject to the rules or orders last aforesaid) be all or any of the following:—

(a).—A tax on houses, buildings and lands according to the annual value thereof, not exceeding seven and a half per cent. of such value:

(b).—A tax on professions and trades:

(c).—Taxes on carriages, horses, mules, elephants, camels, bullocks and asses:

(d).—Tolls on carriages, carts, and animals entering the limits of the municipality:

(e).—An octroi on articles brought within the said limits for consumption or use therein: Provided that a list of such articles shall have been submitted to and approved by the Local Government: Provided also, that the Local Government may exempt from the octroi any such articles intended for consumption or use by any class of persons or animals.

Imposition of other taxes.

17. If the Committee desire to impose any other or further tax than such as are hereinbefore specified, they may do so with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, and subject to the provisions of section fifteen.

Taxes to be confirmed.

18. No tax shall be collected until the assessment thereof has been confirmed by such persons and in such manner as the Local Government appoints in this behalf.

Rules for confirmation and collection of taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the persons by whom, and the manner in which, any assessment of taxes under this Act shall be confirmed, and for the collection of such taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

No tax or rate invalid for defect of form.

19. No tax, or toll, or rate on property, made under this Act shall be invalid for defect of form; and it shall be enough, in any such rate on property, or any assessment of value for the purpose of making such rate, if the property rated or assessed shall be so described as to be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

Bye-laws and Rules.

Power of Committees to make bye-laws.

20. Every Committee may at a special meeting make bye-laws consistent with this Act, for regulating the time and place of their meeting, the conduct of their business, the division of duties among the members of the Committee, the salaries, appointment, suspension and removal of the officers and servants of the Committee, and other similar matters.

Enforcement of bye-laws and rules.

21. The Committee may appoint one or more of their number to carry out their resolutions, and to enforce the bye-laws and rules made, under the provisions of this Act, for the protection of the public health, or they may appoint a special officer for such purposes.

Power to make rules as to nuisances, hire of carriages, and registration of births, marriages and deaths.

22. The Committee may at a special meeting make rules for declaring what acts or omissions within the municipality shall be considered to be public nuisances;

for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which the officers of the Committee may enter upon private property for the detection and abatement of nuisances;

for determining the rates of hire of carriages, carts and boats plying for hire within the limits of the municipality, for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths, and for carrying out all or any of the purposes of this Act.

The Committee may from time to time, at a special meeting, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

Confirmation of rules.

23. No rule, and no alteration or repeal of, or addition to, a rule, made under this Act, shall have effect until it has been confirmed by the Local Government.

Publication of rules and bye-laws.

24. All bye-laws and rules made under this Act, and all alterations and repeals of, and additions to, such bye-laws and rules shall be published for such length of time and in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

Nuisances.

Power to prohibit repetition or continuance of nuisances.

25. Every Committee may enjoin within the limits of the municipality any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance.

Every such injunction shall be deemed to have been made by a public servant.

Power to remove nuisances.

26. Every Committee which the Local Government authorizes in this behalf may, so long as such authorization continues, exercise the powers of a Magistrate of a District as described in section five hundred and twenty-one of the Code of Criminal Procedure, for the removal of nuisances; and in the exercise of such powers shall follow the procedure prescribed in sections five hundred and twenty-one to five hundred and twenty-eight (both inclusive) of the same Code.

Purchase and Sale of Land.

Power to buy and sell land for purposes of Act.

27. Any Committee may at a special meeting, and with the previous sanction of the Local Government, purchase land for the purposes of this Act, and may at a like meeting and with the like sanction, sell any portion of such land which is not required for the purposes aforesaid, and convey the same in the names of the president and two of the members of the Committee.

Receipts.

The receipt of the president and any two members of the Committee for any monies paid to them upon any such sale, shall effectually discharge the persons paying the same therefrom, or from being concerned to see to the application thereof, or being accountable for the non-application or misapplication thereof; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be applied for the purposes of this Act.

Controlling Power of Local Government.

Cancellation and suspension of proceedings of Committee.

28. The Local Government may by order cancel, suspend or limit any of the acts, proceedings, bye-laws or rules of any Committee.

Conduct of litigation.

To every suit or other proceeding brought against a Committee, the Local Government shall be made a party.

Abolition of taxes.

29. The Local Government may also abolish any tax which shall have been sanctioned under the provisions hereinbefore contained, but not so as to entitle any person to a refund of money paid in respect of such tax.

CHAPTER V.

RIGHTS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Fund.

Municipal Fund.

30. All sums received by the Committee of any municipality to which this Act extends, and all fines levied under this Act, or under Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), on account of nuisances committed within the municipal limits, and all receipts from property entrusted to and managed by the Committee, shall constitute a fund which shall be called the Municipal Fund of such municipality, and shall, together with all property which may become vested in such Committee, be under their control, and shall be applied by them as trustees for the purposes of this Act.

Custody and disbursement of Municipal Fund.

31. The Municipal Fund shall, as a rule, be kept in the Government Treasury of the District, or in the Bank (if any) to which the Government Treasury business shall have been made over.

But in places where there is no such Treasury or Bank, the said fund may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, be deposited with any Banker, or person acting as a Banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government in each case thinks sufficient.

No disbursement of the Municipal Fund, or any part thereof shall be made except under the signature of the president or vice-president and one other member of the Committee.

Duties and powers of Committees.

32. Every Committee, so far as the Municipal Fund at their disposal will permit, shall, after providing out of such fund for a police establishment in the manner hereinafter mentioned, keep the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and water-courses of the municipality for which they are appointed, clean and in repair, and may cause such streets and roads or any of them to be watered and lighted, and may construct and provide for the management of poor-houses, dispensaries, market-places and other works of general utility, and, generally, may do all acts and things necessary for the purposes of conservancy and general utility within their municipality.

The Committee may also make provision, by the establishment of new schools or the aiding of already existing schools, or otherwise, for the promotion of education in their municipality.

Contracts.

33. Every contract made on behalf of any Committee in respect of any sum exceeding twenty rupees, or in respect of any property exceeding twenty rupees in value, shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the president or vice-president and at least two other members of the Committee, of whom one shall be an ex officio member. Unless so executed, it shall not be binding on the Committee.

Municipal Police.

Provision for police.

34. Every Committee shall provide in the first place, from its funds, for the maintenance of the police establishment in the municipality.

The municipal police shall be appointed under such Act of the Governor General in Council as may be applicable to the town, and their number shall be fixed by the Committee in consultation with the Inspector General of Police, subject to the final decision of the Local Government.

Police to aid in carrying out orders regarding nuisances.

35. Every officer of police in any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, may take into custody without a warrant any person who, within his view, commits any of the offences mentioned in section thirty-four of Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), and shall carry out the orders issued by the Committee for the prohibition and prevention of public nuisances, or nuisances declared to be such by any rule made under this Act.

Annual Reports and Accounts.

Annual reports and accounts to be submitted.

36. Every Committee shall annually, or oftener if directed by the Local Government to do so, submit reports of all works executed, or proceedings taken, by them under the authority of this Act, and also accounts of and relating to the Municipal Fund.

Such accounts shall be examined or audited in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes.

The Committee shall also submit, at such time and in such form as may be directed by the Local Government, an estimate of their probable receipts for the financial year next following, with proposals for their expenditure.

An abstract of such estimate and proposals shall, on being so submitted, be published in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

Rules as to cost and class of works.

37. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act, as to the cost and the class of works which the Committee may execute, and the Committee shall be legally bound to obey such rules.

Public Highways.

Right of Committee in public highways.

38. All public highways in any municipality in which this Act is in force, not specially reserved by Government, together with all erections thereon and all materials thereof, shall be vested in and belong to the Committee.

Land required for Public Purposes.

Acquisition of land for municipal purposes

39. When any land within the limits of any municipality to which this Act is extended is required for the construction or improvement of a highway, for the promotion of the healthiness of the neighbourhood, or for any other public purpose, if the Committee cannot agree with the owner for the purchase thereof, the Local Government, on the recommendation of the Committee, may notify in the local official Gazette that such land is required under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

and, on payment by the Committee of the compensation awarded under such Act, the land shall vest in them for the purposes of this Act.

Suits by and against Committees.

Suits by and against Committees.

40. Every Committee shall sue and be sued in the name of their president.

Members not personally liable for contracts made by Committee.

41. No member of a Committee shall be personally liable for any contract made or expense incurred by or on behalf of the Committee, but the funds from time to time in the hands of the Committee shall be liable for and chargeable with all contracts made in the manner above provided for.

Liability of members for breach of trust.

42. Every member of a Committee shall be liable for any misapplication of money entrusted to the Committee to which he has been a party, or which happens through, or is facilitated by, the neglect of his duty; and he shall be liable to be sued for the same in such Court as the Local Government directs, as for money due to Government.

Notice previous to suing Committee or their officers.

43. No suit shall be brought against a Committee or any of their officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of the Committee, or at the place of abode of such person, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff.

Unless such notice be proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every such suit shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of suit and not afterwards.

If any person to whom any such notice is given shall, before suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

CHAPTER VI.

PENALTIES AND PROSECUTIONS AND RECOVERY OF TAXES.

Penalty on member or servant of Committee being interested in contracts made with Committee.

44. No member of a Committee, or servant of a Committee, shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract made with the Committee, and if any such person be so interested, he shall thereby become incapable of continuing in office or in employment as such member or servant, and shall be liable to a fine of five hundred rupees:

Provided that no person shall by reason of being a shareholder in or member of any incorporated or registered Company be deemed interested in any contract entered into between such Company and the Committee.

Penalty for infringement of rules or non-payment of fines.

45. Whoever infringes any rule made by a Committee and confirmed as directed in this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and in the case of a continuing infringement, to a fine not exceeding five rupees for every day after notice from the Committee of such infringement.

In default of payment of any fine imposed under this section, the defaulter shall, in the case of a continuing infringement, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month; and in any other case, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding eight days.

Prosecutions.

46. Prosecutions under this Act for infringements of rules may be instituted before any Magistrate by the Committee or any person authorized by the Committee in this behalf.

Recovery of taxes.

47. All arrears of taxes imposed under this Act may be recovered as if they were fines, in the manner prescribed in section three hundred and seven of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 21st November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XVI OF 1873.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873."

Local extent.

So far as regards the repeal of Act No. III of 1869, this Act extends to the whole of British India: the rest of this Act extends only to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Act No. III of 1869 (for the maintenance of the Rural Police in the North-Western Provinces) and so much of section twenty-one of Bengal Regulation XX of 1817, and of form No. 6 of the Appendix thereto, as relates to the Village Watchmen of the North-Western Provinces, are hereby repealed.

II.—Appointment of Village Police.

Right of nomination of Village Policemen.

3. The nomination to the post of Village Policeman shall be made by the zamíndár of the village, or, where there are more zamíndárs than one, by the lambardár as their representative, and where there are more lambardárs than one, the opinion of the majority (unless there is some special provision to the contrary in the village administration paper) shall prevail.

Obligation to nominate.

4. Every person authorized to nominate to the office of Village Policeman shall, within fifteen days after the occurrence of a vacancy in such office, nominate a proper person to the vacant post, and communicate the nomination to the Magistrate of the District.

Discretion to appoint or reject nominee.

5. The person so nominated shall, after due enquiry into his age, character and ability, be appointed or rejected at discretion by such Magistrate, or by some officer authorized by him in that behalf.

Power to Magistrate to appoint.

6.—(a.) In default of such nomination within the said fifteen days, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

Procedure in case of rejection of nominee.

(b.) If the nomination has been made within the said fifteen days, but the nominee is rejected, the person authorized to mominate shall, within fifteen days from the date of such rejection, nominate another person to the vacant post; and in default of such nomination, or if such nomination has been made, but the nominee is again rejected, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

III.—Appointment of Road Police.

Appointment of Road Police.

7. Subject to the rules to be framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, the Magistrate of the District may, from time to time, appoint persons to be the Road Police of his District.

IV.—Duties of Village and Road Police.

Duties of Village and Road Policemen.

8. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman shall perform the following duties:—

(a.) He shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his village or beat,

(1.) of every unnatural, suspicious, or sudden death occurring in the village of which he is Chaukídár, or within his beat;

(2.) of each of the following offences occurring in such village or on such beat, (that is to say) murder, culpable homicide, rape, dacoity, theft, robbery, mischief by fire, house-breaking, counterfeiting coin, causing grievous hurt, riot, harbouring a proclaimed offender, exposure of a child, concealment of birth, administering stupefying drugs, kidnapping, lurking house-trespass, and

(3.) of all attempts and preparations to commit, and abetments of, any of the said offences.

(b.) He shall keep the Police informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to any riot or serious affray.

(c.) He shall arrest all proclaimed offenders, and all persons whom he may find in the act of committing any offence specified in paragraph (a), clause (2) of this section.

(d.) He shall observe, and from time to time report to the officer in charge of the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat may be situate, the movements of all bad characters in or on such village or beat.

(e.) He shall report to the officer in charge of such police-station the arrival of suspicious characters in the neighbourhood.

(f.) He shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which a Magistrate or any officer of Police may require, and shall promptly execute all orders issued to him by competent authority.

Procedure on arrest by Village or Road Policeman.

9. Whenever a Village Policeman or Road Policeman arrests any person, he shall take him as soon as possible to the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat is situate.

V.—Liabilities of Village and Road Police.

Dismissal of Village or Road Policeman.

10. The Magistrate of the District may dismiss any Village Policeman or Road Policeman for any misconduct or neglect of duty.

Acts punishable.

11. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman guilty of any wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty, such misconduct or neglect not being an offence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, or withdrawing from the duties of his office without permission, and without having given at least two months' notice of his intention to withdraw from such duties to the persons authorized to nominate or appoint under sections three and seven (as the case may be),

or offering any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody, or violating any of the rules framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, Penalty.

shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding three months' pay, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

Fines to be credited to such fund as Government appoints.

12. All fines levied under this Act on Village Policemen or Road Policemen shall be credited to such fund as the Local Government from time to time appoints.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Orders of Magistrate of District subject to control of Commissioner.

13. All orders of, and appointments made by, the Magistrate of the District under section five, six, seven or ten, shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate.

Power to make subsidiary rules.

14. The Local Government may from time to time frame rules

(a) for the discipline of the Village and Road Police,

(b) for regulating their numbers, location and duties, and

(c) for carrying out generally the purposes of this Act.

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XVII OF 1873.

An Act to provide for the liquidation of the debts of the Nawáb Názim of Bengal, and for his protection against legal process.

Preamble.

WHEREAS divers large pecuniary claims have been made against Sayyid Mansúr Álí, the present Nawáb Názim of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, commonly called the Nawáb Názim, which he has not the means of satisfying, and for the purpose of recovering such claims divers suits have been brought against him, and divers attachments have been issued against his property in India:

And whereas, with respect to certain jewels and immoveable property, it is disputed whether they belong absolutely to the said Nawáb Názim or are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and litigation has consequently arisen between the creditors of the present Nawáb Názim and the Government of India:

And whereas the Government of India is desirous of freeing the said Nawáb Názim and his property respectively from such suits and attachments, and of discharging such portions of the said claims as are proper to be paid, and of settling the said dispute as to the said jewels and immoveable property:

And whereas in the meantime and for the future, it is expedient to exempt the said Nawáb Názim, except as hereinafter mentioned, from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, and to render him incapable of contracting further pecuniary obligations;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Nawáb Názim's Debts Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to all persons and places for whom and for which the Governor General in Council has power to make laws;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Power to appoint Commission.

2. The Governor General in Council may from time to time nominate and appoint such persons as he thinks fit to be a Commission for the purposes hereinafter mentioned.

All persons so nominated and appointed (hereinafter called "the Commissioners") shall continue to be members of the said Commission during the pleasure of the Governor General in Council, and shall hold their sittings at such place or places and time or times as they think fit.

Notice to claimants.

3. The Commissioners shall publish thrice in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Calcutta Gazette in English, Urdú and Bengáli, and in such other mode and languages as they think fit, a notice calling upon all persons having claims against the said Nawáb Názim or his property, whether moveable or immoveable, to notify the same in writing to the Commissioners within six months from the date of the earliest of such publications.

Bar of debts not duly notified.

4. Every debt or liability to which the said Nawáb Názim is subject, or with which his property, or any part thereof, is charged, and which is not duly notified to the Commissioners within the time and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned, shall be barred:

Proviso.

Provided that, on sufficient cause being shown to the Commissioners, they may admit such claim within the further period of six months from the expiration of the said period of six months.

Particulars of claim.

5. Every such claimant shall along with his claim present full particulars thereof.

Every document on which he founds his claims, or on which he relies in support thereof, shall be delivered to the Commissioners along with the claim.

Entries in books.

If the document be an entry in any book, the claimant shall produce the book to the Commissioners, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies. The Commissioners shall mark the book for the purpose of identification, and after examining and comparing the copy with the original, shall return the book to the claimant.

Exclusion of documents not produced.

If any document in the possession or under the control of the claimant is not delivered or produced by him to the Commissioners along with the claim, the Commissioners may refuse to receive such document in evidence on the claimant's behalf at the investigation of the case.

May call for or admit any further evidence.

The Commissioners may, from time to time, call for further and more detailed particulars of any claim preferred before them under this Act, and may at their discretion refuse to proceed with the investigation of the claim until such particulars are supplied.

Power of Commissioners to summon witnesses.

6. For the purposes of this Act, the Commissioners may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel them to give evidence, and compel the production of documents by the same means, and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Civil Court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Investigation to be a judicial proceeding.

7. Every investigation conducted by the Commissioners, with reference to any claim preferred before them under this Act, or to any matter connected with any such claim, shall be deemed a judicial proceeding within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

And every statement made by any person examined by or before the Commissioners with reference to such investigation, whether upon oath or otherwise, shall be deemed to be evidence within the meaning of the same Code.

Expenses of witnesses.

8. Every witness required by the Commissioners, except at the instance of a claimant, to attend and give evidence under the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to a reasonable sum (to be allowed by the Commissioners) for his expenses in travelling to and from, and remaining at, the place at which he is required to attend.

Commissioners to determine amount due to each claimant.

9. The Commissioners shall, by agreement with the claimant or, in default of such agreement, after due and full enquiry, determine the amount which, on the consideration of all the circumstances, they may consider each claimant ought in fairness and justice to receive. And in coming to such determination, they shall not be bound by any previous agreement or judicial proceeding.

Sum found due to be certified to Government.

10. The Commissioners shall certify in each case the amount so determined, and upon the Governor General in Council, within six months from the date of the certificate, paying or tendering to any claimant the amount so certified, all claims of such claimant against the Nawáb Názim or his property shall be satisfied and extinguished.

Bar of suits against Nawáb Názim.

11. No suit shall be commenced or prosecuted, and no writ or process shall at any time be sued for against the person or property of the said Nawáb Názim, unless such suit be commenced, or such writ or process be sued for, with the consent of the Governor General in Council first had and obtained.

Such consent shall be certified by the signature of one of the Secretaries to the Government of India, and every such signature shall be judicially noticed.

And any suit which at any time shall have been, or shall be, commenced, and any writ or process which at any time shall have been, or shall be, sued for, against the person or property of the said Nawáb Názim, shall be of no effect unless and until the consent of the Governor General in Council certified in manner aforesaid is obtained.

Commissioners to ascertain the property held by Government for upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim's family.

12. The Commissioners shall ascertain what jewels and immoveable property are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and shall certify the particulars of such jewels and property; and their finding thereon shall be binding and conclusive on all persons whomsoever.

Power to refer questions of law to High Court.

13. If any question of law, or as to the construction of a document, arises in any case under this Act, and the Commissioners think it necessary for the purposes of fairness and justice to obtain a judicial opinion thereon, they may draw up a statement of the case and refer it for the decision of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William; and the provisions of sections twenty-four and twenty-five and of the first sentence of section twenty-six of Act No. XI of 1865 shall apply as if, in section twenty-six, for the word "Court," the word "Commissioners" were substituted.

And if, in the opinion of the High Court, the statement is imperfectly framed, the High Court may return it for amendment; and the costs (if any) consequent on any such reference shall be dealt with as the Commissioners shall in each case direct.

Nawáb Názim to be incapable of contracting.

14. The said Nawáb Názim shall be incapable of entering into any contract which may give rise to any pecuniary obligation on his part.

Saving of Secretary of State in Council.

15. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to render the Secretary of State for India in Council, or the Government of India, liable for any debt heretofore contracted by, or on behalf of, the said Nawáb Názim, or in respect of any claim to be reimbursed, which may be made by any person supplying him with necessaries.

Bar of suit for acts done bonâ fide.

16. No suit or other proceeding shall be maintained against any person in respect of anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE AND COMMERCE.

REPORT ON THE SLEEPER SLIDE AND TRAMWAY AT MUNDHOLE IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 212 F/C, dated Nynee Tal, the 8th August 1873.

From—COLONEL ALEXANDER FRASER, Secretary to the Govt. of the N. W Provinces, P. W DEPT.,

To—The Secretary to the Govt. of India, DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE AND COMMERCE.

IN reply to your No. 1268, dated 18th October 1872, I am to submit in original the report therein called for on the sleeper slides constructed in the Jounsar Forest, together with a copy of the Conservator's No. 180, dated 19th ultimo.

2. I am to observe that the drawings* are good; the report by Mr. Bagshawe is clear; and the success, both financially and in working, is complete.

3. The slide consists of 4 miles of sleeper canal (at which point the water-supply fails), is continued by a tramway 1¼ miles long, and is finished by a shoot of 848 feet, by means of which the sleepers are launched into the Tonse.

4. The total direct saving in carriage of the 155,000 sleepers from the Mundhole Forests by this sound application of mechanical means in lieu of manual labor, is fairly calculated at Rs. 24,524, and is of course irrespective of the fact that without such mechanical means the work could not have been done at all in the limited time available, whilst the increased demand for labor would have added to the rates previously given in this forest.

5. The officers employed in the direction of the work and in drawing up the report are—
Mr. Bagshawe, Assistant Conservator, 2nd Grade,
Mr. Braidwood, Assistant Conservator, 3rd Grade,
Mr. O. Greig, Sub-Assistant Conservator, to whom much commendation is due, while His Honor has no doubt but that the personal attention of the Conservator himself to the business has conduced much to the successful results.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor has a melancholy satisfaction in recording the obligations of Government to the late Captain Lillingstone, to whose originality of design and vigor in the application of the same the first success was owing.

No. 180, dated Nynee Tal, the 19th July 1873.

From—G. GREIG, Esq., Officiating Conservator of Forests, N. W. Provinces,

To—The Secretary to Govt., N. W. Provinces, P. W. DEPT.

As requested in Government of India, Department of Agriculture, Revenue and Commerce, No. 1268, dated Simla, the 18th October 1872, to your address, forwarded to me under cover of your No. $320\frac{F}{C}$, dated 1st November 1872, I have the honor to forward the enclosures as per margin.

All in Original.

1 Report on the Mundhole sleeper slide, tramway and shoot.
1 Plan,* section and details of the canal slide.
1 Plan,* section and details of tramway and trucks.
1 Plan,* section and details of wooden shoot.

2. The report is written by Mr. Bagshawe, Assistant Conservator, 2nd Grade, the officer in charge of the Jounsar Division. Mr. Bagshawe has been in charge since November 1871. The survey was made by Mr. Braidwood, Assistant Conservator, 3rd Grade, assisted by Mr. O. Greig, Sub-Assistant Conservator. The drawings* are done by Mr. Braidwood, and reflect great credit on that hard-working and able Forest Officer.

3. The main point to be observed in regard to these Mundhole sleeper works is the very great difficulty experienced in obtaining labor, and the able way that difficulty has been overcome by the Forest Officers, and with such a great saving of expense to Government. In fact, it was more than a difficulty, for it would have been impossible to have collected sufficient labor, at anything like a fair rate of pay, to have enabled us to deliver the number of sleepers required for the Rajputana (State) Railway from Jounsar, within the specified time, without the aid of contrivances described in the report under notice.

4. The canal slide is 4 miles and 160 feet in length. At the foot of this slide (or where the Mussoorie and Simla road crosses the Chándnigád) the tramway commences, and is carried for 1¼ miles over some steep gradients and abrupt curves to the edge of the high bank of the Tonse river. This bank is 351 feet above the river at the spot where the tramway terminates, and quite a sheer precipice for about one-third of the way down from the top. To obtain the proper slope at the top, a gully was cut out into the plateau at a sufficient distance from the edge of the bank, and a wooden slide or shoot was then laid down, as shown in the plan, No. 3,* forwarded. This shoot, from plateau to river, is 848 feet in length. It is an excellent piece of work, and was most ably carried out under the immediate supervision of Captain Atkinson (since transferred to the Punjab), directed by Mr. Bagshawe.

5. It will be observed from Mr. Bagshawe's report that the saving to Government from slides, tramways, &c., for the Mundhole sleeper works versus carriage on men's backs, is for the year 1872 Rs. 2,509-5-9, and on completion of the works during the current year there will be a total saving of Rs. 24,524-15-5.

6. In conclusion, I beg to bring to His Honor's notice the very excellent service done by the following officers:—

Mr. Bagshawe, Assistant Conservator, 2nd Grade, in charge of the Jounsar Division.

Mr. Braidwood, Assistant Conservator, 3rd Grade, who was in charge of the Mundhole Sub-Division from November 1870 to November 1872.

Mr. O. Greig, Sub-Assistant Conservator, who has been in charge of the Lambertach Sub-Division since September 1871, and in addition has held charge of the Mundhole Sub-Division since November 1872.

These officers have done really good work under great difficulties: they have been out in all weathers, wet or fine, and it is entirely owing to their earnest and energetic endeavours that the Tonse sleeper works have been brought to such a very satisfactory conclusion.

7. The Jounsar Forest Officers have a good deal to do just now, but I hope to send you a report on the Lambertach tramway and slide before long.

REPORT ON THE SLEEPER SLIDES, &c., IN JOUNSAR BAWAR.

SLIDES AND TRAMWAY AT MUNDHOLE.

General sketch of the Mundhole Forests.

Mundhole is situated on the right bank of the River Tonse, a little below the confluence of the Tonse and Pabur Rivers, being the most north-westerly portion of the Pergunnah of Jounsar Bawar, and is bounded by the Native States of Jubal and Taroche.

The forest of Mundhole lies on the inner slope of a range of hills in the form of a horse-shoe, from the edge of which a series of spurs and hollows converge to a central point, known as No. 1 Stage, whence the main ravine commences, which conveys the drainage of the Mundhole Basin to the Tonse.

This ravine, called the Chándnigád, is of varying breadth and slope, and forms the sole exit for timber from the Mundhole forest.

General description of the sleeper works at Mundhole.

In 1869 a call was made on the Tonse forests to supply a portion of the deodar sleepers required for the Rajputana State Railway, and it was determined to fell a large number of trees in the Mundhole forest.

This felling was distributed as equally as possible over the whole forest; and within a radius of about 2½ miles from No. 1 Stage.

The trees having been cut into the required lengths, the logs were collected in small depôts, as dictated by the nature of the ground, and then sawn into sleepers.

* Not published

Out of the total yield of 155,000 sleepers, 120,000 were carried to No. 1 Stage, the remainder being carried to a depôt about a mile lower down the Chándnigád: both these depôts were connected with the different log depôts by small carrying paths, which were constructed with steep gradients, so as to reduce the distance as much as possible.

Necessity for some mechanical aid in conveying sleepers to the river.

The first season's sleepers, 17,000 in number, were carried to No. 1 Stage, and thence down the Chándnigád by a narrow road, 6¼ miles long, to the river on men's backs; but it was only by most strenuous exertions in the cold weather of 1870-71, and the employment of 300 men for six months, that the sleepers reached the river.

Putting aside the question of rates, it became at once apparent that the sleepers as a whole could never be delivered up to time, unless mechanical aid was brought into play: a sufficient number of coolies being simply unprocurable.

It may be well to note here that, in conjunction with the slides, &c., hereafter described, some 1,500 men were steadily employed at Mundhole during the season 1871-72; large works being in progress at the same time at Lambertach and Dártmír, which at least engrossed another 2,000 men.

Therefore, to have carried a lac and a half of sleepers 6¼ miles on men's backs, in addition to other work, would not have been possible in two years.

Adoption of the canal slide and other works to effect this object.

During the next few months many schemes and plans were proposed for conveying the sleepers to the river and many experiments tried.

At length a tramway for 4 miles of the distance was proposed by Mr. Greig, then Deputy Conservator in charge of the division, and then a shoot to drop them into the river from the terminus of the tramway.

This plan, as will be seen hereafter, was partially carried out.

In the season of 1871, however, the most important part of the scheme was proposed by the late Captain Lillingstone, viz., the employment of a canal slide from No. 1 Stage right down to the river.

This was a modification and extension of timber slides as employed in Europe and America, and for its simplicity and effectiveness cannot be too highly valued.

Captain Lillingstone's proposal was to construct a wooden canal from No. 1 Stage and run it along the bank of the Chándnigád to introduce water at intervals from the stream by small wooden troughs and by means of the force of the water and the fall; to slide the sleepers down without further help than launching them at the one end and taking them out at the other.

The untimely and lamented death of Captain Lillingstone prevented his doing more than prove by experiments that his plan was feasible.

General description of the export works.

In the cold weather and spring of 1871-72 the following complete series of works was planned and executed, viz.:—

A canal slide was made from No. 1 Stage to the Simla road-crossing (4 miles down the Chándnigád); at this point it being impossible from want of water to carry the slide down the bank of the Chándnigád. A tramway was substituted for 1¼ miles of the remaining distance to the top of a plateau immediately above the River Tonse.

Finally, from the tramway terminus a wooden shoot, 848 feet in length, was laid to the river for launching the sleepers.

Description of the canal slide.

As noted in the general sketch of the export works, the canal slide was laid down on the banks of the Chándnigád. The rocky and precipitous nature of the country presented great difficulties, and in many places directly the ground was broken up slips occurred.

Construction of canal slide.

The plan and section* of the canal slide annexed to this report will explain itself and show the curves and steep gradients rendered necessary by the nature of the ground; all of which, however, have been proved to be not incompatible with success.

Length of slide and different gauges.

The total length of the slide is 21,280 feet, or 4 miles 160 feet; of this 5,224 feet was made of the broad (or 17″ gauge), and the remainder, of the narrow (or 12″ gauge). See Drawing No. 1.*

Broad gauge.

The broad gauge was made according to the original plan of Captain Lillingstone, who proposed constructing the main part of the canal slide with the sleepers which were to be floated down it.

In 1871 the gauge of the State Railways had been changed, and in place of 10 feet sleepers we were called upon to supply 6 feet sleepers.

Slide to be constructed with sleepers.

Captain Lillingstone proposed sawing up 22,400 sleepers in the following shapes, viz.:—

Double flat sleepers	...	... 6′ 6″ × 17″ × 4½″
Double block sleepers	...	... 6′ 6″ × 9″ × 8½″

Two double block sleepers formed the bottom of the slide, and the sides were of double flat sleepers standing on edge, vide plan.*—Elevation and cross section of the canal slide broad gauge. Each of the double sleepers was ultimately to be sawn into two ordinary sleepers and sent down the slide.

* Not published.

Broad gauge abandoned.

The plan of having the slide of 17″ gauge was abandoned for the following reasons, viz. :—

(a). It was found that the sleepers had too much play in the bottom of the slide, and were damaged in transit.

(b). That at the curves and dips in the slide they were liable to jump out if the water-supply were at all short.

(c). That owing to the broad gauge being formed of four pieces, in each 6′ 6″ length, the leakage was great, as the sleepers flying from side to side loosened all the joints.

(d). That the sleepers forming the slide also suffered greatly; about 50 per cent. being rendered useless.

Adoption of the narrow gauge: use of Chir wood.

The narrow (or 12″ gauge) was adopted, and Chir scantlings 13′ × 12″ × 5″ and 6′ 6″ × 12″ × 5″ substituted for the Deodar sleepers.

The details on Drawing No. 1* show the construction of the narrow gauge and junction with broad gauge.

One point, however, requires notice, viz., the plan adopted for making the slide water-tight.

Method of rendering the slide water-tight.

In preparing the scantlings forming the bottom of the slide, each 5″ side was hollowed out about ¼″, see figure a, then joined up tight with the wedges.

Adoption of the broad to the narrow gauge.

On the failure of the broad gauge, it was at first proposed to relay the whole length, but time being a great object, the following plan was carried out, viz. :—

In 1,000 feet the gauge was reduced by fixing a 5″ scantling to one side; 2,000 feet was relaid narrow gauge with Chir scantlings, and the remainder left broad gauge.

Method of stopping sleepers at the end of the slide.

The sleepers were stopped at the end of the slide by the bed of the slide being widened out into a table 42 feet long by 12 feet at the further end, which is raised about 1 foot.

Question of carrying the slide to the river or not.

It was at first an open question whether the slide should be carried down to the river, but later on it was found to be impossible owing to lack of water.

Reasons for not doing so.

As the Chándnigád for the last 2 miles is dry for nine months out of the twelve, there being a number of holes down which the water mysteriously disappears.

It may be asked why the water already brought down the slide should not suffice for the remaining 1¼ miles.

The reason is, that at the steeper portions of the slide the sleepers acquire a greater velocity than the water and throw it out of the slide. And though numerous feeders are introduced, barely sufficient water reaches the end of the slide.

Time taken by a sleeper in transit.

The average time taken by a sleeper travelling down the 4 miles of slide is 20 minutes.

Rate of launching.

Sleepers are launched at the head of the slide at the rate of 1 per minute, or 700 per diem, but with a large supply of water as many as 1,200 can be launched in one day.

During the season 1872 (an unusually rainy year), the average was 800 per diem.

Damage sustained by sleepers.

The results of last year's work show that no more than 72 per cent. of sleepers floated were damaged in transit. And it is very certain that in carrying sleepers by coolie labor the damage would have been much greater.

Cost of constructing slide.

A memorandum showing the cost of the slide under the different heads is annexed.

Explanation of table of costs.

The following heads of expenditure may require some explanation, viz. :—

Head II.—Includes all timber used, beams for slides, bridges and block sleepers, the Deodar sleepers alone excepted.

Head IV.—Shows the expenses incurred in making dams to collect water and wooden troughs to convey fresh supplies of water to the slide.

Head VI.—Represents the cost of squaring the timber and laying down the slide as far as skilled labor is concerned.

Head IX.—Gives cost of the share of tools now in stock in Jounsar, but specially bought for the slide and similar works.

Head X.—Includes such miscellaneous items as repairing tools, purchase of iron, medicine, stationery, &c., erecting huts for workmen, carriage of money, and compensation for land taken up or damaged.

* Not published.

Head XIII.—Includes repairs of damage done to slide by floods, and putting the slide in thorough repair, after 82,000 sleepers had been floated down in 1872.

Rates paid for labor.

To give an insight into the details of cost, I may mention that the rates for labor were as follows, viz.:—

Coolies 5 annas per diem, carpenters 8 annas per diem, masons 6 annas per diem, and that on the above rates piece-work was given out. Sawing was paid for at Rs. 3-2 per 100 superficial feet. Atta was supplied to skilled laborers at 10 seers per rupee, and to coolies at 8 seers per rupee (the latter being the cost price to Government).

Rates paid for floating sleepers.

The rates paid for floating sleepers down the slide was 1-14 per 100; this rate included pay of chokidárs, who moved up and down the slide to report any hitch.

Five per cent. on the total amount paid for floating sleepers during the season was paid to the contractors.

Gross cost of floating.

It will be seen that the actual cost of floating 82,000 sleepers, including contingencies, was Rs. 2,083-6-1, or nearly 5 pie per sleeper for the 4 miles of carriage.

These details are given to enable the table of costs to be checked.

The general financial results will be dwelt on hereafter.

Description of the tramway. Nature of the ground.

The line of tramway laid down in the Chándnigád commences at the terminus of the canal slide, or Simla road-crossing, and just at the head of a gorge where the ravine widens out into a small valley, the stream running down a narrow channel on one side and the tramway following the plateau above.

Construction of tramway.

The line of roadway and gradients are shown in Drawing No. 2;* also a Drawing* of the truck used to convey the sleepers to the head of the shoot.

Materials used.

The rails used on the tramway are of Chir timber, 12′ × 5″ × 4″; the sleepers are of Deodar, the ends of long sleepers cut off in 1871 being utilized: each sleeper is 4′ 6″ × 5½″ × 5½″.

Method of keying rails and laying down sleepers.

A simple and effective method of keying the rails was used, vide Drawing No. 2.

The sleepers are laid down 2 feet apart and bored up with ballast, so that a maximum of strength combined with elasticity is attained.

Protection of the rails by means of hoop-iron.

The inner side of the rail was lined with hoop-iron on all the curves and steep inclines; this was fastened on to the rail by means of screws from 1 to 2 feet apart.

This was a great preservation of the rails, and though this precaution was taken at a cost of Rs. 320, it undoubtedly paid and might have been applied with advantage throughout, as one set of rails would then have sufficed to carry the whole number of sleepers down.

Perfection not sought after in the tramway.

In the construction of the tramway perfection was in many places made subservient to economy of time and money, and as will be seen from the drawings,* many curves and steep gradients are the results.

The tramway has, however, done its work well, so this is hardly to be regretted.

Cost of the trucks used.

The iron-work of the trucks were supplied by the Rúrki workshops; the average cost of each truck at Rúrki was Rs. 100-9, carriage to forest Rs. 12-4-1, first cost of making up trucks in forest Rs. 6 each, cost of repairs, 1872, Rs. 7-1-6.

Bad quality of iron-work sent from Rúrki.

The large figure of the last item is due to all the iron-work (save the wheels and clamping screws) being of such bad quality as to require entire renewal during the season.

How the trucks were worked.

Each truck was worked by three men, the load being 22 sleepers. Three journeys were made by day and two by night; separate gangs being employed for day and night-work.

The average number of trucks worked daily was 12, the rest being generally under repair.

Rates given for working trucks.

The rates actually paid to the coolies for the transport of sleepers by the tramway was 5 annas per score by day and 6 annas per score by night.

In addition to this, two small gangs of men were entertained at the two steepest inclines to ease the trucks down. Five per cent. on all work done on the tramway was given to heads of gangs.

Cost of carriage per sleeper.

Inclusive of all miscellaneous expenses, it will be seen from the return of cost annexed, that working down a sleeper last season cost 5¾ pie per sleeper.

General description of the Tonse shoot.

The position and construction generally of the Tonse shoot will be understood from the annexed Drawing No. 3.*

There are few remarks to make about this work, the idea is that of the canal slide, adapted to a dry slide.

Construction of the shoot.

The shoot was made with the greatest possible exactness, to ensure the sleeper always feeling the bottom of it and not jumping.

The joints are all dovetailed, and fastened by bolts and nuts; this course was adopted to make the shoot, as it were, one piece, and not a series of disjointed lengths.

Number of sleepers launched daily.

Three thousand sleepers per diem can easily be launched from this shoot, and on some occasions that number was largely exceeded.

* Not published.

Number of sleepers damaged.

The number broken, out of 82,000 sleepers launched, was only 16.

Cost of launching.

The cost of launching per sleeper (directly) is nil, as launching is included in the Tonse floating charges.

Under that head a saving of 50 per cent. is effected, i. e., if 10 men could launch 1,500 sleepers without the shoot, the same number would now launch 3,000.

Saving effected in Tonse floating charges.

Again, the shoot, though only 848 feet long, cuts off fully ¼ mile of carriage; the road from the end of the tramway going down in a series of zig-zags to the river.

I think the success of these works may be deemed apparent when it is noted that 82,000 sleepers were conveyed by them from No. 1 Stage to the river in 1872; and the carriage of the remaining 73,000 insured by the rains of 1873.

Success of the scheme.

The economy of labor, and saving in rates of carriage, belong to the financial results.

Financial results.

It will be seen from the table annexed that, debiting the whole cost of the works to the 82,000 sleepers brought down the Chándnigád in 1872, and likewise the repairs necessary for the season 1873, the gross cost per sleeper is 5 annas and ½ pie.

Cost of carriage by slide, &c., per sleeper.

The distance the sleepers would have had to be carried on men's backs would have been 6¼ miles.

The actual pay for coolies, had they been obtainable at the ruling rates, would (at a low estimate) have been 5 annas per sleeper; to this amount must be added the 5 per cent. paid to heads of gangs; or on Rs. 25,625 (the cost of carrying 82,000 sleepers) Rs. 1,281-4. An establishment to collect labor, check sleeper-carrying, &c., would have been required for six months, say at Rs. 100 per mensem = Rs. 600.

The road required repairs, and had to be re-made in parts, say at a cost of Rs. 150 per mile = Rs. 825.

The account then stands thus for 1872 :—

Carrying 82,000 sleepers on men's backs—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Coolies	25,625	0	0
5 per cent. to tindals	1,281	4	0
Establishment	600	0	0
Road repairs	825	0	0

Saving effected in 1872 by the slides and Tramway.

or, as conveyed by the slides and tramway, Rs. 25,821-14-3, showing a nett gain on the season's work of Rs. 2,509-5-9.

The services of an additional officer for eight months being omitted from both accounts.

Saving estimated for 1873.

In 1873, 73,000 sleepers will have been brought down by the slides and tramway.

These carried by coolies at the above-mentioned rates would have cost as follows, viz.:—

	Rs.	A.	P.
Coolies	22,812	8	0
5 per cent. to tindals	1,140	9	8
TOTAL ...	24,853	1	8

or as conveyed by the slides and tramway.

Floating charges in canal slide, inclusive of repairs and establishment—

	Rs.	A.	P.
73,000 at 2 per cent.	1,460	0	0
Ditto carried by tramway at 1-12 per cent.	1,277	8	0
Repairs to shoot	100	0	0
TOTAL ...	2,837	8	0

Total saving effected by the slides and tramway.

showing a nett gain of Rs. 22,015-9-8, which, added to last year's profit, gives a total of Rs. 24,524-15-5, which sum represents the saving in hard cash by means of the slides and tramway.

Great importance of saving in labor.

The strong point, however, is not the money saving, but the economy of labor in a thinly populated country.

It will have been noted that about 1,500 men were regularly employed at Mandhole in cutting and rolling logs, making roads and paths, sawing sleepers and carrying the same from the small depôts to No. 1 Stage.

In addition, Lambertch, distant 15 miles from Mandhole, constantly employed another 1,500 men, and Dártmír, distant about 30 miles from Mandhole, another 500.

This is taking no account of the men employed at Deoban and Chakráta.

There being this large demand for labor, we can hardly suppose a fresh supply could have arisen without an increase in the rates; and that the result would have been, not to introduce much fresh labor into the country, but only to tempt the coolies to run to the most remunerative work, and thus Government would have suffered in several departments, both in work being left incomplete and by paying more for what was done.

Benefit conferred on other Government Departments.

It will be seen, therefore, that to value the Mandhole export works at the amount they saved in hard cash at the present rates, is simply not to grasp the whole of their advantages.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE FORTNIGHT ENDING THE 29th NOVEMBER 1873.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Reports from Madras and Bombay are generally favourable; abundant rain has fallen in the south of Madras; rain is required in some districts of the Deccan and South Mahratta country, and is much wanted in Mysore. From Bengal reports continue unchanged, except that in parts prices manifest a more hopeful tendency; no rain has fallen in any quantity; the prospects of the tracts where apprehension of famine prevails depend entirely on the winter rains; in Oudh the same is the case; if good rain falls at Christmas there will be no distress. In the Punjab prospects are generally good. From the Central Provinces reports are fair; the autumn harvest has suffered as elsewhere from deficient rainfall. Rain is wanted in Rajpootana. Reports from Berar, Central India, and British Burmah are good. None has been received from the North-Western Provinces.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras (Nov. 27th)
Kistna (26th)	..	No rain at Masulipatam; little elsewhere; four feet water over anicut; canal supply good; later dry crops sowing; standing crops generally fair; some dry crops being reaped; markets well supplied locally; prices steady; Bapetta still importing; pasture sufficient; fever and mild small-pox prevalent; cholera abating; cattle disease slight.
Kurnool "	Nil	Cholum, karra, cumboo harvested; outturn moderate; other crops good, except paddy; oil-seeds attacked by insects in some taluqs; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture and water plentiful; fever in three taluqs; dengue in two, cattle disease in a few villages.
Negapatam "	13·00 at Negapatam	Rainfall good elsewhere. Freshes decreasing; supply to tanks fair; cultivation progressing; standing crops good; inferior paddy and some dry grains harvested, yield below average; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture sufficient; health generally good; cattle disease in Manargudi, some cases fatal.
Trichinopoly "	0·50 to 4·00 throughout the district.	Rainfall heaviest in the north; water-supply sufficient; crops in good order; outturn generally below average; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture ample; health good, but for small-pox; cattle healthy.
Calicut "	Nil	Want of rain slightly injurious to second crop, which is almost ripe; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture good; fever and small-pox in hilly localities of district; cattle healthy
Bombay (Nov. 27th)		General remarks:—General prospects satisfactory.
Sindh.
Kurrachee (Nov. 26th)	...	Weather extremely hot and unseasonable; rubbee sowings going on well; fever prevalent.
Hyderabad "	...	Agricultural reports good; produce of jowari and bajri crops extremely good, though area deficient; grain very cheap; rice outturn deficient; cotton-picking progressing, quality good; young rubbee crops good, area less than usual; general health good; weather mild.
Gujarat.
Ahmedabad (Nov 26th)	...	Rice harvesting progressing; public health much improved.
Kaira "	...	Sowing of rubbee crops commenced; cotton and weather good; fever decreasing.
Surat "	...	Cotton and rubbee crops good; fever in some taluqs.
Broach "	...	Standing crops flourishing; fever prevalent.
Khandesh and Nasik.
Khandesh (Nov. 26th)	..	Unpicked cotton injured by last rain; rubbee crops favorable; fever continues.
Nasik "	1·15	Early crops nearly harvested; late crops good; public health good, except in Nasik and Yeola, where fever prevails to a slight extent.
Thanna "	...	Nights cool and pleasant; days oppressive; reaping of late rice crops almost completed; ague in Thanna; fever in Shapur and Panwell; and cattle disease in Shapur and Murhar taluqs.
Deccan.
Poona (Nov. 26th)	...	Rain at Serur; much wanted at Patus; rubbee crops generally well; public health good; cattle disease slightly continues in Mawal and Havelli.
Ahmednugger "		Rain wanted in some taluqs; crops generally good; cotton-picking commenced; public health good.
Sholapur "	0·25 at Pandharpur.	Crops middling; cotton market slack.
Sattara "	0·26	Khureef and rubbee crops good; fever in Karar; dysentery and fever in Walwa; ague and cattle disease in Pattan.
Southern Mahratta Country.
Belgaum (Nov. 26th)		Early crops being harvested; late ones well; fever in Bidi taluq; locusts doing slight harm in Chikodi taluq; cotton crops fair.
Dharwar "		Early crops being reaped; late crops generally well; cotton being destroyed by worms in some places, healthy in others; cattle disease in Bunkapur and Kulghutgi.
Kaladghi "	...	Rain required throughout the district, for rubbee crops middling; public health good.
Canara "	...	Crops fair; harvest progresses above ghâts; fever, dysentery, and cattle disease prevalent.
Rajkote "	...	Crops generally thriving; cotton good.
Wudwan "	...	Weather fair; public health good.
Baroda "	...	Crops fair; public health good.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Agra, on Monday, the 17th November 1873.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G. M. S. I., presiding.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.
The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K. C. S. I.
The Hon'ble B. H. Ellis.
Major General the Hon'ble Sir H. W. Norman, K. C. B.
The Hon'ble A. Hobhouse, Q. C.
The Hon'ble E. C. Bayley, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble J. F. D. Inglis, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble R. A. Dalyell.

MUNICIPALITIES (N. W. PROVINCES AND OUDH) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE said that, instead of bringing forward the first motion on the list of business relating to the Bill to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, he wished to move an amendment to a clause in that Bill.

The amendment was for the purpose of securing to the Local Government a locus standi in Court in case of suits brought against Municipal Committees. It was almost of a formal character. It was obvious that, in many such suits, the Local Government would have the most material interest, but difficulties of a technical character had been felt in the Courts and had prevented them from recognizing the Government as a party to the suit.

This amendment was, therefore, for the purpose of giving them that position. MR. HOBHOUSE proposed to move to add to section 28 of the Bill—the clause which gave the Local Government a control over the proceedings of the Committees—the words—

"To every suit or other proceeding brought against a Committee the Local Government shall be made a party."

MR. HOBHOUSE also desired to move an amendment to clause 22 of the Bill, which gave power to Municipal Committees to make rules declaring what should be considered to be public nuisances. It was found desirable to import into this Bill that which it had been thought fit to import into the Burma Municipal Bill, and to insert, after the word "nuisances," the following words—for determining the rates of hire of carriages, carts and boats plying for hire within the limits of a Municipality."

"for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which the officers of the Committee may enter upon private property for the detection and abatement of nuisances;

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR said that the Bill, so far as the North-Western Provinces were concerned, was the virtual re-enactment of a law (Act VI of 1868) which had been in operation for above five years. In now re-enacting it for the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, some slight amendments had been found necessary; but these were few and unimportant. The original Bill had been drawn with the utmost care, and he well remembered the labour and attention bestowed upon it by his friends Sir William Mansfield and Sir Henry Maine. The Act had worked admirably well, and reflected the utmost credit on the care and foresight of those who had taken part in drawing it up in 1868.

The two amendments now proposed had been made at his (THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR'S) instance. As regards the first, his hon'ble friend had stated correctly that a practical difficulty had been found in having the Government represented, as it should always be, in the case of suits brought against Municipalities, and the clause proposed completely met the difficulty.

The other amendment had been suggested by the Burma Municipal Bill about to be introduced, and appeared to him an improvement that might advantageously be adopted in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Bill. It was true that both its objects had been partially met in some Municipalities by bye-laws, providing for the entrance of officers of the Municipality on private premises, and also for regulating the rates of conveyances for hire; but it was doubtful whether the Committees had legal authority for this procedure, or whether their action was not ultra vires. It was, therefore, advisable to place their powers in both respects upon a legal footing, and this was satisfactorily effected by these amendments.

The Motions of the Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE were then separately put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT AND REVENUE BILLS.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE asked leave to make another motion that was not on the paper, namely, that Sir William Muir be added to the Committee now sitting upon the Rent and Revenue Bills for the North-Western Provinces. His Honour had consented to serve upon the Committee, and of course the Committee were desirous to have his assistance. There were still several suggestions which had been made, which required to be considered carefully while we were at Agra. The principal matter that remained for consideration was that with respect to the clause which related to privileged tenants, and which at present travelled back into time and created them by a retrospective title. The clause, as it at present stood, gave them no retrospective advantage. It did not meddle with any pecuniary arrangements at present existing between landlord and tenant; it gave those who came within the term 'privileged tenants' a prospective and contingent advantage, but gave them that advantage by virtue of a retrospective title.

It was, however, suggested that the object aimed at, or so much of it as ought to be attained at all, could be better attained by a different plan, and the Committee would have to determine this point. There were also many other proposals before the Committee of a less general character, some of which appeared to be calculated to improve the measure.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

VILLAGE POLICE (N. W. P.) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS moved that the final report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village Police in the North-Western Provinces be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS said that, when he asked for leave to introduce this Bill, he explained that its primary object was to remedy a defect in the existing law, and to render any Village Chaukídár who might be guilty of misconduct or wilful neglect of duty subject to punishment, on conviction before a Magistrate, by fine or imprisonment for a short term. While the Bill was before the Select Committee, some alterations had been made in it on the suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces. Section 7 had been added, which extended the provisions of the Bill to the Road as well as to the Village Police, and empowered the Magistrate of a District, subject to rules to be made by the Local Government, to appoint such number of Road Chaukídárs as might be necessary. The sections relating to the duties, dismissal and punishment of Village Police, and to arrest by Village Police, being also made applicable to the Road Police. By section 13, all orders of, and appointments made by, the Magistrate of the District under section five, six, seven or ten were made subject to the control of the Commissioner to whom he was subordinate, and by section 2, Act III of 1869 had been wholly repealed.

Act III of 1869 authorized the levy of a house or estate tax for the payment of the Village Police. It was, however, no longer necessary, as the Village Police were now paid from the cess levied under the provisions of Act XVIII of 1871.

In section 8, the duties of Village and Road Police were defined, and clause A of that section enumerated the offences upon which they were required to report. The Government of the North-Western Provinces wished that some other offences should be added to those in this section, and MR. INGLIS had therefore to move that the following offences be added to those specified in paragraph A, clause 2, section 8 of the Bill, namely:—

"Harbouring a proclaimed offender, exposure of a child, concealment of birth, administering stupifying drugs, kidnapping, lurking, house-trespass."

The Village Police were already required by order of the Executive Government to report these offences, but it was considered desirable that they should be specified among those which were already enumerated in the Bill.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS asked leave to postpone his motion that the Bill as re-amended be passed.

Leave was granted.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES REVENUE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS asked leave to postpone the presentation of the final report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to land revenue in the North-Western Provinces.

Leave was granted.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS asked leave to postpone the presentation of the final report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the recovery of rent in the North-Western Provinces.

Leave was granted.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend Act No. X of 1872 (The Code of Criminal Procedure).

He said that the motion looked formidable, but the proposal was in reality very simple. The point on which we desired to effect an amendment was with respect to the whipping of offenders who were sentenced to that punishment. It so happened that, in section 302 of the Code, several punishments (transportation, imprisonment and whipping) were specified, for which the Court of Session, if it tried the case, had to forward the offender to the district jail, and then it was provided by a subsequent paragraph that Courts inferior to the Courts of Session should follow the same procedure. The result was that the Judges of Courts inferior to the Courts of Session, who might be far away from the district jail, had to send the offender in some cases sixty or eighty miles for the purpose of being whipped. This not only caused much inconvenience and expense, but was a very serious aggravation of the sentence passed on the offender himself, and therefore it was desirable to amend the Act in that particular. The opportunity might be taken at the same time of seeing whether the course of the decisions in the various Courts rendered any other amendments necessary or expedient.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

MUNICIPALITIES (BRITISH BURMA) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE then introduced the Bill to provide for the appointment of Municipal Committees in towns in British Burma, and for other purposes, and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in two months. He said that the introduction was only a formal proceeding, the Bill having been published under an order of His Excellency the Viceroy many weeks ago.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

FOREIGN ENLISTMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to prohibit recruiting in British India for the service of Foreign State.

He said that the circumstances which necessitated the introduction of that Bill were as follows: It was found that a gentleman was recruiting a number of persons who were to be taken to the Straits of Malacca. Well, we knew that a war was going on there, and it was suspected that he was recruiting those persons for the purpose of serving in that war. However, he alleged, and after a little while proved to the satisfaction of Government, that he was doing no such thing, but was recruiting those persons for the purpose of serving as police to the Rájá of Larut, and therefore the parties were suffered to go.

But that compelled the Government to consider what were their powers in such cases; and first they looked to the Foreign Enlistment Act. Under that Act, what they found was that the Government had no power of interference unless the recruiting was taking place for the purpose of serving a State which was at war with another State with which we were at peace. That was not the case here, and the Foreign Enlistment Act did not apply. If the men recruited had been going to Acheen as soldiers, then the Foreign Enlistment Act would have applied. So the Government were placed in this very awkward position; either they must run the risk of suffering that to be done which the Dutch would have resented as a breach of International Law, or at least of comity, or they must run the risk of committing a breach of the law against those men, and of standing an action for damages for false imprisonment, or whatever other action of the kind might be brought. As, therefore, it was impossible for the Government to tell without careful enquiry what the true object was in such cases, and as they had to act quickly in order to act effectually, the Foreign Enlistment Act would hardly answer the purpose. The Penal Code did not touch the point. The Emigration Act might, on one construction of it, answer this particular purpose, though no doubt it was not the purpose intended when the Emigration Act was passed. That Act prohibited any person from entering into contracts with any other person to work for hire out of India, and it was a question whether the Act would not cover such a transaction as the one he had mentioned. However, the opinion of the Advocate General was taken upon that point, and he thought upon the whole that it was only intended to apply to the class of labourers in agriculture or manufactures, and that it did not apply to a case in which persons were hired to serve as policemen in foreign parts.

MR. HOBHOUSE thought it obvious that the Government ought to have a summary power of interference on occasions on which it was found that persons were going about the country beating up recruits for service in foreign parts. It was impossible for the Government to know the truth of any story that might be told them about it. If the practice was allowed to go on unchecked, it might eventually lead to serious consequences and very awkward complications, and it would be very much better to arm the Government with direct powers for the purpose of enabling them to interfere on proper terms, to stop open recruiting and the carrying away of numbers of people from the country for service in foreign parts.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committee was named:—On the Bill to provide for the appointment of Municipal Committees in towns in British Burma, and for other purposes—the Hon'ble Mr. Ellis, Major General the Hon'ble Sir H. W. Norman, and the Hon'ble Mr. Dalyell and the Mover.

The Council then adjourned to Friday, the 21st November 1873.

Fort William, the 5th December 1873.

No. 14.—The following Statutes are published for general information:—

36 & 37 VICTORIA, CAP. 85.

An Act to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts.

[5th August 1873.]

BE it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Merchant Shipping Act, 1873.

Construction of Act.

2. This Act shall be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, and the Acts amending the same, and the said Acts and this Act may be cited collectively as the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873.

Registry (Part II of Merchant Shipping Act, 1854).

Particulars to be marked on British ships.

3. Every British ship registered after the passing of this Act shall before registry, and every British ship registered before the passing of this Act shall, on or before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, be permanently and conspicuously marked to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade, as follows:—

Her name shall be marked on each of her bows, and her name and the name of her port of registry shall be marked on her stern, on a dark ground in white or yellow letters, or on a light ground in black letters, such letters to be of a length not less than four inches, and of proportionate breadth:

Her official number and the number denoting her registered tonnage shall be cut in on her main beam:

A scale of feet denoting her draught of water shall be marked on each side of her stem and of her stern post in Roman capital letters or in figures, not less than six inches in length, the lower line of such letters or figures to coincide with the draught line denoted thereby. Such letters or figures shall be marked by being cut in and painted white or yellow on a dark ground, or in such other way as the Board of Trade may from time to time approve.

The Board of Trade may, however, exempt any class of ships from the requirements of this section or any of them.

If the scale of feet showing the ship's draught of water is in any respect inaccurate, so as to be likely to mislead, the owner of the ship shall incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds.

The marks required by this section shall be permanently continued, and no alteration shall be made therein, except in the event of any of the particulars thereby denoted being altered in the manner provided by the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873.

Any owner or master of a British ship who neglects to cause his ship to be marked as aforesaid, or to keep her so marked, and any person who conceals, removes, alters, defaces, or obliterates, or suffers any person under his control to conceal, remove, alter, deface, or obliterate any of the said marks, except in the event aforesaid, or except for the purpose of escaping capture by an enemy, shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds, and any officer of customs on receipt of a certificate from a surveyor or inspector of the Board of Trade that a ship is insufficiently or inaccurately marked may detain the same until the insufficiency or inaccuracy has been remedied.

Provided that no fishing vessel duly registered, lettered and numbered in pursuance of the Sea Fisheries Act, 1868, shall be required to have her name and port of registry marked under this section.

Provided also, that if any registered British ship is not within a port of the United Kingdom at any time before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, she shall be marked as by this section required within one month after her next return to a British port of registry subsequent to that date.

Particulars to be entered in record of draught of water.

4. The record of the draught of water of any sea-going ship required under section five of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1871, shall, in addition to the particulars thereby required, specify the extent of her clear side in feet and inches.

The term "clear side" means the height from the water to the upper side of the plank of the deck from which the depth of hold as stated in the register is measured, and the measurement of the clear side is to be taken at the lowest part of the side.

Every master of a sea-going ship shall, upon the request of any person appointed to record the ship's draught of water, permit such person to enter the ship and to make such inspections and take such measurements as may be requisite for the purpose of such record; and any master who fails so to do, or impedes or suffers any one under his control to impede any person so appointed in the execution of his duty, shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

Rules as to names of foreign ships placed on British register.

5. Where a foreign ship, not having at any previous time been registered as a British ship, becomes a British ship, no person shall apply to register, and no registrar shall knowingly register such ship, except by the name which she bore as a foreign ship immediately before becoming a British ship, unless with the permission of the Board of Trade granted in manner directed by section six of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1871.

Any person who acts or suffers any person under his control to act in contravention of this section shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds.

Restrictions on re-registration of abandoned ships.

6. Where a ship has ceased to be registered as a British ship by reason of having been wrecked or abandoned, or for any reason other than capture by the enemy or transfer to a person not qualified to own a British ship, such ship shall not be re-registered until she has, at the expense of the applicant for registration, been surveyed by one of the surveyors appointed by the Board of Trade and certified by him to be seaworthy.

Masters and Seamen (Part III of Merchant Shipping Act, 1854).

Agreements with seamen.

7. Any agreement with a seaman made under section one hundred and forty-nine of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, may, instead of stating the nature and duration of the intended voyage or engagement as by that section required, state the maximum period of the voyage or engagement and the places or parts of the world (if any) to which the voyage or engagement is not to extend.

Agreements with fishermen.

8. The owner or master of any British vessel engaged in fishing off the coast of the United Kingdom may enter into an agreement with any person employed on such vessel that such person shall be remunerated wholly by a share in the profit of the fishing adventure.

Every such agreement shall be in writing or in print, or partly in writing and partly in print, and shall be signed by the contracting parties in the presence of a superintendent or deputy superintendent of a mercantile marine office.

The superintendent or deputy superintendent shall, before such agreement is signed, read and (if necessary) explain the same to the contracting parties, and shall attest the signature of the agreement, and certify that it has been read to and agreed to by the contracting parties.

Any such agreement, if made in the manner by this section required, shall be valid and binding on all the contracting parties, notwithstanding anything contained in section one hundred and eighty-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

Compensation to seamen for unnecessary detention on charge of desertion.

9. If a seaman or apprentice belonging to any ship is detained on a charge of desertion or any kindred offence, and if upon a survey of the ship being made under section seven of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1871, it is proved that she is not in a fit condition to proceed to sea, or that her accommodation is insufficient, the owner or master of the ship shall be liable to pay to such seaman or apprentice such compensation for his detention as the court having cognizance of the proceedings may award.

Power for Board of Trade to establish mercantile marine offices and to hold examinations at certain ports.

10. In any case where the business of a mercantile marine office is conducted otherwise than under a local marine board, the Board of Trade may, if they think fit, instead of conducting such business at a custom house or otherwise, establish a mercantile marine office, and for that purpose procure the requisite buildings and property, and from time to time appoint and remove all the requisite superintendents, deputies, clerks, and servants. They may also, in the like case, make all such provisions and exercise all such powers with respect to the holding of examinations for the purpose of granting certificates of competency as masters, mates, or engineers, to persons desirous of obtaining the same, as might have been made or exercised by a local marine board.

Power for Her Majesty, by Order in Council, to apply certain provisions of Merchant Shipping Acts to foreign ships.

11. Whenever it has been made to appear to Her Majesty that the government of any foreign state is desirous that any of the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873, relating to the engagement and discharge of seamen, shall apply to the ships of such state, Her Majesty may, by order in Council, declare that such of the said provisions as are in such order specified shall, subject to the limitations, if any, contained in the order, apply, and thereupon, so long as the order remains in force, such provisions shall apply, subject to the said limitations to the ships of such state, and to the owners, masters, officers, and crews of such ships, when not within the jurisdiction of such state, in the same manner in all respects as if such ships were British ships.

It shall be lawful for Her Majesty, from time to time by order in Council, to add to, alter, or repeal any order made under this Section.

Safety and Prevention of Accidents (Part IV of Merchant Shipping Act, 1854).

Survey of ships suspected of being unseaworthy.

12. Where the Board of Trade have received a complaint, or have reason to believe that any British ship is by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments, or machinery, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, they may, if they think fit, appoint some competent person or persons to survey such ship, and the equipments, machinery, and cargo thereof, and to report thereon to the Board.

Any person so appointed may, for the purposes of such survey, require the unloading or removal of any cargo, ballast, or tackle, and shall have all the powers of an inspector appointed under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

Any person who (having notice of the intention to hold such survey) wilfully does or causes to be done any act by which the person appointed to make such survey is prevented from or obstructed in ascertaining the condition of the ship, her equipments, machinery, and cargo, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

The Board of Trade may, if they think fit, order that any ship be detained for the purpose of being surveyed under this section, and thereupon any officer of customs may detain such ship until her release be ordered either by the Board of Trade or by any court to which an appeal is given under this Act.

Upon the receipt of the report of the person making any such survey, the Board may, if in their opinion the ship cannot proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, make such further order as they may think requisite as to the detention of the ship or as to her release, either absolutely or upon the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, as the Board may impose. They may also from time to time vary or add to such order.

A copy of any such order and of the report upon which it was founded, and also of any variation of or addition to such order, shall be delivered as soon as possible to the owner or master of the ship to which it relates.

When a ship has been detained under this section, she shall not be released by reason of her British register having been closed.

Costs of survey.

13. If upon the survey of a ship under this Act she is reported to have been at the time of the survey, having regard to the nature of the service for which she was then intended, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, the expenses incurred by the Board of Trade in respect of the survey shall be paid by the owner of the ship to the Board of Trade, and shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable by them in the same manner as salvage is recoverable.

If upon such survey the ship is not reported to have been unfit to proceed to sea, having regard to the nature of the service for which she was intended, the Board of Trade shall be liable to pay compensation to any person for any loss or damage which he may have sustained by reason of the detention of the ship for the purpose of survey, or otherwise in respect of such survey.

Where a complaint has been made to the Board of Trade that a ship is not fit to proceed to sea, they may, if they think fit, before ordering a survey of the ship, require the complainant to give or provide such security as they may think sufficient for the payment of the costs and expenses which they may incur in respect of the survey of the ship and of the compensation which they may be rendered liable to pay for loss or damage caused by her detention for the purpose of such survey, or otherwise in respect of such survey.

Where a ship has been surveyed under this Act in consequence of a complaint made to the Board of Trade, if upon such survey being made it appear that such complaint was made without reasonable cause, the expenses incurred by the Board in respect of the survey of the ship and the amount, if any, which the Board may have been rendered liable to pay in respect of any loss or damage caused by her detention, shall be recoverable by the Board from such complainant.

All moneys payable by the Board of Trade in respect or by reason of the survey or detention of a ship under this Act shall, subject to the right by this section provided of recovering such moneys from the complainant, be paid out of moneys to be provided by Parliament.

Appeal from decision of Board of Trade.

14. If the owner of any ship surveyed under this Act is dissatisfied with any order of the Board of Trade made upon such survey, he may apply to any of the following courts having jurisdiction in the place where such ship was surveyed; that is to say:—

In England, to any court having Admiralty jurisdiction:

In Ireland, to any court having jurisdiction under the Court of Admiralty (Ireland) Act, 1867:

In Scotland, to the court of the sheriff of the county.

The court may, upon such application, if they think fit, appoint one or more competent persons to survey the ship anew; and any surveyor so appointed shall have all the powers of the person by whom the original survey was made. Such survey anew shall, if so required by the Board of Trade or the ship-owner, be made in the presence of any person or persons appointed by them respectively to attend at the survey.

The court to which such application is made may make such order as to the detention or release of the ship, as to the payment of any costs and damages which may have been occasioned by her detention, as to the payment of the expenses of the original survey, and of the survey anew, and otherwise as to the payment of any costs of, and incident to, the application, as to the court may seem just.

Where an application is made under this section to a county court, or in Ireland to a local court, the matter of the application shall be deemed to be an Admiralty cause within the meaning of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868, and the Court of Admiralty (Ireland) Act, 1867.

Power for Board of Trade to vary requirements as to boats.

15. In the case of any ship surveyed under the fourth part of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, the Board of Trade may, at the request of the owner, authorize the reduction of the number and the variation of the dimensions of the boats required for the ship by section two hundred and ninety-two of that Act, and also the substitution of rafts or other appliances for saving life for any such boats, so nevertheless that the boats so reduced or varied and the rafts or other appliances so substituted be sufficient for the persons carried on board the ship.

Section two hundred and ninety-three of the said Act shall extend to any such rafts or appliances in the same manner as if they were boats.

Duties of masters in case of collision.

16. In every case of collision between two vessels it shall be the duty of the master or person in charge of each vessel, if and so far as he can do so without danger to his own vessel, crew, and passengers (if any), to stay by the other vessel until he has ascertained that she has no need of further assistance, and to render to the other vessel, her master, crew, and passengers (if any), such assistance as may be practicable and as may be necessary in order to save them from any danger caused by the collision; and also to give to the master or person in charge of the other vessel the name of his own vessel, and of her port of registry, or of the port or place to which she belongs, and also the names of the ports and places from which and to which she is bound.

If he fails so to do, and no reasonable cause for such failure is shown, the collision shall, in the absence of proof to the contrary, be deemed to have been caused by his wrongful act, neglect, or default.

Every master or person in charge of a British vessel who fails, without reasonable cause to render such assistance, or give such information as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and if he is a certificated officer, an inquiry into his conduct may be held and his certificate may be cancelled or suspended.

Liability for infringement of regulations in cases of collision.

17. If in any case of collision it is proved to the court before which the case is tried that any of the regulations for preventing collision contained in or made under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873, has been infringed, the ship by which such regulation has been infringed, shall be deemed to be in fault, unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that the circumstances of the case made departure from the regulation necessary.

Signals of distress.

18. The signals specified in the first schedule to this Act shall be deemed to be signals of distress.

Any master of a vessel who uses or displays, or causes or permits any person under his authority to use or display any of the said signals, except in the case of a vessel being in distress, shall be liable to pay compensation for any labour undertaken, risk incurred, or loss sustained, in consequence of such signal having been supposed to be a signal of distress, and such compensation may, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recovered, in the same manner in which salvage is recoverable.

Signals for pilots.

19. If a vessel requires the services of a pilot, the signals to be used and displayed shall be those specified in the second schedule to this Act.

Any master of a vessel who uses or displays, or causes or permits any person under his authority to use or display, any of the said signals for any other purpose than that of summoning a pilot, or uses or causes or permits any person under his authority to use any other signal for a pilot, shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds.

Power to alter rules as to signals.

20. Her Majesty may from time to time, by order in Council, repeal or alter the rules as to signals contained in the schedules to this Act, or make new rules in addition thereto, or in substitution therefor, and any alterations in or additions to such rules made in manner aforesaid shall be of the same force as the rules in the said schedules.

Private signals.

21. Any ship-owner who is desirous of using, for the purposes of a private code, any rockets, lights, or other similar signals, may register such signals with the Board of Trade, and the Board shall give public notice of the signals so registered in such manner as they may think requisite for preventing such signals from being mistaken for signals of distress or signals for pilots.

The Board may refuse to register any signals which in their opinion cannot easily be distinguished from signals of distress or signals for pilots.

When any signal has been so registered, the use or display thereof by any person acting under the authority of the ship-owner in whose name it is registered shall not subject any person to any of the penalties or liabilities by this Act imposed upon persons using or displaying signals improperly.

Notice to be given of apprehended loss of ship.

22. If the managing owner, or, in the event of there being no managing owner, the ship's husband of any British ship have reason, owing to the non-appearance of such ship, or to any other circumstance, to apprehend that such ship has been wholly lost, he shall, as soon as conveniently may be, send to the Board of Trade notice in writing of such loss and of the probable occasion thereof, stating the name of the ship and her official number (if any), and the port to which she belongs; and if he neglect to do so within a reasonable time, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

Restrictions on carriage of dangerous goods.

23. If any person sends or attempts to send by, or not being the master or owner of the vessel, carries or attempts to carry in any vessel, British or Foreign, any dangerous goods, (that is to say) aqua-fortis, vitriol, naphtha, benzine, gunpowder, lucifer-matches, nitro-glycerine, petroleum, or any other goods of a dangerous nature, without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the same, and giving written notice of the nature of such goods and of the name and address of the sender or carrier thereof to the master or owner of the vessel at or before the time of sending the same to be shipped, or taking the same on board the vessel, he shall for every such offence incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds; provided that if such person show that he was merely an agent in the shipment of any such goods as aforesaid, and was not aware and did not suspect and had no reason to suspect that the goods shipped by him were of a dangerous nature, the penalty which he incurs shall not exceed ten pounds.

Penalty for misdescription of dangerous goods.

24. If any person knowingly sends or attempts to send by, or carries or attempts to carry in any vessel, British or Foreign, any dangerous goods or goods of a dangerous nature, under a false description, or falsely describes the sender or carrier thereof, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding five hundred pounds.

Power to refuse to carry goods suspected of being dangerous.

25. The master or owner of any vessel, British or Foreign, may refuse to take on board any package or parcel which he suspects to contain goods of a dangerous nature, and may require it to be opened to ascertain the fact.

Power to throw overboard dangerous goods.

26. Where any dangerous goods, as defined in this Act, or any goods which, in the judgment of the master or owner of the vessel, are of a dangerous nature, have been sent or brought aboard any vessel, British or Foreign, without being marked as aforesaid, or without such notice having been given as aforesaid, the master or owner of the vessel may cause such goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained; and neither the master nor the owner of the vessel shall, in respect of such throwing overboard, be subject to any liability, civil or criminal in any court.

Forfeiture of dangerous goods improperly sent.

27. Where any dangerous goods have been sent or carried, or attempted to be sent or carried, on board any vessel, British or Foreign, without being marked as aforesaid, or without such notice having been given as aforesaid, and where any such goods have been sent or carried, or attempted to be sent or carried, under a false description, or the sender or carrier thereof has been falsely described, it shall be lawful for any court having Admiralty jurisdiction to declare such goods, and any package or receptacle in which they are contained to be, and they shall thereupon be forfeited, and when forfeited shall be disposed of as the court directs.

The court shall have and may exercise the aforesaid powers of forfeiture and disposal, notwithstanding that the owner of the goods have not committed any offence under the provisions of this Act relating to dangerous goods, and be not before the court, and have not notice of the proceedings, and notwithstanding that there be no evidence to show to whom the goods belong; nevertheless, the court may, in its discretion, require such notice as it may direct to be given to the owner or shipper of the goods before the same are forfeited.

Saving as to Dangerous Goods Acts.

28. The provisions of this Act relating to the carriage of dangerous goods shall be deemed to be in addition to, and not in substitution for, or in restraint of, any other enactment for the like object, so nevertheless that nothing in the said provisions shall be deemed to authorise that any person be sued or prosecuted twice in the same matter.

Miscellaneous and Repeal.

Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, declare certain foreign ports ports of registry.

29. Where, in accordance with the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts, Her Majesty exercises jurisdiction within any port out of Her Majesty's dominions, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by order in Council, to declare such port a port of registry (in this Act referred to as a foreign port of registry), and by the same or any subsequent order in Council to declare the description of persons who are to be the registrars of British ships at such foreign port of registry, and to make regulations with respect to the registry of British ships thereat.

Upon such order coming into operation it shall have effect as if it were enacted in the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873, and shall, subject to any exceptions and regulations contained in the order, apply in the same manner as near as may be, as if the port mentioned in the order were an ordinary port of registry.

Fees in respect of surveys, &c.

30. There shall be paid in respect of the several measurements, inspections, and surveys mentioned in the third schedule hereto, such fees not exceeding those specified in that behalf in the said schedule, as the Board of Trade may from time to time determine.

Board of Trade may sue in name of its officers.

31. In any legal proceedings under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1873, the Board of Trade may take proceedings in the name of any of their officers.

Certain sections not to come into force until 1st November 1873.

32. The following sections of this Act, that is to say, sections sixteen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five, twenty-six, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, shall not come into operation until the first day of November one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three.

Repeal of certain sections of the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1862 and 1871; and of certain other sections of Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854, 1862, and 1871.

33. Section twenty-nine of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862 and sections four and ten of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1871, are hereby repealed; and on and after the first day of November one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, sections three hundred and twenty-seven and three hundred and twenty-nine of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, sections thirty-three and thirty-eight of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, and section nine of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1871, shall be repealed; but this repeal shall not affect—

(1.) Anything duly done before this Act comes into operation;

(2.) Any right acquired or liability accrued before this Act comes into operation.

(3.) Any penalty, forfeiture, or other punishment incurred or to be incurred in respect of any offence committed before this Act comes into operation; or,

(4.) The institution of any legal proceeding or any other remedy for ascertaining, enforcing, or recovering any such liability, penalty, forfeiture, or punishment as aforesaid.

36 & 37 VICTORIA, CAP. 88.

An Act for consolidating with Amendments the Acts for carrying into effect Treaties for the more effectual Suppression of the Slave Trade, and for other purposes connected with the Slave Trade.

[5th August 1873.]

WHEREAS divers treaties for the more effectual suppression of the slave trade have been made by or on behalf of Her Majesty and Her Royal predecessors with foreign states, and the Acts mentioned in the second schedule to this Act have been passed for carrying into effect the said treaties or some of them:

And whereas it is expedient to consolidate the said Acts into one Act, and to make provision for carrying into effect the said treaties, and any treaty which may hereafter be made by or on behalf of Her Majesty with any foreign state for the more effectual suppression of the slave trade:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Slave Trade Act, 1873.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act—

The term "the Treasury" means the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury:

The term "the Admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral:

The term "vessel" means any vessel used in navigation:

The term "British possession" means any plantation, territory, settlement, or place situate within Her Majesty's dominions, and not forming part of the United Kingdom:

The term "governor" includes the officer for the time being administering the government of any colony; and where there is a local governor or lieutenant-governor under a governor general, means the local governor or lieutenant-governor:

The term "the Slave Trade Act, 1824," means the Act of the session of the fifth year of the reign of King George the Fourth, chapter one hundred and thirteen, intituled "An Act to amend and consolidate the laws relating to the abolition of the slave trade:"

The term "foreign state" includes any foreign nation, people, tribe, sovereign, prince, chief or headman:

The term "vessel of a foreign state" means a vessel which is justly entitled to claim the protection of the flag of a foreign state, or which would be so entitled if she did not lose such protection by being engaged in the slave trade:

The term "treaty" includes any convention, agreement, engagement, or arrangement:

The term "slave trade" when used in relation to any particular treaty does not include any thing declared by such treaty not to be comprised in the term or in such treaty:

The term "Vice-Admiralty Court" does not include any Vice-Admiralty Court which for the time being has under its commission a limited jurisdiction only in matters relating to the slave trade:

The term "British slave court" means the High Court of Admiralty of England, every Vice-Admiralty Court in Her Majesty's dominions out of the United Kingdom, and every East African Court for the time being within the meaning of the Slave Trade (East African Courts) Act, 1873:

The term "slave court" means every British slave court, every mixed commission or court established under any existing slave trade treaty, and the court of any foreign state having jurisdiction to try and condemn a vessel engaged in the slave trade:

The term "existing slave trade treaty" means a treaty made by or on behalf of Her Majesty or Her Royal predecessors with any foreign state for the more effectual suppression of the slave trade and in force at the passing of this Act.

Seizure of Slave Ships.

Visitation and seizure by cruisers, &c., of suspected slave ships.

3. Where a vessel is, on reasonable grounds, suspected of being engaged in or fitted out for the slave trade, it shall (subject, in the case either of the vessel of a foreign state, or of the commander or officer of a cruiser of a foreign state, to the limitations, restrictions, and regulations, if any, applicable thereto contained in any existing slave trade treaty made with such state) be lawful.—

(a.) If the vessel is a British vessel, or is engaged in the slave trade within British jurisdiction, or is not a vessel of a foreign state, for any commander or officer of any of Her Majesty's ships, for any officer bearing Her Majesty's commission in the army or navy, for any officer of Her Majesty's customs in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, or Isle of Man, for the governor of a British possession, or any person authorised by any such governor, and for any commander or officer of any cruiser of a foreign state authorised in pursuance of any existing slave trade treaty; and

(b.) If the vessel is the vessel of a foreign state, for any commander or officer of any of Her Majesty's ships, when duly authorised in that behalf, in pursuance of any treaty with that state, and for any commander or officer of any cruiser of that foreign state, to visit and seize and detain such vessel, and to seize and detain any person found detained or reasonably suspected of having been detained as a slave, for the purpose of the slave-trade, on board any such vessel, and to carry away such vessel and person, together with the master and all persons, goods, and effects on board any such vessel, for the purpose of bringing in such vessel, person, goods, and effects for adjudication.

All vessels, slaves, persons, goods, and effects which may be forfeited under the enactments with which this Act is to be construed as one, as hereinafter mentioned, may be visited, seized, and detained by any commander, officer, governor, or person authorised by this section to seize a British vessel.

Vessels equipped for traffic in slaves to be deemed engaged in the slave trade.

4. Where any of the particulars mentioned in the first schedule to this Act are found in the equipment or on board of any vessel visited, seized, or detained in pursuance of this Act, such vessel shall, unless the contrary be proved, be deemed to be fitted out for the purposes of and engaged in the slave trade, and in such case, even though the vessel is restored, no damages shall be awarded against the seizor under this Act in respect of such visitation, seizure, or detention, or otherwise upon such restoration.

Provided that this section shall not extend to the vessel of any foreign state except so far as may be consistent with the treaty made with such state.

Courts.

Jurisdiction of courts in regard to slave vessels, slaves, goods, and effects.

5. The High Court of Admiralty of England and every Vice-Admiralty Court in Her Majesty's dominions out of the United Kingdom shall have jurisdiction to try and condemn or restore any vessel, slave, goods, and effects, alleged to be seized, detained, or forfeited, in pursuance of this Act, and on restoring the same to award such damages in respect of the visitation, seizure, and detention of such vessel, goods and effects, and of any person on board such vessel, and in respect of any act or thing done in relation to such visitation, seizure, or detention, or in respect of any such matters, and in any case to make such order as to costs as, subject to the provisions of this Act and of any existing slave trade treaty, the court may think just.

Provided that nothing in this section shall give to any court any jurisdiction inconsistent with any existing slave trade treaty over a vessel which is shown to such court to be the vessel of any foreign state and which has not been engaged within British jurisdiction in the slave trade, but where any vessel of a foreign state is liable to be condemned by a British slave court, such court shall have the same jurisdiction as if she were a British vessel.

Each of the said courts shall have the same jurisdiction in regard to any person who has been seized, either at sea or on land, on the ground that he has or is suspected to have been detained as a slave, for the purpose of the slave trade, as the court would have under this section if he had been so detained on board a vessel that was seized and brought in for adjudication.

Proceedings upon seizure by a foreigner.

6. Where any vessel or slave seized by the commander or officer of the cruiser of any foreign state is brought in for adjudication in a British slave court, all proceedings for the condemnation of such vessel and slave, and the goods and effects on board such vessel shall be taken in the name of Her Majesty by some person duly authorized in that behalf.

Mixed Courts.

Appointment of judges, arbitrators, secretary, &c., to mixed courts and commissions.

7. Where any existing slave trade treaty contains provisions for the time being in force for the appointment of any mixed court or commission for deciding cases under such treaty, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty from time to time to appoint such commissioners, judges, arbitrators, secretary, registrar, and other officers as are mentioned in such provisions.

There shall be paid to every commissioner, judge, arbitrator, secretary, registrar, and other officer so appointed, such salary as the Treasury may from time to time direct.

In case of the death, or sickness, or absence either on leave or from any other lawful impediment, of any such commissioner, judge, arbitrator, secretary, registrar, or other officer, whether British or not, the vacancy shall be temporarily filled in manner provided by the treaty.

Regulations as to powers of mixed courts.

8. The regulations contained in any existing slave trade treaty for the time being in force, with respect to any mixed court or commission, shall have effect as if they were enacted in this Act, and such court or commission shall have all necessary jurisdiction for the purpose of carrying into effect any treaty referring to them, and in particular shall have jurisdiction to try, condemn, and restore British vessels seized in pursuance of such treaty on suspicion of being engaged in the slave trade, and shall for the purpose of their jurisdiction, have the same power as any Vice-Admiralty Court in Her Majesty's dominions has, and may accordingly take evidence, administer oaths, summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and require and enforce the production of documents in like manner as any such court.

Disposal of Vessels and Slaves.

Disposal of condemned vessels.

9. A vessel seized in pursuance of this Act, when condemned by a slave court, may be taken into Her Majesty's service upon payment of such sum as the Admiralty deem to be a proper price for the same (which sum is in this Act called the appraised value of such vessel), or if not so taken, shall be broken up, and the materials thereof shall be publicly sold in separate parts.

Provided that nothing herein shall prejudice the right of the government of any foreign state, under any treaty, to require such vessel to be broken up, or to take such vessel into its service upon payment of a sum fixed in accordance with such treaty, and any sum paid by the government of a foreign state for a vessel taken into its service after condemnation by a slave court shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the appraised value of the vessel.

Disposal of slaves.

10. Where any slaves are seized in pursuance of this Act, they shall, for the purpose only of seizure, prosecution, and condemnation, be deemed to be property, and shall be condemned as forfeited to the sole use of Her Majesty for the purpose only of divesting all other right or interest therein, and shall not be treated as slaves, but shall be provided for, pending the proceedings for their condemnation, in such manner, and shall on condemnation be disposed of in such manner, or delivered over to such persons, as the court having cognizance of the case may adjudge, subject to the regulations (if any) which are from time to time made by the Treasury; and the Treasury may, from time to time, make, alter, and revoke regulations for this purpose so that they be consistent with any provisions in this behalf contained in any existing slave trade treaty.

Bounties.

Bounty and other payments to seizors when British cruisers.

11. Where a vessel (whether British or not) or slave, goods or effects, seized in pursuance of this Act by any commander or officer of any of Her Majesty's ships have been condemned by a slave court, there shall be paid to the commander, officers, and crew of such ship the following sums:—

(1.) A slave bounty of five pounds for every slave so condemned who is delivered over, or, if the commander of the ship so elect, a tonnage bounty of four pounds for every ton of the tonnage of the vessel condemned.

(2.) That part to which Her Majesty is entitled of the appraised value of the vessel condemned, or, if such vessel was broken up and the materials thereof publicly sold in separate parts, of the net proceeds of such sale after deducting the charges of prosecution.

(3.) Where the condemned vessel

(a.) was brought into port and was broken up in pursuance of the order of the slave court, and the materials thereof publicly sold in separate parts; or

(b.) was abandoned or destroyed prior to condemnation, and the slave court by the decree of condemnation declared that, after full consideration by the court of the circumstances of the case, the seizors had satisfied the court that such abandonment or destruction was inevitable, or otherwise under the circumstances proper and justifiable, a further tonnage bounty at the rate of thirty shillings for every ton of the tonnage of the vessel; and (4.) The net proceeds to which Her Majesty is entitled (after deducting the charges of prosecution) of any such goods and effects which the slave court ordered to be sold.

Where any slave so condemned is not delivered over in consequence of death, sickness, or other inevitable circumstances, the Treasury may, if they think fit, pay to the seizors of such slave one moiety of the slave bounty which would have been due in respect of such slave if he had been delivered over.

Bounty and other payments where vessel, slave, or goods not seized by cruisers.

12. Where any vessel, slave, goods, or effects seized in pursuance of this Act otherwise than by the commander or officer of one of Her Majesty's ships, or of the cruiser of a foreign state, have been condemned by a slave court, there shall be paid the following sums:—

(1.) Two-thirds of the appraised value of the vessel or (if the vessel was broken up and the materials thereof publicly sold in separate parts) of the net proceeds of such sale, and two-thirds of the net proceeds of such goods and effects (after deducting from such appraised value or net proceeds the charges of prosecution) for the use of Her Majesty, to such persons as the Treasury may from time to time appoint, to be carried to the Consolidated Fund.

(2.) The remaining third part of the said appraised value or net proceeds of the vessel and of the net proceeds of such goods and effects to the person who lawfully seized and prosecuted the ship, goods, and effects respectively to condemnation.

(3.) For every slave so condemned who is delivered over, a slave bounty of five pounds to the person who prosecuted the same to condemnation.

Where any slave so condemned is not delivered over in consequence of death, sickness, or other inevitable circumstances, the Treasury may, if they think fit, pay in respect of such slave one moiety of the slave bounty which would have been due in respect of such slave if he had been delivered over.

Payment of proceeds of vessels, &c., when seized by a foreign cruiser.

13. Where any vessel, goods, or effects have been seized in pursuance of this Act by the commander or officer of a cruiser of any foreign state and been condemned by a British slave court, such portion of the appraised value of the vessel, or (if the vessel was broken up and the materials thereof publicly sold in separate parts) of the net proceeds of such sale, and of the net proceeds of the goods and effects, as is, under any treaty with such state, payable to the seizors, shall be paid to such person as the Treasury may direct, to be disposed of in accordance with such treaty.

Regulations as to payment of bounty.

14. In order to obtain payment of the bounty, there shall be produced to the Treasury the following evidence, or such other evidence as the Treasury may deem sufficient; namely:—

(a.) A copy, duly certified, of the decree of condemnation of the vessel or slave:

(b.) If any tonnage bounty is claimed, a certificate from some person authorised for the time being to act as a registrar of British ships of the dimensions and tonnage of the vessel.

(c.) If a slave bounty is claimed, a certificate from the person appointed to receive the slaves of the number ofslaves condemned and delivered over.

For the purpose of bounty the tonnage of a vessel shall be calculated and ascertained in the like manner in which, for the time being, the tonnage of a vessel is calculated and ascertained for the purpose of registering the same as a British vessel, or if the same cannot be satisfactorily ascertained in that manner, shall be ascertained in such manner as the Treasury may consider satisfactory.

Payment by Treasury of costs, damages, and expenses.

15. Where any visitation, seizure, detention or prosecution purports to have been made or instituted in pursuance of this Act, the Treasury when required under any treaty shall, and in any other case may, if they think fit, pay the whole or any part of any costs, expenses, compensation, and damages which may have been awarded against the person making or instituting such visitation, seizure, detention, or prosecution, or any costs and expenses which may have been incurred in respect of the same, or on account of any person on board any vessel so visited, seized or detained; but nothing in this section shall exempt the commander or officer of the ship or other person by whom the visitation, seizure, detention, or prosecution was made or instituted from his liability to make good any sum so paid when required by the Treasury so to do and when any such commander or officer, or other person serving under the Admiralty, or any person serving under any other department of the Government, is so required to make good any sum, that sum shall if the Treasury so direct be deducted by the Admiralty or other department of the government, under whom such person is serving, from any payment to which such commander, officer, or person is entitled on account of salary, pay, prize, or bounty.

Payment and distribution of bounties and other sums.

16. The bounties and all other sums payable by the Treasury in pursuance of this Act shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament for the purpose.

The provisions of "The Naval Agency and Distribution Act, 1864", shall apply to all money payable to the commanders, officers, and crews of Her Majesty's ships in pursuance of this Act.

27 & 28 Vict., c. 24.

Miscellaneous.

Protection of persons authorised to seize.

17. All person authorised to make seizures under this Act shall, in making and prosecuting any such seizure, have the benefit of all the protection granted to persons authorised to make seizures under any Act for the time being in force relating to Her Majesty's customs in the United Kingdom, in like manner as if the enactments granting such protection were herein enacted, and in terms made applicable thereto.

Pendency of suit or decree a bar to proceeding for recovery of vessel, damages, &c.

18. In either of the following cases, namely :—

(a.) Where any proceeding has been instituted in any slave court for the condemnation or restitution of any vessel, slave, goods, or effects purporting to have been seized in pursuance of this Act and is still pending; or

(b.) Where any vessel, slave, goods, or effects purporting to have been seized in pursuance of this Act, have been condemned or restored, or any other final judgment have been pronounced thereon by any slave court, the pendency of such proceeding, or the condemnation or restitution, or other final judgment thereon, as the case may be, shall be a complete bar to every legal proceeding whatever for the recovery of such vessel, slave, goods, or effects, or of damages for any costs, expenses, loss, or injury sustained by any person by or in consequence of the visitation, seizure or detention of such vessel, slave, goods, or effects, or of any person on board such vessel, or by or in consequence of any act or thing done in relation to such visitation, seizure, or detention, or in pursuance of this Act or any existing slave trade treaty, and may be pleaded in bar, or given in evidence under the general issue.

Power of High Court of Admiralty of England as to bounties, reviewing and enforcing decrees, &c.

19. The High Court of Admiralty of England shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine any question arising with respect to the right of any person to any payment in pursuance of this Act in respect of any condemned vessel, slave, goods, or effects, and any question of joint capture or seizure which may arise in respect of any vessel, slave, goods, or effects seized in pursuance of this Act, and also as well to review as to enforce any decree, declaration, or order of any British slave court made in pursuance of this Act.

Review of taxation by Registrar of Court of Admiralty.

20. The registrar of the High Court of Admiralty of England may, on the application of any person aggrieved, or of the Treasury, tax or review the taxation of any costs, charges, or expenses incurred or alleged to be incurred in any proceeding taken in any British slave court, or in any mixed commission or court in Her Majesty's dominions, and shall for this purpose have the same jurisdiction and powers as he has in the taxation of any costs, charges, or expenses incurred in any proceeding in the High Court of Admiralty.

Appeal by Treasury.

21. The Treasury may appeal from any decree, order, or declaration which is made by any British slave court in pursuance of this Act, and involves the payment by the Treasury of any bounty, costs, expenses, compensation, damages, or other moneys in like manner as if they were parties to the proceeding in which such decree, order or declaration was made.

Prosecution for false evidence.

22. Any person who wilfully gives false evidence in any proceeding taken in pursuance of the Act in any slave court shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be liable to the like penalty as if he had been guilty of perjury, or in British possession, of the offence by whatever name called, which if committed in England would be perjury.

Returns by registrars.

23. The registrar of every British slave court and if appointed by her Majesty, of every other slave court, shall from time to time make returns of the cases adjudged in such court in pursuance of this Act, at such times and in such form and containing such particulars as may be from time to time directed by any rule established with respect to such court under the Vice-Admiralty Courts Act, 1863, or if there is no such rule by Order in Council.

Slave Trade Act, 1824.

Incorporation with unrepealed portions of 5 G. 4, c. 113.

24. This Act shall be construed as one with the enactments of the Slave Trade Act, 1824, and any enactments amending the same, so far as they are in force at the time of the passing of this Act, and are not required by this Act, and the expression "this Act," when used in this Act, shall include those enactments.

Recovery of forfeitures under 5 Geo. 4, c. 113.

25. All pecuniary forfeitures and penalties imposed by the said enactments, with which this Act is to be construed as one, may be sued for, prosecuted, and recovered in any Court of Record or of Vice-Admiralty in any port of Her Majesty's dominions wherein the offence was committed, or where the offender may be, in like manner as any penalty or forfeiture incurred in the United Kingdom under any Act for the time being in force relating to Her Majesty's Customs, or (in the case of the High Court of Admiralty or of a Court of Vice-Admiralty) in like manner as any vessel seized in pursuance of this Act.

Such pecuniary penalties and forfeitures shall, subject to the express provisions of the said enactments, be paid and applied in like manner as the net proceeds of a vessel seized otherwise than by the commander or officer of one of Her Majesty's ships, or of the cruiser of a foreign state.

Jurisdiction of court over offences under 5 G. 4, c. 113.

26. Any offence against this Act or the said enactments with which this Act is to be construed as one, or otherwise in connexion with the slave trade, shall for all purposes of and incidental to the trial and punishment of a person guilty of such offence, and all proceedings and matters preliminary and incidental to and consequential on such trial and punishment, and for all purposes of and incidental to the jurisdiction of any court constable, and officer with reference to such offence, be deemed to have been committed either in the place in which the offence was committed, or in the county of Middlesex, or in any place in which the person guilty of the offence may for the time being be, either in Her Majesty's dominions or in any foreign port or place in which Her Majesty has jurisdiction; and the offence may be described in any indictment or other document relating thereto as having been committed at the place where it was wholly or partly committed, or as having been committed on the high seas or out of Her Majesty's dominions, and the venue or local description in the margin may be that of the place in which the trial is held.

Where any such offence is commenced at one place and completed at another, the place at which such offence is to be deemed to have been committed shall be either the place where the offence was commenced or the place where the offence was completed.

Where a person being in one place is accessory to or aids or abets in any such offence committed in another place, the place at which such offence is to be deemed to have been committed shall be either the place in which the offence was actually committed or the place where the offender was at the time of his being so accessory, aiding, or abetting.

17 & 18 Vict., c. 101.

Where it appears to any court or the judge of any court having jurisdiction to try any such offence that the removal of an offender charged with such offence to some other place in Her Majesty's dominions for trial would be conducive to the interests of justice, such court or judge may by warrant, or instrument in the nature of a war rant, direct such removal, and such offender may be removed and tried accordingly; and section two hundred and sixty-eight of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, shall apply to the removal of an offender under this section in the same manner as if the term "consular officer" in that section included the court or judge making such warrant or instrument.

Extension of 33 & 34 Vict., c. 52, to Slave Trade offences.

27. Offences committed against this Act or the enactments with which this Act is to be construed as one or otherwise in connexion with the slave trade, whether committed on the high seas or on land, or partly on the high seas or partly on land, shall be deemed to be inserted in the first schedule to the Extradition Act, 1870, and that Act, and any Act amending the same, shall be construed accordingly.

Application of Act.

Application of Act to cases already adjudicated.

28. This Act shall apply to all cases of vessels, slaves, goods, and effects seized and adjudicated upon by any slave court, whether before or after the passing of this Act.

Extension of Act to future treaties.

29. Where any treaty in relation to the slave trade is made after the passing of this Act, by or on behalf of Her Majesty, with any foreign state, Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that as from such date not being earlier than the date of the treaty, as may be specified in the order, such treaty shall be deemed, and thereupon (as from the said date, or if no date is specified as from the date of such order) such treaty shall be deemed to be an existing slave trade treaty within the meaning of this Act, and all the provisions of this Act shall apply and be construed accordingly.

Her Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent order referring to the same treaty, render the application of this Act subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient:

Every such order shall recite or embody the terms of the treaty so far as they relate to the slave trade, and shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within six weeks after it is made, or, if Parliament be not then sitting, within six weeks after the then next meeting of Parliament, and shall also be published in the London Gazette.

A treaty, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, which ceases to be in force, shall cease to be an existing slave trade treaty within the meaning of this Act.

Repeal.

Repeal of Acts in schedule.

30. The Acts specified in the second schedule to this Act are hereby repealed.

Provided that—

(1.) All bounties and other sums purporting to have been paid in pursuance of any enactment hereby repealed before the passing of this Act, shall be deemed to have been duly paid.

(2.) This repeal shall not affect—

(a.) Anything duly done or suffered under any enactment hereby repealed; or

(b.) Any right, privilege, obligation, liability, or forfeiture acquired, accrued, or incurred under any enactment hereby repealed; or

(c.) Any investigation, legal proceeding, or remedy in respect of any such right, privilege, obligation, liability, or forfeiture as aforesaid, or any legal proceeding taken or commenced under any enactment hereby repealed; and any such investigation, legal proceeding, and remedy may be carried on, and all acts consequential thereon done, as if it had been commenced under this Act.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Equipments which are primâ facie evidence of a vessel being engaged in the slave trade.

First.—Hatches with open gratings, instead of the close hatches which are usual in merchant vessels.

Secondly.—Divisions or bulkheads in the hold or on deck more numerous than are necessary for vessels engaged in lawful trade.

Thirdly.—Spare plank fitted for being laid down as a second or slave deck.

Fourthly.—Shackles, bolts, or handcuffs.

Fifthly.—A larger quantity of water in casks or in tanks than is requisite for the consumption of the crew of the vessel as a merchant vessel.

Sixthly.—An extraordinary number of water casks or of other vessels for holding liquid, unless the master shall produce a certificate from the custom house at the place from which he cleared outwards, stating that a sufficient security had been given by the owners of such vessel that such extra quantity of casks or of other vessels should only be used for the reception of palm-oil, or for other purposes of lawful commerce.

Seventhly.—A greater quantity of mess tubs or kids than are requisite for the use of the crew of the vessel as a merchant vessel.

Eighthly.—A boiler or other cooking apparatus of an unusual size, and larger or fitted for being or capable of being made larger than requisite for the use of the crew of the vessel as a merchant vessel, or more than one boiler or other cooking apparatus of the ordinary size.

Ninthly.—An extraordinary quantity either of rice or of the flour of Brazil, manioc, or cassada, commonly called farinha, of maize, or of Indian-corn, or of any other article of food whatever, beyond what might probably be requisite for the use of the crew, such rice, flour, maize, Indian-corn, or other article of food not being entered on the manifest as part of the cargo for trade.

Tenthly.—A quantity of mats or matting larger than is necessary for the use of the crew of the vessel as a merchant vessel.

Eleventhly.—Any other equipment, article, or thing which is declared by any existing slave trade treaty to be primâ facie evidence of a vessel being engaged in the slave trade.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS.

Fort William, the 4th December 1873.

No. 3441.—The following Report and Resolution are published for general information:—

Dated 17th October 1873.

From—E. F. HARRISON, Esq., Comptroller General,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department.

I have the honor to report on the transactions of the Money Order Department in India during the financial year 1872-73.

2. Appended are the usual ten statements, with an additional one of orders outstanding on the 31st March last.

No. I.—Statement of Orders issued and paid at each office in India, and commission realized during the year 1872-73.
" II.—Statement of issues, payments and commission according to Presidencies and Circles.
" III.—Statement showing issues and payments of one Presidency and Circle on account of other Presidencies and Circles.
" IV.—Cost of management.
" V.—Statement showing revenue for 1872-73.
" VI.—Statement showing excess of payments and drawings to and from Treasuries on account of each Office.
" VII.—Transactions, management and revenue from 1862 to 1873.
" VIII.—Statement of profits and losses.
" IX.—Statement showing the proportionate strength and cost of establishment, &c.
" X.—Statement of lapsed orders.
" XI.—Statement of Orders outstanding on the 31st March 1873, vide para. 38.

3. Thirteen new Offices were opened during the year—

One in the L. P. of Bengal	Nawada Sub-division of Gya District.
One in the N. W. Provinces	Chuckrata Sub-division of Dehra Doon.
Seven in the Bombay Presidency	Nandgaum, Pundhurpore, Yeola. } Nassick District. Broach. Mhow. Bhuj. Khair, Poona Collectorate.
Three in the Madras Presidency	Villapuram, South Arcot District. Conjeveram, Chingleput District. Devipatam, Madura District.
One in the Mysore Circle	Chickka Ballapura, Kolar District.

4. The number of Offices in which there have been transactions during the year is—

In Lower Provinces of Bengal	101
" North-Western Provinces	39
" Oudh	12
" Punjab	36
" Central Provinces	19
" British Burmah	13
" Political Treasuries, Government of India	7
" Bombay	43
" Madras	75
" Berar	11
" Mysore	10
TOTAL ...	366

5. The number of Offices closed during the year was—

L. P., Bengal	43	Bombay	7
N. W. Provinces	1	Madras	10
Punjab	3	Mysore	2
		TOTAL ...	66

This large reduction is mainly owing to the abolition in February of agencies at many places where there are no Revenue Treasuries.

6. The number of Offices open at the close of the year was—

In Lower Provinces of Bengal	58
" North-Western Provinces	38
" Oudh	12
" Punjab	33
" Central Provinces	19
" British Burmah	13
" Political Treasuries, Government of India	7
" Bombay	36
" Madras	65
" Berar	11
TOTAL ...	300

7. Offices open, but in which there were no transactions during the year, have been omitted, and those which were only closed temporarily for the winter or rainy season have been included. The Offices of the first description, eleven in number, are—

Sasseeram, Lower Provinces, Bengal		1
Mussoorie, North-Western Provinces		1
Sukkur, Bombay		1
Alleppy	Madras	8
Collegal (closed, circular No. 168, dated 2nd April 1873)
Ellore
Jamalmadoogoo
Nagarcoil Porto Novo
Trichoor
Vaniembody
	TOTAL	11

those of the second are the following :—

Nynee Tal, North-Western Provinces		1
Murree	Punjab	2
Dalhousie
Mahableshwar, Bombay		1
Ootacamund	Madras	2
Kundapoor
	TOTAL	6

8. The transactions of the year may be summarized as follows :—

	In 1871-72.	In 1872-73.
Offices open	*355	366
Number of orders issued	2,51,213	2,69,435
Amount of orders issued	1,25,14,115	1,29,21,632
Number of orders paid	2,50,741	2,68,268
Amount of orders paid	1,25,57,487	1,29,37,545
Commission	1,41,287	1,46,547
Lapsed orders	7,813	8,784
Charges	82,954	87,719
Profit	66,180	67,612

* Including Sasseeram, in which there were no transactions.

9. The result of the year's operation is, on the whole, satisfactory.

10. The following detailed statement shows in each province an increase in the number of Orders issued, and it is satisfactory to find, that with the exception of Bombay and Berar, this increase in number is concurrent with a decrease in the aggregate amount of the orders.

11. In Bombay the result is also favourable, the moderate increase in the total amount of Orders issued being accompanied by a marked increase in the number.

It is in Berar alone that the Department appears to have been availed of for purposes foreign to its avowed object, the safe remittance, namely, of small sums of money.

13. The reasons for the increase in Bengal Presidency under heads—

1*st*, Establishment,	3*rd*, Printing, and
2*nd*, Service Postage,	4*th*, Stationery, are—

1*st*.—Annual increments of salaries.

2*nd*.—Purchase of postage stamps under the new Postal Rules for twelve months against three months last year.

3*rd*.—Breaking up of type. The appendices to the 5th annual report of this Department were put up in type, but the printing of them was subsequently cancelled. The same was the case with the manual for the guidance of Money Order Agents under revision at the time of the introduction of the new system.

4*th*.—The use of larger forms since the new system came into operation for the weekly lists of issues and payments and the supply to Bombay of their forms for the first time.

14. Under the head Miscellaneous Contingencies there is also an increase attributable to the removal of this Office from the Treasury buildings, the making of a new counter, &c., and cost of new furniture.

15. The increases in Bombay are attributable to an addition of two permanent and one temporary clerks, postal charges paid in cash, and the introduction of overland money orders.

16. Those in Madras are owing to the same causes.

17. In the Berar the commission paid to agents is more in this than in the previous year, owing to the transactions being larger; the other increased charges are apparently owing to the causes mentioned above and to the transfer of half share of net profits to Mysore from 1867-68 to 1871-72.

18. The charges in the Mysore Circle are somewhat more in 1872-73 than in 1871-72 for the following reasons: Increase of head clerk's pay from Rs. 50 to 60, the entertainment of two clerks on Rs. 25 and 10 respectively, and purchase of furniture for the Bangalore and Chituldr[illegible] Treasuries.

TOTAL	Rs.	8,783

32. The total receipts of the Money Order Department throughout India during the year amounted to ... ... Rs. 1,55,331

Deduct charges ... ... „ 87,719

Profit Rs. 67,612

These figures compared with those of 1871-72 show an increase both in receipts and charges of Rs. 6,197 and Rs. 4,765 respectively.

33. There has been one item of loss written off during the year under the orders of Government, viz., the unadjusted irrecoverable balance against the Chief Office, Calcutta, of Rs. 1,560, which properly appertains to 1870-71, the year in which the fraud took place.

34. Only one case of embezzlement has occurred during the year, viz., at Nagpore, which was reported to Government in this Office No. 58, dated 7th March 1873. As far as is at present known, the amount embezzled is Rs. 6,498-4. A balance sheet, with statements of the double and false entries, was duly forwarded to the Deputy Commissioner, Nagpore, with this Office No. 1281, dated 28th June last, and copies were also sent to the Deputy Accountant General for comparison with the late Agent's Journal and for a full report of the result of his examination. This report has not yet been received. The final examination of the late Agent's accounts, i. e., of the issue side of the accounts with the paid vouchers, has not been finally closed. Nor is the Rangoon defalcation referred to in the 37th paragraph of last year's report yet finally disposed of, although the balance has been reduced to Rs. 376-10. A balance sheet and statements showing the result of the examination of the Agent's accounts in this Office were forwarded to the Assistant Commissioner, and copies of them to the Deputy Commissioner, for information with this Office Nos. 2578 and 2580, dated, respectively, 25th January last; as in the Nagpore case, the examination of the issue sides of the accounts with the paid orders has not been finally closed.

35. The sanction of Government will now be solicited to write off the irrecoverable balance of Rs 4,791-11 standing against the Sylhet Agency, as the Collector reports "that no further realizations were made up to date, 22nd March, 1873, to meet the "defalcation of the late Agent, and it is not likely that any thing more will be realized." This case was reported to Government in my No. 281 of the 18th May 1870.

36. On the 1st February 1873, the change of system advocated by Mr. Sandeman, by which the business of the Department is carried on by the District Treasury Establishments under the supervision of the Treasury Officers as Agents, came into operation. The results of the change will be reported on at the close of the current year.

37. The remarks of District Officers on this change are mostly confined to complaints of the extra work thrown on their establishment without any corresponding remuneration. During the current year 14 extra clerks have been allowed by Government to the treasuries noted in the margin. The Money Order work entailed on the establishment having been shown in each case to be considerable.

38. With reference to Appendix No. XI, it will be observed that this statement of orders outstanding on the 31st March last does not, as it should, confirm the book balance of the Department; the further examination of this question, and the consideration of the course of business in the Money Order Office, shall have my earliest attention. The check upon the transactions of the Agents not being so immediate or consequently so effective as it might be.

39. The Overland Money Order system came into operation on the 1st October 1872. The following statement, based on the returns received in my Office, will give some idea of the transactions under this head from that date up to the 31st March 1873 :—

RESOLUTION.—At the close of the year 1871-72 there were 354 active offices open. At the close of the year 1872-73 there were only 300 such offices. The decrease is due to a number of offices having been closed at which the transactions were insignificant in amount.

The number of orders issued (269,435) exceeded the number issued in 1871-72 (251,213) by 18,222 (7·25 per cent). The amount of orders issued (Rs. 1,29,31,632) exceeded the amount (Rs. 1,25,14,115) issued in 1871-72 by Rs. 4,07,515 (3·25 per cent).

The number of orders paid (268,268) exceeded the number paid in 1871-72 (250,741) by 17,527 (7· per cent).

The amount of orders paid (Rs. 1,29,37,545) exceeded the amount paid in 1871-72 (Rs. 1,25,57,487) by Rs. 3,80,058 (3· per cent).

The revenue of the Department was Rs. 1,55,331, being in excess of the revenue of the previous year (Rs. 1,49,100) by Rs. 6,231 (4·18 per cent). The charges were Rs. 87,719, being more than the charges in 1871-72 (Rs. 82,954) by Rs. 4,765 (5·74 per cent.), and the net profit was Rs. 67,612, being more than the net profit in 1871-72 (Rs. 66,180) by Rs. 1,432 (2·16 per cent).

These facts are generally satisfactory. They show a smaller average amount for each order and an increased activity in the Department.

The larger proportionate increase of charges is explained to be due to sundry exceptional causes.

The amount paid again exceeded the amount received by a small sum (Rs. 15,913). But the total amount received from the beginning (Rs. 7,50,63,093) exceeds the total amount paid (Rs. 7,46,05,101) by a considerable sum (Rs. 4,57,992). This amount does not correspond, as it should do, with the grand total of orders shown as outstanding in Appendix XI (Rs. 4,22,220), and the President in Council trusts that every endeavor will be made to clear up the discrepancy. It is so far satisfactory that it is on the right side.

The average amount of an order in the Berars (Rs. 76) is very much larger than the general average of Rs. 48. Moreover, the average in the Berars has increased year by year since 1870-71. Some enquiry should be made into the causes of this.

The charges debited to the Department are clearly not exhaustive. They do not include rent of Government buildings, interest on capital employed, superintendence, cost of moving funds, or leave allowances and pensions.

In future returns twenty-five per cent. upon the cost of superior establishments and twelve per cent. upon that of inferior establishments should be added to cover the last item, and this adjustment should, next year, be made retrospectively in the 9th column of the table in para. 25 if it can be done without very much trouble.

It is not worth while to attempt to put the other items into figures, but if they are borne in mind, it will appear very doubtful whether it would be worth while to keep up the Department for the net revenue that it yields. The surplus in 10½ years without reckoning any of the omitted items is only Rs. 3,93,400, which is but a small set-off against the not inconsiderable risks involved in the operations of the Department. The annual profit is, however, constantly, though slowly, increasing.

The table in para. 25 shows in abstract the whole history of the Department in a small space; it exhibits a fairly steady rate of progress, which has only been checked owing to the increasing use of Currency Notes for remittances.

The Government of India regrets to observe that embezzlements still occur in the Department, and is prepared to authorise any additional expense which, by improving the efficiency of the Central Office, may tend to prevent such occurrences.

The amount of overland money orders issued in 1872-73 (six months) was Rs. 3,04,676; the amount paid was Rs. 11,868. It should be generally understood that the object of the Government in arranging for such orders, as for the inland money orders, is not to compete with bankers and agents for the profit upon exchange operations, but only to afford facilities for the safe remittance of small sums. Accordingly, the rate will be found, as a rule, slightly more expensive than bankers' rates.

The 5th December 1873.

No. 3461.—The following Resolution is published for general information :—

RESOLUTION.—On the 31st May 1861, the Government of India by an order in this Department, No. 6890*, directed that every Accountant General and Deputy Accountant General in independent charge should inspect every District Treasury within his circle of superintendence once at least in every three years.

The duty thus imposed upon Accountants General has been found incompatible with the demands upon their personal attention made by the duties of their own offices.

The Hon'ble the President in Council further observes that the duty of making efficient arrangements for the custody of the public money held at district treasuries, for providing due accommodation to the public, for regulating the action of district officers under the Indian Coinage Act, 1270, and the Notifications of the Government of India affecting Coinage and Currency for securing the efficiency of the Account Branch of each district treasury, including the strictest compliance with the demands made under the authority of the Government of India by Accountants General for punctual submission on fixed dates of all periodical returns, for due maintenance in prescribed form, of registers of deposits and for observance of checks on repayment of deposits, for inspection of accounts kept with officers of the department of public works and others authorised to draw on district treasuries, and generally as to those matters that ordinarily engage the attention of Accountants General in the course of their periodical inspections, rests primarily with the Superintending Officers of the local Governments.

It is believed that in all these respects Commissioners of Divisions and other Superintending Officers can effectively provide for all those objects that the Government of India has in view in the inspections of the Accountants General.

The President in Council accordingly desires that the Local Governments will arrange for the periodical inspection of all Revenue Treasuries by Commissioners of Divisions or other Superintending Officers, and that their observations on all matters connected with the accounts, and Treasury branches of Revenue Treasuries may be communicated to the Accountant General of the province, together with any orders which on the occasion of such inspections they may give to the officers in charge of the Treasuries.

The Accountants General will forward these reports with their remarks to the Comptroller General, who will report to the Government of India in this Department the inspections made, with any remarks or suggestions which the circumstances may call for.

The periodical inspections by Accountants General will be discontinued, but such officers may, with the approval of the Local Government, either personally or by their Deputy, make a general inspection of particular Treasuries, or may, with the like approval, should circumstances make it desirable, depute a qualified officer of their Establishment to examine and report on special matters requiring local and detailed investigation, either singly or in subordination to an officer of the local administration.

Admission of Stock other than for competition.—By special permission of the Managing Committee, persons desirous of exhibiting horse stock (not intended to compete for prizes) will be permitted to do so on a payment of Rs. 16 per head, provided stabling can be found for them.

4. Intending Exhibitors must apply for stalls by post in an envelope addressed—

"TO THE JOINT SECRETARIES, Calcutta Horse Show, 1874,"

so as to be received by them not later than the 15th December 1873. On receipt of such applications printed forms will be furnished to the Owners or Exhibitors, to be filled in by them and returned at once to the Joint Secretaries, who will then allot stalls or boxes for the horses described.

5. Superintendent.—A Superintendent and four European Assistants will be appointed by the Managing Committee to undertake the stable management of the Show-yard. It will be his duty to point out the stalls allotted to the Exhibitors, and to see that all orders issued by the Committee are thoroughly and promptly carried out.

6. Date of receipt of Horses.—Horses sent for exhibition will be received by a Veterinary Surgeon and the Superintendent of the Horse Show on Wednesday, the 7th of January 1874, any time before noon of that day.

7. Health Certificate.—A health certificate, signed by a Veterinary Surgeon, must accompany every horse when first brought to the Horse Show lines. The Veterinary Surgeon attending on the part of Government will also inspect each horse before being finally admitted.

8. Grooms.—Exhibitors are required to engage a reliable groom (syce) for each horse, and it is expected that either the attendant or a substitute will remain night and day at his post.

9. Attention to Regulations.—All attendants must conform to the rules and regulations issued by the Managing Committee; copies will be furnished to the Exhibitors, and will also be posted on the walls of the stables.

10. Complaints.—Complaints may be lodged at any time at the office of the Superintendent, either verbally or in writing, in a book to be kept for the purpose.

11. Complaint Book.—Persons able to read and write will have to enter their complaints in the book; minor complaints will be settled by the Superintendent on the spot; those of a more serious nature will be treated by the Managing Committee.

12. Illness of Horses.—In case of illness of any horse the Owner or Exhibitor must provide medical attendance.

13. All the horses will be daily inspected by a Veterinary Surgeon.

14. All possible care will be taken of horses exhibited, but the Superintendent cannot be held responsible for any injury or accident which may occur.

15. Forage and Grain.—Forage, grain, and water for the stock will be provided by the Exhibitors.

16. Smoking prohibited.—Smoking is strictly prohibited in the stables; particular attention is requested to this rule, which is considered imperatively necessary for the safety of the cattle.

17. Stabling.—A loose stall or box will be provided for each animal so exhibited.

18. Location of Mares.—Every lot of six mares will be stabled close to each other.

19. Inspection by Judges.—The Judges will inspect and examine horses entered for prize competition on Thursday, 8th, Friday, 9th, and Saturday, 10th, of January 1874.

20. Exclusion of Visitors during inspection by Judges.—Under no circumstances will any person be permitted to be within the precincts of the premises at the time of inspection, except grooms (syces) who will be appointed by the Judges to bring up each horse for examination.

21. Owners and Exhibitors similarly excluded.—Owners and Exhibitors are debarred from the privilege of being present as much as the public generally.

22. Horses how to be inspected.—The horses will be brought up without clothing, so that they may not be recognized by any initials or distinctive marks.

23. Judges how guided in arriving at decision.—Exhibitors are informed that Judges in arriving at their decision will be guided by the following points:—

1*st.*—That under the terms of Military Department Government Notification of the 4th of February last, no prize will be given unless the horses exhibited come up to a high standard of excellence. Importers and competitors are informed that the Judges will be considerably guided by good measurement of girth and leg and blood, combined with power; animals wanting in such essential points will have no chance of obtaining a prize.

2*nd.*—The horses will be judged as to their merits under the several heads of—

A.—Soundness.	C.—General conformation.
B.—Blood and power.	D.—Action.

E.—Condition.

The maximum number of marks being 100.

3*rd.*—"The best horse" must be perfectly sound, but any serious blemish, the result of accident, will be weighed by the Judges.

4*th.*—Each mare of every lot must be sound for all working and brood purposes.

5*th.*—If any mis-information is furnished by an Exhibitor in respect of the animals owned or exhibited by him, the whole of his stock will be disqualified for prizes, and will be at once removed from the Show premises. Admission to the Show will be refused to any person coming within the terms of this rule.

6*th.*—The decision of Judges to be final.

24. Judges' Report.—The Judges' report of their inspection will be prepared and printed by Saturday evening, the 10th of January 1874, but will be confidential until read to His Excellency the Viceroy on the formal opening of the Show.

25. Necessity of Exhibitors' servants attending to Rules.—Particular attention must be given by all Exhibitors to the necessity of their servants carrying out all the rules which may be laid down for efficient sanitary arrangements.

26. Fire Engine.—A fire engine, and a party to work it, will be on the premises during the Exhibition.

27. Police arrangements.—The Commissioner of Police will arrange with the Managing Committee (Judges) for such number of Police as may be requisite for the protection of property and the preservation of order.

28. Lights other than those supplied by Committee prohibited.—Stable lanterns will be provided by the Committee and placed under the orders of the Superintendent. Other lights or lanterns or fire of any kind will not be permitted within the stabling.

29. Removal of Horses if attacked with disease.—The Managing Committee are empowered, if they deem it necessary, to direct the removal of a horse attacked with any contagious disease.

30. Removal of Horses when prohibited.—No horse brought for exhibition, even in the event of its having been sold, will be allowed to be removed until the Exhibition is closed.

31. Final removal from Show.—Horses must be removed the day following the closing of the Exhibition.

32. Objections.—Any objection to horses exhibited must be made and proved to the satisfaction of the Stewards the day before the prizes are awarded.

33. Objection made after award of Prize.—Objections made after the award of prizes will not be attended to during the present Show, but will be recorded against future exhibition of the horses objected to.

34. Onus of proving objection.—The onus of proving an objection will be wholly and entirely on the person making it. All objections must be made in writing.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for the police, conservancy and local improvements, and for education, and for the levying of rates and taxes, in the places to which this Act may be extended; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories for the time being respectively under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces and under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Acts Nos. XVIII of 1864 (to provide for the appointment of a Municipal Committee for the City of Lucknow), XXII of 1865 (to amend Act No. XVIII of 1864), XV of 1867 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the Panjáb, and for other purposes), and VI of 1868 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces, and for other purposes) are repealed.

But all extensions and appointments made, and all limits defined, under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to be respectively made and defined under this Act.

And all assessments, bye-laws, rules and regulations of any kind relating to matters provided for by this Act, which may heretofore have been made and approved by the Local Government, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act.

And all proceedings taken under any such assessment, bye-law, rule or regulation, shall be deemed to be as valid as if they had been taken under this Act.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Committee."

"Committee" means a Municipal Committee appointed under the provisions of this Act; and

"Municipality."

"Municipality" means any town or towns to which this Act may be extended.

Power to extend Act.

4. The Local Government may, by notification published in the local official Gazette, declare its intention to extend this Act, or any of its provisions, to any town or towns in the territories under such Government.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such extension may, within six weeks from the date of the said publication, send his objection in writing to the Secretary to the Local Government, and the Local Government shall take such objection into consideration.

When six weeks from the said publication have expired, the Local Government, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in its opinion, they are insufficient, may, by like notification, effect the proposed extension.

Power to define limits of places to which Act extends.

5. For the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, define the limits of any town, and may include within the limits of such town any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity:

Provided that no cantonment shall, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, be included within the limits of any town for the purposes of this Act.

The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare to be united for the purposes of this Act any two or more towns, and may also declare by what name the municipality so formed shall be designated.

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT OF MUNICIPAL COMMITTEES.

Appointment of Committees.

6. In any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, the Local Government may appoint or direct to be appointed by election, for such period, not exceeding two years, as to it may seem fit, any number of the inhabitants of, or of persons possessing property or carrying on any trade or business in, such municipality, to be members of a Committee for carrying out the purposes of the Act.

The persons so appointed shall continue in office for two years, or until their successors shall have been appointed, and shall be eligible for re-appointment.

In cases where the Local Government directs the appointment to be by election, it may fix the time and manner of the election and the qualifications of the electors, and of the candidates for office, and, generally, may make such rules as it thinks fit for regulating the election.

Removal of members.

7. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any of the members of the Committee so appointed who desire to be discharged, or refuse or become incapable to act, or are convicted of an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of not less than six months.

Addition of members.

8. The Local Government may also fill up vacancies occurring among the members of the Committee, and may, if it think fit, on the recommendation of the Committee, add to their number.

Every member so appointed shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities, and vacate his office, and be eligible for re-appointment, as if he had been originally appointed a member under section six.

Ex officio members.

9. In addition to the members appointed as aforesaid, the Local Government shall have power to appoint ex officio members of the Committee for every place in which they exercise their offices and to which this Act shall have been extended:

Provided that the number of such ex officio members shall not be more than one-third of the total number of the Committee.

Appointment of president and vice-president.

10. The Local Government may also appoint the president and vice-president, or either of them, of any Committee, or sanction the election by any Committee of one of their members as president or as vice-president.

Appointment of secretary.

The Committee may appoint any one of their members or any other person to be their secretary.

Notification of appointments and removals of members.

11. All appointments and removals of members of a Committee, made under this chapter, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

CHAPTER III.

OFFICE AND MEETINGS OF COMMITTEES.

Committee to have an office.

12. The Committee shall have an office, where they shall meet for the transaction of business at least once in every month.

Rules as to meetings.

13. (a). The president, or, in his absence, the vice-president, shall take the chair at every meeting of the Committee. In the absence of both the president and vice-president, the members present may elect a chairman for the occasion.

(b). The meetings shall be either general or special.

(d). Notice shall be given of every such meeting, and when the meeting is to be special, at least three days' notice thereof shall be given. Every notice shall state generally the nature of the business to be transacted at the meeting proposed to be called.

(e). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a general meeting shall be three.

(f). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting shall be one-half of the total number of the members of the Committee at the time of the meeting; and at least two-thirds of such quorum shall consist of non-official members.

(g). If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if summoned by the president or vice-president, shall be dissolved.

In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place. And if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

(h). All business may be transacted at a general meeting which this Act does not require to be transacted at a special meeting.

(i). All questions which may come before the Committee at any meetings shall be decided by a majority of votes. Every member shall have one vote. In case of equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

(j). Such decisions shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be published in some local English or vernacular newspaper (if any), or in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Correspondence between Committee and Local Government.

14. All correspondence between the Committee and the Local Government shall pass through the Commissioner of the Division.

The Commissioner of the Division shall be entitled to make such suggestions for the consideration of the Committee as he may deem fit; and the Committee shall furnish him with any information he may call for connected with the duties imposed upon them by this Act.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS OF COMMITTEES.

Power to make assessments and levy taxes.

15. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may from time to time make in this behalf, every Committee intending to impose taxes for the purposes of this Act, shall from time to time give notice of such intention, and shall in such notice define the persons or property within the municipality to be taxed for the purposes of this Act, and the amount or rate of the taxes to be imposed hereunder.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such notice may, within a fortnight from the date of the said notice, send his objection in writing to the chairman of the Committee, and the Committee shall take such objection into consideration and report their opinion thereon to the Local Government.

When a fortnight from the date of the said notice has expired, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in the opinion of the Committee, they are insufficient, the Committee may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to be notified in the official Gazette, define the persons or property to be taxed and the amount or rate of the taxes aforesaid, and may then at a special meeting impose such taxes accordingly.

The Committee may, at a special meeting, with the same sanction, cancel or vary any tax so imposed.

Specification of taxes.

16. Such taxes may (subject to the rules or orders last aforesaid) be all or any of the following:—

(a).—A tax on houses, buildings and lands according to the annual value thereof, not exceeding seven and a half per cent. of such value:

(b).—A tax on professions and trades:

(c).—Taxes on carriages, horses, mules, elephants, camels, bullocks and asses:

(d).—Tolls on carriages, carts, and animals entering the limits of the municipality:

(e).—An octroi on articles brought within the said limits for consumption or use therein: Provided that a list of such articles shall have been submitted to and approved by the Local Government: Provided also, that the Local Government may exempt from the octroi any such articles intended for consumption or use by any class of persons or animals.

Imposition of other taxes.

17. If the Committee desire to impose any other or further tax than such as are hereinbefore specified, they may do so with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, and subject to the provisions of section fifteen.

Taxes to be confirmed.

18. No tax shall be collected until the assessment thereof has been confirmed by such persons and in such manner as the Local Government appoints in this behalf.

Rules for confirmation and collection of taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the persons by whom, and the manner in which, any assessment of taxes under this Act shall be confirmed, and for the collection of such taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

No tax or rate invalid for defect of form.

19. No tax, or toll, or rate on property, made under this Act shall be invalid for defect of form; and it shall be enough, in any such rate on property, or any assessment of value for the purpose of making such rate, if the property rated or assessed shall be so described as to be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

Bye-laws and Rules.

Power of Committees to make bye-laws.

20. Every Committee may at a special meeting make bye-laws consistent with this Act, for regulating the time and place of their meeting, the conduct of their business, the division of duties among the members of the Committee, the salaries, appointment, suspension and removal of the officers and servants of the Committee, and other similar matters.

Enforcement of bye-laws and rules.

21. The Committee may appoint one or more of their number to carry out their resolutions, and to enforce the bye-laws and rules made, under the provisions of this Act, for the protection of the public health, or they may appoint a special officer for such purposes.

Power to make rules as to nuisances, hire of carriages, and registration of births, marriages and deaths.

22. The Committee may at a special meeting make rules for declaring what acts or omissions within the municipality shall be considered to be public nuisances;

for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which the officers of the Committee may enter upon private property for the detection and abatement of nuisances;

for determining the rates of hire of carriages, carts and boats plying for hire within the limits of the municipality,

for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths, and for carrying out all or any of the purposes of this Act.

The Committee may from time to time, at a special meeting, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

Confirmation of rules.

23. No rule, and no alteration or repeal of, or addition to, a rule, made under this Act, shall have effect until it has been confirmed by the Local Government.

Publication of rules and bye-laws.

24. All bye-laws and rules made under this Act, and all alterations and repeals of, and additions to, such bye-laws and rules shall be published for such length of time and in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

Nuisances.

Power to prohibit repetition or continuance of nuisances.

25. Every Committee may enjoin within the limits of the municipality any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance.

Every such injunction shall be deemed to have been made by a public servant.

Power to remove nuisances.

26. Every Committee which the Local Government authorizes in this behalf may, so long as such authorization continues, exercise the powers of a Magistrate of a District, as described in section five hundred and twenty-one of the Code of Criminal Procedure, for the removal of nuisances; and in the exercise of such powers shall follow the procedure prescribed in sections five hundred and twenty-one to five hundred and twenty-eight (both inclusive) of the same Code.

Purchase and Sale of Land.

Power to buy and sell land for purposes of Act.

27. Any Committee may at a special meeting, and with the previous sanction of the Local Government, purchase land for the purposes of this Act, and may at a like meeting and with the like sanction, sell any portion of such land which is not required for the purposes aforesaid, and convey the same in the names of the president and two of the members of the Committee.

Receipts.

The receipt of the president and any two members of the Committee for any monies paid to them upon any such sale, shall effectually discharge the persons paying the same therefrom, or from being concerned to see to the application thereof, or being accountable for the non-application or misapplication thereof; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be applied for the purposes of this Act.

Controlling Power of Local Government.

Cancellation and suspension of proceedings of Committee.

28. The Local Government may by order cancel, suspend or limit any of the acts, proceedings, bye-laws or rules of any Committee.

Conduct of litigation.

To every suit or other proceeding brought against a Committee, the Local Government shall be made a party.

Abolition of taxes.

29. The Local Government may also abolish any tax which shall have been sanctioned under the provisions hereinbefore contained, but not so as to entitle any person to a refund of money paid in respect of such tax.

CHAPTER V.

RIGHTS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Fund.

Municipal Fund.

30. All sums received by the Committee of any municipality to which this Act extends, and all fines levied under this Act, or under Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), on account of nuisances committed within the municipal limits, and all receipts from property entrusted to and managed by the Committee, shall constitute a fund which shall be called the Municipal Fund of such municipality, and shall, together with all property which may become vested in such Committee, be under their control, and shall be applied by them as trustees for the purposes of this Act.

Custody and disbursement of Municipal Fund.

31. The Municipal Fund shall, as a rule, be kept in the Government Treasury of the District, or in the Bank (if any) to which the Government Treasury business shall have been made over.

But in places where there is no such Treasury or Bank, the said fund may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, be deposited with any Banker, or person acting as a Banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government in each case thinks sufficient.

No disbursement of the Municipal Fund, or any part thereof, shall be made except under the signature of the president or vice-president and one other member of the Committee.

Duties and powers of Committees.

32. Every Committee, so far as the Municipal Fund at their disposal will permit, shall, after providing out of such fund for a police establishment in the manner hereinafter mentioned, keep the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and water-courses of the municipality for which they are appointed, clean and in repair, and may cause such streets and roads or any of them to be watered and lighted, and may construct and provide for the management of poor-houses, dispensaries, market-places and other works of general utility,

and, generally, may do all acts and things necessary for the purposes of conservancy and general utility within their municipality.

The Committee may also make provision, by the establishment of new schools or the aiding of already existing schools, or otherwise, for the promotion of education in their municipality.

Contracts.

33. Every contract made on behalf of any Committee in respect of any sum exceeding twenty rupees, or in respect of any property exceeding twenty rupees in value, shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the president or vice-president and at least two other members of the Committee, of whom one shall be an ex officio member. Unless so executed, it shall not be binding on the Committee.

Municipal Police.

Provision for police.

34. Every Committee shall provide in the first place, from its funds, for the maintenance of the police establishment in the municipality.

The municipal police shall be appointed under such Act of the Governor General in Council as may be applicable to the town, and their number shall be fixed by the Committee in consultation with the Inspector General of Police, subject to the final decision of the Local Government.

Police to aid in carrying out orders regarding nuisances.

35. Every officer of police in any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, may take into custody without a warrant any person who, within his view, commits any of the offences mentioned in section thirty-four of Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), and shall carry out the orders issued by the Committee for the prohibition and prevention of public nuisances, or nuisances declared to be such by any rule made under this Act.

Annual Reports and Accounts.

Annual reports and accounts to be submitted.

36. Every Committee shall annually, or oftener if directed by the Local Government to do so, submit reports of all works executed, or proceedings taken, by them under the authority of this Act, and also accounts of and relating to the Municipal Fund.

Such accounts shall be examined or audited in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes.

The Committee shall also submit, at such time and in such form as may be directed by the Local Government, an estimate of their probable receipts for the financial year next following, with proposals for their expenditure.

An abstract of such estimate and proposals shall, on being so submitted, be published in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

Rules as to cost and class of works.

37. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act, as to the cost and the class of works which the Committee may execute, and the Committee shall be legally bound to obey such rules.

Public Highways.

Right of Committee in public highways.

38. All public highways in any municipality in which this Act is in force, not specially reserved by Government, together with all erections thereon and all materials thereof, shall be vested in and belong to the Committee.

Land required for Public Purposes.

Acquisition of land for municipal purposes.

39. When any land within the limits of any municipality to which this Act is extended is required for the construction or improvement of a highway, for the promotion of the healthiness of the neighbourhood, or for any other public purpose, if the Committee cannot agree with the owner for the purchase thereof, the Local Government, on the recommendation of the Committee, may notify in the local official Gazette that such land is required under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

and, on payment by the Committee of the compensation awarded under such Act, the land shall vest in them for the purposes of this Act.

Suits by and against Committees.

Suits by and against Committees.

40. Every Committee shall sue and be sued in the name of their president.

Members not personally liable for contracts made by Committee.

41. No member of a Committee shall be personally liable for any contract made or expense incurred by or on behalf of the Committee, but the funds from time to time in the hands of the Committee shall be liable for and chargeable with all contracts made in the manner above provided for.

Liability of members for breach of trust.

42. Every member of a Committee shall be liable for any misapplication of money entrusted to the Committee to which he has been a party, or which happens through, or is facilitated by, the neglect of his duty; and he shall be liable to be sued for the same in such Court as the Local Government directs, as for money due to Government.

Notice previous to suing Committee or their officers.

43. No suit shall be brought against a Committee or any of their officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of the Committee, or at the place of abode of such person, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff.

Unless such notice be proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every such suit shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of suit and not afterwards.

If any person to whom any such notice is given shall, before suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

CHAPTER VI.

PENALTIES AND PROSECUTIONS AND RECOVERY OF TAXES.

Penalty on member or servant of Committee being interested in contracts made with Committee.

44. No member of a Committee, or servant of a Committee, shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract made with the Committee, and if any such person be so interested, he shall thereby become incapable of continuing in office or in employment as such member or servant, and shall be liable to a fine of five hundred rupees:

Provided that no person shall by reason of being a shareholder in or member of any incorporated or registered Company be deemed interested in any contract entered into between such Company and the Committee.

Penalty for infringement of rules or non-payment of fines.

45. Whoever infringes any rule made by a Committee and confirmed as directed in this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and in the case of a continuing infringement, to a fine not exceeding five rupees for every day after notice from the Committee of such infringement.

In default of payment of any fine imposed under this section, the defaulter shall, in the case of a continuing infringement, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month; and in any other case, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding eight days.

Prosecutions.

46. Prosecutions under this Act for infringements of rules may be instituted before any Magistrate by the Committee or any person authorized by the Committee in this behalf.

Recovery of taxes.

47. All arrears of taxes imposed under this Act may be recovered as if they were fines, in the manner prescribed in section three hundred and seven of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

[Second Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 21st November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XVI OF 1873.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

So far as regards the repeal of Act No. III of 1869, this Act extends to the whole of British India: the rest of this Act extends only to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Act No. III of 1869 (for the maintenance of the Rural Police in the North-Western Provinces) and so much of section twenty-one of Bengal Regulation XX of 1817, and of form No. 6 of the Appendix thereto, as relates to the Village Watchmen of the North-Western Provinces, are hereby repealed.

II.—Appointment of Village Police.

Right of nomination of Village Policemen.

3. The nomination to the post of Village Policeman shall be made by the zamíndár of the village, or, where there are more zamíndárs than one, by the lambardár as their representative, and where there are more lambardárs than one, the opinion of the majority (unless there is some special provision to the contrary in the village administration paper) shall prevail.

Obligation to nominate.

4. Every person authorized to nominate to the office of Village Policeman shall, within fifteen days after the occurrence of a vacancy in such office, nominate a proper person to the vacant post, and communicate the nomination to the Magistrate of the District.

Discretion to appoint or reject nominee.

5. The person so nominated shall, after due enquiry into his age, character and ability, be appointed or rejected at discretion by such Magistrate, or by some officer authorized by him in that behalf.

Power to Magistrate to appoint.

6.—(a.) In default of such nomination within the said fifteen days, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

Procedure in case of rejection of nominee.

(b.) If the nomination has been made within the said fifteen days, but the nominee is rejected, the person authorized to nominate shall, within fifteen days from the date of such rejection, nominate another person to the vacant post; and in default of such nomination, or if such nomination has been made, but the nominee is again rejected, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

III.—Appointment of Road Police.

Appointment of Road Police.

7. Subject to the rules to be framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, the Magistrate of the District may, from time to time, appoint persons to be the Road Police of his District.

IV.—Duties of Village and Road Police.

Duties of Village and Road Policemen.

8. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman shall perform the following duties:—

(a.) He shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his village or beat,

(1.) of every unnatural, suspicious, or sudden death occurring in the village of which he is Chaukídár, or within his beat;

(2.) of each of the following offences occurring in such village or on such beat, (that is to say) murder, culpable homicide, rape, dacoity, theft, robbery, mischief by fire, house-breaking, counterfeiting coin, causing grievous hurt, riot, harbouring a proclaimed offender, exposure of a child, concealment of birth, administering stupefying drugs, kidnapping, lurking house-trespass, and

(3.) of all attempts and preparations to commit, and abetments of, any of the said offences.

(b.) He shall keep the Police informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to any riot or serious affray.

(c.) He shall arrest all proclaimed offenders, and all persons whom he may find in the act of committing any offence specified in paragraph (a), clause (2) of this section.

(d.) He shall observe, and from time to time report to the officer in charge of the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat may be situate, the movements of all bad characters in or on such village or beat.

(e.) He shall report to the officer in charge of such police-station the arrival of suspicious characters in the neighbourhood.

(f.) He shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which a Magistrate or any officer of Police may require, and shall promptly execute all orders issued to him by competent authority.

Procedure on arrest by Village or Road Policeman.

9. Whenever a Village Policeman or Road Policeman arrests any person, he shall take him as soon as possible to the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat is situate.

V.—Liabilities of Village and Road Police.

Dismissal of Village or Road Policeman.

10. The Magistrate of the District may dismiss any Village Policeman or Road Policeman for any misconduct or neglect of duty.

Acts punishable.

11. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman guilty of any wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty, such misconduct or neglect not being an offence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, or withdrawing from the duties of his office without permission, and without having given at least two months' notice of his intention to withdraw from such duties to the persons authorized to nominate or appoint under sections three and seven (as the case may be),

or offering any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody, or violating any of the rules framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, Penalty.

shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding three months' pay, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

Fines to be credited to such fund as Government appoints.

12. All fines levied under this Act on Village Policemen or Road Policemen shall be credited to such fund as the Local Government from time to time appoints.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Orders of Magistrate of District subject to control of Commissioner.

13. All orders of, and appointments made by, the Magistrate of the District under section five, six, seven or ten, shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate.

Power to make subsidiary rules.

14. The Local Government may from time to time frame rules

(a) for the discipline of the Village and Road Police,

(b) for regulating their numbers, location and duties, and

(c) for carrying out generally the purposes of this Act.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[Second Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XVII OF 1873.

An Act to provide for the liquidation of the debts of the Nawáb Názim of Bengal, and for his protection against legal process.

Preamble.

WHEREAS divers large pecuniary claims have been made against Sayyid Mansúr 'Alí, the present Nawáb Názim of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, commonly called the Nawáb Názim, which he has not the means of satisfying, and for the purpose of recovering such claims divers suits have been brought against him, and divers attachments have been issued against his property in India:

And whereas, with respect to certain jewels and immoveable property, it is disputed whether they belong absolutely to the said Nawáb Názim or are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and litigation has consequently arisen between the creditors of the present Nawáb Názim and the Government of India:

And whereas the Government of India is desirous of freeing the said Nawáb Názim and his property respectively from such suits and attachments, and of discharging such portions of the said claims as are proper to be paid, and of settling the said dispute as to the said jewels and immoveable property:

And whereas in the meantime and for the future, it is expedient to exempt the said Nawáb Názim, except as hereinafter mentioned, from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, and to render him incapable of contracting further pecuniary obligations;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Nawáb Názim's Debts Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to all persons and places for whom and for which the Governor General in Council has power to make laws;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Power to appoint Commission.

2. The Governor General in Council may from time to time nominate and appoint such persons as he thinks fit to be a Commission for the purposes hereinafter mentioned.

All persons so nominated and appointed (hereinafter called "the Commissioners") shall continue to be members of the said Commission during the pleasure of the Governor General in Council, and shall hold their sittings at such place or places and time or times as they think fit.

Notice to claimants.

3. The Commissioners shall publish thrice in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Calcutta Gazette in English, Urdú and Bengáli, and in such other mode and languages as they think fit, a notice calling upon all persons having claims against the said Nawáb Názim or his property, whether moveable or immoveable, to notify the same in writing to the Commissioners within six months from the date of the earliest of such publications.

Bar of debts not duly notified.

4. Every debt or liability to which the said Nawáb Názim is subject, or with which his property, or any part thereof, is charged, and which is not duly notified to the Commissioners within the time and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned, shall be barred:

Proviso.

Provided that, on sufficient cause being shown to the Commissioners, they may admit such claim within the further period of six months from the expiration of the said period of six months.

Particulars of claim.

5. Every such claimant shall along with his claim present full particulars thereof.

Every document on which he founds his claims, or on which he relies in support thereof, shall be delivered to the Commissioners along with the claim.

Entries in books.

If the document be an entry in any book, the claimant shall produce the book to the Commissioners, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies. The Commissioners shall mark the book for the purpose of identification, and after examining and comparing the copy with the original, shall return the book to the claimant.

Exclusion of documents not produced.

If any document in the possession or under the control of the claimant is not delivered or produced by him to the Commissioners along with the claim, the Commissioners may refuse to receive such document in evidence on the claimant's behalf at the investigation of the case.

May call for or admit any further evidence.

The Commissioners may, from time to time, call for further and more detailed particulars of any claim preferred before them under this Act, and may at their discretion refuse to proceed with the investigation of the claim until such particulars are supplied.

Power of Commissioners to summon witnesses.

6. For the purposes of this Act, the Commissioners may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel them to give evidence, and compel the production of documents by the same means, and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Civil Court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Investigation to be a judicial proceeding.

7. Every investigation conducted by the Commissioners, with reference to any claim preferred before them under this Act, or to any matter connected with any such claim, shall be deemed a judicial proceeding within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

And every statement made by any person examined by or before the Commissioners with reference to such investigation, whether upon oath or otherwise, shall be deemed to be evidence within the meaning of the same Code.

Expenses of witnesses.

8. Every witness required by the Commissioners, except at the instance of a claimant, to attend and give evidence under the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to a reasonable sum (to be allowed by the Commissioners) for his expenses in travelling to and from, and remaining at, the place at which he is required to attend.

Commissioners to determine amount due to each claimant.

9. The Commissioners shall, by agreement with the claimant or, in default of such agreement, after due and full enquiry, determine the amount which, on the consideration of all the circumstances, they may consider each claimant ought in fairness and justice to receive. And in coming to such determination, they shall not be bound by any previous agreement or judicial proceeding.

Sum found due to be certified to Government.

10. The Commissioners shall certify in each case the amount so determined, and upon the Governor General in Council, within six months from the date of the certificate, paying or tendering to any claimant the amount so certified, all claims of such claimant against the Nawáb Názim or his property shall be satisfied and extinguished.

Bar of suits against Nawáb Názim.

11. No suit shall be commenced or prosecuted, and no writ or process shall at any time be sued for against the person or property of the said Nawáb Názim, unless such suit be commenced, or such writ or process be sued for, with the consent of the Governor General in Council first had and obtained.

Such consent shall be certified by the signature of one of the Secretaries to the Government of India, and every such signature shall be judicially noticed.

And any suit which [illegible] time shall have been, or shall be, commen[illegible]nd any writ or process which at any time sh[illegible]ve been, or shall be, sued for, against the person[illegible]etary property of the said Nawáb Názim, shall be of no effect unless and until the consent of the Governor General in Council certified in manner aforesaid is obtained.

Commissioners to ascertain the property held by Government for upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim's family.

12. The Commissioners shall ascertain what jewels and immoveable property are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and shall certify the particulars of such jewels and property; and their finding thereon shall be binding and conclusive on all persons whomsoever.

Power to refer questions of law to High Court.

13. If any question of law, or as to the construction of a document, arises in any case under this Act, and the Commissioners think it necessary for the purposes of fairness and justice to obtain a judicial opinion thereon, they may draw up a statement of the case and refer it for the decision of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William; and the provisions of sections twenty-four and twenty-five and of the first sentence of section twenty-six of Act No. XI of 1865 shall apply as if, in section twenty-six, for the word "Court," the word "Commissioners" were substituted.

And if, in the opinion of the High Court, the statement is imperfectly framed, the High Court may return it for amendment; and the costs (if any) consequent on any such reference shall be dealt with as the Commissioners shall in each case direct.

Nawáb Názim to be incapable of contracting.

14. The said Nawáb Názim shall be incapable of entering into any contract which may give rise to any pecuniary obligation on his part.

Saving of Secretary of State in Council.

15. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to render the Secretary of State for India in Council, or the Government of India, liable for any debt heretofore contracted by, or on behalf of, the said Nawáb Názim, or in respect of any claim to be reimbursed, which may be made by any person supplying him with necessaries.

Bar of suit for acts done bonâ fide.

16. No suit or other proceeding shall be maintained against any person in respect of anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

HUSBANDRY OF FODDER FOR CATTLE IN THE DISTRESSED DISTRICTS. CARE AND FEEDING OF CATTLE IN SEASONS OF DROUGHT.

No 3004, dated the 14th November 1873.

From—R. B. CHAPMAN, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of India, FINANCIAL DEPT.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

In continuation of my letter No 3003 of the 13th instant, conveying the Governor General's views and wishes regarding the scarcity in Bengal, there is one special matter on which His Excellency desires to make some suggestions, and that is the prevention, so far as may be possible, of mortality among cattle in the districts affected by drought.

2. His Excellency has learnt that at present the cattle are probably allowed to graze in the fields of the withered crops, the stubble of which supplies abundant fodder. But such fodder will doubtless be soon consumed and must be exhausted by January at the latest. After that time the parched ground will nowhere afford pasture, and by degrees want of fodder will cause disease and death among the cattle. The records of past famines in India show the loss of cattle to have been always so severe as to amount to a serious diminution of the agricultural capital of the districts, and even to cripple the sowing operations of the ensuing season.

3. And under the circumstances as it is to be feared they will be during the coming hot season, one main difficulty will probably be want of draught animals for the transport of food grains to the interior of the districts.

4. These considerations are well known to the Lieutenant-Governor, and will doubtless have formed the subject, among many other things, of His Honor's forethought.

5. But the Governor General would specially suggest for the Lieutenant-Governor's early or immediate attention that the present consumption by the cattle of the withered rice stubble will, if not watched, be very wasteful. Quantities of fodder, in the absence of precautions, might be lost, which, if saved by management and stored for use some months hence, might prove a valuable resource at the most critical period of the scarcity.

6. It appears to the Governor General that the Lieutenant-Governor might be able to issue such instructions to the local officers as might cause a large part of the rice stubble to be husbanded, stacked or stored for future use, without at all preventing the catttle from consuming such part 'as might be needed at the present season. And the cutting and stacking might afford employment to those who are out of work from the cessation of the harvesting operations.

No. 3405, dated 29th November 1873.

From—R. B. CHAPMAN, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of India, FINANCIAL DEPT.,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

In continuation of my letter No. 3004 of the 14th instant, regarding the husbanding of fodder for cattle in the distressed districts, I am directed by the Hon'ble the President in Council to forward extract copy of a memorandum on the care and feeding of cattle in seasons of drought by Mr. J. H. B. Hallen, Inspecting Veterinary Surgeon, Ghazeepore. The practical suggestions contained in this memorandum may probably be found useful to the local officers.

2. I am to take the opportunity of observing that if tuccavee advances should be found necessary to be granted to agriculturists for the feeding and preserving of their cattle when the time of pressure shall arrive, the Government of India will be quite willing that such advances should be made by the district officers under such special and temporary rules as the Lieutenant-Governor may see fit to prescribe.

EXTRACT MEMORANDUM.

Care and feeding of Cattle in India during periods of drought, dated Ghazeepore, 19th November 1873.

It has been the custom in those parts of India, where annually there is a dearth of pasturage during the hot season, for owners to send their cattle to graze on lands at a distance where pasturage and water can be found. This system is, for example, adopted every year by people living within 100 miles of the Terai,—a belt of ground running in a considerable breadth along the southern part of the Himaylayas. In other parts of Bengal, where most of the soil has been brought under the plough, a like system has been, or is being, introduced. A similar temporary removal of cattle from districts where scarcity may prevail in seasons of famine should be adopted. A very necessary provision must not be overlooked where cattle may thus be sent, viz., the presence of water, because not only do animals require more water in the hot weather, but as a rule the pasturage and shrubs on which cattle at that time live hold little moisture, and are very fibrous and woody, so that the digestive powers of cattle feeding on such fodder require the aid of a more than ordinary supply of water. Deaths from "hoven" and other diseases of the digestive system are very common in India on this account. Water is of more consequence than fodder, that is, cattle will continue to live with little food, and that too of a poor kind, provided they have a sufficiency of water, but without a due quantity of water and with coarse bad food they soon die off; therefore, if water cannot be obtained in a sufficient quantity, cattle must be removed to water.

The expense attendant upon sending an animal to a distant pasturage is small, as the beasts of several villages are sent all together, and are herded by one or two families, generally of the Gwalla caste, who receive a small amount per head for undertaking the charge, and the lands affording the pasturage being mostly jungle are obtained at a nominal rent.

There is one serious objection to the collecting of cattle on one common pasture. They are brought from a large extent of country to one central spot, and for the time are herded together. Disease very often breaks out amongst them; for, as a rule, plague, either rinderpest or foot and mouth disease, exists at all times in some parts of the country whence they have been brought, so the one or other or both may have been affecting or are affecting some of the animals, and with these disease may be imported to the common grazing ground, and become disseminated among the collected animals. This is doubtless a very serious objection to any system involving the collecting and herding of cattle in India; but in time of drought the only means of feeding the animals can be thus gained, and if they are not in this way fed, they will surely die, whereas though they may be exposed to the infection of plague, they may either not be struck or if struck, may recover.

In those parts of Bengal where the Terai is beyond reach of districts under the influence of famine, portions of neighbouring grounds should be selected where some pasturage can be found, but in selecting such ground it should be remembered that a good supply of water is indispensable.

When it is found impracticable to remove cattle to pasturage then home feeding at a minimum expenditure and on food and fodder not eatable by the people, should be given; but water must be, if possible, given in a liberal quantity, so if water is not on the home grounds, then the animals must be removed to the nearest place where water may be.

There are several kinds of fodder and grasses which, though not ordinarily given to cattle, may be safely made use of under circumstances of excessive drought, and the minimum quantity sufficient to keep an animal alive will be found so inexpensive as to be well worth the outlay. For either cattle must be kept alive and able to work the plough to prepare the ground for the next crops, or famine will more or less continue, as by hand labor only a very limited area of the land can be cultivated. * * * * *

Native owners of cattle are well able to judge how to feed them at the smallest cost. This is too sadly apparent in most districts by emaciated condition of the very many seen. But to give examples of fodder that may be supplied at a small cost, the following diets are noted:—

Mustard oil cake well soaked in water	1 to 2 lbs.
With cut straw or grass	6 to 8 lbs.
or
Coarse bran or husks of various kinds	1 to 2 lbs.
Mixed with cut straw or grass	6 to 8 lbs.

When the grass is of a very coarse description, such as Ooloo or Surput, it should be soaked when cut up in water for an hour or two before it is given. In cotton-growing, districts some cotton seed will be a valuable addition to the food.

The prices of the above kinds of food may be calculated as follows:—

Coarse Bhoose or Choonee with fine husks of various kinds ...	23 to 26 seers per Rupee.
Mustard oil cake	35 to 40 " "

So it will be found that by giving an ox 1 to 2 lbs. of any of the above diets, or a mixture of two or more, that the expense will vary from fourteen annas to one rupee two annas per mensem. The straw or grass with roots to a limited amount, as a rule, may be obtained from the home or neighbouring land, but if not thus procurable will have to be purchased. Should there be no grass then the leaves of shrubs and trees, such as the peepul, may be given. If grasses with roots, straw or leaves of trees cannot be obtained at home, then the cattle must be removed as above recommended to some neighbouring or distant pasture land.

The cutting and harvesting of the rice and other crops which have failed to come to ear should of course be carefully carried out, and district officers might be instructed to use their influence to induce the farmers to be so far provident.

The cutting and stocking of all kinds of grasses that can be used as fodder should be recommended; for as above noted the most coarse, reedy and fibrous grasses will, when cut up and moistened and mixed with well soaked oil cake, afford sufficient food to prevent starvation.

It is a custom in many parts of Bengal to give salt to cattle only once during the year, viz., at the Dusserah; but cattle owners should be advised of the good to be derived, especially in seasons of drought, by adding a small quantity of common black salt daily to the food of their cattle, for such salt under the circumstances of scanty and coarse diet is very necessary.

Low lands, which have been for a time submerged, yield, on becoming dry, rank grasses and herbs, which are often greedily eaten by cattle when pressed with hunger. These are at all times unwholesome and should be eaten sparingly of, and cattle should not be allowed to feed off such land until midday to allow of the sun drying the grasses, which if eaten wet with a heavy dew are dangerous food.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS IN THE N. W. PROVINCES AND THE EASTERN STATES OF RAJPOOTANA FOR THE FORTNIGHT ENDING THE 29th NOVEMBER 1873.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
N. W. P. (Nov. 28th)
Mirzapoor (23rd)	...	Khureef crops towards the south worse than formerly reported; kodon entirely lost; instead of two-thirds, only about one-half the usual rubbee area sown; much of this will fail if there be no rain; relief works to begin in the south on the 15th December; prices stationary.
Benares (24th)	...	Insects attacking the young wheat, but not much damage done; rain anxiously looked for Ghazeepoor "	...	Price of wheat lower, of bajra higher; large supplies coming in from Goruckpoor and also from east and west; there will be no local surplus grain for export.
Goruckpoor "	...	Increasing export of grain eastward; general rise in prices, especially in rice, jowar, and barley; rice export beginning into Nepal; rubbee crops suffering from want of rain; if winter rains do not fall earlier than usual, great part of the rubbee will go.
Azimgurh (23rd)	...	Prospects same as last week; prices slightly higher; rubbee land sown to extent of possible irrigation; at present looks well, but depends on winter rains.
Allahabad (28th)	...	Khureef being cut promises to be fair outturn, except later rice; if rain falls, rubbee promises well; dew generally at night; wind easterly; collector has been over a portion of district and found rubbee cultivation quite as plentiful as usual.
Jounpore (24th)	...	Prices somewhat lower; rubbee sowings advancing.
Banda (22nd)	...	Cotton mostly a failure; other khureef average; rubbee prospects good, but rain wanted.
Humeerpore (24th)	1·00 at Raat.	Rainfall at Raat did much good; only a sprinkling elsewhere. Bajra and jowar plentiful; prices slightly fallen.
Jhansi (25th)	...	Khureef outturn lower than estimate; cotton ruined by rains; markets well supplied.
Jaloun ...	...	Prospects very fair, but prices rising because of large export to Gwalior, Jhansi, and elsewhere.
Agra (26th)	...	Prices slightly risen owing to Durbar and diversion of imports eastward; some export south still continues; khureef crop considerably under average; rubbee prospects excellent; area above average.
Muttra ...	...	Khureef not bad, except cotton; jowar and bajra better than hoped for; prospects of rubbee very good; great breadth sown.
Allygurh ...	...	Khureef crops plentiful in market and cheap.
Moradabad ...	...	Khureef very good; rubbee promising; no unusual export.
Bareilly ...	...	No change in prospects; khureef crops, except rice, above the average; rubbee crops promise well; little import or export of grain.
Saharunpoor ...	...	Khureef crops average; prospects of rubbee good; no export as yet.
Meerut ...	...	Prospects good; slight rise in prices due to export.
Rajpootana (Nov. 29th)
Eastern States ...	...	Prospect of crops fair; in Bhurtpore much fever still.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Agra, on Friday, the 21st November 1873.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G. M. S. I., presiding.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.
The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K. C. S. I.
The Hon'ble B. H. Ellis.
Major General the Hon'ble Sir H. W. Norman, K. C. B.
The Hon'ble A. Hobhouse, Q. C.
The Hon'ble E. C. Bayley, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble J. F. D. Inglis, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble R. A. Dalyell.

MUNICIPALITIES (N. W. PROVINCES AND OUDH) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE moved that the Bill to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for other purposes, as amended by the Select Committee and by Council, be passed. He said that he had made a motion of exactly the same tenor as this in the month of August last, and had spoken to it, though it happened that, on that same morning, intelligence had been received that the Bill had not been duly published in one of the local gazettes, and therefore he had to ask that his motion might be postponed for the purpose of allowing due publication to take place. What MR. HOBHOUSE had to say on the subject of the Bill he had said on that occasion, and though there were some small amendments since introduced into the measure, they did not afford any fresh matter upon which to address the Council.

The Hon'ble MR. DALYELL said that, when last he had the honour to assist in the deliberations of the Council in regard to the measure now under consideration, he had expressed an opinion that it should not be passed into law without very careful criticism and enquiry, and he had reminded the Council that, so far as regarded the Province of Oudh, the law under which the municipalities had their present existence, was entirely of a temporary and tentative character, and that, at the time of its enactment, several hon'ble members had expressed considerable doubts as to the eventual results. He had also brought to the notice of the Council that, both in these Provinces and in Oudh, it seemed highly probable that, as was the case in most of the other administrations, the system of Provincial Finance had had the effect of giving a very strong impetus to local taxation of all descriptions, and that, therefore, it was highly necessary that any measure having for its object the augmentation of imposts of that description, or even the continuance of existing imposts, should be carefully scrutinised, and he had expressed a hope that the Council might be supplied with any papers calculated to show what had been the working and results of the municipalities then in existence in the Provinces to which the Bill would apply.

Since the time to which MR. DALYELL referred, he had been favoured—thanks to the consideration of His Excellency the President—with copies of several reports on municipal taxation in many of the provinces of the Empire, and he was bound to say that their perusal had been to him a most agreeable surprise; for he had not been prepared to learn that so large a measure of success had, on the whole, attended the working of the existing laws in regard to municipalities. It appeared that, in the year 1871-72, there were in the North-West Provinces no less than sixty-seven municipalities with a gross population of about two millions, and a gross income of about £150,000, of which £130,000 was raised by taxation, at an average incidence of eleven annas eight pie per head, and which cost about 10 per cent. to collect and manage; that about one-fifth of the whole income was devoted to the maintenance of the town police. Imperial expenditure being thus relieved to this extent, about one-third was expended on "New Works and Repairs;" one-seventh on Conservancy; and the remainder on Miscellaneous objects, including about Rs. 30,000 on Education. These Municipal Revenues were administered by 904 Commissioners, of whom only one-third were official; and, of the non-official Commissioners, no less than four-fifths were elected by the people. In the same year, in Oudh, there were fourteen municipalities with a population, of about 400,000, and a gross income of about £45,000, of which £35,000 was raised by taxation, at an incidence of from two annas six pie to fourteen annas per head, and which cost about 11 per cent. to collect and manage. As in these Provinces, about one-fifth of the whole municipal income was expended on the Police; one-fourth on "New Works and Repairs;" one-sixth on Conservancy, and the remainder for other purposes, including, however, only Rs. 3,752 for Education. It would seem, too, that the people of the municipalities in both Provinces were beginning to realize the distinction between Local and Imperial taxation, and that, at any rate, in the North-West Provinces, a very decided step had been taken in the direction of local self-government. In fact, the only features in these reports which were at all disappointing, were the comparatively insignificant expenditure on Education in Oudh, and the small extent to which the privilege of election to the Municipal Committees had been taken advantage of in that Province. These were, however, matters in which we could not expect any very rapid progress, and, as observed by His Excellency the President, at the debate to which Mr. Hobhouse had alluded, but at which he (MR. DALYELL) was not present, it must depend upon the wealth of the municipalities and the funds at their disposal how far they could deal with the optional objects of expenditure; and among these were included all grants for educational purposes.

On the whole, then, it could not be doubted that the experience gained during the past few years, in regard to the municipalities in the two Provinces affected by the Bill, had been fairly satisfactory, and gave fair promise of eventual success. Under these circumstances, it was in the highest degree desirable that permanent legislation should take the place of the present temporary enactment in Oudh, and that the municipalities of the North-Western Provinces should be continued and developed still further. The present Bill, apparently, made little change in the existing law, the alterations being mainly such as would ensure greater deliberation in regard to new taxes, and greater certainty that the funds would be expended on works of general utility only.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that, after the remarks which had fallen from his hon'ble friend, Mr. Dalyell, he felt bound to express the gratification with which he had heard them, and he took the opportunity of also thanking His Excellency the President for the favourable notice taken of the working of this Bill in the debate at Simla.

What had just been said by Mr. Dalyell to the effect, that the incidence of taxation under this Act had not been in any way affected or enhanced by the decentralization scheme, was strictly correct; in fact, the taxation under Act VI of 1868 had commenced, on its present footing, long before that measure had been decided upon. The Municipal system and Revenues had extended, no doubt, considerably since then; but this was the result of a natural extension and development which would have taken place under any circumstances, whether the decentralization scheme had taken effect or not.

HIS HONOUR wished also to corroborate what his hon'ble friend had said of a growing disposition on the part of the people to take advantage of the powers which, by the Municipal Act, the legislature had placed in their hands. It had been his constant endeavour everywhere to extend the practice of election, wherever any interest was shown by the people or desire to exercise the power.

But where they were indifferent and careless of the privilege, there to force the system of election and press it unduly and precipitately, was likely to do more harm than good, and, in fact, to make the matter more a farce than otherwise; but this ignorance and indifference would gradually wear away, and, generally, when it was possible to induce the people to elect their own Municipal Councils, it was found that a new interest was gradually created and the result could not but be most beneficial.

Mr. Dalyell was quite right in saying that education was an object specially deserving the support of the municipalities; and there was every disposition on their part to recognize this obligation, especially in respect of the primary teaching of the lower classes. Indeed, there was a growing desire to contribute liberally to all institutions and objects, such as dispensaries and hospitals, vaccination, sanitation, which tended to the prosperity, health and comfort of the people; who thus saw that their funds were expended for their benefit, and must recognize the advantages accruing from the application of the Municipal Law.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

VILLAGE POLICE (N. W. P.) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS moved that the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village Police in the North-Western Provinces, as re-amended, be passed.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR desired to make a few remarks upon this Bill and the necessity for the measure. As had been fully explained by his hon'ble friend, Mr. Inglis, in a former debate, the law regarding Village Police was extremely imperfect, and there was no legislative sanction enforcing the responsibilities and duties of Village Police.

These Village chaukídárs were really the backbone of the Police administration as regarded the five and twenty millions of the agricultural population in the North-Western Provinces. The regular Police, including every department, municipalities, cantonments, &c., numbered only about eighteen thousand men, while the Rural Police amounted to no less than sixty thousand men, paid at an annual cost of above twenty lákhs of rupees. Formerly, the chaukídárs were remunerated variously; in some districts, in money, but mostly by small jágírs of land, and they had consequently no proper inducement to continue at their post or efficiently to discharge their duties. Now, they were all paid at the rate of three rupees per month each; that might not seem a large sum, yet to the Village Policeman it was a matter of considerable moment, made him unwilling to lose his position, and so the better enabled the Government to enforce a strict and careful discharge of their duties.

The gradual extension of the local cess, which was imposed pari passu with the new settlements, had enabled the Government to extend this system throughout all the districts of those Provinces; and there were, taking it at an average, some 2,000 Village Police in each district. Upon these men devolved the duty of protecting the whole agricultural population, the detection and prevention of crime, arrest of bad characters, &c., so that it was really a matter of the highest importance to have their functions and responsibilities defined; and the conditions of their service, appointment, dismissal and punishment all settled by legislative enactment. Upon this force also devolved primarily the enforcement of the extensive measures undertaken by the Government of the North-Western Provinces, for the suppression of infanticide. Altogether, then, a real improvement in the position of the Village Police, and a material progress in the efficient discharge of their duties might, with confidence, be looked for from the measure now under consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS in presenting the final report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the recovery of rent in the North-Western Provinces, said:—"I brought this Bill forward at the desire of the Government of these provinces about ten months ago. It was then referred to a Select Committee, whose report, together with the amended Bill, was published in the Gazette of March last. At the same time, the Government of the North-West sent copies of the amended Bill to all the European landholders in these provinces, to a very large number of the Native landholders, to most of the officers of Government, and to many other persons interested in the questions to which the Bill relates. During the summer, many very valuable criticisms on the Bill have been received, and have been carefully considered by the Committee, many of the suggestions made in these replies having been adopted. I think that I may safely say that no Bill has ever been before this Council which has received more careful consideration, or more general criticism, not only by the officers of Government, but by the general public, than this Bill. I do not think it necessary to go through the history of the discussions on many of the provisions of the Bill while it has been before the Select Committee. I propose to notice those points only in which the Bill, as finally amended by the Select Committee, and as now laid before this Council, differs from the law as contained in Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863. These will be found, first, in sections seven and fourteen, in which the distinction between the cultivating right belonging to a proprietor in his 'sír' land and his proprietary right in the whole estate is recognized, and any proprietor, who may hereafter lose his right of ownership in any mahál, is allowed to retain his 'sír' land, with a right of occupancy in it, at favourable rates.

"2ndly.—In section thirteen, which provides that a landholder who may wish to enhance the rent paid by any of his tenants having a right of occupancy, must sue directly for such enhancement, instead of merely issuing a notice on the tenant informing him of his intention to claim an enhancement of rent, the burden of contesting the claim being thrown on the tenant.

"3rdly.—In sections sixteen and seventeen, where it is provided that, if the rent payable by any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by an order of any competent Court, it shall not be liable, subject to certain specified exceptions, to enhancement for ten years.

"4thly.—In section twenty, where it is laid down that, in determining the rent to be paid by any tenant, his class shall be taken into consideration, if it is proved that, by local custom, the class of a tenant is taken into account in fixing his rent.

"5thly.—In section twenty-three, where power is given to the Local Government, wherever the crops on any land have been damaged by any cause beyond the tenant's control, to step in and grant a remission or suspension of the rent paid by the tenant, a corresponding remission or suspension of revenue being granted to the landlord.

"6thly.—In section forty-two, where it is provided that, whenever rent is paid in kind, if either the landholder or the tenant refuse or neglect to attend at the proper time, either party may enforce a division or appraisement of the crop by application to the Collector of the District.

"7thly.—In sections forty-four to forty-seven, the right of a tenant, who may have improved the land in his occupation to receive compensation for such improvement if ejected by his landlord, is recognized.

"8thly.—In sections forty-nine to fifty-three, in which permission is given to tenants to deposit their rent in the Government treasury, if the landlord refuse to receive it.

And lastly, in chapter V, in which the jurisdiction of the Civil and Revenue Courts is separated and defined.

"Other minor alterations have been made, but not of sufficient importance to call for special mention. Indeed, of those I have just enumerated, some may be passed over with a very brief notice; for instance, the alteration made by section thirteen, which requires the landlord to sue for enhancement instead of serving notices of enhancement on his tenants, is merely a change in procedure, though it is a change which our experience of the working of Act X of 1859 has shown to be very necessary. For the power which a landholder possesses under that Act of serving notices of enhancement broadcast among his tenants, leaving it to them to contest the claim, either by bringing a suit, or, in reply to a demand for rent at the enhanced rate, has been found to encourage vexatious and groundless demands for enhanced rent, and to be productive of much ill-feeling between the parties.

Again, the provision entertained in section twenty, directing that the class of a tenant shall be taken into consideration in determining the rent to be paid by him, if this is found to be the local custom, is in accordance with recent decisions of the High Court laying down the meaning to be given to the words 'the same class of tenants' in section 17, Act X of 1859. These words were at first understood to mean the whole class of occupancy-tenants, as distinguished from the whole class of tenants-at-will; but in the following decisions of the High Court of these Provinces, the principle is clearly admitted, that, by the custom of the country, there are different classes of occupancy-tenants, some holding at favourable rates, and that, in fixing the rent of a tenant, the Courts must bear this in mind :—

"'(1.) A person who has been adjudged to have a right of occupancy merely because he has cultivated or held for twelve years or more is not primâ facie a ryot entitled to any peculiar privilege or indulgence in respect of the rate of rent payable by him, such as is sometimes found to have been accorded to ryots whose forefathers have held for many generations, or whose holdings are the relics of a former proprietary title.—H. C., N. W. P., 1744 of 1867, January 31*st*, 1868.

"'(2.) The capability of the soil is the main consideration which should govern the rates of rents; but the status and social position of the ryots should also be borne in mind, for in this country that is regarded in fixing the rent.—S. D. A., N. W. P., 19 of 1851, December 24*th*, 1861.

"'(3.) The words 'the same class of ryots' warrant a reference to the caste of the ryots.—H. C., N. W. P., 1660 of 1867, January 18*th*, 1868.

"'(4.) In a suit to contest enhancement, it was found that there were no cultivators of the same class in the village; nor were there any such in the vicinity. A comparison was therefore made with fields belonging to cultivators of a different class, and suitable allowance made in the rates in consideration of the superiority of the class to which plaintiff belonged. The course followed is not open to objection.—H. C., N. W. P., 193, June 25*th*, 1866; H. C., N. W. P., 1025, July 26*th*, 1867.'

"Thus, what is done by this section is to lay down clearly that the interpretation put upon the existing law by the highest judicial authority in these provinces, shall be the law for the future; and, in order to prevent any discussions or disputes on the subject arising hereafter, it is provided that—

'whenever it was found by local custom or practice any class of persons, by reason of their having formerly been proprietors of the soil or otherwise, hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with such custom or practice.'

"The next section in which a change has been made, is in section twenty-three. In this section, power is given to the Local Government, whenever the crops on any land have been damaged or destroyed by any cause beyond the tenant's control, to step in and grant a remission or suspension of the rent paid by the tenant, a corresponding remission or suspension of revenue being granted to the landlord. It was not intended that the power given to the Local Government by this section should be put in force, except under exceptional circumstances; but it is considered only just and right in cases such as those referred to that, if the Local Government grant relief to the landlord, it should have the power of saying that similar relief should also be extended to the cultivator. All, therefore, that is provided by this section is that, in the exceptional cases contemplated when relief is granted by a remission of revenue, the benefit should be shared in equally by the landlord and by the tenant whose crops have been destroyed, and who, without this remission or suspension of rent, would be ruined. Again, the power given by section forty-two to either the landholder or the tenant to apply to the Collector for assistance in the division or appraisement of the crops when rent is paid in kind, is one that has long been wanted; in fact, although there is no law for it, the practice has always been, in disputed cases, to follow the procedure here laid down. All that we propose to do is to legalize the present custom.

"Then, sections forty-four to forty-seven, in which the right of a tenant who may have improved the land in his occupation to receive compensation for the present value of such improvement, if ejected by the landlord, are obviously required as a corollary to the Land Improvement Act, XXVI of 1871, and have been adopted, in a modified form, from the Oudh and Panjáb Rent Bills.

"Lastly, the provisions in sections forty-nine to fifty-three, in which permission is given to tenants to deposit their rent in the Government treasury, are merely a legalization of the present practice in these Provinces, one that the necessity of the case has forced the Revenue authorities to adopt, and which had already been legalised in Bengal by Act VI of 1862.

"There remain, therefore, three main points only in which changes have been made in the existing law, and which appear to require lengthy explanation. The first is the change made by sections seven and fourteen. Section seven provides that—

'Every person who may hereafter lose or part with his proprietary rights in any mahál, shall have a right of occupancy in the land held by him as 'sír' in such mahál, at the date of such loss or parting, and shall be styled an exproprietary tenant.'

And section fourteen provides that—

'if a landlord apply to enhance or determine the rent of any exproprietary tenant, the rent to be paid by such tenant shall be fixed at four annas in the rupee, or 25 per cent. below the prevailing rents paid by tenants-at-will for similar land in the neighbourhood.'

"I think I shall be able to show that the proposal to maintain an exproprietary tenant in the occupation of his 'sír' land is neither revolutionary, nor even novel in its character, and that it is, in fact, no more than a recognition of the ancient custom of the country, which has maintained its footing, notwithstanding it has never yet been distinctly recognized by the law of these provinces. It must be remembered that, hitherto, we have had no rent law specially adapted to the peculiar customs and tenures of these provinces,—Act X of 1859 being essentially a Bengal Act. In recognizing the acquisition of a right of occupancy by the holding of land for twelve years, it undoubtedly went far beyond the custom and common law of these provinces; while, in another direction, it did not go far enough. It gave no more to men who had long held prescriptive rights, and who, in many cases, had a beneficial interest in the soil, than it did to the tenant-at-will who had happened to retain the same field for a dozen years, that is, it did not recognize the distinction between the rights possessed by tenants who had been the former proprietors of the land they cultivated, and tenants who had acquired a right of occupancy by the mere lapse of time. There has never been any systematic inquiry into the rights of tenants in these provinces, such as was carried on in Oudh under the direction of Lord Lawrence; consequently, there is no recorded evidence to which I can refer relating to those rights. But it is a well-known fact, throughout the country, that exproprietors, who continue to cultivate land in their ancestral villages, customarily pay low rates of rent, and are considered by the custom and tradition of the country to have a right of occupancy in such land.

"Writing in 1832, Mr. Ricardo said (Vol. II, p. 199 of his History of India) :—'We sometimes find the real owners of estates reduced to become its occupancy-ryots; the latter in such cases are considered as possessing a right of permanent occupancy.' This is valuable evidence to the existence of the custom, the more so inasmuch as it was written long before any controversy on the subject had arisen. The right of the proprietor to remain in the occupation of his 'sír' land in the case of estates sold for arrears of revenue, has always been recognized by the Government; that the same right was not recognized in the case of other sales was a lamentable mistake, and is due, like many of our mistakes, to the application of English law to Indian subjects. Notwithstanding, however, that the effect of sales in these latter cases has been held to convey the proprietor's cultivating right as well as his ownership in the soil, and to leave the exproprietor a mere tenant-at-will, yet in numerous cases—in most cases I may say—the exproprietor has retained possession of his 'sír,' and generally at low rates of rent. The law, therefore, notwithstanding the custom, had remained much as it was, and the question is whether, now that we are about to pass a rent law specially adapted to the customs and tenures of those provinces, we ought not to recognize the custom. Those best qualified to judge were unanimous in favour of doing so. It had already been done in the Panjáb, where, by Act XXVIII of 1868, the right of occupancy belonging to an exproprietor in his 'sír' land has been recognized, the rent to be paid by him being fixed at 30 per cent. below the rent paid by tenants-at-will for similar land. A somewhat similar provision has been adopted in Oudh with the consent of the taluqdárs. I am of course aware that it was adopted in Oudh as part of a compromise, and that the taluqdárs, while consenting to it, denied that any tenants in Oudh, whether formerly proprietors or not, had any right of occupancy; but it had been abundantly shown by the Oudh inquiry that, although no ordinary rights of occupancy actually existed at the time we obtained possession of the country, which was the point to which the investigation was restricted, yet that exproprietors and their descendants did enjoy a very favourable position under the Native Government in Oudh. No doubt they could not have enforced that position as a right. What right could they have enforced; or in what Courts could they have sought redress? But the fact remains that many exproprietors were found to have retained possession of their 'sír' land, paying low rates of rent, and that their position was protected by the Oudh rules long before the celebrated compromise was come to with the taluqdárs when Sir John Strachey was Chief Commissioner of Oudh.

"Sir Charles Wingfield, in his minute summing up the result of the Oudh enquiry, strongly insists on the fact that former village proprietors and their descendents who had retained any beneficial interest in the soil were protected by the Oudh rules; and while arguing that no rights of occupancy were possessed by ordinary tenants in Oudh, goes so far as to suggest that the only tenants in India possessing a real right of occupancy in the land are the exproprietors cultivating their 'sír' land. Mr. Davies in paragraph 6 of his report, speaking of the privileged class of tenants, says—

'It is necessary to explain that one important class of ryots, namely, the descendants of former village zamíndárs, still retaining some beneficial interest in their holdings, are protected by the Oudh rules. It is provided that, where they omit to bring forward their claims spontaneously, lists of such tenures shall be brought before the Settlement Officer, who then summons the parties interested; and whenever the ex-zamíndár proves a beneficial interest, decrees to him as 'under-proprietor' a transferable and heritable right in his holding, which is recorded in the village papers. Thus, if A can prove that he holds a certain number of bíghás at lower rates, in virtue of former proprietary right, he and his heirs will henceforth hold at those rates for ever.'

"On the other hand, Mr. Davies shows that the rents paid by many exproprietary cultivators has been raised to the rent paid by tenants of the same caste, and he held that, in this latter case, they had no right of occupancy; they continued nevertheless to hold their 'sír' land, even when their rent had been raised.

"In a note on Tenant Right, written in 1864 by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of these provinces, who was then Foreign Secretary to the Government of India, he said—

'Where village proprietorship prevailed, the rents were collected by the proprietor, and he was responsible for the entire sum to the Government. For special reasons, the proprietor might be temporarily set aside, and the rents collected by a Government nominee. In either case, the proprietor was entitled to hold a portion of the estate rent-free, or at a privileged rent, in recognition of his proprietorship.'

"And again—

'He had the option of declining the terms of the contract if too severe; and in this event, whether the rent were collected by Government direct, or through a contractor, the proprietor retained his privileged lands.'

"And in a foot note—

'So, also, when they mortgaged their estates, the proprietors ordinarily retained these beneficial holdings.'

"In another note on Tenant Right in Oudh, His Honour said:—

'Where the Rájá of Benares sells up any of his proprietors, he confirms them, I believe, in the proprietary possession of all the lands they were before in occupation of. By our sale law (for arrears of revenue) the exproprietor is maintained as hereditary cultivator in occupation of his lands, at a rent which may be 'fixed by a jury of the vicinage'. But when the proprietor's rights are sold by auction in satisfaction of a decree for debt, &c., he becomes a tenant-at-will. The operation of this last process has created a violent and (to the Native idea) an unnatural change in the position of the old proprietors, and the evil effect was widely felt in 1856-57'.

"And, lastly, Sir John Strachey, in a note on Tenant Right in Oudh, said:—

'This class (that is, the class of privileged tenants) is that which consists of ancient proprietors and their descendants—men whose forefathers were the undoubted owners of the land, and who, although they have lost or become despoiled of their proprietary rights, still retain possession of their ancestral fields. Whatever be the legal position which these men now hold it will, I think, be generally allowed that their case is, in many respects, a very different one from that of other classes of cultivators. There is an almost universal feeling, that they have strong equitable claims to consideration, and the propriety is commonly admitted of doing for them anything which can fairly be done without undue interference with the rights of others. This was, in fact, admitted by Mr. Wingfield himself—the great upholder of the rights of the landlords—when, in the late demi-official negociations, he agreed to advise the Talookdars to grant, on certain conditions, favorable terms to these old proprietors. To a great extent, it is certainly true that this feeling is that of the landlords themselves.'

"No doubt, it was this fact, that exproprietors in Oudh formed a distinct class of cultivators, and, in many cases, enjoyed very favourable rates, that made Lord Lawrence so tenacious of his proposal that rights of occupancy at favourable rates should be secured to them; nor is it at all probable that the taluqdárs would have consented to that proposal, even as a compromise, had it been otherwise than in accordance with the feelings and custom of the country. I think that I have said enough to show that the proposal to continue persons, who may hereafter lose their proprietary rights in any estate, in the occupation of their 'sír' land, is one that is in strict accordance with the general custom and feeling of the people. No doubt the section, as it was at first drawn, was open to the objection that, so far as it had retrospective effect, it was unjust, inasmuch as it conferred a benefit on these exproprietors at the expense of others whose rights had grown up under our system of Government. I believe this objection to be more valid in appearance than in reality; but however this may be, the amendment which has been made since the Bill was last published in the Gazette, and which confines the provision of the section to the case of those persons only who may hereafter lose their proprietary rights, has removed this objection altogether; and it may be said with truth that, though the proposal now made is undoubtedly a change in, and an alteration of, the law, yet it is no alteration in the custom and practice of the country; and that, in proposing it, we were doing no more than following the example already set us by the Panjáb and Oudh—the two provinces close to us, where the tenures under which land is held resemble ours most closely.

"Next, as to the change made by sections sixteen and seventeen, which provide that the rent of any occupancy-tenant having been once fixed by order of a competent Court, it shall not be liable to enhancement for a period of ten years. It has been ruled that, under the present law, the rent of a tenant, with a right of occupancy, may be enhanced every year; consequently, the very men on whom we depend for any improvement in cultivation, or any care that is taken of the soil are kept under constant apprehension of new demands. It may no doubt be said that the demand for increased rent, though made, may not be decreed; but the use of such an argument, in support of the present law, seems to me possible only to one ignorant of the condition of the parties concerned. If the demand is made, however groundless it may be, it must be contested, and, for all the tenant knows, it may be decreed; consequently, all feeling of security is taken from him, while the mere expense of contesting a perfectly groundless claim is sometimes enough to ruin him. It seems to me impossible to uphold the policy of leaving the question open. If a landlord comes to the Collector to raise the rents of his tenants for him, he ought to be compelled to give in return equitable conditions; and a lease for a reasonable term is such a condition. Even, under Act X of 1859, if the tenants knew how to work the Act, and sued for pattás instead of waiting to contest notices of enhancement served on them by their landlords, they might obtain some relief from these yearly demands, as section seventy-six of that Act provides that, in case of a dispute as to the term of a lease, the Collector may fix the term for any period not exceeding ten years. We propose to make this provision clearly applicable to all cases in which the rent of a tenant is fixed by the Courts. To the longer period at first proposed, some objections were made, but to the term now laid down, no reasonable opposition could be made, nor is it in fact; as I have explained, any vital alteration in the present law.

"The last point I have to notice is the change made in chapter V by the transfer to the Revenue Courts of appeals against decisions on claims brought for the enhancement or abatement of rent, or against decisions relating to the class or tenure of any tenant.

"It is obviously to the interest of all parties that, in all questions relating to rent or the determination of the class of tenant, there should be no clashing of jurisdiction and no double system of concurrent appeals. At the time of the settlement of a district, the Revenue authorities must have plenary authority in such matters; for, unless appeals lie from the orders of the Settlement Officers to the Commissioners and to the Board, it is obviously impossible for them to supervise the work as they ought to do. Naturally, therefore, and necessarily at the time of the settlement of a district, all these matters must be dealt with by the Revenue Courts, and by them alone. This being the case at the time of settlement, the question arises as to what is to be done after settlement? At first it was proposed to let appeals from the orders of the Revenue Courts in these matters lie, as heretofore, to the Civil Courts, but when the two proposals came to be considered together, the mistake which would be thus made became at once apparent. The great experience gained by the Revenue Courts during settlement was to be thrown away, and the business made over to Courts avowedly less experienced in such matters, and less competent from their training to decide them. Moreover, it might very possibly have happened that the law would be interpreted in one way by the Revenue Courts while a district was under settlement, and in another way by the Civil Courts after settlement. For these reasons, it has been thought advisable that appeals in all matters relating to rent should lie to the Revenue Courts, and not to the Civil Courts.

"I believe that I have now noted all the important points on which the Bill makes any changes in the existing law, and I hope that I have been able to show that, where changes have been proposed, they have been made in the direction of bringing the law more into conformity with the feelings and customs of the people, and that, in making these changes, no rights belonging to any class have been invaded or disregarded."

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES REVENUE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS then presented the final Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Land-Revenue in the North-Western Provinces.

NAWÁB NÁZIM'S DEBTS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE in presenting the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the liquidation of the debts of the Nawáb Názim of Bengal, and for his protection against legal process, said:—

"As our time is short, and I intend to move at the next meeting of the Council that this Bill be passed into law, it will probably be convenient that I should now call attention to the mode in which the Committee has dealt with it. Hon'ble Members will then be quite prepared to move any amendment they may think desirable, or to say whether the Bill should pass in its present shape.

"In the first place, we have received several communications from creditors, who, I am glad to find, are generally well satisfied that the Government should have taken the affair in hand. They make, however, several suggestions which I will mention, together with the mode in which we have treated them.

"It has been pointed out that, though the Commission may go into evidence, they were not bound to do so, but that section ten of the Bill merely said that they should determine each case 'by agreement with the claimant or otherwise.' We have therefore made an alteration in section ten and have directed a due and full enquiry in default of agreement. Then, it has been asked that the Commission should sit in Calcutta. It seems to us, however, that it would be very inconvenient to tie them down to any particular place. One claim may be most conveniently investigated in Calcutta and another in Murshidábád. The Commissioners may think fit to sit sometimes in one place, sometimes in another; or they may find it best to have one place of sitting and to choose that in which the majority of claims can be most conveniently dealt with. It is clearly a matter which they should decide, which they can best decide when they have seen what the claims are, and in which we should not attempt to fetter their discretion. We have therefore provided in section two that they shall hold their sittings at such place or places, and time or times, as they think fit.

"Another alteration suggested is that there shall be an appeal to the High Court from the decisions of the Commissioners. Now, I think the Council will feel that this case is from beginning to end one of an exceptional kind, requiring an exceptional tribunal and exceptional treatment. In a comprehensive settlement of this kind with creditors, many considerations come in besides strictly legal ones, and we have expressly provided that the Commissioners shall certify, not what is legally due, but what on consideration of all the circumstances they may consider that each claimant ought in fairness and justice to receive. The creditors have not got a solvent debtor against whom they can enforce their legal claims. The Government steps in to pay them, and we expect to pay them more than they would ever get without our intervention; but we shall be astonished if it is not a great deal less than what is claimed. As men of the world, we perfectly well know that people lending their money in such cases as these make their bargains for much more than they ever expect to realize, because they run a risk of never being paid at all. When a solvent man steps in to pay such debts, and so to relieve the creditors of their risk, he pays rather with reference to the money actually advanced, and to a reasonable rate of interest on it, than to the actual terms of a written contract. And when we are told of loans at 48 per cent., and of frequent re-statements of account, we expect to find that the creditor will be very handsomely paid by something far short of the claim he can make on paper. Well, then, framing a Commission on these principles, to hold an even balance between the creditors and the Government, we should be stultifying ourselves by giving a general appeal to a Court of law which must decide on wholly different principles. The Commission must act as masters of the position, much as a solvent father would deal with the creditors of his insolvent son. The High Court would find itself quite unable to import into the case those elements of discretion which must govern it, if the arrangement is to be a fair one at all. Otherwise, we shall merely be pouring so much money quite gratuitously into the pockets of the creditors.

"It is, however, possible that, in order to satisfy themselves about the fairness and justice of a particular claim, the Commission may find it necessary to decide a question of law, and may think it doubtful and difficult enough to require the best opinion that can be had. So far, therefore, we have met the suggestions of the creditors, and we have inserted a clause for the purpose of enabling the Commissioners to state a case for the opinion of the High Court whenever an adequate legal difficulty arises. A further objection to the Bill is rested on the circumstance that it did not mention any time within which the Government should be at liberty to make payments to the certified creditor and to extinguish his claim. To meet this, we have altered section ten, and inasmuch as delay in payment may arise for the conduct of the creditor, we have provided that a tender, as well as a payment within the specified time, shall operate to extinguish the debt. Section ten now runs thus:—

'The Commissioners shall certify in each case the amount so determined, and upon the Governor General in Council, within six months from the date of the certificate, paying or tendering to any claimant the amount so certified, all claims of such claimant against the Nawáb Názim or his property shall be satisfied and extinguished.'

"There are two of the creditors who take rather a different line from the rest. They are persons who have already obtained judgments against the Nawáb Názim for very large sums of money, one for upwards of a lákh of rupees and the other for upwards of five lákhs. They say, that it is not clear on the face of the Bill that the judgments they have obtained shall be taken as conclusive evidence, so far as they go, of the amounts which the Commissioners ought to certify for them, and they desire that it should be made clear in their favour. Now, I certainly should have been somewhat mortified if, in a Bill carefully avoiding the use of legal technicalities directing a consideration of all circumstances and setting up the standard not of law, but of fairness and justice, any tribunal had held itself bound by a judgment which only tells us what is the proper construction of the contract between the parties. If a needy and reckless man borrows money at 50 per cent. compound interest at short rests, or acknowledges to the borrowing of money when he has received only pictures or jewellery or wine of questionable character, a Court of law may have nothing to do but to give the creditor his pound of flesh: it is so written down in the bond. But that is only one element; it may be a material, it may be a very immaterial, element, in the question between the creditors and the solvent man who steps forward to pay the debts they cannot otherwise get. One of the circumstances to consider in this case is that a judgment is one thing and the fruits of it another, and that these creditors cannot have what is decreed to them, nor can they have anything at all without much more litigation, expense and delay; and other circumstances may be that the money claimed as principal does not represent the true value given, nor the money claimed as interest, the real or reasonable expectations of the lender. I feel that I should be underrating the intelligence of these gentlemen if I made no allowance by anticipation for the existence of such circumstances. Many other circumstances may enter into the consideration of the Commission which I cannot anticipate. I will only repeat the observation I made with respect to the proposed appeal, that it would be stultifying ourselves to enter upon such a transaction as this, and, at the same time, to take the legal measure of the Nawáb Názim's liabilities as the first measure of our own.

"As, however, the contention of these gentlemen has informed us that some who have read this Bill have been left in uncertainty, whether it was intended to recognize a judicial decision as conclusive for the purposes of this settlement or for any, but its own purposes, we have taken the precaution of inserting in section ten that the Commissioners are not to be bound by any previous agreement or proceedings.

"There is one other alteration to which I should draw attention. I explained on a previous occasion that certain jewels and certain lands were enjoyed by the Nawáb Názim for the time being, but were not his private property, being held as State property for the purpose of maintaining the dignity of the Nizámat from generation to generation; and that there were disputes what land and what jewels fall within that category, and that the Government was thus necessarily brought into the litigation. Well, as we are going to have a Commission which will enquire into a portion of the Nawáb Názim's affairs, it seemed to us desirable to take the opportunity of obtaining an authoritative declaration ascertaining once for all the particulars of which the Nizamut property consists, and so facilitating future arrangements with the Nawáb Názim. No doubt the Government will thereby run a chance of losing some property to which it has repeatedly asserted its title, but the benefit of certainty appears to us to outweigh this chance of loss. We have provided in section twelve that—

"I think there is no other material alteration to which I need call the attention of the Council. It may, however, be proper to mention that a letter has been received from one of the sons of the Nawáb Názim who is managing his affairs in this country, in which he says, that it is impossible for him not to approve the general principles of this measure, or not to be sensible of the generosity and beneficence of the objects proposed to be secured by it. He, however, dwells much upon the evil of a public investigation of the Nawáb Názim's affairs, and begs that the Bill may be so modified as to enable himself to accomplish the purpose within twelve months. Now, I have no cause to speak of this young nobleman in any terms but terms of respect; but I must frankly say that he has not the age or experience or knowledge of the world which would enable him to conduct a business of this kind to a successful issue; and that he has not hitherto in his dealings with the creditors displayed any such force of character as might compensate for the disadvantages of youth and inexperience. Seeing the distressing situation in which he is placed, I cannot help sympathizing with him or feeling that his request is a very natural one. At the same time, we are certain to make a mess of this case, unless we treat it as men of business'; and I am sure that it will not be for the benefit of anybody that the conduct of it should be committed to any but strong and skilful hands."

The Council then adjourned to Monday, the 24th November 1873.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—GENERAL.

Camp Lucknow, the 8th December 1873.

No. 4C.—In accepting the resignation by Major General L. Barrow, C. B., of his appointment of Chief Commissioner in Oudh, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General desires to express his regret that Major General Barrow has been compelled by ill health to sever his connection with a province with which, for a period of 17 years, his name has been associated, both as a gallant soldier and an able administrator. Appointed as a Special Commissioner at the close of the Indian Mutiny, General Barrow was charged with the temporary settlement of Oudh, and his exertions and influence with all classes of the people and more particularly with the talookdars contributed materially to the restoration of peace and order throughout the province. After filling the post of Financial Commissioner, General Barrow officiated twice as Chief Commissioner, and was finally confirmed in that appointment. By his resignation, Her Majesty the Queen has lost the services of a distinguished officer, and the people of Oudh a sincere friend.

No. 5C.—APPOINTMENT.—Sir G. E. W. Couper, Baronet, C. B., of the Bengal Civil Service, Officiating Chief Commissioner of Oudh, to be Chief Commissioner, vice Major General Barrow, C. B.

No. 1230 of 1873.—The following addendum to G. G. O. No. 1077 of 1871 is published for general information and guidance :—

XI. Soldiers, including time-expired men and invalids and their families, are debarred from drawing the annual bedding issuable on the 1st October, if they are under orders for England, but they will receive the ship bedding instead, under General Order No. 201 of 1866. Those to whom the triennial issues of blankets and cotton suttrunjees were not due on the 1st October, when under orders for embarkation, will be allowed no compensation for such articles, but may receive compensation only for 1 cotton sheet (Rs. 0-13-7) in lieu of this annual issue in kind, according to the proportions specified hereafter, for periods of detention extending to three months and upwards. Only those who were entitled to the triennial issues of the English blanket and cotton suttrunjee when under orders for embarkation, will be granted compensation for such articles, and for the cotton sheet annually due, calculated at the annual average rates (specified in the margin for the sake of illustration) which will be fixed annually, and in the following proportions thereof, according to periods of detention beyond 1st October, viz. :—

	Rs.	A.	P.
1 English blanket triennially ...	2	10	4
1 cotton suttrunjee triennially ..	1	9	3
1 cotton sheet annually for three years, at Rs. 0-13-7 ...	2	8	9
Total for 3 years...	6	12	4
Annual average .	2	4	1

Detentions for less than three months, no compensation.

Detentions for three and less than six months, one-fourth compensation.

Detentions beyond six months, half compensation.

Should the triennial blanket be due to invalids on 1st October when under orders for embarkation, and the state of the men's health and bedding in use require it, a blanket may be issued, but no compensation will be allowed for the sheet or suttrunjee if due.

Admission of Stock other than for competition.—By special permission of the Managing Committee, persons desirous of exhibiting horse stock (not intended to compete for prizes) will be permitted to do so on a payment of Rs. 16 per head, provided stabling can be found for them.

4. Intending Exhibitors must apply for stalls by post in an envelope addressed—

"To the Joint Secretaries,

Calcutta Horse Show, 1874,"

so as to be received by them not later than the 15th December 1873. On receipt of such applications printed forms will be furnished to the Owners or Exhibitors, to be filled in by them and returned at once to the Joint Secretaries, who will then allot stalls or boxes for the horses described.

5. Superintendent.—A Superintendent and four European Assistants will be appointed by the Managing Committee to undertake the stable management of the Show-yard. It will be his duty to point out the stalls allotted to the Exhibitors, and to see that all orders issued by the Committee are thoroughly and promptly carried out.

6. Date of receipt of Horses.—Horses sent for exhibition will be received by a Veterinary Surgeon and the Superintendent of the Horse Show on Wednesday, the 7th of January 1874, any time before noon of that day.

7. Health Certificate.—A health certificate, signed by a Veterinary Surgeon, must accompany every horse when first brought to the Horse Show lines. The Veterinary Surgeon attending on the part of Government will also inspect each horse before being finally admitted.

8. Grooms.—Exhibitors are required to engage a reliable groom (syce) for each horse, and it is expected that either the attendant or a substitute will remain night and day at his post.

9. Attention to Regulations.—All attendants must conform to the rules and regulations issued by the Managing Committee; copies will be furnished to the Exhibitors, and will also be posted on the walls of the stables.

10. Complaints.—Complaints may be lodged at any time at the office of the Superintendent, either verbally or in writing, in a book to be kept for the purpose.

11. Complaint Book.—Persons able to read and write will have to enter their complaints in the book; minor complaints will be settled by the Superintendent on the spot; those of a more serious nature will be treated by the Managing Committee.

12. Illness of Horses.—In case of illness of any horse the Owner or Exhibitor must provide medical attendance.

13. All the horses will be daily inspected by a Veterinary Surgeon.

14. All possible care will be taken of horses exhibited, but the Superintendent cannot be held responsible for any injury or accident which may occur.

15. Forage and Grain.—Forage, grain, and water for the stock will be provided by the Exhibitors.

16. Smoking prohibited.—Smoking is strictly prohibited in the stables; particular attention is requested to this rule, which is considered imperatively necessary for the safety of the cattle.

17. Stabling.—A loose stall or box will be provided for each animal so exhibited.

18. Location of Mares.—Every lot of six mares will be stabled close to each other.

19. Inspection by Judges.—The Judges will inspect and examine horses entered for prize competition on Thursday, 8th, Friday, 9th, and Saturday, 10th, of January 1874.

20. Exclusion of Visitors during inspection by Judges.—Under no circumstances will any person be permitted to be within the precincts of the premises at the time of inspection, except grooms (syces) who will be appointed by the Judges to bring up each horse for examination.

21. Owners and Exhibitors similarly excluded.—Owners and Exhibitors are debarred from the privilege of being present as much as the public generally.

22. Horses how to be inspected.—The horses will be brought up without clothing, so that they may not be recognized by any initials or distinctive marks.

23. Judges how guided in arriving at decision.—Exhibitors are informed that Judges in arriving at their decision will be guided by the following points:—

1*st.*—That under the terms of Military Department Government Notification of the 4th of February last, no prize will be given unless the horses exhibited come up to a high standard of excellence. Importers and competitors are informed that the Judges will be considerably guided by good measurement of girth and leg and blood, combined with power; animals wanting in such essential points will have no chance of obtaining a prize.

2*nd.*—The horses will be judged as to their merits under the several heads of—

A.—Soundness.	C.—General conformation.
B.—Blood and power.	D.—Action.

E.—Condition.

The maximum number of marks being 100.

3*rd.*—"The best horse" must be perfectly sound, but any serious blemish, the result of accident, will be weighed by the Judges.

4*th.*—Each mare of every lot must be sound for all working and brood purposes.

5*th.*—If any mis-information is furnished by an Exhibitor in respect of the animals owned or exhibited by him, the whole of his stock will be disqualified for prizes, and will be at once removed from the Show premises. Admission to the Show will be refused to any person coming within the terms of this rule.

6*th.*—The decision of Judges to be final.

24. Judges' Report.—The Judges' report of their inspection will be prepared and printed by Saturday evening, the 10th of January 1874, but will be confidential until read to His Excellency the Viceroy on the formal opening of the Show.

25. Necessity of Exhibitors' servants attending to Rules.—Particular attention must be given by all Exhibitors to the necessity of their servants carrying out all the rules which may be laid down for efficient sanitary arrangements.

26. Fire Engine.—A fire engine [illegible] to work it, will be on the premises, and a party [illegible] Exhibition.

27. Police arrangements.—The Commissioner of Police will arrange with the Managing Committee (Judges) [illegible] for such number of Police as may be requisite for the protection of property and the preservation of [illegible]

28. Lights other than those supplied by Committee prohibited.—Stable lanterns will be provided by the Committee and placed under the orders of the Superintendent. Other lights or lanterns or fire of any kind will not be permitted within the stabling.

29. Removal of Horses if attacked with disease.—The Managing Committee are empowered, if they deem it necessary, to direct the removal of a horse attacked with any contagious disease.

30. Removal of Horses when prohibited.—No horse brought for exhibition, even in the event of its having been sold, will be allowed to be removed until the Exhibition is closed.

31. Final removal from Show.—Horses must be removed the day following the closing of the Exhibition.

32. Objections.—Any objection to horses exhibited must be made and proved to the satisfaction of the Stewards the day before the prizes are awarded.

33. Objection made after award of Prize.—Objections made after the award of prizes will not be attended to during the present Show, but will be recorded against future exhibition of the horses objected to.

34. Onus of proving objection.—The onus of proving an objection will be wholly and entirely on the person making it. All objections must be made in writing.

By Order of the Committee,

M. J. TURNBULL, Col., } Joint
J. A. CRAWFORD, } Secretaries.

An Act to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for other purposes.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and for the police, conservancy and local improvements, and for education, and for the levying of rates and taxes, in the places to which this Act may be extended; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to the territories for the time being respectively under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces and under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Acts Nos. XVIII of 1864 (to provide for the appointment of a Municipal Committee for the City of Lucknow), XXII of 1865 (to amend Act No. XVIII of 1864), XV of 1867 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the Panjáb, and for other purposes), and VI of 1868 (to make better provision for the appointment of Municipal Committees in the North-Western Provinces, and for other purposes) are repealed.

But all extensions and appointments made, and all limits defined, under any of the said Acts, shall be deemed to be respectively made and defined under this Act.

And all assessments, bye-laws, rules and regulations of any kind relating to matters provided for by this Act, which may heretofore have been made and approved by the Local Government, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act.

And all proceedings taken under any such assessment, bye-law, rule or regulation, shall be deemed to be as valid as if they had been taken under this Act.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Committee."

"Committee" means a Municipal Committee appointed under the provisions of this Act; and

"Municipality."

"Municipality" means any town or towns to which this Act may be extended.

Power to extend Act.

4. The Local Government may, by notification published in the local official Gazette, declare its intention to extend this Act, or any of its provisions, to any town or towns in the territories under such Government.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such extension may, within six weeks from the date of the said publication, send his objection in writing to the Secretary to the Local Government, and the Local Government shall take such objection into consideration.

When six weeks from the said publication have expired, the Local Government, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in its opinion, they are insufficient, may, by like notification, effect the proposed extension.

Power to define limits of places to which Act extends.

5. For the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, define the limits of any town, and may include within the limits of such town any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity:

Provided that no cantonment shall, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, be included within the limits of any town for the purposes of this Act.

The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the local official Gazette, declare to be united for the purposes of this Act any two or more towns, and may also declare by what name the municipality so formed shall be designated.

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT OF MUNICIPAL COMMITTEES.

Appointment of Committees.

6. In any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, the Local Government may appoint or direct to be appointed by election, for such period, not exceeding two years, as to it may seem fit, any number of the inhabitants of, or of persons possessing property or carrying on any trade or business in, such municipality, to be members of a Committee for carrying out the purposes of the Act.

The persons so appointed shall continue in office for two years, or until their successors shall have been appointed, and shall be eligible for re-appointment.

In cases where the Local Government directs the appointment to be by election, it may fix the time and manner of the election and the qualifications of the electors, and of the candidates for office, and, generally, may make such rules as it thinks fit for regulating the election.

Removal of members.

7. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any of the members of the Committee so appointed who desire to be discharged, or refuse or become incapable to act, or are convicted of an offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of not less than six months.

Addition of members.

8. The Local Government may also fill up vacancies occurring among the members of the Committee, and may, if it think fit, on the recommendation of the Committee, add to their number.

Every member so appointed shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same liabilities, and vacate his office, and be eligible for re-appointment, as if he had been originally appointed a member under section six.

Ex officio members.

9. In addition to the members appointed as aforesaid, the Local Government shall have power to appoint ex officio members of the Committee for every place in which they exercise their offices and to which this Act shall have been extended:

Provided that the number of such ex officio members shall not be more than one-third of the total number of the Committee.

Appointment of president and vice-president.

10. The Local Government may also appoint the president and vice-president, or either of them, of any Committee, or sanction the election by any Committee of one of their members as president or as vice-president.

Appointment of secretary.

The Committee may appoint any one of their members or any other person to be their secretary.

Notification of appointments and removals of members.

11. All appointments and removals of members of a Committee, made under this chapter, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

CHAPTER III.

OFFICE AND MEETINGS OF COMMITTEES.

Committee to have an office.

12. The Committee shall have an office, where they shall meet for the transaction of business at least once in every month.

Rules as to meetings.

13. (a). The president, or, in his absence, the vice-president, shall take the chair at every meeting of the Committee. In the absence of both the president and vice-president, the members present may elect a chairman for the occasion.

(b). The meetings shall be either general or special.

(c). The president or vice-president may, whenever he thinks fit, and he shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members, convene a meeting.

(d). Notice shall be given of every such meeting, and when the meeting is to be special, at least three days' notice thereof shall be given. Every notice shall state generally the nature of the business to be transacted at the meeting proposed to be called.

(e). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a general meeting shall be three.

(f). The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting shall be one-half of the total number of the members of the Committee at the time of the meeting; and at least two-thirds of such quorum shall consist of non-official members.

(g). If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if summoned by the president or vice-president, shall be dissolved.

In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place. And if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

(h). All business may be transacted at a general meeting which this Act does not require to be transacted at a special meeting.

(i). All questions which may come before the Committee at any meetings shall be decided by a majority of votes. Every member shall have one vote. In case of equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

(j). Such decisions shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be published in some local English or vernacular newspaper (if any), or in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Correspondence between Committee and Local Government.

14. All correspondence between the Committee and the Local Government shall pass through the Commissioner of the Division.

The Commissioner of the Division shall be entitled to make such suggestions for the consideration of the Committee as he may deem fit; and the Committee shall furnish him with any information he may call for connected with the duties imposed upon them by this Act.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS OF COMMITTEES.

Power to make assessments and levy taxes.

15. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may from time to time make in this behalf, every Committee intending to impose taxes for the purposes of this Act, shall from time to time give notice of such intention, and shall in such notice define the persons or property within the municipality to be taxed for the purposes of this Act, and the amount or rate of the taxes to be imposed hereunder.

Any inhabitant of such town objecting to such notice may, within a fortnight from the date of the said notice, send his objection in writing to the chairman of the Committee, and the Committee shall take such objection into consideration and report their opinion thereon to the Local Government.

When a fortnight from the date of the said notice has expired, if no such objections have been sent as aforesaid, or (where such objections have been so sent in) if, in the opinion of the Committee, they are insufficient, the Committee may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to be notified in the official Gazette, define the persons or property to be taxed and the amount or rate of the taxes aforesaid, and may then at a special meeting impose such taxes accordingly.

The Committee may, at a special meeting, with the same sanction, cancel or vary any tax so imposed.

Specification of taxes.

16. Such taxes may (subject to the rules or orders last aforesaid) be all or any of the following:—

(a).—A tax on houses, buildings and lands according to the annual value thereof, not exceeding seven and a half per cent. of such value:

(b).—A tax on professions and trades:

(c).—Taxes on carriages, horses, mules, elephants, camels, bullocks and asses:

(d).—Tolls on carriages, carts, and animals entering the limits of the municipality:

(e).—An octroi on articles brought within the said limits for consumption or use therein: Provided that a list of such articles shall have been submitted to and approved by the Local Government: Provided also, that the Local Government may exempt from the octroi any such articles intended for consumption or use by any class of persons or animals.

Imposition of other taxes.

17. If the Committee desire to impose any other or further tax than such as are hereinbefore specified, they may do so with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, and subject to the provisions of section fifteen.

Taxes to be confirmed.

18. No tax shall be collected until the assessment thereof has been confirmed by such persons and in such manner as the Local Government appoints in this behalf.

Rules for confirmation and collection of taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the persons by whom, and the manner in which, any assessment of taxes under this Act shall be confirmed, and for the collection of such taxes.

The Local Government may, from time to time, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

No tax or rate invalid for defect of form.

19. No tax, or toll, or rate on property, made under this Act shall be invalid for defect of form; and it shall be enough, in any such rate on property, or any assessment of value for the purpose of making such rate, if the property rated or assessed shall be so described as to be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

Bye-laws and Rules.

Power of Committees to make bye-laws.

20. Every Committee may at a special meeting make bye-laws consistent with this Act, for regulating the time and place of their meeting, the conduct of their business, the division of duties among the members of the Committee, the salaries, appointment, suspension and removal of the officers and servants of the Committee, and other similar matters.

Enforcement of bye-laws and rules.

21. The Committee may appoint one or more of their number to carry out their resolutions, and to enforce the bye-laws and rules made, under the provisions of this Act, for the protection of the public health, or they may appoint a special officer for such purposes.

Power to make rules as to nuisances, hire of carriages, and registration of births, marriages and deaths.

22. The Committee may at a special meeting make rules for declaring what acts or omissions within the municipality shall be considered to be public nuisances;

for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which the officers of the Committee may enter upon private property for the detection and abatement of nuisances;

for determining the rates of hire of carriages, carts and boats plying for hire within the limits of the municipality,

for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths, and for carrying out all or any of the purposes of this Act.

The Committee may from time to time, at a special meeting, repeal, alter or add to such rules.

Confirmation of rules.

23. No rule, and no alteration or repeal of, or addition to, a rule, made under this Act, shall have effect until it has been confirmed by the Local Government.

Publication of rules and bye-laws.

24. All bye-laws and rules made under this Act, and all alterations and repeals of, and additions to, such bye-laws and rules shall be published for such length of time and in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

Nuisances.

Power to prohibit repetition or continuance of nuisances.

25. Every Committee may enjoin within the limits of the municipality any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance.

Every such injunction shall be deemed to have been made by a public servant.

Power to remove nuisances.

26. Every Committee which the Local Government authorizes in this behalf may, so long as such authorization continues, exercise the powers of a Magistrate of a District, as described in section five hundred and twenty-one of the Code of Criminal Procedure, for the removal of nuisances; and in the exercise of such powers shall follow the procedure prescribed in sections five hundred and twenty-one to five hundred and twenty-eight (both inclusive) of the same Code.

Purchase and Sale of Land.

Power to buy and sell land for purposes of Act.

27. Any Committee may at a special meeting, and with the previous sanction of the Local Government, purchase land for the purposes of this Act, and may at a like meeting and with the like sanction, sell any portion of such land which is not required for the purposes aforesaid, and convey the same in the names of the president and two of the members of the Committee.

Receipts.

The receipt of the president and any two members of the Committee for any monies paid to them upon any such sale, shall effectually discharge the persons paying the same therefrom, or from being concerned to see to the application thereof, or being accountable for the non-application or misapplication thereof; and the proceeds of any such sale shall be applied for the purposes of this Act.

Controlling Power of Local Government.

Cancellation and suspension of proceedings of Committee.

28. The Local Government may by order cancel, suspend or limit any of the acts, proceedings, bye-laws or rules of any Committee.

Conduct of litigation.

To every suit or other proceeding brought against a Committee, the Local Government shall be made a party.

29. The Local Government may also abolish any tax which shall have been sanctioned under the provisions hereinbefore contained, but not so as to entitle any person to a refund of money paid in respect of such tax.

Abolition of taxes.

CHAPTER V.

RIGHTS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Fund.

30. All sums received by the Committee of any municipality to which this Act extends, and all fines levied under this Act, or under Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), on account of nuisances committed within the municipal limits, and all receipts from property entrusted to and managed by the Committee, shall constitute a fund which shall be called the Municipal Fund of such municipality, and shall, together with all property which may become vested in such Committee, be under their control, and shall be applied by them as trustees for the purposes of this Act.

Municipal Fund.

31. The Municipal Fund shall, as a rule, be kept in the Government Treasury of the District, or in the Bank (if any) to which the Government Treasury business shall have been made over.

Custody and disbursement of Municipal Fund.

But in places where there is no such Treasury or Bank, the said fund may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, be deposited with any Banker, or person acting as a Banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government in each case thinks sufficient.

No disbursement of the Municipal Fund, or any part thereof, shall be made except under the signature of the president or vice-president and one other member of the Committee.

32. Every Committee, so far as the Municipal Fund at their disposal will permit, shall, after providing out of such fund for a police establishment in the manner hereinafter mentioned, keep the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and water-courses of the municipality for which they are appointed, clean and in repair,

Duties and powers of Committees.

and may cause such streets and roads or any of them to be watered and lighted, and may construct and provide for the management of poor-houses, dispensaries, market-places and other works of general utility,

and, generally, may do all acts and things necessary for the purposes of conservancy and general utility within their municipality.

The Committee may also make provision, by the establishment of new schools or the aiding of already existing schools, or otherwise, for the promotion of education in their municipality.

33. Every contract made on behalf of any Committee in respect of any sum exceeding twenty rupees, or in respect of any property exceeding twenty rupees in value, shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the president or vice-president and at least two other members of the Committee, of whom one shall be an ex officio member. Unless so executed, it shall not be binding on the Committee.

Contracts.

Municipal Police.

34. Every Committee shall provide in the first place, from its funds, for the maintenance of the police establishment in the municipality.

Provision for police.

The municipal police shall be appointed under such Act of the Governor General in Council as may be applicable to the town, and their number shall be fixed by the Committee in consultation with the Inspector General of Police, subject to the final decision of the Local Government.

35. Every officer of police in any municipality to which this Act shall have been extended, may take into custody without a warrant any person who, within his view, commits any of the offences mentioned in section thirty-four of Act No. V of 1861 (for the regulation of Police), and shall carry out the orders issued by the Committee for the prohibition and prevention of public nuisances, or nuisances declared to be such by any rule made under this Act.

Police to aid in carrying out orders regarding nuisances.

Annual Reports and Accounts.

36. Every Committee shall annually, or oftener if directed by the Local Government to do so, submit reports of all works executed, or proceedings taken, by them under the authority of this Act, and also accounts of and relating to the Municipal Fund.

Annual reports and accounts to be submitted.

Such accounts shall be examined or audited in such manner as the Local Government from time to time prescribes.

The Committee shall also submit, at such time and in such form as may be directed by the Local Government, an estimate of their probable receipts for the financial year next following, with proposals for their expenditure.

An abstract of such estimate and proposals shall, on being so submitted, be published in such manner as the Local Government from time to time directs.

37. The Local Government may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act, as to the cost and the class of works which the Committee may execute, and the Committee shall be legally bound to obey such rules.

Rules as to cost and class of works.

Public Highways.

38. All public highways in any municipality in which this Act is in force, not specially reserved by Government, together with all erections thereon and all materials thereof, shall be vested in and belong to the Committee.

Right of Committee in public highways.

Land required for Public Purposes.

39. When any land within the limits of any municipality to which this Act is extended is required for the construction or improvement of a highway, for the promotion of the healthiness of the neighbourhood, or for any other public purpose, if the Committee cannot agree with the owner for the purchase thereof, the Local Government, on the recommendation of the Committee, may notify in the local official Gazette that such land is required under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870;

Acquisition of land for municipal purposes.

and, on payment by the Committee of the compensation awarded under such Act, the land shall vest in them for the purposes of this Act.

Suits by and against Committees.

Suits by and against Committees.

40. Every Committee shall sue and be sued in the name of their president.

Members not personally liable for contracts made by Committee.

41. No member of a Committee shall be personally liable for any contract made or expense incurred by or on behalf of the Committee, but the funds from time to time in the hands of the Committee shall be liable for and chargeable with all contracts made in the manner above provided for.

Liability of members for breach of trust.

42. Every member of a Committee shall be liable for any misapplication of money entrusted to the Committee to which he has been a party, or which happens through, or is facilitated by, the neglect of his duty; and he shall be liable to be sued for the same in such Court as the Local Government directs, as for money due to Government.

Notice previous to suing Committee or their officers.

43. No suit shall be brought against a Committee or any of their officers, or any person acting under their direction, for anything done under this Act, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of the Committee, or at the place of abode of such person, stating the cause of suit and the name and place of abode of the intending plaintiff.

Unless such notice be proved, the Court shall find for the defendant.

Every such suit shall be commenced within three months next after the accrual of the cause of suit and not afterwards.

If any person to whom any such notice is given shall, before suit is brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover.

CHAPTER VI.

PENALTIES AND PROSECUTIONS AND RECOVERY OF TAXES.

Penalty on member or servant of Committee being interested in contracts made with Committee.

44. No member of a Committee, or servant of a Committee, shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract made with the Committee, and if any such person be so interested, he shall thereby become incapable of continuing in office or in employment as such member or servant, and shall be liable to a fine of five hundred rupees:

Provided that no person shall by reason of being a shareholder in or member of any incorporated or registered Company be deemed interested in any contract entered into between such Company and the Committee.

Penalty for infringement of rules or non-payment of fines.

45. Whoever infringes any rule made by a Committee and confirmed as directed in this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and in the case of a continuing infringement, to a fine not exceeding five rupees for every day after notice from the Committee of such infringement.

In default of payment of any fine imposed under this section, the defaulter shall, in the case of a continuing infringement, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month; and in any other case, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding eight days.

Prosecutions.

46. Prosecutions under this Act for infringements of rules may be instituted before any Magistrate by the Committee or any person authorized by the Committee in this behalf.

Recovery of taxes.

47. All arrears of taxes imposed under this Act may be recovered as if they were fines, in the manner prescribed in section three hundred and seven of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[Third Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 21st November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XVI OF 1873.

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Village and Road Police in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

So far as regards the repeal of Act No. III of 1869, this Act extends to the whole of British India: the rest of this Act extends only to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Repeal of enactments.

2. Act No. III of 1869 (for the maintenance of the Rural Police in the North-Western Provinces) and so much of section twenty-one of Bengal Regulation XX of 1817, and of form No. 6 of the Appendix thereto, as relates to the Village Watchmen of the North-Western Provinces, are hereby repealed.

II.—Appointment of Village Police.

Right of nomination of Village Policemen.

3. The nomination to the post of Village Policeman shall be made by the zamíndár of the village, or, where there are more zamíndárs than one, by the lambardár as their representative, and where there are more lambardárs than one, the opinion of the majority (unless there is some special provision to the contrary in the village administration paper) shall prevail.

Obligation to nominate.

4. Every person authorized to nominate to the office of Village Policeman shall, within fifteen days after the occurrence of a vacancy in such office, nominate a proper person to the vacant post, and communicate the nomination to the Magistrate of the District.

Discretion to appoint or reject nominee.

5. The person so nominated shall, after due enquiry into his age, character and ability, be appointed or rejected at discretion by such Magistrate, or by some officer authorized by him in that behalf.

Power to Magistrate to appoint.

6.—(a.) In default of such nomination within the said fifteen days, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

Procedure in case of rejection of nominee.

(b.) If the nomination has been made within the said fifteen days, but the nominee is rejected, the person authorized to nominate shall, within fifteen days from the date of such rejection, nominate another person to the vacant post; and in default of such nomination, or if such nomination has been made, but the nominee is again rejected, the Magistrate of the District shall appoint such person as he thinks fit to the vacancy.

III.—Appointment of Road Police.

Appointment of Road Police.

7. Subject to the rules to be framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, the Magistrate of the District may, from time to time, appoint persons to be the Road Police of his District.

IV.—Duties of Village and Road Police.

Duties of Village and Road Policemen.

8. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman shall perform the following duties :—

(a.) He shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station appointed for his village or beat,

(1.) of every unnatural, suspicious, or sudden death occurring in the village of which he is Chaukídár, or within his beat;

(2.) of each of the following offences occurring in such village or on such beat, (that is to say) murder, culpable homicide, rape, dacoity, theft, robbery, mischief by fire, house-breaking, counterfeiting coin, causing grievous hurt, riot, harbouring a proclaimed offender, exposure of a child, concealment of birth, administering stupefying drugs, kidnapping, lurking house-trespass, and

(3.) of all attempts and preparations to commit, and abetments of, any of the said offences.

(b.) He shall keep the Police informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to any riot or serious affray.

(c.) He shall arrest all proclaimed offenders, and all persons whom he may find in the act of committing any offence specified in paragraph (a), clause (2) of this section.

(d.) He shall observe, and from time to time report to the officer in charge of the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat may be situate, the movements of all bad characters in or on such village or beat.

(e.) He shall report to the officer in charge of such police-station the arrival of suspicious characters in the neighbourhood.

(f.) He shall supply to the best of his ability any local information which a Magistrate or any officer of Police may require, and shall promptly execute all orders issued to him by competent authority.

Procedure on arrest by Village or Road Policeman.

9. Whenever a Village Policeman or Road Policeman arrests any person, he shall take him as soon as possible to the police-station within the jurisdiction of which his village or beat is situate.

V.—Liabilities of Village and Road Police.

Dismissal of Village or Road Policeman.

10. The Magistrate of the District may dismiss any Village Policeman or Road Policeman for any misconduct or neglect of duty.

Acts punishable.

11. Every Village Policeman and every Road Policeman guilty of any wilful misconduct in his office, or of neglect of duty, such misconduct or neglect not being an offence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, or withdrawing from the duties of his office without permission, and without having given at least two months' notice of his intention to withdraw from such duties to the persons authorized to nominate or appoint under sections three and seven (as the case may be),

or offering any unnecessary personal violence to any person in his custody, or violating any of the rules framed under section fourteen and for the time being in force, Penalty.

shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding three months' pay, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both.

Fines to be credited to such fund as Government appoints.

12. All fines levied under this Act on Village Policemen or Road Policemen shall be credited to such fund as the Local Government from time to time appoints.

VI.—Miscellaneous.

Orders of Magistrate of District subject to control of Commissioner.

13. All orders of, and appointments made by, the Magistrate of the District under section five, six, seven or ten, shall be subject to control, revision and alteration by the Commissioner to whom he is subordinate.

Power to make subsidiary rules.

14. The Local Government may from time to time frame rules

(a) for the discipline of the Village and Road Police,

(b) for regulating their numbers, location and duties, and

(c) for carrying out generally the purposes of this Act.

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th November 1873, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XVII OF 1873.

An Act to provide for the liquidation of the debts of the Nawáb Názim of Bengal, and for his protection against legal process.

Preamble.

WHEREAS divers large pecuniary claims have been made against Sayyid Mansúr 'Alí, the present Nawáb Názim of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, commonly called the Nawáb Názim, which he has not the means of satisfying, and for the purpose of recovering such claims divers suits have been brought against him, and divers attachments have been issued against his property in India:

And whereas, with respect to certain jewels and immoveable property, it is disputed whether they belong absolutely to the said Nawáb Názim or are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and litigation has consequently arisen between the creditors of the present Nawáb Názim and the Government of India:

And whereas the Government of India is desirous of freeing the said Nawáb Názim and his property respectively from such suits and attachments, and of discharging such portions of the said claims as are proper to be paid, and of settling the said dispute as to the said jewels and immoveable property:

And whereas in the meantime and for the future, it is expedient to exempt the said Nawáb Názim, except as hereinafter mentioned, from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, and to render him incapable of contracting further pecuniary obligations;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Nawáb Názim's Debts Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends to all persons and places for whom and for which the Governor General in Council has power to make laws;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force at once.

Power to appoint Commission.

2. The Governor General in Council may from time to time nominate and appoint such persons as he thinks fit to be a Commission for the purposes hereinafter mentioned.

All persons so nominated and appointed (hereinafter called "the Commissioners") shall continue to be members of the said Commission during the pleasure of the Governor General in Council, and shall hold their sittings at such place or places and time or times as they think fit.

Notice to claimants.

3. The Commissioners shall publish thrice in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Calcutta Gazette in English, Urdú and Bengáli, and in such other mode and languages as they think fit, a notice calling upon all persons having claims against the said Nawáb Názim or his property, whether moveable or immoveable, to notify the same in writing to the Commissioners within six months from the date of the earliest of such publications.

Bar of debts not duly notified.

4. Every debt or liability to which the said Nawáb Názim is subject, or with which his property, or any part thereof, is charged, and which is not duly notified to the Commissioners within the time and in the manner hereinbefore mentioned, shall be barred:

Proviso.

Provided that, on sufficient cause being shown to the Commissioners, they may admit such claim within the further period of six months from the expiration of the said period of six months.

Particulars of claim.

5. Every such claimant shall along with his claim present full particulars thereof.

Every document on which he founds his claims, or on which he relies in support thereof, shall be delivered to the Commissioners along with the claim.

Entries in books.

If the document be an entry in any book, the claimant shall produce the book to the Commissioners, together with a copy of the entry on which he relies. The Commissioners shall mark the book for the purpose of identification, and after examining and comparing the copy with the original, shall return the book to the claimant.

Exclusion of documents not produced.

If any document in the possession or under the control of the claimant is not delivered or produced by him to the Commissioners along with the claim, the Commissioners may refuse to receive such document in evidence on the claimant's behalf at the investigation of the case.

May call for or admit any further evidence.

The Commissioners may, from time to time, call for further and more detailed particulars of any claim preferred before them under this Act, and may at their discretion refuse to proceed with the investigation of the claim until such particulars are supplied.

Power of Commissioners to summon witnesses.

6. For the purposes of this Act, the Commissioners may summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses, and compel them to give evidence, and compel the production of documents by the same means, and, as far as possible, in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Civil Court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Investigation to be a judicial proceeding.

7. Every investigation conducted by the Commissioners, with reference to any claim preferred before them under this Act, or to any matter connected with any such claim, shall be deemed a judicial proceeding within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

And every statement made by any person examined by or before the Commissioners with reference to such investigation, whether upon oath or otherwise, shall be deemed to be evidence within the meaning of the same Code.

Expenses of witnesses.

8. Every witness required by the Commissioners, except at the instance of a claimant, to attend and give evidence under the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to a reasonable sum (to be allowed by the Commissioners) for his expenses in travelling to and from, and remaining at, the place at which he is required to attend.

Commissioners to determine amount due to each claimant.

9. The Commissioners shall, by agreement with the claimant or, in default of such agreement, after due and full enquiry, determine the amount which, on the consideration of all the circumstances, they may consider each claimant ought in fairness and justice to receive. And in coming to such determination, they shall not be bound by any previous agreement or judicial proceeding.

Sum found due to be certified to Government.

10. The Commissioners shall certify in each case the amount so determined, and upon the Governor General in Council, within six months from the date of the certificate, paying or tendering to any claimant the amount so certified, all claims of such claimant against the Nawáb Názim or his property shall be satisfied and extinguished.

Bar of suits against Nawáb Názim.

11. No suit shall be commenced or prosecuted, and no writ or process shall at any time be sued for against the person or property of the said Nawáb Názim, unless such suit be commenced, or such writ or process be sued for, with the consent of the Governor General in Council first had and obtained.

Such consent shall be certified by the signature of one of the Secretaries to the Government of India, and every such signature shall be judicially noticed.

And any suit which at any time shall have been, or shall be, commenced, and any writ or process which at any time shall have been, or shall be, sued for, against the person or property of the said Nawáb Názim, shall be of no effect unless and until the consent of the Governor General in Council certified in manner aforesaid is obtained.

Commissioners to ascertain the property held by Government for upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim's family.

12. The Commissioners shall ascertain what jewels and immoveable property are held by the Government of India for the purpose of upholding the dignity of the Nawáb Názim for the time being, and shall certify the particulars of such jewels and property; and their finding thereon shall be binding and conclusive on all persons whomsoever.

Power to refer questions of law to High Court.

13. If any question of law, or as to the construction of a document, arises in any case under this Act, and the Commissioners think it necessary for the purposes of fairness and justice to obtain a judicial opinion thereon, they may draw up a statement of the case and refer it for the decision of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William; and the provisions of sections twenty-four and twenty-five and of the first sentence of section twenty-six of Act No. XI of 1865 shall apply as if, in section twenty-six, for the word "Court," the word "Commissioners" were substituted.

And if, in the opinion of the High Court, the statement is imperfectly framed, the High Court may return it for amendment; and the costs (if any) consequent on any such reference shall be dealt with as the Commissioners shall in each case direct.

Nawáb Názim to be incapable of contracting.

14. The said Nawáb Názim shall be incapable of entering into any contract which may give rise to any pecuniary obligation on his part.

Saving of Secretary of State in Council.

15. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to render the Secretary of State for India in Council, or the Government of India, liable for any debt heretofore contracted by, or on behalf of, the said Nawáb Názim, or in respect of any claim to be reimbursed, which may be made by any person supplying him with necessaries.

Bar of suit for acts done bonâ fide.

16. No suit or other proceeding shall be maintained against any person in respect of anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Agra, on Monday, the 24th November 1873.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G. M. S. I., presiding.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces.
The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K. C. S. I.
The Hon'ble B. H. Ellis.
Major General the Hon'ble Sir H. W. Norman, K. C. B.
The Hon'ble A. Hobhouse, Q. C.
The Hon'ble E. C. Bayley, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble J. F. D. Inglis, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble R. A. Dalyell.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES RENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS moved that the Final and Supplementary Reports of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the North-Western Provinces be taken into consideration.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE said :—"The subjects embraced by these Bills (for the two Bills for Rent and Revenue have so gone hand in hand that it is impossible to avoid speaking of both at the same time) are very foreign to the ordinary subjects of an English lawyer's study; their principles are in some respects antagonistic to those with which he is familiar, and much of their matter is of great complexity, and of great obscurity and uncertainty in itself. I doubt whether anybody could understand them by study alone, or without long practice in the actual administration of Settlements or of the Law of Settlement. It is therefore with great diffidence that I venture to open my lips in this Council, even to say what has struck me with reference to those parts of the Bills which relate most closely to my professional province. Some points of great importance and interest have been very earnestly discussed in Committee and in public, though not much in this Council, and perhaps by reason of that discussion the importance of these Bills as measures of consolidation has not been much dwelt upon. A large part of them is nothing but a re-arrangement, in a more convenient form, and with some alterations of expression and detail which experience has suggested, of provisions which are already on the statute-book, though in a scattered and fragmentary condition. When these Bills pass into law they will supersede, and, so far at least as the North-Western Provinces are concerned, will entirely remove from the statute-book no less than forty-five Regulations and eight Acts of Council, and will partially repeal five more Regulations and one Act of Council. This, it is hoped, will be a boon to those who have to administer the law, or who wish to understand it. I do not mean to say that those who come to administer the new law will have no trouble, for they will have a good deal. The Bills contain some 450 sections, and they embrace a vast quantity of detail, and travel over a great field of matter. All this will require some study to master, so as apply it with ease and promptitude. Moreover, it is impossible to suppose that mistakes have not been made. Nobody can bear better witness than myself to the extraordinary knowledge of his subject displayed by my friend Mr. Inglis, or to the amount of patient unremitting labour with which he has endeavoured to make every minute detail of his Bills clear and accurate. Nevertheless miracles no longer abound, and it would be a miracle if, in a work of such magnitude, some oversight did not occur; some error did not creep in, notwithstanding every effort to avoid them. But after discounting all drawbacks of this kind inseparable from new legislation, I feel sure that even those who are familiar with the present law will find the advantage of a more concentrated and simple arrangement, and that the younger men who come fresh to the subject will find their work very considerably lightened.

"Now, of the alterations which these Bills propose to effect in point of principle, I conceive that to be by far the most important which consists of provisions for ascertaining rents as between landlord and tenant, and for fixing its amount for a term of years. The arrangement now proposed appears to me to be advantageous in every point of view, whether we regard the relations of landlords and tenants between themselves, or the relations of the Government to the land. With our predecessors in the empire, rent was the same thing as revenue, and we are told on high authority that the traditions of that state of things still prevail, and that it is in accordance with the feelings and expectations of the people that rent and revenue should be fixed by one and the same authority, at one and the same time. With us, rent and revenue are not the same thing, for we leave a large margin for the zamíndár; but without rent, revenue cannot exist, and the two must bear a close relation to one another. A sailor speaks of freight as the 'mother of wages'. We may perhaps aptly speak of rent as the 'mother of revenue'. Now, if I understand rightly the present state of things, the Settlement Officer does not frame his assessment of any particular estate upon the basis of rents actually received by the owner, but he may do so upon the basis of rents paid in other neighbouring estates; and he is not at that time charged with the responsibility of settling actual rents between landlord and tenant. Under such an arrangement, there certainly is considerable danger, lest the knowledge gained by calculations and comparison should not be sufficiently corrected by the test of hard fact, and lest the officer, however skilful he may be, should either put the assessment too low, and so cause a loss to the revenue, or too high, and so throw the affairs of the zamíndár into confusion, and cause him to put the screw unduly on his tenants. The best safeguard against such errors would seem to be that the Settlement Officer should at the time of settlement be charged with the duty of ascertaining and fixing rents. This is only a restoration of the power which he had previously to the Act of 1859. Having both classes of operations in his hands at the same time, being compelled to hear what both sides have to say in the disputes about rent, he will have before him the best and most trustworthy evidence of the actual value of the lands in each locality. The only criterion of price is the higgling of the market; the only true value of a thing is what it will fetch; and the amount to be assigned as the rent of land cannot be higher than that which the tenant finds it worth his while to give to the landlord. The State, therefore, is likely to benefit by the greater accuracy of assessments. The landlord will benefit by obtaining a cheap, ready, and comprehensive mode of adjusting his rents at the time of settlement, when his obligation to the state is adjusted. The tenant will benefit by being relieved from the pressure which, under the present system, may be constantly brought to bear on him. And both will benefit by having their disputes decided by an umpire, who of all men has the greatest amount of knowledge of all those things that bear upon the questions of the value of land and its produce in the place where the dispute arises. It has indeed been said that we are benefiting the tenant too much and injuring the landlord by fixing an enhanced rent for a term of ten years. But I shall not believe that the landlords are injured until I see it. In the first place, there never yet was any law framed under which a rich man did not gain considerable advantages over a poor one by his superior power of working it. In the second place, we are only ordering, by a general rule, that which may be done now in any particular case. The law I am alluding to is an apt illustration of what I have just said about the indestructible advantages of the rich under a legal system. Act X of 1859 was intended to be the great charter of the ryot. It has been worked so as to become a powerful machine for increasing rents. The enhancement clauses have been most extensively used. The provision I refer to is one for the protection of the ryots. It provides that, if an occupancy ryot institutes a suit for delivery of a pattá, and the parties do not agree as to the term, the Collector shall fix such term as he may think just and proper, only not exceeding ten years. Well, then, any occupancy tenant may at this moment ask for a lease for ten years, and the Court may give it to him. But I am told that this apparently very important provision has never been called into use, has remained a dead letter, insomuch that persons skilled in Revenue Law have actually forgotten its existence and are surprised when they are questioned about it. Why is this, except that the zamíndárs have been able to pay for skilled advice, and the ryots have not?

"I do not mean to say that, because the provision I have quoted already exists, we are not altering the law. I think we are making a substantial—I believe a very beneficial—alteration. But we are acting on a principle laid down by our predecessors, which has only failed of effect, because the parties who might benefit by it have been too ignorant or too weak to take advantage of it. Considering the intimate interest which the state has in all questions of rent, by reason of its position as sovereign landlord, or at least as co-owner with other proprietors, no one can contend that it has not a good right to interfere in such matters as these. And considering the old identity of rent and revenue, to which the general sentiment is still alive—considering the close connection now subsisting between them, and the great advantages to all parties, of avoiding litigation and of giving stability to the position of cultivators—I think no one could have complained if we had gone farther, and made the term for which the rent is settled more nearly commensurate with the term for which the revenue is settled. I am not now intimating any opinion at variance with the conclusion arrived at. The Bill probably does as much as is prudent or beneficial under all the circumstances; but as the question has been argued on grounds of right and justice, it seems to me that, consistently with right and justice, rents once enhanced might have been fixed for a longer term. Intimately connected with this question of fixing rents, which applies only to occupancy tenants, is the question of the effect of a lease in preventing the acquisition of occupancy rights. It will be remembered that under Act X of 1859 a twelve-year occupant is not to acquire a right of occupancy if he holds under a written contract containing an express stipulation contrary thereto. For some time after the passing of the Act, it was held by the High Court of Calcutta that a demise for a definite term of years was of itself an express stipulation contrary to the acquisition of occupancy rights. But first the High Court of the North-Western Provinces, and afterwards that of Calcutta, took a different view, and held that, whatever might be implied by such a demise, it was not the express stipulation required by the Act. The Courts are probably quite right in their present construction of the Act, but the very discussion shows a strong sense that acquisition of occupancy rights by holding under an express demise is contrary to the true intention of the parties. We therefore have altered the wording of Act X of 1859 by providing that, when a tenant-at-will holds under a written lease, the time for acquisition of occupancy rights shall begin to run from the expiry of the lease. This seems to me to place the law on a more simple and more natural footing. It brings it back to that state in which the High Court of Calcutta originally decided it to be. If incidentally it should lead to a more general system of granting leases, it is calculated to benefit all parties alike, and to give a more stable status to tenants-at-will, independently of their acquisition of occupancy rights. At present, unless a zamíndár enters into an agreement of a very special character with his tenant, his only way of preventing the acquisition of occupancy rights is by turning him out of his occupation. And this, I am told, is done very generally, and a great evil it is. In future, he will at all events have the alternative of giving his tenant a simple lease for years.

"The alteration which I am disposed to class next in importance, is one of procedure, and that is the change effected with respect to the Courts of Appeal in several of the rent suits, particularly those which relate to enhancement and abatement. The present system certainly seems most unsatisfactory. I take an enhancement suit as being about the most important class of rent suit. At present, any Deputy Collectór may hear such a suit in the first instance. From him an appeal goes to the District Judge, whose Court is stationary, so that parties have to resort to the sadr station, which may be at a great distance from their abodes. And what is that Judge to do? For any one suit that raises a question of law, or is soluble by legal methods, there must be fifty which turn solely on questions of value more or less general, but which would mostly require a knowledge of the locality, and, at all events, require rather a skilled arbitrator than a legal tribunal. Without knowing, or even seeing, the land in dispute or the surrounding localities, merely on reading the evidence recorded by the Deputy Collector, who probably has imported his personal knowledge into the case, they decide whether the rent is to be enhanced and by how much. There ends the dispute about fact; there is a special appeal to the High Court, but that can only be presented on points of law. Now it is proposed to substitute for this system a decision on the spot by an officer selected for his skill and ability, with an appeal to the Commissioner of the Division, who moves about and will take appeals in the neighbourhood of the place in dispute.

"If he affirms the decision, there is to be no further appeal. If not, there may be a further appeal to the Board of Revenue. I must say that the proposed alteration seems to me to bid fair to substitute a readier, simpler, more harmonious, and in all respects more satisfactory, process than the present one for the disposal of suits of the class I have mentioned. It is said that the Revenue Courts, or some of them, do their business in a somewhat rough fashion. It may be true as to some. But one of the alterations effected by this Rent Bill is the classification of suits according to their difficulty and importance, and the classification of officials according to the duties they will have to perform. At present, the same man hears the most trivial applications and the most important ones. If these Bills pass, enhancement suits will be heard in the first instance only by an Assistant Collector of the first class, specially empowered by Government for that purpose, or by some superior officer, such as a Collector or an officer in charge of a Settlement, and the appeal will lie to one in all respects on a par with the District Judge. We lose, it is true, the special appeal to the High Court; but the whole system of special appeals, which it would be out of place to discuss here, is open to so many objections, that, independently of other reasons, it would be difficult to regret the destruction of a portion of it. We have, moreover, inserted a clause into the Bill by which we hope to get the advantage of the superior knowledge and authority of the Civil Courts in matters of law. We have provided that, whenever the Revenue Court finds that a question of law arises, which it is more proper for the Civil Courts to decide, it may state a case for their opinion, and shall be bound by it when given. No doubt the Local Government will have to make careful arrangements respecting the appointment of officers, the distribution of their duties, the times and places of their judicial sittings, and the procedure to be observed by them. But I will not enlarge on these subjects, as I hope that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor will sketch out far better than I could do his proposed plan of operations.

"Another alteration in the law, which we hope will prove useful, though, as it depends entirely on the voluntary action of the tenants, it may prove a mere nullity, is that which relates to improvements of land by tenants. We propose that tenants restoring the land improved by permanent works, shall receive compensation from the landlord whom they have enriched. Considerable controversy has been raised about the justice and propriety of these provisions—a controversy with which we are not wholly unfamiliar in England. Again, we hear of the enterprising tenant who will improve the landlord out of his property, and are told that no improvements made without the express consent of the landlord ought to be the subjects of compensation. I confess that I never have been able to persuade myself of the substantiality of any such fears, and I do not suppose that the risk of undue activity or enterprise is greater in India than in England. It is the interest of the State, that is, of the public at large, that land should be improved, and that which has to be done by two people independently is practically never done at all. It seems to me that if the outlay of the tenant results in his restoring to the landlord a property of greater permanent value than he received, it is quite just that the landlord should pay something for his gain, and both just and expedient that such a principle should be a constant element in the bargains between the two parties. I confess to being very much afraid that our legislation will be a dead letter owing to the apathy or ignorance of tenants. I cannot entertain for the moment the fear that tenants will unduly avail themselves of their legal rights and oppress the landlord. I treat that as a mere paper argument, well enough in the abstract, though not difficult to answer there, but disappearing altogether from any practical view of affairs. I believe that precisely the same arguments were used in opposition to the compensation clauses in the Oudh Rent Act and the Panjáb Tenancy Act. Well, I do not mean to say that five years is time enough to supply any conclusive test, but I believe that nothing has been yet heard of the ill effects of the change in those Provinces. Now, the language of this Bill differs from that of the Oudh and Panjáb Acts in this, that they give to the tenant compensation for his outlay in certain works, whatever that may be, whereas we deny that anything is an improvement which does not increase the letting value of the land at the time when compensation is claimed. Supposing the value to be so increased, I ask confidently on which side is the injustice or the danger? Is it in the chance of the landlord taking the increase without payment, or is it in the chance of the tenant overcharging the landlord? I ought perhaps to notice what has been done in the matter of resumption suits. By a Regulation of 1793, grants for holding land exempt from payment of rent have been declared null and void. Certain directions have also, by divers Regulations, been given to proprietors of land of their own authority to collect the rents of such lands and to dispossess the grantees. Upon this state of the law supervened Act X of 1859, the 28th section of which runs as follows:—

"'So much of section X, Regulation XIX, 1793, section X, Regulation XLI, 1795, section VI, Regulation XXXI, 1803, section XXI, Regulation VIII, 1805, and section XXIV, Regulation XII, 1805, as authorizes and requires proprietors and farmers of estates and dependent taluqs, in cases in which grants for holding land exempt from the payment of revenue have been made subsequent to the dates specified in the said sections, of their own authority to collect the rents of such land, and to dispossess the grantees of the proprietary right in the land and to re-annex it to the estate or taluq in which it may be situate, is repealed; and any proprietor or farmer who may desire to assess any such land or to dispossess any such grantee shall make application to the Collector, and such application shall be dealt with as a suit under the provisions of this Act. Every such suit shall be instituted within the period of twelve years from the time when the title of the person claiming the right to assess the land or dispossess the grantee, or of some person claiming under him, first accrued. If such period has already elapsed, or will elapse within two years from the date of the passing of this Act, such suit may be brought at any time within two years from such date.'

"Now, it will be observed that this enactment leaves entirely untouched the law which declares rent-free grants to be null and void; it only makes an undisturbed adverse possession of rent-free land for twelve years a bar to a suit for its recovery. But this is said on all hands to be a mistake. The State reasons for objecting to revenue-free grants are the same as ever they were. With us, rent is not revenue, but it is the 'Mother of Revenue,' and a man like King Lear may so impoverish himself by rent-free grants as to be unable to pay his revenue. Moreover, the law is contrary to the intention of the people of this country in making rent-free grants. It is their habit to make such grants, usually I believe oral ones, with the full understanding on both sides that they may be resumed at pleasure. It is a great surprise to such a grantor to find that his grantee has acquired a prescriptive title by twelve years' possession. For these reasons, the Rent Bill does away with the limitations now placed by law on Resumption suits, but it excepts land held rent-free under judicial decisions; it excepts land purchased for value on the faith of the abolished limitations; and it confers the proprietary right on those who have held land rent-free for fifty years, and in the third generation from the original grantee.

"I have hitherto said nothing of that portion of the Bills which has attracted the greatest amount of remark, if indeed it were not the most important portion of them; I mean that which relates to the exproprietary tenants. On this point, the alteration of the law which is now made by the Bills is considerably less important than it was when we reported on them in Calcutta; because the retention of exproprietors as privileged tenants, or even as occupancy tenants, is now confined to those who become such in the future. I think it right to say that the amount of encroachment on existing titles which was effected by the Bills as they formerly stood seems to me but a small one. It was some drawback on future expectancies, and that drawback would have been shared with the zamíndárs by the State; it was, according to the best opinions of the day, a reversion to national sentiments and traditions; and the principle has been applied in Oudh and in the Panjáb without producing, so far as we know, any ill effects. It seems to me, therefore, doubtful whether something more might not have justly been done to give a steadier foothold in the land to that which is an uneasy class. The Bills, however, have taken the more cautious line of not making any change except in the future. It may fairly be hoped that, as the exproprietary class of persons who are tenants-at-will or are landless will not receive any recruits, it will gradually be absorbed into the general community. In the meantime it is something to have an express statutory recognition of such a class as entitled by law to favourable rents wherever the practice has been so to favour them; and it must be that, to a considerable extent, the sentiment of the people will be met by this provision. And it certainly seems of great importance to have an express statutory recognition of the principle, which it is difficult for Englishmen to grasp, and which appears to pervade large parts of India, that there is a substantial difference between a right of ownership and a right to occupy for the purpose of cultivation and subsistence, and that the latter is not alienable as the former is.

"Before I conclude I ought to mention that, at the latest moment, we received some valuable suggestions from Mr. Justice Turner, who would have sent them earlier had he not been in England. We have made several alterations, and have added some clauses relating to matters with which his judicial experience has made him familiar. There is now a provision for settling difficulties which are sure to arise respecting the boundaries of jurisdictions; another provision that an objection for want of jurisdiction shall not be taken in any Court of Appeal common to the Revenue and the Civil Courts, and some others of a technical character, but calculated to make the measure work more smoothly.

"I do not think it necessary to make observations on any other portions of the Bills, and will conclude by supporting the motion before the Council."

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that at this stage of the proceedings it seemed proper that, having been the promoter of these Bills in the shape in which they now appeared before the Council, he should state briefly the course taken by the Government of the North-West Provinces, in respect of them. The Bills had their origin in a design for the consolidation of the Revenue Law of these Provinces. Mr. Cust had some years ago, after his return to England, prepared a careful Digest of the Revenue Law. This Digest had been sent by the Government of India to His Honour about the time that Mr. Stephen was engaged in consolidating the laws and regulations on various subjects. In pursuance of this object, Mr. Stephen himself had prepared a Bill, condensing into one Code the entire Revenue Law of the North-West Provinces, and that Bill was about three years ago sent by the Government of India to SIR WILLIAM MUIR for careful revision. Having received so important a charge, the first step taken by His Honour was the appointment of a committee of the most experienced revenue officers, which sat at Nainí Tál in the summer of 1872. Their deliberations, conducted in constant communication with himself, resulted in the two Bills which his hon'ble friend Mr. Inglis had introduced at Calcutta, and which were discussed there during the Session of 1872-73.

These Bills were mainly the repetition, in a combined and convenient form, of the existing law; but the opportunity was taken advantage of to propose certain reforms and improvements. The main changes were the following:—first, the recognition of exproprietary cultivators as possessed of a beneficial right of occupancy; second, barring the right to bring fresh suit for enhancement of rent within a certain term after decree given on a similar suit; third, enlarging the powers of settlement officers in suits for enhancement of rent; and lastly, transfer of the jurisdiction in appeal, in certain classes of cases, from the civil to the revenue courts. The Bills, thus drawn, were the subject of much discussion in Committee during the last season at Calcutta. The changes just mentioned were supported by the Committee, which indeed went in one respect considerably further than he (SIR WILLIAM MUIR) had himself contemplated; for they proposed to bar all claim for enhancement of rent during the term of a settlement, and in the permanently settled districts, for a period of thirty years. The Bills were freely discussed in Council, but their final passing was reserved by His Excellency the President for the sitting of the Council in these Provinces. This postponement was fortunate, for it afforded the opportunity of a deliberate and careful reconsideration of the alterations made by the Select Committee, as well as of the general principles on which the contemplated changes in the law were based, and he might add that these points had formed the subject of prolonged and anxious discussion during the past summer of 1873.

In noticing the changes in the Bill as now brought up by the Select Committee in their Supplementary Report—which as a member of that Committee he had had the honour of signing, and in the purport of which he might say he fully concurred—he would mention, first of all, the position that had been taken up in respect of the exproprietary body. As had been clearly and ably stated by his hon'ble friend, Mr. Inglis, last Friday, the maintenance of the great body of ex-proprietary cultivators with a beneficial interest in their ancestral holdings was an object of the first importance. The views held by him (SIR WILLIAM MUIR) on this subject had been quoted at length by his hon'ble friend, Mr. Inglis, in the Council at Calcutta, and to those opinions His Honour strongly and steadfastly adhered. He could regard nothing as more unfortunate and disastrous than the course which, from the beginning of our administration, had been taken with these exproprietors, and the system by which they had been sold up by the application of a strange and uncongenial law, and reduced to the dead level of cultivators without rights of any kind. The result had been that the body to which we should have looked as the stay and backbone of our agricultural prosperity had been reduced to a state in which they were liable to be ejected from their lands, or to have the last rupee demanded from them. They were thus, on the one hand, ground down to be what he might call a depressed and emasculated tenantry; and on the other, the body to which we might have been able to look as our stay in the time of trouble and danger had too often proved itself a disloyal and dangerous yeomanry—a tenantry powerless for good, but strong for evil. He felt confident that, if the great statesman, who, in the "Revenue Directions," had given authority to the principle that sale reduced proprietors to mere tenants-at-will—if he had had the opportunity of reconsidering the matter in the light of the Mutiny and of the Oudh investigation, he would have come to a very different conclusion. It had been clearly brought out in the Oudh inquiry that the proprietors had a peculiar interest in their own special lands, different from that which they had over the whole estate for which they were responsible. This was their 'sír,' which was invariably left in their hands when the management of their estate was temporarily resumed; and even when the proprietary right was parted with, this peculium, or proper holding, remained at beneficial rates in their possession. The relations of the quasi-proprietors to the soil were no doubt of a similar nature when we entered on the administration of these Provinces, and remnants of the same rights still survived in the do biswái or proprietary tenth of the land ordinarily left by 'muáfídárs' in the hands of the old proprietors. In Oudh this distinction had been happily preserved, and to a considerable extent the old proprietors, where ousted from management, had been maintained in the beneficial occupancy of their 'sír' possessions. Now, the mistake we introduced in our early administration was to ignore this distinction. We recognised no condition midway between the absolute proprietor of an estate and a common unprotected cultivator; and as properties were yearly sold up for arrears or for debt, the old proprietors were reduced to the hopeless condition of the unprotected ryot. Had the principle of the Oudh Settlement been followed from the first, the ruin of the exproprietors would have been avoided; and we should have been saved from a vast amount of the agrarian dangers which threatened us in the Mutiny and the troublous times that followed.

It was these considerations which weighed with the Government of the North-West Provinces in drawing the Bills as they were first presented. It was felt incumbent to do all in our power to remedy this great evil. Exproprietors were to be maintained in their proper holdings with a beneficial interest; and the same advantages were provided equally for all who had lost their proprietary rights from the commencement of our rule, as for those who should hereafter lose them.

Against this provision a strong contention had been raised. If the usage in favour of the exproprietor was really such as just described, why was it discovered only now at so advanced a period of our administration? If the custom was so strong and universal, why had it been ignored by so high an authority as Mr. Thomason? Again, it had been urged that rights had been acquired with which this Bill unjustly interfered; purchasers had entered on their estates, bought at sales conducted by the Government itself, and on the faith of the official declaration that the parties whose interests they purchased were by the sale reduced to tenants-at-will, liable to ejection and subject to any enhancement, and that the only title which could possibly accrue in their favour was one to be created by a fresh prescription. It might indeed be replied (as had been stated by the Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse) that the injury, if any, was but a slight one; no reduction was to be made in existing rents; the benefit to be secured was purely prospective and potential; it amounted simply to this that when rents rose the exproprietors should be enhanced, only in a lower degree than others. But this reply, again, was open to the answer that the evil to be remedied by so small and distant a concession could hardly be so serious as was contended: in short it might be objected, "either the political danger is great, and then your remedy is inadequate; or if your treatment meets the case, its very slightness disproves the alleged depth and gravity of the evil. Now, looking at what had been thus contended, he felt it was impossible to give a satisfactory reply to the objection that by an ex post facto law we were interfering with a title based upon an official declaration of the Government. He had been appealed to in Committee to say whether, as representing the Government of the North-Western Provinces and responsible for its tranquillity, he regarded the political danger arising from this class as sufficiently urgent to override the objection; and he had felt bound to reply that it was not.

From what had been said, it was evident that there were powerful contending considerations to be weighed on either side. On the one hand, there were strong reasons for remedying a corroding, if not a dangerous, evil; on the other, we should expose ourselves to the imputation of injustice in reversing retrospectively a policy for long deliberately followed by the Government, and in interfering with rights founded upon it. Now, the course that had eventually been resolved upon approved itself to him (SIR WILLIAM MUIR) as one which practically took advantage of all that we could, with justice and propriety, and avoided altogether anything which should compromise the faith of Government. The beneficial provisions of the Bill were made prospective, and confined to proprietors who should hereafter lose their estates.

The only possible objection to the provisions of the Bill, as it now stood, was that existing liens on property would be subject to them; these liens might have been acquired on the expectation that the property was hypothecated absolutely for them, whereas it would now be sold with the reservation of a beneficial interest in the sír lands. Still, in respect of all such transactions and of sales for existing debts, he thought that the recognized custom of the country should prevail, and that the purchasers should be held to come into possession subject to such usage.

On the other hand, it might be complained that we were abandoning the exproprietors of the past, and allowing them to go from bad to worse. But that was not the case, for, as his hon'ble friend Mr. Hobhouse had just stated, there were certain ameliorating provisions in the Rent Bill even with respect to them. In the first place, it was distinctly enunciated that they constituted a class—that is, wherever the old proprietors in any neighbourhood had been able, in virtue of the usage of the country, to maintain their position at privileged rates, the rates so prevailing would be held to be those of a class, and therefore the standard for enhancement. It was no small benefit that this body should thus have statutory recognition as a class of tenants that might, by prevailing custom, be in the enjoyment of recognized privileges; and that wherever exproprietary classes had been able to keep alive the usage of the country in their own favour, there, for the future, that usage would be enforceable at law. Next, the exproprietor shared in the advantage gained by all occupancy tenants in the additional fixity resulting from extending the period within which renewed suit for enhancement was barred: this point would be referred to afterwards with special reference to his hon'ble friend's remarks.

Upon the whole, then, he might say that, in respect of this class, we had gone as far as we had practically found ourselves able to go. For the past we were not responsible; errors had been committed in the administration of the country, and the results of these errors it was now beyond our power fully to redress. But we were answerable for the future; and in recognizing prospectively the privileged position of the exproprietor, SIR WILLIAM MUIR was sure that a material boon had been gained, such as would contribute to the peace and prosperity of the land. The measures now proposed would prevent ousted communities from becoming a source of danger and disloyalty, and would enable that class which of all others had the greatest interest in the improvement of the soil, to accumulate the means and capital necessary for that end.

The second change of the law in the present Bill was the determination of a period within which a fresh suit for enhancement was barred. In the original Bill, the period was ten years. As before stated, this had been extended by the Select Committee at Calcutta to the whole period of settlement, and in permanently-settled tracts to thirty years. The Bills, as now presented, went back to the original period of ten years. The tenor of Mr. Hobhouse's remarks would seem to indicate that, in his hon'ble friend's opinion, it would have been more expedient had the Calcutta amendment been allowed to stand. On this he (SIR WILLIAM MUIR) must distinctly state his belief that such a radical change in the long subsisting relations of landlords and tenants was not justifiable; and indeed would have been obnoxious to far stronger and more valid objections than the conferment of exproprietary privileges retrospectively. It would have been open to the British Government, on its first accession, to have laid down the principle that rent and revenue were to be fixed for coterminous periods. Nay, at a much later period, while the relative rights of landlord and tenant were as yet hardly settled by the administration of a fixed and uniform system, this might have been possible. Forty years ago, the proposal was urged by Mr. Robert Merttins Bird, and was then fully discussed by the Government of India and its chief officers; and the conclusion was then deliberately come to, that such a course was inconsistent with the rights of the zamín-dár and the prevailing condition of the cultivator. That decision might have been right, or it might have been wrong; the question was no longer open to discussion. On the decision that rent was liable to enhancement, was based the whole revenue system of these Provinces. To have now declared rent and revenue to be equally fixed for the same term, would not only have uprooted the revenue system of more than half a century, and created new and unexpected rights, but it would have injured and abated the landed title which had grown up under that system. Properties had passed from hand to hand; estates had been sold both for Government balances and for decrees of court; rights and expectations had grown up and become matured under the system of a modified power of enhancement to the level of prevailing rates of rent. For a great and imperious political object, indeed, it might have been open to the Government, even at the expense of these expectations, to have altered the system. No legislative enactment had expressly defined the rights of the zamíndár in this respect, or limited the power of Government to interfere for the protection of the ryot. But he (SIR WILLIAM MUIR) submitted that no such emergency now existed; and that it would have been in the last degree inexpedient and unwise to have reversed the policy on which the relations of proprietor and tenant had now for so long a time adjusted themselves.

The term now adopted was that which, as shown by the preceding speakers, was also in accord with the existing law, under which the revenue courts could grant a pattá to the cultivator for a term of ten years.

HIS HONOUR did not quite concur with the reason assigned by the Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse why this provision had not been more taken advantage of—namely, that the cultivator was ignorant, while the zamíndár was skilled in the law. He attributed it more to the aversion of the ryots to take pattás; they were suspicious of them, and trusted rather to rest their rights upon prescription. The same indisposition had been experienced in Oudh. For this reason also, while he entirely concurred in the provision that possession under a pattá should not count (apart from any previous prescription) towards the term for acquiring an occupancy right, still he did not think that this provision would materially improve the zamíndár's position.

HIS HONOUR would now pass on to the subject of enhancement of rent. Here, the powers of the settlement officers were enlarged, but the principles of adjustment, and even the procedure, as practically pursued by settlement officers, was not affected. The principle upon which suits for raising rents were decided was to take the prevailing rates of rent as the standard of enhancement. Now, at the time of revising the land-revenue, the settlement officer had a peculiar advantage possessed at no other time; for the revenue being assessed in a direct reference to the assets of an estate, and in order to ascertain the assets the settlement officer must previously, by a wide inquiry, ascertain what was the prevailing and customary rate for each kind of soil. Now, the application of this prevailing rate was nothing more than the application, on a wider scale, of the rule by which suits for raising rent were now adjusted. The settlement officer could proceed with greater certainty and on a larger induction. Our desire as to assess revenue in direct reference to rent, according as rent found its own level in the ordinary transactions between man and man. But at the time of settlement there were certain exceptions, which he might thus explain. The settlement officer first ascertained what were the average rates of rent prevailing in a pargana or circle of villages: this, when duly sanctioned by the Board, formed one of the standards by which the land-revenue was fixed. But it might happen that in one locality or village the rate of rent was much lower than in an adjacent locality or village, notwithstanding that the advantages and productive powers of the soil were precisely the same in both. Now we held that there was no reason why the tracts or villages in which the rate was unduly low should not be assessed to land-revenue at the same standard as the tracts or villages in which rent had by natural process reached a higher level, and it frequently happened that the revenue was, in point of fact, so raised. The proprietor then was justified in laying his suit to raise the rents of his tenants to a standard corresponding with that by which his revenue had been fixed; and here the special provision of clause 72 of the Revenue Bill would come into force.

But these average rates were used with discrimination and with a due advertence to the varying capacities of the several fields; and when so employed with a careful discretion, they were eminently useful as a standard of comparison, and they would indeed be always so used, even at times other than of the revision of settlement.

There was also a further power involved in the provisions of clause 72 which was peculiar to the time of settlement,—and that was the power of abating rent. On some occasions it had been brought to His Honour's notice that rack-renting prevailed to a degree which unduly depressed the cultivator, and injured agricultural prosperity. Now, at present the settlement officer had no power to step in and say that such rents should be lowered. He might, indeed, make a compact with the zamíndár, and say that, if the land-revenue were fixed at such a moderate amount, it would be incumbent on the zamíndár to assess his rent-roll on the cultivators with corresponding moderation; but there were no means of imposing such a condition on the proprietor, or, if he agreed, of seeing to its enforcement. It would now be possible for the settlement officer to step in and say that the rates of rent being in excess of the prevailing standard, to a degree that ground down the ryot, these rates should be reduced; and then the revenue might safely follow the rent-roll so adjusted. This, however, was a very exceptional process, and would only be adopted in case of clear necessity.

Generally, he might say that every care and caution was adopted by the Board, to ensure that the scale of average rates of rent was fixed with moderation and with a direct reference to the rents found actually to be prevailing. Nothing could be more disastrous than the application by settlement officers of scales of rent based on theoretical considerations of what, in their opinion, particular soils should be rated at. It was uniformly impressed upon all settlement officers that the existing customary rate of rent was the only safe guide, both for the assessment of the land-revenue and also for the adjustment of disputed rents between the proprietor and his tenant.

In reference to the peculiar powers taken for officers engaged on the revision of settlement, Sir William Muir might add that he hoped to see the time when these revisions of the land-revenue would not occur with the same frequency as they now did; but that existing settlements might be prolonged, or, if some enhancement of revenue were deemed to be justified and necessary, that at any rate it might be assessed upon some other procedure, involving less of inquisition and interference with the agricultural classes than was inherent in the present system.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse had requested him to mention the agency by which the important duties connected with rent suits would be disposed of. His hon'ble friend had, in his own remarks, anticipated almost all that it was necessary for him to say upon this head. There would be no new agency for the determination of these suits. We had already in every district the same classes of officers who would perform the duty under the new law. But the new law had introduced a distinction, and it was a most valuable one, classifying the various kinds of suits according to their difficulty and importance, and also the corresponding classes of officers empowered to decide them. The higher and more difficult kind of cases—those, consequently, which required for their investigation and decision special experience and judgment, knowledge of the people and the country, and acquaintance with the productive powers of the land, would be limited to the first class of assistants. These assistants would be carefully selected with reference to their experience, ability, and standing, the remaining class of less difficult and important cases being left to the younger assistants.

Again, as regarded the alterations made in these Bills of the jurisdictions in appeal, what had fallen from his hon'ble friend was eminently to the point. The same reasons which had led the legislature to bar the jurisdiction of the civil courts in taking up appeals against the assessment of the land-revenue, applied, in a great measure, to the question of rent. In all matters of rights and title, as between man and man, the civil courts were undoubtedly the proper tribunal before which to bring the appeal; but in regard to such questions as the rates of rent, the revenue authorities were far better qualified than the civil courts to arrive at a sound decision, and the superior revenue authorities, also, to dispose of appeals, than the superior civil courts. The matter was as much administrative as judical, and turned upon questions of fact—which, as a rule, would be determined on the spot. Under the rules which the Executive Government would, under these Bills, be empowered to frame, it was intended to direct that the assistants of the first class should take such applications as those for enhancement along with them into camp, and having visited the spot, and made local investigation in immediate communication with the parties concerned, they would then be in the best possible position to come to sound and just conclusions. With this view it had been provided in the Bill that all suits for enhancement should be laid before the 31st December for the coming agricultural year. The Collector would then be able to arrange with his various assistants so to lay out their several circuits, that the above procedure might be carried out with convenience, both to the people and to the officers of Government.

The only other matter to which SIR WILLIAM MUIR would refer, was a provision recently entered in the Rent Bill for the protection of cultivators suffering loss from season or other such calamity. No provision existed in the present law by which Government could grant relief to these; for the Government dealt only with the zamíndár, and had no power to enforce a remission or suspension of rent. When, therefore, a cultivator lost his crop from drought, hail-storm, flood, or other such cause, and the proprietor chose to press him hard, such cultivator might be utterly ruined; and thus all the privileges we were endeavoring to secure to him be lost. All that Government could now do, was to say to the zamíndár—"We remit so much of your revenue, to enable you to carry on successfully, and we look to you to remit a corresponding share of rent in favour of the cultivators who have suffered." But there was no means of compelling the zamíndárs to agree to such condition, or, if agreeing, to enforce fulfilment. To remedy this defect, the Bill empowered the Collector to interpose wherever the ryot might have suffered from any agricultural calamity beyond his power to prevent, and to remit, or suspend, the whole or part of his rent. Having done so, the obligation would then devolve on Government of remitting a corresponding portion of the Government revenue in favour of the zamíndár, and this also had been provided for in the Bill.

These, then, were the only changes of importance on which he felt called upon to speak. In conclusion, he must express the great satisfaction with which he regarded both these Bills in the form in which, as he trusted, they were about to be passed. SIR WILLIAM MUIR was sure that, whatever changes had been made, were sound and substantial improvements in the law. If he was unable to say that this satisfaction was unmixed, it was simply for the reasons that, in former stages of these Bills, he had, as before explained, expected to have done more for the exproprietors of the past. Still, looking at all the circumstances, he was sure that the Select Committee had exercised a wise discretion in limiting the law as they had done; for material advantages had been secured thereby to every class of cultivators, even to the exproprietary, and that without any detriment to the proprietor, or anything resembling breach of faith upon the part of Government.

The Hon'ble MR. BAYLEY said that he did not wish to trouble the Council with many remarks after the very full exposition of the principles and details of the Bill which we had heard at the last meeting from the hon'ble mover, and at the present meeting from the two hon'ble members who had last spoken. MR. BAYLEY could add very little to what these hon'ble members had said, but he might say, generally, that he hailed with extreme satisfaction the arrival of the Bill at its present stage. He believed that it was not only a very useful consolidation, but was in many respects a great improvement of the law, and he felt sure that the gratitude of the country was due to those who had been the principal originators and framers of the Bill. Of course, in a matter of so great importance, and of so wide extent, there must be some diversity of opinion as to special details, and he admitted that, individually, he had perhaps held on minor points different views from those at which the Committee had arrived. Nevertheless, he was quite willing now to say that he thought, on the whole, that the decisions which had been arrived at were wise, and that the Bill as it stood was a nearly perfect and very useful measure—quite as perfect as could be expected from its large and comprehensive nature. There was only one point upon which MR. BAYLEY wished to say a few words, and he should refer to it with the less hesitation, because the speeches of the two hon'ble members who had preceded him had gone a great way in the same direction as that which he should wish to indicate. He referred to those clauses of the Bill, as originally framed, which created a special class of so-called "privileged tenants," and which had been struck out of the Bill during its final reconsideration by the Select Committee. These clauses maintained their place throughout all previous discussions, and he confessed that it seemed to him that they were not only justified by the necessities of the case, but that the arguments by which they were supported had not yet been sufficiently met by counter-arguments. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor had very clearly pointed out the circumstances which first drew general attention to the condition of the ex-proprietary body. He said—and said very truly—that we found during the Mutiny that they constituted a very large and important class, and one which the Lieutenant-Governor had described—and no doubt justly described—as "a discontented and disloyal yeomanry." Now he (MR. BAYLEY) could not conceive any political danger greater than the existence, in the heart of the community, of a large body of persons who answered this description. Even in times of profound peace they were undoubtedly felt to be an embarrassment to the administration of the country. MR. BAYLEY'S own experience testified, and he believed that he could appeal with confidence on this point to other officers of similar experience, that if you met anywhere a notorious offender—a man who had made himself conspicuous in crime, and who had with him, as was very often the case, the sympathy of a large body of the community—and if you investigated the history of this man you would find, in the majority of instances, that he was originally an ousted proprietor.. Of course, in times of difficulty, the existence of such a class would be of far graver importance still. We might indeed be told that we need not anticipate a return of times like the days of the Mutiny, but it was impossible for any one to look forward to the future government of this country with any hope that there would not be at least periods of very considerable political difficulty; and MR. BAYLEY thought it was a matter of the most serious importance that we should render the administration of the country in these times as free from danger as possible. Since attention had first been drawn to this class of persons, MR. BAYLEY would ask what had been done to meet the acknowledged danger arising out of their position? He thought he might safely say that nothing had as yet been done; on the contrary, for a period of sixteen years, forced sales had been going on just as before, and the numbers of the class had largely increased. So far, therefore, as any alteration had been made, the danger had become greater than it was before the Mutiny. Nor did MR. BAYLEY share in the opinion of an hon'ble member, expressed to-day, that it was a class that might eventually die out. He thought that the experience of similar classes in other countries proved that they did not die out; that, on the contrary, so to speak, their enmities were perpetuated from generation to generation; that not only themselves, but their descendants, remained, to distant centuries, a "discontented and disloyal" body.

He believed he was scarcely exaggerating when he said that, during the Mutiny, almost every person of this class repossessed himself of his ancestral possession; in fact, so wide was the mischief, that it necessitated a special law for its reparation. But he might be told that this argument went further than the contention which he would wish to put forward, and in one sense no doubt it did. The mere provision which the Bill, as originally drafted, proposed might seem to go a very small way to meet the evils described; he might be told that his argument would justify the entire rehabilitation of the whole body of ousted proprietors, and, no doubt, if such a heroic remedy were either necessary or possible, it might be wise to consider it; but he (MR. BAYLEY) was certain that no one in possession of his senses for a moment could consider such a course possible, and he might say with equal confidence that it was not necessary in order to remove all urgent political danger. A large—probably the largest—proportion of the existing ill-feeling arose, not so much from the sale of lands, as from the condition to which some exproprietors were reduced. No doubt the system of forced sales of land, and especially of sales forced under the circumstances of which he would speak presently, found little favour in Native eyes; but it was a mistake to suppose that transfers of proprietary rights, or even forced transfers, were totally unknown under the Native systems, or entirely opposed to Native practice.

Still, if it be admitted that a portion of the discontent which was known to exist arose from the extent and manner of forced sales under our rules, he (MR. BAYLEY) believed a far greater proportion of it arose from the treatment to which the exproprietors, when ousted, were exposed. The hon'ble member in charge of the Bill showed very clearly, not only from old authorities, but from recent inquiries, how very strong and how universal all over India was the feeling of the Native community against leaving the unfortunate exproprietors wholly without provision of any kind, and against the practice of stripping them at once of not only their proprietary, but of their cultivating, rights. He had shown that this feeling extended so far as to induce the actual extension to them, even as cultivators, of special considerations, as the hon'ble gentleman had proved; that in fact, even under our law, which was hostile to it, the practice of conceding such favourable terms to them had very widely grown up, and had become in some localities such a confirmed usage that it had been again and again recognised by the highest legal authority as binding and a valid custom.

Now the Bill, as it at present stood, seemed to MR. BAYLEY to do no more than this. It prevented, no doubt, the further extension of this evil in the future, and so far it was clearly a great reform, but for the rest it appeared only to give a formal sanction to any remedy, only so far as that remedy was already sufficiently applied and had already the sanction of legal authority. He thought, therefore, that it could hardly be denied that the measure still left a very large class untouched, the very class among whom discontent was most prevalent, and whom it was of the greatest importance in some degree to soothe and satisfy. MR. BAYLEY spoke, of course, with very great deference to those whose especial duty it was to speak as to the political danger, and whose position enabled them to speak with more confidence than he did; but, nevertheless, knowing something himself of the feelings of the people, he thought it right, so far as was in his power, to place the Council in a position to understand at least the arguments in support of the original provisions of that Bill. He believed that those provisions would apply an adequate remedy —a remedy that was sufficient in a great measure to alleviate, if not wholly remove, the apparent political danger. He believed that it was almost beyond comprehension how a small concession of this kind would satisfy people who once had an interest in the land and found that interest to a certain degree recognised and their future secured by some measure of consideration. MR. BAYLEY had himself spoken to landlords who had granted similar concessions, and their experience told him that a very small concession indeed went very far to content the demands which these people at present felt themselves justified in making. To these remarks, he (MR. BAYLEY) would wish to add a few in regard to the counter-arguments which had been urged against giving any privileges retrospectively. The one argument which was derived from the great authority by whom the present practice had been to some extent acknowledged had, he thought, been sufficiently disposed of by the Lieutenant-Governor. MR. BAYLEY believed that the present issue was not raised when Mr. Thomason gave his opinion; but, if it had been, and if the evidence which they now had, had been before him, there could be little doubt, from the general policy which Mr. Thomason was known to hold, that he would have pronounced a very different opinion. The real arguments against the proposed measure, as it seemed to MR. BAYLEY, were that the practice had been prevalent for a long period of years; that a prescription had grown up; that men had purchased estates on the faith of that prescription, and with a view to the future enhancement of rents from this class of proprietors. There could be no doubt that there was a force in those arguments, but MR. BAYLEY believed that the force was greater in theory than it would prove in practice. He believed, as a matter of fact, that, of all the estates that had been brought to a forced sale in India, not the hundredth part had brought their real market-value. Moreover, he believed it was the custom, at least among the Native community, in making bargains of this kind, to look rather to the present value of estates than to any possibility of future returns. The immediate assets of the estate formed the consideration that regulated its purchaseable value. MR. BAYLEY did not believe, therefore, that either of these arguments ought to be admitted as largely influencing the equity of the matter. There were, no doubt, a few cases in which purchasers had purchased at the full value of estates with the view to the possibility of future enhancement, but he thought that these were usually those of European purchasers, and constituted a very small minority of the whole, and should not be allowed to count for much in determining the general policy to be observed. With regard to the length of prescription, no doubt that was a matter of some importance to notice, but he thought it hardly constituted any valid argument. In the Panjáb a prescription of very considerable length had arisen; and if it was not of so long standing as in the North-Western Provinces, the facts otherwise were rather stronger in favour of prescription, and against any Government interference in the Panjáb, for no land sale had ever taken place there without careful examination and approval by one of the highest functionaries of Government. Nevertheless, years ago privileges such as those which the present Bill proposed were given retrospectively to exproprietary tenants, and hitherto they had evoked no complaints, and had apparently worked no injustice. In a similar case also, nearer home, under the Irish Land Act, prescription of an infinitely longer duration was overthrown on grounds wholly of political and economical expediency. He thought, therefore, that, upon a full view of the matter, the whole of the counter-arguments deserved small consideration, and ought not to be allowed weight in comparison with the enormous importance of satisfying what he believed to be the just and equitable demands of the old proprietors. No doubt we had been told that these very exproprietors were a class not worthy even of comparison, that they were worthless or improvident men, who had ruined themselves by their own extravagance. It had been urged that they must suffer for that extravagance, and that no exceptions could be made to the ordinary course of law in their case. But whether or not this might be true of the future, it was certainly not true of the past. There was no question that a very considerable number of these men, if not the large majority of them, had been ruined, not by their own faults, but by the faults of others. MR. BAYLEY was, he believed, within the mark when he said that in the three-quarters of a century during which our Government had held the North-Western Provinces, there was scarcely a district in those Provinces which had not suffered wholly or partially from over-assessment. There was nothing surprising in this. We were strangers and foreigners, working in the dark and ignorant of the resources and customs of the people. But while, in modern days, the effect of over-assessment was very closely watched, it was not so in earlier days; and the effects of over-assessment were rarely perceived until extensive defaults occurred and till the settlements we effected had broken down. But extensive defaults never occurred until credit had been exhausted and till a large number, perhaps the bulk, of the landholders had been hopelessly involved in debt. The proprietary body in these cases were clearly ruined, not by their own faults, but by the mistakes of our own officers. No doubt, too, there were other mistakes in our administration, many of which contributed to the same result. There was another class of cases, also, of which MR. BAYLEY was somewhat more loath to speak, because they seemed less excusable. He alluded to those which arose from the action of our early civil courts. There was no question that it was a wise and politic measure to give the original jurisdiction in all suits, as was done during Lord William Bentinck's time, to subordinate courts presided over by Natives of the country. But we constituted those courts at once; gave them a very difficult law to administer, a law strange and foreign; encumbered them with a complicated and tedious procedure, which gave enormous opportunities of fraud and corruption; and we placed over these courts, necessarily at the first, men not only wholly untrained, but very often incompetent, and in many instances untrustworthy and venal. It was not to be wondered at, therefore, that (as MR. BAYLEY believed to be the fact), in the early days of our civil courts, their action resulted in a very large amount of error, fraud, corruption and injustice, and he was afraid there could be little doubt that a very large number of those landholders whose cases we were considering had been ruined through their instrumentality. There was, therefore, a good deal to be said for this class of people, and he had no doubt that the sympathy which was shown towards them, not only during the Mutiny, but at all times, by the general community, was in great measure attributable to the feeling that they had been ruined, not by their own fault, but in a large degree by causes over which they had no control, and which were set down with some justice to the errors and failures of the British Government. MR. BAYLEY thought, apart from any question of policy, therefore, that the equity of the case was not wholly on one side, and that much might be said in favour of extending greater protection to the class of ex-proprietors than had been done by the present Bill; such, for example, as would have been done in a sufficient degree by the Bill in its original form. As had been pointed out by his hon'ble friend, Mr. Hobhouse, the burden of that remedy would have fallen, not on the zamíndár alone, but in a great measure on Government—that is, it would in practice have been equally shared by both. MR. BAYLEY believed the remedy would have given a real relief, not only to an important class, but to substantial grievances, and would have effected this with a minimum of disturbance. He might be wrong, and he hoped he was so; but he felt that some similiar measure would in all probability be forced hereafter upon the Government, and he was quite sure, whatever remedy was then adopted, that it would be less effective, and that it would be more difficult to apply than it would be now. He regretted, therefore, that the present opportunity should be lost, and that the original clauses had been struck out of the Bill at the final meeting of the Committee.

Major General the Hon'ble SIR H. W. NORMAN said, that in the case of a Bill like the present, which dealt with questions of a very complicated and technical nature, it was almost inevitable that one like himself, who never had the opportunity of personally dealing with such questions, must take the details of the Bill a good deal upon trust. That being so, he could only say that he had no hesitation in accepting the Bill in its present shape; for he was aware how carefully all its provisions had been considered by the eminent authorities who had been consulted outside the Council, as well as by the Committee of the Council, the members of which possessed the largest possible experience of such matters, and whose sympathies were all on the side of broad justice. He was therefore prepared with confidence to vote in favour of the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. ELLIS said that he would not weary the Council by going again over the ground already traversed by his hon'ble friends who had preceded him, but if he omitted reference to many points discussed by previous speakers, he must beg that it would not be supposed that it was from any indifference to those points, or from a failure to appreciate their great importance, but simply because he had nothing to add to the very clear expositions already given to the Council.

There were, however, one or two important points which appeared to him to call for remark, because he did not wholly agree in what had fallen from hon'ble members who had spoken.

The first of these questions referred to exproprietors. As had been stated, a change had been made in the original proposals of the Select Committee, and the privilege which was to have been conceded to these exproprietors was not, according to the Bill as it now stood, to have a retrospective effect. He had accepted the original clause on the assurances of those whom he considered best able to judge, that there was a strong and grave political necessity for the provisions as then framed. He did not, however, regret that the clause had been modified. If, as had been urged by his hon'ble friend Mr. Bayley, the former representations were well founded, then more ought to have been done than had been originally suggested; in fact, if those representations were well founded, the modicum of relief that the Bill at first proposed to give the exproprietors fell far short of what ought to have been given them. Nor could he conceive that proposals of the limited scope of those then before them, would have had the effect of averting any grave political danger, such as had been dilated upon by his hon'ble friend to the right (Mr. Bayley). But now that it was admitted by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces that there was not sufficient weight in those political reasons on which His Honour had relied in putting forward the original proposal, to counterbalance the objections which he (MR. ELLIS) thought had not unreasonably been taken to it in its former shape, he had much satisfaction in voting for the adoption of the clauses as amended. The ground upon which he had supported the sections in their former form had been cut from under his feet, and he considered that it was much better that it should be as it was. We could not remedy what had occurred in the past, and we were fully doing our duty in taking precautions for the future.

There was another important question dealt with in the Select Committee, in which also a change had been made in the proposals first adopted; but in this case MR. ELLIS did not think that the change was for the better. He referred to the relations between tenants and landholders. His hon'ble friend, Mr. Hobhouse, had reminded the Council how legal enactments generally worked for the benefit of the rich rather than to the advantage of the poor. MR. ELLIS would also ask the Council to bear in mind that, when a change in the law was under discussion, very much was heard from the higher classes, but very little from the lower. The zamíndárs presented valuable papers and put forth their views, which had full consideration, but the cultivators were never heard. The Council heard everything that was to be said of the rights of zamíndárs, and of any supposed encroachments upon those rights; but we never heard anything on the other side, and he submitted that there was another side. His hon'ble friend, Mr. Inglis, a few days ago stated, with much truth, that Act X of 1859 went too far, and not far enough. It went too far, inasmuch as it opened a door for the creation of a new class of occupancy-tenants out of those who were mere tenants-at-will; but it did not go far enough, for it failed to give protection to those occupancy-tenants who long before the date of the passing of that Act had, according to the custom of the country, rights which under the present law no longer existed.

MR. ELLIS would ask the Council to bear with him for a few minutes while he read some extracts from recent reviews by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, of reports on districts in which settlements had been revised. He read from these particular reports, not because they were the only reports recorded, but because they were the most recent; and from these it would be seen that, in all the districts to which they referred, there was a class of persons who had rights far beyond those acquired under Act X, but which now were no longer recognised under the revenue system which prevailed in those Provinces.

Three of those reports referred to the Jhánsí Division. In reference to Jhánsí, His Honour wrote:—" Excepting the case of some Thákur communities of a quasi-proprietary character, the occupants held each man on his separate footing of possession, and without the common bond of village partnership known in other parts of the country."

* * * * * * *

" Speaking broadly, there was no distinction between revenue and rent: what each man paid for his land, he paid to the Government through the headman, not to a superior holder."

And in reference to the district of Lalatpur His Honour wrote:—

" It may perhaps be doubted whether a settlement such as has been recently made in South Mirzápur, under which the cultivators are recognised as proprietors of their holdings, and the headman constituted a 'patel' with certain rights of management and perquisites, but with no proprietary power over the other cultivators, would not have better suited the circumstances of Lalatpur; but it is needless to speculate on this point now, as the proprietary title, as understood in the North-Western Provinces, has long since been universally recognised and confirmed."

In reporting on Jalaun, the Board of Revenue had exemplified the tenacity with which cultivating rights in that district were kept alive, by the following description.

"These men, as Mr. Jenkinson remarked, would be more correctly styled 'cultivating proprietors' than 'cultivators,' though, in the particular village in question, others advancing a superior claim succeeded in obtaining the proprietary title. Here is a right of occupancy in the soil, saleable and transferable; which absence does not extinguish; which survives the exactions of one of the most exacting Governments that India has ever known, and which presents a complete analogy to the tenures existing in the Dehli territories when they first came under our rule."

In the Dhún, again, the same thing was reported, and His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor said that "the amalgamation of the different classes of old cultivators under the one head of 'maurúsís' is an error greatly to be regretted; for the pledge given to the oldest class of ryot-proprietors does not appear to have been fulfilled; and now that Act X of 1859 has become the Rent Law of the District, they are only protected from its enhancement clauses by the stipulation in the record-of-rights, a stipulation which (even if no flaw be found in it) may be overlooked by the Courts of Law."

MR. ELLIS had read these extracts in no way from a desire to advocate a change in the general system of the North-Western Provinces, but because they showed, by direct evidence, in respect to the Jhánsí Division in the south, and the Dhún in the north, and by reference to other similar tenures in Dehli on the west, and Mirzápur on the east, that there had been all round the North-West Provinces, if not in the centre of them, a very considerable number of tenants possessing a much higher right than that which was accorded to them under the existing system. He thought he might argue that, when new privileges were being conferred (and he did not hesitate to say that under this Bill many new privileges would be conferred) on proprietors and zamíndárs, it would have been a good opportunity to cede to the tenants a full measure of justice. In advocating this, he was advocating no new principle. It was that which a gentleman, whose name was a household word in those Provinces, who was the father, in fact, of the revenue system in the North-West, Mr. Bird, also advocated. Just as MR. ELLIS would now do, Mr. Bird would have then given to tenants a settlement of their rent for the full period of the settlement of the revenue accorded to proprietors. His Honour had stated that this might have been possible in those days, but that the time had passed, and that it was now too late to alter a system which had been in force for so many years, and under which rights had been enjoyed and acquired. MR. ELLIS could not agree in this view. If it was possible in those days to make this change, it was clear that the zamíndárs had no inherent right to bar it, and although a decision was then come to by the Government of India adverse to the proposals of Mr. Bird, he saw no reason why a decision found, after the lapse of time, to have been wrong, should not now be altered. We must remember that the revenue paid by the zamíndárs was a fixed proportion of the assets of their estates, and no change could be proposed so as to affect that proportion during the currency of a settlement; but the term of future settlements might be made twenty or ten years instead of thirty, and the Government, if it allowed the zamíndár the benefit of security against increase of payment for the longer period, might insist on the cultivator with occupancy-rights having a similar benefit. Surely His Honour's argument, if admitted, would apply, not only to this change, but to his own proposal fixing the rents for ten years, and indeed any change in the principles of revenue settlements; and we should be barred from making any improvement not in precise accordance with the principles of former settlements. But His Honour finally admitted that the zamíndárs could not claim, as a matter of right, that we should not fix the cultivators' rents for the period of settlement; he only urged that it would be inexpedient to do so. This being the case, MR. ELLIS would not hesitate, being convinced of the propriety of the change, to revert to Mr. Bird's proposal, especially when we were conferring on the zamíndárs very considerable boons.

There were also, it seemed to MR. ELLIS, strong administrative reasons why a period of ten years should not be taken in preference to the period of settlement. Much had been said on the special knowledge acquired by settlement officers at the time of introducing a settlement, and on the opportunities they had for judging correctly between the proprietor and his tenants as to the rent; and for this reason it had been provided that claims to enhancement of rent should be disposed of at the time of settlement by the settlement officers. But if after ten years the rents were liable to enhancement, any such benefits would be lost. It was true that, ten years hence, we might hope that all our valuable settlement officers would have become Collectors, and bring to bear upon their work the special knowledge which they had now acquired; but they would not have the leisure or the opportunity of acquiring the knowledge of the circumstances of the time which would render their decisions of the same value as the decisions they were now giving during the revision of the settlement. Moreover, he conceived that, on broad principles of public policy, it would have been wise to have given the tenant the full benefit of the term of settlement. MR. ELLIS could hardly suppose that any one would argue that, as a rule, a zamíndár expended much capital on land held by occupancy-tenants, and if the zamíndár would not expend capital, the tenants must be looked to to make improvements, and very strong inducement would be offered to tenants to improve their land if they were protected against enhancement for the whole period of the settlement.

MR. ELLIS conceived, therefore, that it would have been wiser had the Council taken the full period of settlement rather than the shorter term of ten years; but as the ten years period was certainly an instalment of what he (MR. ELLIS) considered right, and as the measure was a step in the right direction, he had no hesitation in voting in support of the Bill as it at present stood.

He would not, however, have made changes exclusively for the benefit of the cultivating classes. There was one great boon which, if conferred coincidently with the protection of the tenant against enhancement, would, MR. ELLIS believed, have reconciled the landholder to any concession to the occupancy-tenant. He (MR. ELLIS) would have completely repealed that section of Act X of 1859 which sanctioned the accrual of an occupancy-right after twelve years' possession. He conceived that a test of a right of occupancy by a tenancy of so many years was wholly foreign to the feelings of all classes of people in all parts of India; and he believed it might be asserted without fear of contradiction that the existence of this law had been the cause of severe friction between the ryot on the one hand, and the proprietor on the other, and that it had caused, was causing, and would continue to cause, a very serious amount of ill-feeling. Believing, as he did, that good feeling between the ryot and the proprietor would be promoted by the abolition of this clause, and that this provision of Act X had been at the bottom of much mischief in the North-West, and perhaps also in the Lower Provinces, he would have been prepared to vote for its repeal.

Then it would be asked, on behalf of the non-occupancy cultivator, if all prospect of his emerging from a state of tenancy-at-will was thus cut off, what could he do to better his condition? MR. ELLIS would provide that occupancy-rights already acquired should be, not only heritable but also transferrible, on a nazrána being paid to the zamíndár in acknowledgment of his superior right. At the same time he would limit the power of transfer, so that none but resident cultivators of the same village should be put in possession of the transferred lands. This measure, he believed, would be of great importance to the occupancy class. It would enable an occupancy-tenant, whose means failed, to get rid of his holding with a little money to set up for himself in some other way. It would, on the other hand, give the tenant-at-will the chance of freeing himself from that position to which he was now probably tied for ever, and if he by some means had acquired a little money, he might establish himself as a tenant with rights of occupancy.

In both these cases the Bill made some progress towards the greater reforms which MR. ELLIS advocated. It went some short way in repealing the obnoxious section of Act X of 1859, in providing that a lease given by a proprietor to a tenant should be an absolute bar to the accrual of occupancy-rights by the lessee during the currency of the lease, and so far it was an improvement. There was also a provision that occupancy-tenants who had a heritable right might transfer their rights inter se. This was a good provision. In both these respects, as also in that a tenant's rent would be confirmed for ten years after it had been enhanced, and would be secured against further enhancement during that period; in all these respects the Bill went in the right direction, and MR. ELLIS did not feel justified, in the face of the greater experience and better judgment of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor and of those experts of the North-West Provinces who framed this Bill, in proposing any change in the Bill as it stood. He (MR. ELLIS) would say, in conclusion, that he willingly voted for the Bill, because he believed it to be itself an important improvement on the present system, and because it took a considerable step in the direction of the further reforms which he, individually, would be glad to see carried out.

The Hon'ble MR. DALYELL said that, as his personal experience of these Provinces had commenced only a week ago, he had very considerable diffidence in offering any observations on the very important measures now before the Council, the more so as he had not had the advantage of being on the Committee to which they were referred in Calcutta, and had no opportunity of joining in the recent discussions in regard to them. At the same time, as the Bills dealt in a great measure with questions in which, probably, at some period of his career, every Indian official was deeply interested, namely, the land-tenures of the country, he hoped he might be excused for taking up a few minutes of the time of the Council in making a very few brief remarks.

The consolidation of the law which would be effected by the Land Revenue Bill, and the definition of the powers and duties of revenue officers, were both of them matters for congratulation; and so far as the Rent Act was a measure of consolidation, it would doubtless be an acceptable addition to the statute-book. How far, however, the provisions which affected the landlords and tenants of these Provinces would be agreeable to the parties concerned, or suitable to the several districts of the Province, was to him somewhat more doubtful. He had always held that, unless there was some very grave necessity to legislate upon land-tenures, it was better to leave such matters to be dealt with by local usage and custom, as it would usually be found that such usage was so elastic in its character that it would adapt itself to the change of circumstances which the lands of different parts of a Province had undergone. Then, again, MR. DALYELL must say that he did not think that the experience we had had in legislation upon land-tenures hitherto was of so satisfactory a nature as to make it at all certain that it was desirable to take further steps in that direction. Probably no measure had been more severely criticised than the permanent settlement, carried out at the end of the last century, not so much because it limited the demand of the State in regard to what must always be its main source of revenue, but because it interfered with the private rights of the people in a manner which, no doubt, was never intended by its framers, but was the result of certain ambiguities in the Regulations under which it was established. Then, again, probably no enactment ever created such dissatisfaction, or evoked such bitter complaint, as Act X of 1859 when it first passed into law. In fact, as a rule, with hardly an exception, MR. DALYELL thought that all legislation in regard to land-tenures, of which there had been any lengthened experience, had resulted in some dissatisfaction in some quarter or other, and occasionally, he could not but fear, in some injustice.

The reason, probably, of this was that the circumstances through which the land in different districts of the same Province had passed were not by any means necessarily the same. The territorial divisions of India were altogether arbitrary, and consequently the people of any particular Province must often consist of divers races, with different traditions and distinct histories. However careful, therefore, the framers of an enactment upon land-tenures might be—however wide might be the scope of their enquiries—however patient their investigations—it was almost impossible for them to frame an enactment which would not in some part of the Province fail to meet the precise circumstances of the people. Certainly, in the presidency to which MR. DALYELL had the honour to be attached, this had been found to be the case. There, the permanent settlement was introduced a few years after the permanent settlement of Bengal, and the Regulations under which it was established were, if possible, still more ambiguous in their terms. Some attempts had been made to rectify matters in 1822, but, virtually, for a long series of years, the rights of the landed interest in that presidency had been entirely in the hands of the officials upon whom it might devolve to interpret the somewhat conflicting laws on the subject.

So recently as 1865, after very patient enquiry and careful consideration, the Madras Act was passed into law, and it was hoped that it would meet all the requirements of the case. Instead, however, of this being the case, it had now been ascertained that, in some parts of the country, the tenants had been given rights which they had never previously claimed, and in others, that the landlords had obtained privileges which they had never before possessed.

Holding those opinions it was to MR. DALYELL a matter of some regret to find, when he was appointed to the Legislative Council in January last, that it was proposed to pass the Bills now under consideration during the Calcutta Session, as it seemed to him that anything like precipitation in dealing with so delicate a matter as land-tenures should certainly be avoided. It was, therefore, with much satisfaction that he subsequently learned that it was intended to defer final action in regard to the Bills until the present Session, and thus to give all the persons affected by them a full opportunity of ascertaining the bearings of their several provisions. Since the time to which MR. DALYELL had referred, the Bills had been very carefully considered by the Members of the Select Committee, some of whom were gentlemen of large experience in the Provinces to which they would apply; and he was glad to think that some of the provisions which would have had the effect of altering the existing law had been either omitted or considerably modified, and after the very full exposition which the Council had received from His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor on the real necessity for legislation on the present occasion, he could only express a hope that, when the Bills become law, they might prove an exception to the hitherto experience in regard to enactments affecting land-tenures.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS then moved that the Bill as re-amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES LAND REVENUE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS moved that the Final and Supplementary Reports of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Land Revenue in the North-Western Provinces be taken into consideration. He said this Bill was first brought forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Stephen in 1872 as part of the general scheme of consolidation which had been for sometime in progress. When introduced, the Bill was confined to the consolidation of the revenue law of these Provinces; but after it was referred to the Government of the North-Western Provinces for consideration, it was thought advisable to take advantage of the opportunity to make some alterations in the existing law, which experience had shown to be necessary; to add twenty-one Regulations and Acts to the number included in the repealing schedule by embodying their provisions in the Bill, and to bring the sections relating to the determination of rent by settlement officers into accordance with the corresponding provisions of the Rent Bill then before the Council.

The Bill was divided into nine chapters, and embraced the following subjects:—The powers of revenue officers. The assessment of the land-tenures, and the preparation of the record-of-rights in land. The maintenance of the records prepared at settlement. The collection of the land-revenue. The administration of the court of wards. The procedure of the revenue courts, and the disposal of appeals from orders passed by revenue officers.

The second chapter related to the constitution and powers of all revenue officers, from the Board of Revenue to the village patwárí. The position held by the Collector of the district and by Assistant Collectors placed in charge of sub-divisions was defined, and the power which they must necessarily exercise, of distributing the business of a district among their subordinates, was distinctly conferred upon them. This power had always been exercised, but as it had been doubted whether it was one which could be properly exercised unless expressly given by law, it had been thought advisable to lay down clearly that the Collector of a district, or an Assistant Collector of the first class, when in charge of a sub-division, might make over any case or class of cases to, or might withdraw any such case or class of cases from, any revenue officer subordinate to him, whether arising under the provisions of this Act or of any other Act, and might deal with it himself, or might refer it to any other such revenue officer for disposal or inquiry. The sections relating to the appointment and dismissal of village patwáris, and the levy of a cess for their payment, embodied the provisions of the existing law and of the rules that had been from time to time issued on the subject by the Local Government. By sections 29 and 30, the levy of a cess, not exceeding three per cent. on the annual value of each mahál, for the payment of the village patwárí and of any additional establishments required for the proper supervision, maintenance, and correction of patwáris' records, was legalized. This cess was now levied under an order of the executive Government issued in 1856, when the settlement of the district of Saháranpur came under revision. By the rule then issued, the cess was limited to three per cent. on the jamábandi, and the same limit was retained; engagements for the payment of the cess had been taken from the landholders in all districts in which the assessments made under Regulation IX of 1833 had come under revision since 1856; consequently these sections merely legalized what had been already done for twenty years past under the order of the executive Government.

Chapter III related to the assessment of the land-revenue and the preparation of the record-of-rights in land at the time of settlement. In sections 36 to 60, the provisions of Regulation VII of 1822, relating to the assessment of the land-revenue, had been embodied in a more concise and clear form. The maximum allowance which might be granted to a proprietor, who might refuse to accept the assessment on his estate proposed by the settlement officer, had, however, been raised to fifteen per cent. on the proposed jamá from ten per cent., the limit fixed by Regulation VII of 1822; and the right of any such proprietor to remain in the occupation of his 'sír' land as an exproprietary tenant was recognized, with this proviso, that the difference between the rent paid by him as an exproprietary tenant and that which he would have to pay were he a tenant-at-will, should be deducted from the allowance granted to him on the jamá, so that in no case would the aggregate allowance enjoyed by an excluded proprietor exceed fifteen per cent. on the proposed assessment. Sections 60 to 91 related to the preparation of the record-of-rights in land at time of settlement, and it was in this part of the Bill that the more important changes proposed to be made in the existing law would be found. Section 64 provided that all entries in the record-of-rights, relating to persons having any heritable or transferable proprietary rights in any mahál, and to persons holding lands as tenants, whether rent-free or otherwise, should be made, subject to the provisions of section 69, on the basis of actual possession; all persons not in possession, but claiming a right to be so, being referred by the settlement officer to the proper court for the establishment of their claims—thus differing from the provisions of section 14, Regulation VII of 1822, under which a settlement officer was empowered to inquire into the title of any person who might complain to him that he had been wrongfully dispossessed within the year immediately preceding that in which the complaint was made, and empowered him to restore the complainant to possession if the assessment was proved. It might have been necessary to give settlement officers this power when Regulation VII of 1822 was passed, but it was no longer required, and had been found to cause much unnecessary litigation and expense. The settlement officers' decision might be appealed through the Commissioner to the Board of Revenue, and a suit might then be instituted in the munsif's court to reverse the decision of the Board, and the whole case fought over again, while it might be carried in appeal through the court of the District Judge up to the High Court. No object was gained by allowing all this useless litigation, while it was evidently better that, if any question was to be eventually decided by the civil courts, it should be made over to them at once, instead of being first tried in the revenue courts. It was therefore provided that the settlement officer, when framing the record-of-rights, should confine his inquiries into the actual and present possession of the parties, leaving all question of right and title to be decided by the civil courts.

Section 66 referred to the cesses paid by tenants and others to landholders. All cesses paid on account of the occupation of land would be in future consolidated with the rent paid by the tenant, and a list of all other cesses, by whomsoever paid in accordance with village-custom, if generally or specially sanctioned by the Local Government, would be framed by the settlement officer; no cess not so recorded could be enforced by any civil or revenue courts. The provision which barred the enforcement in any court of any cess not recorded by the settlement officer, was taken from Regulation VII of 1822; but the power which had been given to the Local Government to lay down conditions under which any cess might be levied on account of a bázár or fair was new; it was evidently very necessary that Government should have this power, and should be able to lay down rules regarding conservancy and sanitary arranagements generally, whenever large bodies of people were collected in any place.

Sections 70 and 77, which related to the rent to be paid by an exproprietary tenant, and fixed the terms for which rent determined by order of a settlement officer should remain unaltered, had been introduced in order to bring this part of the Bill into accordance with the provisions contained in the corresponding part of the Rent Act. MR. INGLIS had explained fully, on Friday last, the reasons which had led the Select Committee to recommend the adoption of the proposed clauses regarding exproprietary tenants, and the grounds on which they proposed to bar a fresh suit for enhancement for ten years after the rent of a tenant had been fixed by order of a competent court. These questions had been again discussed to-day very fully by the hon'ble members who had just now spoken on the Rent Bill: it was therefore unnecessary for him to occupy the time of the Council by enlarging on these points now.

Section 72 enabled a settement officer, on the application either of a landholder or of a tenant, to determine the rent to be paid by the latter, and thus restored the power settlement officers exercised under Regulation VII of 1822, before Act X of 1859 became law. Act X of 1859 laid down the same procedure in cases relating to the determination of rent at all times, whether the district in which the claim was brought was under revision of settlement or not. An alteration in the procedure to be followed when a district was under settlement, was afterwards made by Act XIV of 1863, which dispensed at such times with the notice required to be issued under section 13, Act X of 1859, and allowed the landholder to sue directly for enhancement; the grounds on which he claimed enhancement being stated in his plaint. Still, however, the rent of a tenant at time of settlement of a district could, under the present law, only be determined after a regular suit had been filed: this had been found to be both inconvenient and inequitable, it being obviously desirable that, when the Government demand on the landholder was re-adjusted, every facility should be given to him to re-adjust the rents paid by his tenants. The revised assessment on an estate was, however, not based on the actual rental then received from it by the landholder, which might be, and frequently was, below the fair value of the land, but on an estimate framed by the settlement officer of what the rental would be, were the rates of rent prevailing in the neighbourhood for similar land applied. Consequently, it frequently happened that the revised jamá finally determined by the settlement officer was more than fifty per cent. of the actual rental then received by the landholder; but as a settlement officer had no power, under the present law, to enforce the rates on which he had assessed at the time he declared his proposed assessment, the whole task and cost of bringing the rental up to that on which the revised assessment had been based, was thrown upon the landholder. This took time, and frequently entailed a very considerable outlay upon him, as the demand might be contested through the district civil courts to the High Court. The landholder had thus to bear all the cost of instituting these suits, while if, as generally happened, the ultimate decision was against the tenants, they were burdened, not only with the payment of the enhanced rent, but with all the expenses incurred in the original and appellate courts. It seemed to him impossible to advocate the maintenance of this state of things; the mere statement of the results brought about by the present procedure seemed sufficient to condemn it, and to justify the proposal of the Select Committee to return to the old procedure, under which a settlement officer would, when he declared the revised assessment he proposed for an estate, if the landholder applied for it, make over to him a revised rent-roll. This change would benefit both landholders and tenants, saving them from the litigation and expense they were now put to, and preventing the ill-will and ill-feeling now engendered between them in the settlement of their rents. Almost every landholder he had spoken to readily acknowledged the boon conferred upon him by this change of procedure.

Chapter IV related to the maintenance by the Collector of the records prepared at settlement, to the partition and union of estates, and to the maintenance of boundary-marks. The section relating to the maintenance of the records re-enacted the existing law on the subject, except that, in section 100, a provision had been adopted from the draft Revenue Code framed by Mr. Thomason many years ago. These records were intended to show possession merely, and were not meant to be records of title; consequently, in making alterations in them, the Collector had merely to ascertain whether the transfer alleged to have been made had actually taken place, and if he found that it had, he must make the necessary alteration in his records without any inquiry into the merits of the case; but it not unfrequently happened, in cases of succession for instance, that it was impossible to ascertain who was the party in possession. In such cases the Collector would, by summary inquiry, ascertain the person best entitled to the property, and put him in possession, making the necessary entry in the record accordingly, subject to any orders that might be subsequently passed by the civil court.

The next sections related to the partition and union of estates, and re-enacted, in a clearer and more concise form, the provisions of the present law. By section 120 it was enacted that, while each estate should be made as compact as possible, no partition should be disallowed solely on the ground of incompactness, except with the sanction of the Board. In section 122 it was provided that the 'sír' of any co-sharer should not be included in the estate assigned to another co-sharer, unless with the consent of the co-sharer who cultivated it, or unless the partition could not be otherwise carried out; and further that, if such land was so included, and if after the partition the former owner continued to cultivate it, he should hold it as a tenant with a right of occupancy, his rent to be fixed by the Collector; thus remedying an omission of the present law, in which no mention was made of the 'sír' holdings of the co-sharers, in consequence of which it had been ruled that, in cases such as those contemplated by this section, if the co-sharer continued to cultivate his 'sír' land, he held it as a mere tenant-at-will. This had been strongly objected to by the people, and had been found one of the chief difficulties in carrying a partition case to completion. Section 129 extended the period of appeal to one year from the date on which the partition took effect. The remaining sections of this chapter provided for the maintenance of boundary-marks and made no alteration in the present law.

Chapter V related to the collection of the land-revenue and embodied the provision of the present law on this subject, the only change made being in section 186, which provided that the proprietor of any mahál sold for an arrear of revenue should remain in possession of his 'sír' land as an ex-proprietary tenant. Under the present law, if an estate was sold for an arrear of revenue due on it, the proprietor retained possession of his 'sír'; while if it was sold on account of an arrear due on another estate, he lost all his rights and became a mere tenant-at-will. There seemed to be no reason why this distinction had been made, and accordingly the present opportunity had been taken to remove it.

Chapter VI related to the court of wards, and re-enacted the present law on the subject, except that power was given to the court to take under its charge the property of any landed proprietor, whether his estates were assessed to revenue or not, there being no apparent reason for the distinction made by the present law, between estates assessed to revenue and those held revenue free. Persons disqualified, on their own application, had been added to the list of persons whose estates might be taken under the charge of the court; this was intended to meet the cases of proprietors involved in debt and unable to extricate themselves, and who might apply to Government for assistance. And a new section, No. 204, defining the duties and responsibilities of managers of estates appointed by the court of wards, had been added.

Chapter VII laid down the procedure to be followed by the revenue courts in the trial of cases, and in the reference of cases to arbitration, and defined the powers of collectors, assistant collectors, settlement officers and their assistants, and did not appear to require any particular notice.

Chapter VIII dealt with appeals. The only change made by this chapter in the present law, requiring notice, was that by which appeals from the order of settlement officers, determining the rent or tenure of a tenant, would in future lie to the Commissioner of the Division, instead of, as at present, to the District Judge. On this point MR. INGLIS would read an extract from the Statement of Objects and Reasons sent up with this Bill last year by the Government of the North-Western Provinces:—"It is proposed to bar the civil courts from cognizance of all rent suits adjudicated at time of settlement. The grounds for this proposal are, briefly, that the data on which settlement officers fix rents are mainly identical with those on which they fix the Government revenue rates based on those rents; that the superior revenue authorities are the recognized judges of the adequacy or otherwise of the proposed Government revenue rates; and that the authority which decides on the one has the best means of deciding on both. The standard of rent for purposes of comparison has been declared to be, either the current rate, or the rates assumed for assessment by the settlement officer, and it is believed that the revenue courts are in a far better position than courts of civil jurisdiction to pronounce on the applicability of these rates where the settlement officer's decision is disputed, the issue being one, not of law, but of fact, and resting upon considerations within the daily observation of Commissioners and of the Revenue Board, but little familiar to civil courts." MR. INGLIS had nothing to add to this; except to say that another year's experience had confirmed the correctness of the opinion therein expressed.

MR. INGLIS thought, that he had now noticed all the more important points in which changes had been made in the existing law. It would be seen that these changes were not many in number, and that the Bill had, in fact, retained its original character of a consolidation measure; but regarding it in this light alone he thought it might fairly claim to be one of the most important and useful measures that had been under the consideration of this Council for some time. The law relating to the land-revenue of these Provinces was now contained in fifty-four Regulations and Acts passed at various times, from 1803 to 1863, many of the earlier Regulations extending, either in whole or in part, Regulations previously passed for Bengal in 1793. Now it must be at once evident that to trace the law forward through all these Regulations, many of them passed originally for Bengal seventy years ago, then extended in whole or part to these Provinces, subsequently partly repealed or modified, and sometimes re-enacted, was a task of great difficulty—so difficult was it that few people felt inclined to attempt it, most persons being content to take their revenue law from the Directions to Collectors and Settlement Officers, framed by Mr. Thomason nearly thirty years ago. When, however, questions of revenue law came before the courts, it was impossible to adopt this easy way out of the difficulty, and the provisions of the Regulations themselves must be studied. The consolidation, therefore, of all these old Regulations into one short Act, and the re-arrangement of their provisions under their appropriate headings, must confer a great boon, not only on the officers of Government who had to administer the law, but also on all those whose interests were affected by it, and to whom it was a matter of extreme importance that the law relating to the land-revenue should be clearly expressed and easily accessible, instead of being buried in upwards of fifty old Regulations and Acts as it now was.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE said that whatever observations he had to make on this motion were included in his remarks on the Rent Bill. He would therefore support the motion of his hon'ble friend Mr. Inglis.

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that, as he had already spoken at length on the Rent Bill, and his remarks had a common reference to both Bills, he had nothing further now to say, except, indeed, to express his entire concurrence with what had fallen from his hon'ble friend, Mr Inglis, in respect of the great benefit to the administration in these Provinces from the consolidation of the law effected in the Revenue Bill. The inconvenience and waste of time and labour were very considerable when an officer had to refer from Regulation to Regulation and from Act to Act, in order to pick out the law upon any particular point, and HIS HONOUR therefore felt bound to express the high satisfaction with which he contemplated the prospect of having what was now scattered through fifty or sixty separate laws consolidated into one compact and well arranged Act. The work of consolidation might not at the first sight strike one as great, but it really was a most laborious and anxious task to make the various parts of the digest dovetail together, for the slightest change, not only in matter but in arrangement, involved corresponding changes throughout the whole Bill, the neglect of any one of which might produce serious inconvenience, and even defect of justice hereafter. The Bill appeared to him to be perfect in this respect, so far as labour and assiduity could obviate the chance of error. And he felt bound on this occasion to express his sincere obligations to those who had, during the past two summers, assisted in the deliberations at Naini Tál, and chiefly to his hon'ble friend Mr. Inglis, to whom, he might say, that the whole North-West owed a debt of gratitude for his labours in bringing these two Bills to their present state. HIS HONOUR likewise acknowledged the obligations of the North-Western Provinces Government to his hon'ble friend Mr. Hobhouse, whose endeavours in perfecting the Bill had been unremitting, and HIS HONOUR also thanked the Select Committee for their readiness on all occasions to give a considerate attention to the opinion and suggestions of the Government of the North-Western Provinces.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. INGLIS then moved that the Bill as re-amended be passed.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—"Before these two important Bills are passed, I wish to say that the Government desired to defer their final consideration until the Legislative Council could assemble in the North-Western Provinces, and have the great advantage of the presence and assistance of Sir William Muir, at whose instance the Bills were first introduced.

"I quite agree with the observation of my hon'ble friend Mr. Inglis made on the last occasion on which the Council met, that no measure has, at any rate of late, received greater consideration by the Government of India, by the Legislative Council through the Select Committee,—an institution admirably adapted for dealing with long and intricate measures of this kind,—and by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, who, as well as the Committee, has considered the suggestions and objections which have been raised to several parts of these Bills upon their publication.

"It is a great satisfaction to me that the Committee have come to an almost unanimous conclusion, and the wisdom of their conclusion must, I think, be clear to all the Members of the Council from the discussion that has taken place to-day.

"The only two points upon which it appears there was any difference of opinion are points of much difficulty, and upon which much may be said on either side. My opinion is, after a very careful study of the subject, that the decision of the Committee has been sound in limiting the alteration of the present law as they have done in the Bill now before us. I believe that, upon both questions—first, the limitation of the term for which the rent is to be fixed at settlement, and in suits subsequently raised to ten years, and secondly, the abandonment of the retrospective effect of the provisions which relate to ex-proprietary tenants—the conclusions to which the Committee have come are wise.

"I would say, with reference to the argument which has been used that the position of the ex-proprietary tenants is one which, for political reasons, is undesirable, that those who hold that opinion do not desire to carry it to its complete and legitimate conclusion, that is to say, to overturn the present condition of a great part of the landed property in these Provinces. We are all agreed that we must deal with the question as it is now practicably before us, and to my mind the alterations that have been made leave very substantial benefits for the future to ex-proprietary tenants. The clause, as it originally stood in the Bill, certainly would have interfered to some extent with existing rights. In my opinion such interference would only be justifiable upon the strongest political grounds, and in view of the expression of opinion on the part of my hon'ble friend, the Lieutenant-Governor, that he could not say that such political reasons existed in the present case, it appears to me that the operation of the clause must be limited to the future.

"In saying this I admit that the retrospective provision would have caused but a very slight interference with the rights of property. At the same time, the principle is a grave one, and I could not agree with any interference with rights of property, unless the strongest political reasons were established as the ground of such interference.

"I have only to say, in conclusion, that I heartily agree with the recognition which the Lieutenant-Governor has given to the pains which my hon'ble friend, Mr. Inglis, has taken in the preparation and conduct of these Bills, and also to the great care bestowed by my hon'ble friend Mr. Hobhouse in going through the Bills in Committee, and in explaining so clearly the changes that have been made during their progress. I quite agree with the Lieutenant-Governor in thinking that the North-Western Provinces are greatly indebted to those gentlemen. I may add the same on behalf of the Government of India, for we are deeply interested in the prosperity of these Provinces, which form so important a part of British India.

"The policy, as is well known, of the Government of India is that, while we do not desire to give up the fair right of the State to the land-revenue, we think it essential to the prosperity of the country that, in settlements of land-revenue, moderation should be exercised, and that those settlements should leave the proprietors of the land as well as the cultivators, as far as possible, in a condition of prosperity and independence. We rely upon settlement officers to carry out these principles. This Bill in no respect interferes with them. On the contrary, in some most important respects it will, I believe, be of great benefit to all concerned in future settlements of the land-revenue, as well as in the determination of some questions that may arise under existing settlements."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NAWÁB NÁZIM'S DEBTS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hobhouse moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the liquidation of the debts of the Nawáb Názim of Bengal, and for his protection against legal process, be taken into consideration.

He said that, when he presented the report of the Select Committee upon this Bill at the last meeting of the Council, he took the opportunity of fully explaining the alterations that had been made in the Bill by the Committee, and also such alterations as had been suggested, but which the Committee had abstained from making.

Nothing had since occurred of which he had to inform the Council, and on a reconsideration of the matter, he had nothing to add to what he had said at the last meeting. He must therefore beg the Council to take the speech he then made as being in support of his motion.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE then moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council then adjourned sine die.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, REVENUE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE FORTNIGHT ENDING THE 13th DECEMBER 1873.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Reports from Madras are favorable; some small relief works are being started in Kurnool. From Bombay and Scind accounts are generally good: rain is however wanted in the Deccan and Southern Mahratta districts. From Bengal no change is reported: no sufficient rain for the rubbee sowings has yet fallen, and the situation continues as before. In the North-Western Provinces, Ghazeepoor and Mirzapoor are the only districts where much pressure is reported to exist; elsewhere in the Benares Division and Oudh everything depends on rain. West of Allahabad rain is also wanted, but otherwise prospects are good. Reports from the Punjab are good, also from the Central Provinces, Central India and Rajpootana; rain is however generally required. From Mysore and Berar accounts are satisfactory.

Presidency or Province and District.		Rainfall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras	Dec. 11th
Kistna	(Dec. 10th)	3·34 at Musulipatam.	Rainfall slight elsewhere; four feet water over anicut; canal supply good; tanks received no supplies; later dry crops still sowing; standing crops fair; some dry crops being cut; market well supplied locally; prices generally steady; pasture sufficient; small-pox in a mild form and ague prevalent; cattle disease very general.
Kurnool	"	Nil	Karra, cumboo and yellow cholum crops harvested; outturn moderate; paddy harvested in Ramulkotta and Nandial; other crops good, except paddy in Cumbum; karra in Markapur; oil, seeds, water and pasture abundant; market fairly supplied; prices generally steady; crops in good condition; fever in some parts; cattle disease in three villages; 1,123 coolies employed on relief works.
Negapatam	"	1·58 at Negapatam	Rainfall moderate elsewhere; freshes decreasing; supply to tanks limited; cultivation continued; crops in good order; kar, paddy and some dry grains harvested; yield fair; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture sufficient; health good; slight cattle disease.
Trichinopoly	"	Nil, except in two Northern taluqs.	Monsoon failed; water-supply towards end of channel very deficient; condition and outturn of crops generally good; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture ample; health good; slight small-pox; cattle healthy.
Calicut	"	1·58	Want of rain slightly injurious to second crop, which is almost ripe; markets well supplied; prices steady; pasture withering; fever and small-pox slightly prevalent; cattle healthy.
Bombay	Dec. 11th		General prospects satisfactory.
Sindh.
Kurrachee	(Dec. 10th)	...	Khureef crops in Sewan, where uninjured by flood, very good; cotton prospects favorable.
Hyderabad	"	...	Agricultural prospects favorable; weather seasonable and healthy; prices of grain very low.
Shikarpur	"	...	No change.
Gujarat.
Ahmedabad	(Dec. 10th)	...	Rice harvested; rubbee, cotton, and public health good.
Kaira	"	...	Cotton and rubbee crops progressing favorably; weather and public health good.
Surat	"	...	Cotton and rubbee crops good; fever prevalent.
Broach	"	...	Cottón plants withering in some places; other crops good; weather delightful.
Khandesh and Nasik.
Khandesh	(Dec. 10th)	...	Cotton nearly harvested.
Nasik	"		Public health good, except in Malligaum, where fever prevails to a slight extent; late crops good.
Thanna	"	...	Days hot, nights cool, ague in Thanna; fever in Shapur, Warra, Bassein, and Panwell taluqs; rubbee crops good in Taluq Mahim.
Deccan.
Poona	(Dec. 10th)	...	Accounts from all taluqs not altogether satisfactory; rain much wanted in Bhimthady and Serur taluqs where rubbee crops have much suffered; public health good; cattle disease slightly exists in Havelli taluq.
Ahmednugger	"	...	Public health good; rain wanted in some taluqs.
Sholapur	"	...	Crops middling; cotton market quiet; export 600 docras.
Sattara	"	...	Crops continue good; cattle disease in Pattan.
Southern Mahratta Country.
Belgaum	(Dec. 10th)	...	Early crops being harvested; late ones good, except in Wutni taluq, where blights have caused partial injury.
Dharwar	"	...	Cotton being destroyed by worms; harvest of early crops nearly over; late crops in Nawalgund and Dumbal perishing for want of moisture; sowing generally almost over.
Kaladghi	"	...	Early crops being reaped; late ones middling; public health good.
Canara	"	...	Operations for second crop progressing; reaping nearly completed above Ghât; fever and cattle disease prevalent.
Rajkote	"	...	Cold weather crops and cotton good.
Wudwan	"	...	Weather cold—no change.
Baroda	"	...	Crops fair; public health good.

Presidency or Province and District.		Rainfall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal	(Dec. 10th)
Burdwan	...	Nil	Cloudy during the first week, but no rain; were rain to fall now, it would do more harm than good to the late rice crop; in the second week it was cool and dry. Nowan rice has been cut and has lowered the price of common rice in some places; the cutting of the late rice crop has commenced; the outturn of that cut is reported small; sowings of the cold weather crops are very limited; export of limited quantities to Behar continues.
24-Pergunnahs	...	0·08	Cloudy with a slight shower on one day only, which has lowered the temperature somewhat; but it is still warm for the time of the year. A good shower of rain would have benefited the cold weather sowings, but it would have injured the late rice; that on the high lands which has survived the drought is being harvested with a proper outturn, and that on the beel lands is not ripe yet; prospects of the cold weather crops are very gloomy; sowings have only been made in patches and only where water was procurable; in Satkhira sub-division, mustard plants are being injured by insects.
Dacca	...	0·20	Cloudy for 4 days with slight showers of rain on the 29th and 30th November last, but it is still warm for the season; heavy dews. Winter crops are very fair; a good deal of Baro paddy has been planted.
Patna	...	Nil	Very cold in the mornings and evenings; no rain has fallen. No change in the prospects of the crops; insects are still reported to be doing considerable damage to young plants of the cold weather crops; there is still time to sow the rest of the cold weather crops, about half of which has been sown, if rain falls soon.
Bhaugulpore	...	Nil	Very clouded in the first part, but no rain fallen; fine and cold afterwards. Rice cutting becoming general; probable outturn not yet ascertainable; cold weather crops still promise well; price of rice slightly falling, and new rice has made its appearance in the markets of the Banka sub-division.
Cuttack	...	0·55	Cool; slight drizzling rain general, but not sufficient to affect the crops. Prospects of crops remain good; late Sarud rice ripening and early Sarud rice is almost harvested.
Kamroop	...	Nil	No rains have fallen; mornings ran misty; days clear with cool north-east wind; nights clear with heavy dews. Late rice is being reaped, but owing to the want of rain a full outturn is not expected; sugarcane and mustard crops are progressing favorably.
			Public health:—Burdwan, fever still prevalent; 24-Pergunnahs, fever still continues in portions of the South Suburban Town and Baraset; in Bariepore it is not increasing, while in Bussirhat and Satkhira it is reported to be abating; Dacca, cholera prevailed in Moonsheegunge during the first week, and fever of virulent type which prevailed in Manickgunge is slightly decreasing; Patna, health of the district good; Bhaugulpore, Cuttack and Kamroop, public health very good; Howrah, the fever which prevailed is fast disappearing out of the town; Rajshahye, cases of cholera still reported from Charghat; Pubna, fever throughout the district, and a considerable portion of the population has been invalided; Chittagong, cholera cases reported from Murkasorai, Seetacoond, Sudder and Juldee stations.
			General Remarks:—Rain would now injure the rice, which is being reaped in most places with a poor result, but is much wanted for the cold weather crops and sowings; a wide area of land is still unsown in consequence of the drought. Insects are injuring the young plants in some places, but have disappeared from others; rats and wild pigs also are causing damage to the rice crop in Purneah. Harvesting of the late rice has commenced, and in some places the outturn will be better than was estimated; and millets, potatoes and other cold weather crops are being extensively grown in some of the affected districts to supplement the supply of food, but they require rain. Prices have fallen at almost all places where the rice just reaped has come into the market.
N. W. P.	(Dec. 11th)
Ghazeepoor	...	...	Rubbee looks poor and depends greatly on the winter rains; not a full area sown; large importation from the west which has lowered prices; relief works in parts will soon be needed.
Benares	(Dec. 9th)	...	Nothing new; 13 to 14 annas of the usual rubbee area sown; rubbee still promises well, but every thing depends on rain.
Mirzapoor	(7th)	...	Prices stationary; large importations during past week; trifling export eastward; relief works commenced.
Bustee	(8th)	...	No change; export of grain much diminished.
Azimgurh	(7th)	...	Rubbee continues promising; irrigation employs all available labor; tanks mostly drying up, but wells extensively constructed and worked; at worst a ten or twelve annas rubbee expected.
Jounpore	(8th)	...	Slight rise in prices owing to decrease in imports from Oudh; rubbee continues promising; no distress yet.
Banda	(9th)	...	Cotton crops disappearing; jowari being cut but below average; no injury to rubbee as yet.
Humeerpore	(8th)	...	Khureef crops all cut and except jowari stored; less than half an average crop; rian wanted for rubbee.
Agra	(10th)	...	No rain but occasional clouds; khureef crops mostly harvested; rubbee prospects favorable.
Muttra	(8th)	...	Cotton crop total failure; prospects of rubbee continue good.
Saharunpoor	(10th)	...	Khureef average; rubbee area large; and crops good; rain wanted.
Bareilly	(10th)	...	Rubbee looks well; but rain wanted; exports and imports trifling.
Punjab	(Dec. 11th)	...	No rain during past fortnight; fever still prevalent at Rawulpindee and Peshawur; agricultural prospects generally good, but rain would much improve them.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rain-fall for fortnight preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Oudh (Dec. 11th)
Lucknow, Fyzabad "	Nil	Rain much wanted; water-supply becoming deficient; exports increasing; general prospects same as before.
C. Provinces (Dec. 11th)
Balaghat (6th)	...	Cool; rice almost cut; yield below average; rain required for rubbee crops; prices higher than last year; small-pox prevalent.
Sumbulpoor ...	...	Cloudy; prospects unchanged; low-land rice being cut; Bengal and Chota Nagpur traders continue purchasing rice; price of rice 32 common, and 42 seers coarse.
Chanda ...	...	Clear; rubbee crops doing well; prices cheap; fever prevalent.
Bhandara ...	...	Clear; rubbee crops require rain; prices easy; health good.
Belaspoor ...	...	Cloudy; prospects unchanged; prices steady; health good.
Mandla ...	...	Cool; khureef crops below average; rubbee sowings almost completed; rain much needed; prices rising; health good.
Raipoor ...	...	Cloudy; prospects unchanged; prices risen 20 per cent. in Simga tahsil; health good.
Upper Godavari ...	...	Clear; prospects unchanged; fever prevalent.
Saugor ...	...	Clear and cool; jowari cuttings approaching completion; rubbee crops looking well; rain wanted; health good.
Chindwara ...	...	Clear; rubbee crops require rain; health good.
Nagpoor (10th)	...	Cloudy; rubbee crops in fair order; slight showers of rain this morning; prices stationary; health good.
Wurdah ...	...	Clear; jowari cutting and cotton picking in progress; rubbee crops favorable.
Hoshangabad ...	...	Prospects fair.
Baitool ...	...	Rain needed.
Nursinghpoor ...	...	Rain needed for rubbee crops; prices falling.
Seoni ...	...	Slight rain to-day, but not general; more rain required for rubbee crops.
Jubbulpur ...	...	Rubbee sowing completed; rain required; prices stationary; health good.
Dumoh ...	...
Nimar	...	Clear; prices of jowari and rice risen; prospects favorable; fever and small-pox prevalent; cholera disappeared.
Hyderabad Assigned Districts—
East Berar (Dec. 11th)	...	Jowari cutting and cotton picking continued; rubbee in good condition.
West Berar (10th)	...	Rubbee crops doing well; khureef harvest and cotton picking in progress.
Mysore and Coorg— (Dec. 11th)
Bangalore (10th)	0·5 in cantonment.	Little or no rain in other parts of the district; early cessation of rain has partly affected the outturn of dry crops; wet crops are in most places in good condition; public health good; prices stationary.
Toomkoor (9th)	Nil	Dry crops are reported to have suffered much in parts of the district; wet crops reported to be in a flourishing condition in all taluqs; public health generally good; prices rising.
Mysore (3rd)	"	Some of the crops are being harvested; prices fluctuating.
Hassan (8th)	1·08	Cardamoms picked in one taluq, and paddy cut in two taluqs; raggi harvested in two taluqs; other standing crops reported on favorably in five taluqs; dry crops in four taluqs require more rain; public health good.
Shimoga (6th)	"	Agricultural prospects and public health good; cattle disease prevailing.
Kadoor (8th)	0·25	In maidan (plain) taluqs the outturn of crops will be indifferent, if more rain does not fall; in the Mulnaad (hill) taluqs the crops are doing well; public health fair; cattle disease in three taluqs.
Coorg (10th)	0·14	Prospects of rain crops continue good; coffee crops in Bamboo districts are good, but in South Coorg very small; fever and small-pox still prevalent,
Chituldroog (6th)	0·20	Raggi and five kinds more of dry crops have been harvested in some parts, and in others they are ready for harvesting; in some places, however, young crops are stated to be suffering from insufficiency of rain; public health good; cattle disease in two taluqs.
		Remarks:—Agricultural prospects generally good.
Rajpootana—
Jaipur (Dec. 10th)	...	Weather favorable; crops progressing satisfactorily.
Ajmere "	...	Weather pleasant; small-pox prevalent; prospects of harvest good.
Meywar (Nov. 22nd)	...	Tanks generally low; rubbee prospect not so unfavorable as previously represented; an average crop may be expected; ague still prevalent.
Bickaneer ...	...	Weather continues fine; no particular disease prevalent.
Harowtee Agency States " (Nov. 29th)	...	Tanks and wells full; health good, but fever prevalent in Tonk; prospects of crops unchanged.
Ulwar (Nov. 27th)	...	State of tanks and wells satisfactory; health good; rubbee prospects good.
Sirohee ...	...	Tanks dry: supply in wells running short; health very good; crops fair, whilst well supply is fair; rather seasonable.
Central India— (Dec. 11th)
Indore (Dec. 10th)	...	No change since last report.
Gwalior "	...	Weather, health, and crops good.
Neemuch "	...	Crops looking well; public health good.
Rutlam "	...	No rain; health good; prospects favorable.
Baghelkhund (Sutna) "	...	Condition as before; rain anxiously looked for.
British Burmah (Dec. 11th)	...	Public health good; harvest commenced; standing crops flourishing.
Nepal (Dec. 3rd)	Nil	Health good; ground being prepared for wheat crops; rain much wanted; temperature most unusually low for the last two months.

PUNJAB FRONTIER REGULATI[illegible]

Whereas by a Resolution passe[illegible] Secretary of State in Council on the 6[illegible]y of October 1870, the provisions of th[illegible]rd of Vic[illegible] Chapter 3, Section 1, were decla[illegible] applicable to the Districts of Hazára, Pesháwa[illegible] Kohát, Bannu, Derah Ismail Khán, and Deral[illegible] Gházi Khán: And whereas the Lieutenant Gov[illegible]or of the Panjáb has proposed to the Governor G[illegible]eral in Council a draft of the following Regu[illegible]ation, together with the reasons for proposing the same; And whereas the Governor General in Council has taken such draft and reasons into consideration, and has approved of such draft, a[illegible] the same has received the Governor General's [illegible]nt: In pursuance of the direction contained in the said section, the said draft is now published in the Gazette of India, and will be published in the local Gazette, and will thereupon have the force of law.

Regulation.

1. No person duly warned in the manner hereinafter described shall pass out of British territory across the Frontier of the Districts of Hazára, Pesháwar, Kohát, Bannu, Derah Ismail Khán, and Derah Gházi Khán.

2. A warning for the purpose of this Regulation, if addressed to an individual, shall be in writing under the hand of the Commissioner of the Division, or of the Magistrate of the District, within which such individual dwells or may be found, and shall be served upon him in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe; if addressed to a class of persons or to the public generally, the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council must be obtained, and this warning shall be notified in the Panjáb Government Gazette, and be otherwise published in such manner as may be directed by the Local Government.

3. Whoever disobeys, or attempts to disobey, or abets, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, another person in disobeying, or attempting to disobey, the prohibition contained in the first section of this Regulation, shall be punishable with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

The provisions of sections sixty-four, sixty-seven, sixty-eight, sixty-nine and seventy of the Indian Penal Code shall apply to all fines imposed under this section.

4. If any person disobeys, or attempts to disobey, or abets, within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, another person in disobeying or attempting to disobey, the said prohibition, the Local Government may order him to remove to such place under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the Panjáb as the Local Government in each case directs.

5. If any person contravenes any such order, the Commissioner of the Division or Magistrate of the District within which he is dwelling or may be found may cause him to be apprehended and detained in custody until he is released upon such conditions as the Local Government thinks fit.

6. If the Commissioner of the Division or Magistrate of the District, within which any person (whether an European British subject or not) is dwelling or may be found, reasonably suspects that he intends to disobey the prohibition con- [illegible] in th[illegible] section of this Regulation, such [illegible] Magistrate may require such [illegible] good behaviour, for a period not [illegible] months, as to the Commissioner or [illegible] deem sufficient.

[illegible] of the Code of Criminal Proce- [illegible] hundred and seven to five [illegible] (both inclusive) shall apply [illegible] all cases under this section.

[illegible] th December 1873.

[illegible] with reference to Notifications, [illegible] the 16th April 1872, and No. [illegible] April 1872, M. Louis Francois [illegible] general for France at Calcutta, [illegible] his Office on the 13th ultimo.

[illegible] following notification, which [illegible] on Gazette of the 3rd October [illegible] general information :—

[illegible] RESENT.

The [illegible] cellent Majesty in Council.

W[illegible] of Parliament made and passe[illegible] Session of Parliament holden in the thirty-third and thirty-fourth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for Amending the Law relating to the Extradition of Criminals," it was, amongst other things, enacted, that where an arrangement has been made with any foreign State with respect to the surrender to such State of any fugitive criminals, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the said Act shall apply in the case of such foreign State; and that Her Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent Order, limit the operation of the Order, and restrict the same to fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in the part of Her Majesty's dominions specified in the Order, and render the operation thereof subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient:

And whereas a Treaty was concluded on the twenty-sixth day of June last between Her Majesty and the King of Sweden and Norway for the mutual extradition of fugitive criminals, which Treaty is in the terms following :—

HER Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and His Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway, having judged it expedient, with a view to the better administration of justice, and to the more complete prevention of crime within the respective countries, that persons charged with or convicted of the crimes hereinafter enumerated, and being fugitives from justice, should, under certain circumstances, be reciprocally delivered up; their said Majesties have named as their Plenipotentiaries to conclude a Treaty for this purpose; that is to say :—

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the Honourable Edward Morris Erskine, a Companion of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to His Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway;

And His Majesty the King of Sweden and Norway, Henrick Wilhelm Bredberg, Grand Cross of the Order of the Polar Star, His Majesty's Councillor of State and Acting Minister for Foreign Affairs;

Who, after having communicated to each other their respective full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed upon and concluded the following Articles :—

ARTICLE I.

The High Contracting Parties engage to deliver up to each other those persons who, being accused or convicted of a crime committed in the territory of the one Party, shall be found within the territory of the other Party, under the circumstances and conditions stated in the present Treaty.

ARTICLE II.

The crimes for which the extradition is to be granted are the following :—

1. Murder (child murder and poisoning included) or attempt to murder.
2. Manslaughter.
3. Counterfeiting or altering money, uttering or bringing into circulation knowingly counterfeit or altered money.
4. Forgery or counterfeiting or altering or uttering what is forged, or counterfeited or altered, comprehending the crimes designated in the Swedish and Norwegian penal codes as counterfeiting or falsification of paper money, bank notes or other securities, forgery or falsification of other public or private documents, likewise the uttering or bringing into circulation or wilfully using such counterfeited, forged, or falsified papers.
5. Embezzlement or larceny.
6. Obtaining money or goods by false pretences, except as regards Norway, cases in which the crime is not accompanied by aggravating circumstances according to the law of that country.
7. Crimes by bankrupts against bankruptcy law.
8. Fraud by a bailee, banker, agent, factor, trustee, or director, or member or public officer of any company, made criminal by any law for the time being in force.

9. Rape.
10. Abduction.
11. Child stealing.
12. Burglary or house-breaking.
13. Arson.
14. Robbery with violence.
15. Threats by letter or otherwise with intent to extort, except as regards Norway, cases in which this crime is not punishable by the laws of that country.
16. Sinking or destroying a vessel at sea, or attempting to do so.
17. Assaults on board a ship on the high seas, with intent to destroy life or to do grievous bodily harm.
18. Revolt, or conspiracy to revolt, by two or more persons on board a ship on the high seas against the authority of the master; except, as regards Norway, conspiracy to revolt.

The extradition is also to take place for participation in any of the aforesaid crimes, provided such participation be punishable by the laws of both the Contracting Parties.

ARTICLE III.

No Swedish or Norwegian subject shall be delivered up to the Government of the United Kingdom; and no subject of the United Kingdom shall be delivered up to the Swedish or Norwegian Government.

ARTICLE IV.

The extradition shall not take place if the person claimed has already been tried and discharged or punished, or is still under trial in the country where he has taken refuge, for the crime for which his extradition is demanded.

If the person claimed should be under examination for any other crime in the country where he has taken refuge, his extradition shall be deferred until the conclusion of the trial, and the full execution of any punishment awarded to him.

ARTICLE V.

The extradition shall not take place if, subsequently to the commission of the crime, or the institution of the penal prosecution, or the conviction thereon, exemption from prosecution or punishment has been acquired by lapse of time, according to the laws of the country where the criminal has taken refuge.

ARTICLE VI.

A fugitive criminal shall not be surrendered if the offence in respect of which his surrender is demanded, is one of a political character, or if he prove that the requisition for his surrender has in fact been made with a view to try or punish him for an offence of a political character.

ARTICLE VII.

A person surrendered by either of the High Contracting Parties to the other, cannot, until he has been restored or had an opportunity of returning to the country from whence he was surrendered, be triable or tried for any crime committed in the other country other than that on account of which the extradition shall have taken place.

This stipulation does not apply to crimes committed after the extradition.

ARTICLE VIII.

The requisitions for extradition shall be made through the Diplomatic Agents of the High Contracting Parties respectively.

The requisition for the extradition of an accused person must be accompanied by a warrant of arrest issued by the competent authority of the State requiring the extradition, and by such evidence as, according to the laws of the place where the accused is found, would justify his arrest if the crime had been committed there.

If the requisition relates to a person already convicted, it must be accompanied by the sentence of condemnation passed against the convicted person by the competent Court of the State that makes the requisition for extradition.

The requisition ought, as far as possible, to be accompanied by a description of the person accused or convicted, in order to identify him.

A requisition for extradition cannot be founded on sentences passed in contumaciam.

ARTICLE IX.

If the requisition for extradition be in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the competent authorities of the State applied to, shall proceed to the arrest of the fugitive.

The prisoner is then to be brought before a competent Magistrate, who is to examine him and to conduct the preliminary investigation of the case, just as if the apprehension had taken place for a crime committed in the same country.

The extradition shall not take place before the expiration of fifteen days from the apprehension, and then only if the evidence be found sufficient, according to the laws of the State applied to, either to justify the committal of the prisoner for trial, or to prove that the prisoner is the identical person convicted by the Courts of the State which makes the requisition.

ARTICLE X.

In the examinations which they have to make in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the authorities of the State applied to shall admit as entirely valid evidence the sworn depositions or statements of witnesses taken in the other State, or copies thereof, and likewise the warrants and sentences issued therein, provided such documents are signed or certified by a Judge, Magistrate, or Officer of such State, and are authenticated by the oath of some witness, or by being sealed with the official seal of the Minister of Justice, or some other Minister of State.

ARTICLE XI.

If sufficient evidence for the extradition be not produced within two months from the date of the apprehension of the fugitive, he shall be set at liberty.

ARTICLE XII.

All articles seized, which were in the possession of the person to be surrendered at the time of his apprehension, shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to for the extradition has ordered the delivery thereof, be given up when the extradition takes place; and the said delivery shall extend not merely to the stolen articles, but to everything that may serve as a proof of the crime.

ARTICLE XIII.

Each of the High Contracting Parties shall defray and bear expenses incurred by it in the arrest, maintenance, and conveyance of the individual to be surrendered till placed on board ship, as well as in keeping and conveying the articles which are to be delivered up in conformity with the stipulations of the preceding Article.

The individual to be surrendered shall be conveyed to the port specified by the applying Government, at whose expense he shall be taken on board the ship to convey him away.

If it be necessary to convey the individual claimed through the territories of another State, the expenses incurred thereby shall be defrayed by the applying State.

ARTICLE XIV.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonies and Foreign Possessions of the two High Contracting Parties.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal who has taken refuge in a Colony or Foreign Possession of either Party, shall be made to the Governor or Chief Authority of such Colony or Possession by the Chief Consular Officer of the other in such Colony or Possession; or, if the fugitive has escaped from a Colony or Foreign Possession of the Party on whose behalf the requisition is made, by the Governor or Chief Authority of such Colony or Possession.

Such requisitions may be disposed of, subject always, as nearly as may be, to the provisions of this Treaty, by the respective Governors or Chief Authorities, who, however, shall be at liberty either to grant the surrender, or to refer the matter to their Government.

Her Britannic Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and Foreign Possessions for the surrender of Swedish and Norwegian criminals who may there take refuge, on the basis, as nearly as may be, of the provisions of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE XV.

[illegible] Treaty shall come into force ten [illegible] blication, in conformity with the [illegible] by the laws of the High Con- [illegible] It may be terminated by either [illegible] tracting Parties, but shall remain [illegible] months after notice has been given [illegible].

ARTICLE XVI.

[illegible] Treaty shall be ratified, and the [illegible] be exchanged at Stockholm, as [illegible] possible.

[illegible] reof the respective Plenipoten- [illegible] ed the same, and have affixed [illegible]

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

The 18th December 1873.

No. 3755.—The following Resolution is published for general information :—

Read the following :—

Letter from the Officiating Accountant General, Bengal, No. $\frac{P}{311}$, dated 18th October 1873, to the Financial Secretary.

I have the honor to submit the returns of pensioners prescribed in Section 84 of the Civil Pension Code.

2. The returns are in four sets, namely—

1. India pensioners paid in Calcutta.
2. Bengal " " "
3. Bengal " " Mofussil.
4. Marine " " Calcutta, many of whom are females.

3. Headings 2 and 3 are blank in the first year's returns, because they are intended to contain the corrections for age as compared with the previous years, and in this case there are no previous years.

4. In examining them with reference to the rate of mortality to be expected, I would put down the following as the probable rates on a priori grounds, being those given by Mr. Brown as the result of statistics affecting Indian Native Army pensioners :—

Age.	Rate of mortality, per cent.
51—60	4·5
60—65	6·5
65—70	8·
70—75	10·
75—80	12·
80—85	12·5
85	14·

5. The following shews the total of the "India" pensioners of all age :—

Age.	Total on Roll on March 31, 1871.	Died in 1871-72.	Died in 1872-73.	Total deaths.	Expected deaths in 2 years.
51 ...	111	6	2	8	9·
60 ...	40	...	5	5	5·
66 ...	26	1	2	3	4·
70 ...	12	...	...	...	2·5
76 ...	9	3	1	4	2·
80 ...	5	2	2	4	1·
86 ...	1	1	...	1	...
	204			25	24·5

6. On these no remark appears to be called for, and an inspection of the tables shows that the deaths seem to be very fairly distributed among the three classes of pensioners, under Rs. 10, under 50, and over 50.

7. In the next class of pensioners—Bengal pensioners paid in the Mofussil—the separate grades are sufficiently numerous to be examined separately.

The figures of the 1st Grade, those under Rs. 10, are as follows :—

Age.	No. on Roll, 31st Mar. 1871.	Died in 1871-72.	Died in 1872-73.	Total deaths.	Expected in 2 years.
Under 50	79	4	7	11	5
" 51	155	16	11	27	14
" 61	94	5	11	16	13
" 66	70	7	3	10	11
" 71	60	...	6	6	12
" 76	23	3	3	6	6
" 81	13	2	1	3	3
" 86	6	3	...	3	2
	500			82	66

8. The following are the figures of the 2nd Grade pensions not exceeding Rs. 50 :—

Under 50	43	3	...	3	3·
" 51	145	10	2	1[illegible]	13·
" 61	67	7	3	[illegible]	9·
" 66	55	3	2
" 71	27	3	2
" 76	16	...	1
" 81	3	1	...
	357

9. Of pensions exceeding Rs. 50, the foll[illegible] figures of two years :—

Under 50	8	2	...
" 51	41	3	2
" 61	22	3	3
" 66	19	4	2
" 71	9	2	2
" 76	4	2	1
" 81	...	...	...

10. In all these cases the deaths seem [illegible] up to expectation, and even exceed it in [illegible] possible that this is due to the fact that the nu[illegible] people who have gone off through six months' [illegible] are not dead, but I have made such allowance a[illegible] ble for this, by taking as the number of death[illegible] whole number under heading 2, but that number a[illegible] ed by the entries under heading 6.

11. I shall direct the Collector's attention to the 16 persons entered under age 76 to 81 in the list of pensioners exceeding Rs. 10. Their mortality falls exceedingly short of expectation, and it may be well to enquire whether the alleged survivors are beyond doubt the original pensioners, and whether the real pensioners are really all alive.

12. Taking next the Bengal pensioners paid in Calcutta, we get the following statistics :—

Not exceeding Rs. 10.

Under 50	22	1	...	1	1·
" 51	22	...	2	2	2·
" 61	19	1	2	3	2·5
" 66	4	...	...	...	·5
" 71	7	1	1	2	1·5
" 76	5	1	...	1	1·
" 81	2	...	...	...	·5
" 86	2	...	...	...	·5
	83			9	9·5

Not exceeding Rs. 50.

Under 50	25	...	...	...	1·5
" 51	86	4	5	9	8·
" 61	29	2	3	5	3·5
" 66	20	...	...	...	5·
" 71	18	1	1	1	4·
" 76	6	1	...	1	1·5
" 81	2	...	...	...	·5
" 86	...	...	...	...	...
	186			16	24·

Exceeding Rs. 50.

Under 50	8	0	0	0	·5
" 51	56	2	4	6	5·
" 61	14	0	1	1	2·
" 66	9	1	1	2	1·5
" 71	7	1	1	2	1·5
" 76	5	0	0	0	1·
" 81	0	0	0	0	1·

13. There seems to be in all these tables a smaller rate of mortality among the very high ages than should be expected. The pensioners are all people paid in this Office, and I shall cause renewed attention to be given to the question of their identification with the original pensioners.

14. The Marine pensioners are the only ones remaining, and the following are the figures for the three classes combined:—

Under 50	20	0	0	0	1·
" 51	28	1	1	2	2·5
" 61	10	0	0	0	1·
" 66	4	0	0	0	·5
" 71	6	2	0	2	1·
" 76	0	0	0	0	·0
" 81	0	0	0	0	·0

rks appear to be called for, and the cases ermit any deductions from the divergence , especially as five persons, who are excluded their ages are not known, furnish three hich being added to the above Statistics l more near to the expectation.

ing is a summary of the whole of these

	Rate of Pension.	Number.	Actual mortality.	Expected mortality.
...	All ...	204	25	24·5
il	Under 10	500	82	66·
	Under 50	357	38	44·5
	Over 50	105	28	14·
a	Under 10	83	9	9·5
	Under 50	186	16	24·
	Over 50	99	11	13·5
	All ...	69	4	6·

wrong rashly to assume that the wn in the above figures is the actual n place, because, on the one hand, lled by mere absences for a prolonged er, it may be diminished by substitu- ners. However, the fewness of the gues the fewness of the lapses in- ures, and I think the figures contain ence that there has not been much, if any, substitution. I think, therefore, it is a pretty fair conclusion that, so far as can be judged by information and calculations, so rough in their nature, the mortality rates, with which we above started, are not far from the average applicable to the case.

18. It is worthy of remark, that the younger pensioners show a tendency to excessive mortality (compared without initial figures), which is easily accounted for by the fact that they are, by the nature of the case, mostly invalids; and that, as we might have expected, the pensioners of the class between 10 and 50 seem to be more healthy than those on higher or on lower pensions.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council desires that a copy of the above letter be forwarded to the several Officers of Account concerned as indicating the kind of examination to which statements submitted under Section 84, Civil Pension Code (second edition), should be subjected. The table of mortality used by Mr. Westland should be used by the other Officers of Account until further order.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 19.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th December 1873, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

No. 22 OF 1873.

A Bill to declare the true meaning of Acts X of 1859, XIV of 1863, and XXII of 1872.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, by Act XIV of 1863, section eight, the Local Government of the North-Western Provinces was empowered to invest any officer employed in making or revising settlements of the land-revenue with the powers of a Collector as described in Act X of 1859, for the decision of suits arising within the local limits of the jurisdiction assigned to such officer, of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of the same Act, or in the said Act XIV of 1863, while such officer is so employed :

And whereas, in the year 1863, the Local Government resolved that all Collectors, Assistant Collectors and Deputy Collectors at any time employed in making or revising settlements, should, during such employment, be invested with the powers described in section eight of Act XIV of 1863, and such officers have in fact from that time exercised such powers from the date of their employment in the duties aforesaid, and large numbers of suits of the nature mentioned in the same section have been heard and decided by such officers notwithstanding that their employment commenced subsequently to the year 1863, and notwithstanding that the Local Government may not have expressed their intention to invest them with the said powers otherwise than by appointing them to such employment :

And whereas it has recently been ruled that Deputy Collectors whose employment in settlement-work commenced subsequently to the twenty-first day of April 1863, have not been invested with the said powers :

And whereas, by Act X of 1859, section one hundred and fifty, it is enacted that all the powers vested in the Collector by the preceding sections of that Act may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector ; and in all cases without such reference, by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any sub-division of a District :

And whereas, by section ten of Act XIV of 1863, it is enacted that if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before any officer empowered under section eight of that Act to hear the same, such suit shall be heard and determined by such officer, notwithstanding that no notice of enhancement shall have been served under section thirteen of the said Act X of 1859 on the party from whom such enhanced rent is claimed : and that in such case the statement of claim should set forth the grounds on which such enhancement of rent is claimed :

And whereas, by Act XXII of 1872, it was enacted that all Deputy Collectors and all other persons theretofore or thereafter invested with all or some of the powers of Deputy Collectors for the purposes of Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, should be deemed to have been or to be (as the case might be) Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts within the meaning of the same Acts, or Assistants to Collectors invested with the powers of Deputy Collectors in such charge : and it was also enacted that all suits preferred and applications made to, and orders made and acts done by, such Deputy Collectors and other persons in the exercise of such powers should be deemed to have been and to be as duly preferred, made and done as if the said Deputy Collectors and other persons had been Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts within the meaning of the same Acts :

And whereas, by force of the said Acts, all Deputy Collectors in the North-Western Provinces have ever since the passing of Act X of 1859, been of like authority with Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions, and, as such, have had jurisdiction to hear all suits of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of that Act and in Act XIV of 1863, and all Collectors have had and have exercised very largely the power of referring to Deputy Collectors cases brought before themselves :

And whereas, since the passing of Act XXII of 1872, it has been held that a Deputy Collector not invested with powers under section eight of Act XIV of 1863, has not any jurisdiction to hear a suit of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of Act X of 1859 :

And whereas it has also recently been held that the said Act XXII of 1872 has no operation in cases in which a decision has been delivered contrary to the true meaning of the said Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, as declared in Act XXII of 1872, but prior to the passing of Act XXII of 1872:

And whereas, ever since the passing of Act XIV of 1863, officers invested with the powers of Collectors under section eight of that Act have been in the habit of exercising that power which is vested in Collectors by section one hundred and fifty of Act X of 1859, and of referring to Deputy Collectors employed as aforesaid suits of the nature mentioned in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 for the purpose of having such suits heard and decided by such Deputy Collectors, and great numbers of suits have been so heard and decided:

And whereas it has recently been held that officers engaged in making or revising settlements, and invested with the powers of Collectors under section eight of Act XIV of 1863, have not the power of referring suits to Deputy Collectors; and also that, if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before such an officer, he is bound by section ten of Act XIV of 1863 to hear and determine it in person:

And whereas, by the effect of such holdings, great numbers of decisions in suits of the nature mentioned in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 have become open to question, and for the quieting of titles, and the avoidance of litigation, it is necessary that the validity of such decisions should be affirmed, and that the meaning of the said Acts should be declared:

And whereas it is apprehended that other objections may be made to the authority of officers who have decided suits of the nature mentioned in Act XIV of 1863, and it is expedient that such decisions should not be impeached for any defect in such authority;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Powers of Deputy Collectors under Regulation IX of 1833.

1. All Collectors, Assistant Collectors and Deputy Collectors under Regulation IX of 1833, employed in making or serving settlements, have been, and are, and are intended to be, invested with the powers described in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 during the term of such employment.

Power of Collectors to refer cases to Deputy Collectors.

2. By section one hundred and fifty of Act X of 1859, it was intended, and has always been the law, that Collectors should refer to Deputy Collectors such of the cases brought before themselves as they think fit.

Act XIV of 1863, section 8, explained.

3. By section eight of Act XIV of 1863, it was intended that when the officers therein mentioned have been invested with the powers therein mentioned, they should have, and it has always been the law that they have had, the whole, and not a portion only, of such powers, and in particular the power of reference conferred on Collectors by Act X of 1859, section one hundred and fifty.

Act XIV of 1863, section 10, explained.

4. The meaning of section ten of Act XIV of 1863 was, and has always been, that in the suits therein mentioned the want of such notice as therein mentioned shall not be a bar to the progress of the suit, and not that the suits therein mentioned must be heard and decided by the same officer from the beginning to the end.

Suits heard by officers pursuant to the said Acts, to be deemed properly heard.

5. All suits heard and decided by any officers in pursuance of the said Acts and of the intentions of the said Local Government as herein explained, have been heard and decided by proper authority, and the decisions given in such suits are valid decisions, subject only to such appeals as are by law provided.

Decisions of officers acting under said Acts in certain suits validated.

6. No decision made by any Collector, Assistant Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer purporting to act under the provisions of Act X of 1859 or Act XIV of 1863 in any suit of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of Act X of 1859 or in Act XIV of 1863 shall be impugned or deprived of effect by reason of the objection that such officer did not possess the jurisdiction legally necessary for deciding the suit, but all such decisions shall be dealt with by every Appellate Court as if they had been made by a tribunal possessing the authority to entertain and decide the suit.

Suits to be decided in accordance with this Act and Act XXII of 1872.

7. Every suit instituted, or question arising, under Act X of 1859, or Act XIV of 1863, and which comes before any Court of Justice, shall be decided in accordance with this Act, and in accordance with Act XXII of 1872, at whatever time such suit may have been commenced, or such question may have arisen, and at whatever time any decision may have been delivered affecting such suit or question.

Presumption in favour of judicial and official acts.

8. In construing the said Acts and in deciding on the validity of judicial proceedings thereunder, all Judges and Courts of Justice shall have regard to the practice which has actually prevailed, and shall also, in the absence of evidence or clear law to the contrary, presume that what purports to have been done by public authority has been rightly done.

Local extent.

Commencement.

9. This Act extends only to the territories under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and shall come into force at once.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces has recently ruled—

(a) that Deputy Collectors, whose employment in settlement-work commenced after 21st April 1863, have not been invested with the powers described in Act XIV of 1863, section eight:

(b) that a Deputy Collector not invested with powers under the same section, has no jurisdiction to hear suits of the nature mentioned in Act X of 1859, section 23:

(c) that Settlement Officers invested with the powers of Collectors under that section, have not the power which Collectors possess of referring suits to Deputy Collectors, and that, if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before such an officer, he is bound by Act XIV of 1863, section ten, to hear and determine it in person: Punchum Singh v. Musamut Hoomut-oon-nissa:

(d) that Act XXII of 1872 has no operation in cases in which a decision has been delivered contrary to the true meaning of Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, but prior to the passing of Act XXII of 1872, by which that meaning was declared (Buldeo v. Lutchmun, 5 N. W. P. High Court Reports, 106).

The effect of these rulings is to render questionable great numbers of decisions in suits of the nature mentioned in Act XIV of 1863, section eight; it is expedient to quiet titles and preclude litigation; and for these reasons it is necessary to affirm the validity of these decisions, and to declare the meaning of the above enactments. This, briefly, is the object of the present Bill, which has been prepared at the desire of the [illegible] Government.

[SURVEYS.]

REPORT ON THE HILL RANGES BETWEEN THE INDUS VALLEY AND THE YARKAND FRONTIER.

Dated Camp Shadulla, the 20th October 1873.

From—T. D. FORSYTH, Esq., Envoy and Plenipotentiary,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

I HAVE the honor to forward "a brief account of the geological structure of the hill ranges between the Indus Valley in Ladak and Shadulla (Shah-i-dula) on the frontier of Yarkund,"* and beg the favor of your transmitting it to the Superintendent, Geological Survey of India.

* Prepared by Dr. F. Stoliczka.

Brief account of the geological structure of the Hill-ranges between the Indus Valley in Ladak and Shah-i-dula on the frontier of Yarkand territory, by Dr. F. STOLICZKA, Naturalist attached to the Yarkand Embassy.

THE following brief notes on the general geological structure of the hill-ranges alluded to, are based upon observations made by myself* on a tour from Leh, viâ Changchenmo, the high plains of Lingzi-thang, Karatagh, Aktagh to Shah-i-dula, and upon corresponding observations made by Dr. H. W. Bellew, accompanying His Excellency Mr. Forsyth's camp along the Korakoram route to this place.

Before proceeding with my account, I will only notice that our journey from Leh (or Ladak) was undertaken during the second half of September and in October, and that we found the greater portion of the country north of the Changchenmo valley covered with snow, the greatest obstacle a geologist can meet on his survey. While on our journey the thermometer very rarely rose during the day above the freezing point, and hammer operations were not easily carried out. At night the thermometer sank as a rule to zero, or even to 8° below zero in our tents, and to 26° below zero in the open air. Adding to this the natural difficulties of the ground we had to pass through, it was occasionally not an easy matter to keep the health up to the required standard of working power.

Near Leh, and for a few miles east and west of it, the Indus flows on the boundary between crystalline rocks on the north and eocene rocks on the south. The latter consist chiefly of grey and reddish sandstones and shales, and more or less coarse conglomerates, containing an occasional nummulite and casts of pelecypods. These tertiary rocks extend from eastward south of the Pangkong lakes, following the Indus either along one or both banks of the river, as far west as Kargil, where they terminate with a kind of brackish and fresh-water deposit, containing melaniæ.

Nearly the entire ridge north of the Indus, separating this river from the Shayok, and continuing in a south-easterly direction to the mouth of the Hanle river (and crossing here the Indus, extending to my knowledge as far as Demchock), consists of syenitic gneiss, an extremely variable rock as regards its mineralogical composition. The typical rock is a moderately fine-grained syenite, crossed by veins which are somewhat richer in hornblende, while other portions contain a large quantity of schorl. Both about Leh and further eastward, extensive beds of dark, almost black, fine-grained syenite occur in the other rock. The felspar often almost entirely disappears from this fine-grained variety, and quartz remains very sparingly disseminated, so that gradually the rock passes into a hornblendic schist; and when schorl replaces hornblende, the same rock changes into layers which are almost entirely composed of needles of schorl. Again, the syenite loses in places all its hornblende, the crystals of felspar increase in size, biotite (or sometimes chlorite) becomes more or less abundant; and with the addition of quartz we have before us a typical gneiss (or protogine gneiss) without being able to draw a boundary between it and typical syenite. However, the gneissic portions, many of which appear to be regularly bedded, are decidedly subordinate to the syenitic ones. As already mentioned, the rock often has a porphyritic structure, and the felspar becomes pink instead of white, as for instance on the top of the Kardung pass and on the southern slope of the Chang-la, where large fragments are often met with without the slightest trace of hornblende. To the north of the last mentioned pass the syenitic gneiss gradually passes into thick beds of syenite-schist, and this again into chloritic schist, by the hornblende becoming replaced by chlorite, while the other mineral constituents are gradually almost entirely suppressed. The syenitic and chloritic beds alternate with quartzose schists of great thickness. This schistose series of rocks continues from north of the Chang-la to the western end of the Pangkong lake, and northwards to the Lunker-la, generally called the Marsemik pass. On the western route Dr. Bellew met similar rocks north of the Kardung pass at the village Kardung, and traced them northwards across the Shayok, up the Nubra valley to near the foot of the Sussir pass.

* As a member of a detached party, specially deputed by His Excellency the Envoy, Mr. T. D. Forsyth, C. B., to explore the Changchenmo and Lingzi-thang routes.

Intimately connected with the metamorphic schistose series just noticed, is a greenish chloritic, partly thin bedded, partly more massive rock, which very closely resembles a similar rock found about Srinaggar. Only in this case certain layers, or portions of it, become often distinctly or even coarsely crystalline, sometimes containing bronzite sparingly disseminated, and thus passing into diallage. This chloritic rock forms the greater part of the left side of the Changchenmo valley, and also occurs south of the Sussir pass. I think we have to look upon this whole series of schistose and chloritic rocks as the representatives of the silurian formation.

After crossing the Changchenmo valley to Gogra, we meet with a different set of rocks. They are dark, often quite black, shales alternating with sandstones. Many beds of the latter have a comparatively recent aspect, and are rather micaceous, without the least metamorphic structure, while the shales accompanying them very often exhibit a silky, submetamorphic appearance on the plains of fracture. I observed occasionally traces of fucoids and other plants in these shales, but no animal fossils. On the Changchenmo route these shaly rocks form the ridge of the Changlang pass, as well as the whole of the western portion of the Lingzi-thang; and they are met again after crossing these high plains and entering the Karakash valley, as far as Shinglung (or Dunglung). On the Korakoram route Dr. Bellew brought specimens of similar rocks from the Korakoram range itself. There can be but little doubt,—judging from similar rocks which I saw in Spiti, and from their geological relation to certain limestones, of which I shall presently speak—that we have in the shaly series the carboniferous formation represented.

In many localities along the right bank of the Changchenmo river, then at the hot springs north of Gogra, and on the southern side of the Chang-lang pass, we find the carboniferous beds overlain by triassic limestone, which often has the characteristic semi-oolitic structure of the Krol-limestone south of Simla. At Gogra and several other places dolomitic beds occur, and in these sections of Dicerocardium Himalayaense are not uncommon. In other places beds are met with full of crinoid stems. North of the Lingzi-thang plain—to the west of which the hills are mostly composed of the same triassic limestone—a red, brecciated, calcareous conglomerate is seen at the foot of the Compass-lá, but this conglomerate gradually passes into the ordinary grey limestone, which forms the ridge, and undoubtedly belongs to the same group of triassic rocks. The last place where I saw the triassic limestone was just before reaching the camping ground Shinglung; here it is an almost white or light grey compact rock, containing very perfect sections of Megalodon triqueter, the most characteristic triassic fossil. On Mr. Forsyth's route Dr. Bellew met with similar triassic limestones on the northern declivities of the Sussir pass, and also on the Korakoram pass overlying the carboniferous shales and sandstones previously noticed. On the Korakoram the triassic limestone contains spherical corals very similar to those which had been a few years ago described by Professor Ritter von Reuss from the Hallstadt beds in the Alps, and which are here known to travellers as Korakoram stones. A description of these very remarkable corals will be given subsequently.

Returning to our Lingzi-thang route, we leave, as already mentioned, the last traces of triassic limestone at Shinglung, in the upper Karakash valley. Here the limestone rests upon some shales, and then follows immediately the same chloritic rock, which we noticed on the Lunker-la, alternating with quartzose schists, both of which must be regarded as of upper palæozoic age.

At Kizil-jilga regular sub-metamorphic slates appear, alternating with a red conglomerate and red sandstones, and further on dark slate is the only rock to be seen the whole way down the Karakash, until this river assumes a north-easterly course, some 14 miles west of the Kâratagh pass. From here my route lay in a north-westerly direction towards Aktagh, and the same slaty rock was met with along the whole of this route up to the last mentioned place.

Dr. Bellew also traced these slates from the northern side of the Korakoram to Aktagh. They further continue northwards across the Suget-lá, a few miles north of the pass, as well as in single patches down the Suget river to its junction with the Karakash. The irregular range of hills to the south of the portion of the Karakash river, which flows almost east-west from Shahidula, on its southern side entirely consists of these slates, while on the northern side it is composed of a fine-grained syenite, which also forms the whole of the Kuenlún range along the right bank of the Karakash river, and also is the sole rock composing the hills about the camping ground Shahidula. The slates of which I spoke are, on account of the close cleavage, mostly fine, crumbling, not metamorphic, and must, I think, be referred to the Silurian group. They correspond to the metamorphic schists on the southern side of the Korakoram ranges.

Thus we have the whole system of mountain ranges between the Indus and the borders of Turkistan, bounded on the north and south by syenitic rocks, including between them the silurian, carboniferous, and triassic formations. This fact is rather remarkable, for, south of the Indus, we have nearly all the principal sedimentary formations represented from the silurian up to the eocene, and most of the beds abound in fossils.

The only exception to which I can allude on the Changchenmo route is near Kium, in the Changchenmo valley. Here there are on the left bank of the river some remarkably recent looking sandstones and conglomerates, dipping at an angle of about 45° to north-by-east, and at the foot of these beds rise the hot springs* of Kium. I think it probable that this conglomerate has eastward a connection with the eocene deposits, which occur at the western end of the Pangkong lake, and in the Indus valley south of it.

In the previous notes I have scarcely alluded to the dip of the rocks at the different localities. The reason is that there is indeed very great difficulty in directly observing both the dip and the strike. At the western end of the Pangkong lake the dip of the metamorphic schists is mostly a south-westerly one, but further on nearly all the rocks dip at a moderate angle to north-east, north-by-east, or to north. On the Lingzi-thang, just after crossing the Changlang, the shales are mostly highly inclined, but further on the limestones lie unconformably on them and dip to north-east. Wherever the hills consist merely of shales and slates, their sides are generally so thickly covered with debris and detritus, that it becomes almost an exception to observe a rock in situ.

The debris is brought down in large quantities by the melting snow into the valleys, and high banks of it are everywhere observable along the water-courses. At a somewhat remote—say diluvial—period this state of things has operated on a far greater scale. Not only were the lakes, like the Pangkong, much more extensive, but valleys like the Changchenmo, or the Tanktze valley, sometimes became temporarily blocked up by glaciers, or great landslips, and the shingle and clay deposits were often accumulated in them to a thickness of two or more hundred feet. Near Aktagh similar deposits of stratified clay exist of about 160 feet thickness, and extend over an area of more than one hundred square miles. There can be but little doubt that when these large sheets of water were in existence the climate of these now cold and arid regions was both milder and moister, and naturally more favorable to animal and vegetable life than it is now. A proof of this is given for instance by the occurrence of subfossil Succineæ, Helices, and Pupæ in the clay deposits of the Pangkong lake, while scarcely any land mollusk could exist at the present time in the same place.

* The temperature of these hot springs varies from 60° to 125°. They form no deposit of gypsum, like the springs north of Gogra, but there is a good deal of soda deposit round them.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House on Saturday, the 13th December 1873.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G. M. S. I., presiding.
The Hon'ble Sir Richard Temple, K. C. S. I.
The Hon'ble B. H. Ellis.
The Hon'ble A. Hobhouse, Q. C.
The Hon'ble J. F. D. Inglis, C. S. I.
The Hon'ble Rájá Ramánáth Thákur.
The Hon'ble R. A. Dalyell.
The Hon'ble H. H. Sutherland.

PRINCE OF ARCOT'S PRIVILEGES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to continue certain privileges and immunities now enjoyed by Prince Azím Jah Bahádur, as Prince of Arcot, to his sons on succeeding to the title.

No alterations had been made in the Bill except one, in compliance with a suggestion by a gentleman supposed to be a creditor, who recommended that the names of the sons of the Prince should be put into the Bill. The suggestion had been adopted, and the names of the Prince's sons who would succeed to the title had been inserted. A communication had been that morning received from the Madras Government, from which it appeared that there was no hurry in passing the Bill. He would therefore ask leave to postpone the two motions connected with this Bill, which stood in his name on the list of business.

ACTS X OF 1859, XIV OF 1863 AND XXII OF 1872, EXPLANATORY BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to declare the true meaning of Acts X of 1859, XIV of 1863 and XXII of 1872. He said that this was the second time, during his short tenure of office, that it had fallen to his lot to discharge the somewhat delicate and difficult task of attempting to cover by legislation some flaws in the Revenue judicial system of the North-Western Provinces which had been discovered in Courts of Law. It would have been far more agreeable, and would probably be far more satisfactory and efficient in every way, if the necessity could have been obviated by the action of the Courts of Law themselves. But that course had been tried and had been found impracticable, and he thought that, when the Council had heard what he had to say, hon'ble members would be convinced that they had no option before them but to pass a law on the subject. For the magnitude of the mischief was very great; it was no less than this, that numbers of law-suits, which might be counted by tens and hundreds of thousands—suits supposed to have settled various disputes between landlords and tenants,—had been found to be settled without authority; that was to say, had been found not to have been settled at all; and it was open to the parties who had been defeated in these suits to try the chance of combat again, and that, not because there had been any injustice or illegality in dealing with them on their merits, but because flaws had been found in the titles of the Judges who decided them. Now there was quite enough of the gambling spirit everywhere amongst mankind to make those who had lost eager to try their chance again, and the result was a flood of litigation on matters which had been decided by competent and impartial officers, whose only shortcoming had been that some informality had been committed in conferring powers upon them, or that it had been found that expressions hitherto supposed to apply to them did not apply to them. We had been informed—we were informed some months ago—that in one district alone, several hundreds of appeals were preferred for the purpose of quashing decisions that had been passed, and re-opening litigation. How many appeals there might be in the other districts, we did not know; but the number must be very large, and might become overwhelming unless we interfered to stay the plague. It was true that, at the instance of the High Court and the Local Government, the Judges had abstained from going on with the cases in question, but we did not know whether that abstinence had been universal, or how far any appeal might have proceeded, and we had found by experience that decrees might be made in such cases very quickly. Nor would it be possible to prolong the present suspension of trials. There was, therefore, a public evil of a kind and on a scale with which the Government were bound to deal.

Now, before he explained the present difficulties, he would just remind the Council of what took place last year. Under the existing Rent Act, X of 1859, Collectors of Land Revenue were appointed to be Judges of many disputes between landlord and tenant, which might conveniently be termed Rent suits, and by section 150 of that Act, it was provided that all powers vested in Collectors for this purpose might be exercised by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of a Sub-division. That Act applied to Bengal and to the North-Western Provinces. In Bengal, there were tracts of territory which were known as Sub-divisions for all purposes of administration. In the North-Western Provinces, such Sub-divisions either did not exist or existed to a very insignificant extent. Therefore, what the Local Government did was to parcel out certain local areas and to appoint Deputy Collectors to them for the purposes of the section in question. They were then held to be in charge of Sub-divisions, and exercised jurisdiction accordingly. In the year 1872 exception was taken to the jurisdiction of one of these officers, and the High Court held that he could not be deemed to be in charge of a Sub-division, and that, therefore, he had not that jurisdiction which he assumed to exercise. But decision cut away the foundation of a great multitude of judgments, it was said as many as six hundred thousand, and we were called upon to interfere. We did interfere by passing an Act—Act XXII of 1872—and in that it was provided in effect that all Deputy Collectors should be deemed to be Deputy Collectors in charge of Sub-divisions, or persons with equivalent powers. Combining the two Acts of 1859 and 1872, it resulted that Deputy Collectors were equivalent to Deputy Collectors in charge of Sub-divisions, and therefore had the powers of Collectors, or, to confine ourselves to the present subject, might take cognizance of Rent suits.

Well, the case which had recently occurred and which had brought about the present difficulty, was of the following nature. A zamíndár sued certain tenants for enhancement of rent. He brought his suit to the Settlement Officer. The Settlement Officer referred it to the Deputy Collector of Etah. The Deputy Collector gave the plaintiff a decree. The defendant appealed to the District Judge of Alígarh, who again gave the plaintiff a decree. The defendants then presented a special appeal to the High Court and there took, for the first time, the objection that the Deputy Collector of Etah had no jurisdiction to hear the suit. The High Court allowed that objection, and quashed the whole proceedings as null and void for want of authority in the Judge. Now, to show the principle upon which that judgment was based; how it bore upon the practice followed throughout the North-West Provinces and in Bengal; how it affected a great number of other cases, and how it should be dealt with, it would be necessary for him (MR. HOBHOUSE) to examine that utterance of the Court which we called a judgment, and which was binding upon all inferior Courts. And he would elucidate it as best he could, promising, however, to treat the Council to as small a quantity of legal exposition as was consistent with a due understanding of the case.

Now, in the first instance, the Council would observe that a Deputy Collector might have jurisdiction from two sources. He might either have original jurisdiction arising from his position as a Deputy Collector, or he might have jurisdiction by reason of a reference made to him by a Settlement Officer. The case was, in fact, a referred case; but as the Court had mentioned grounds of jurisdiction, and had denied its existence on either ground, and as both grounds were equally essential to the stability of a great many proceedings, and must therefore be the subject of our legislation, he would follow the Court in examining both grounds.

He would first take up the subject of original jurisdiction, and would state the grounds upon which the Local Government and the Revenue Courts supposed that jurisdiction to exist.

Act XIV of 1863 was an Act applicable to the North-Western Provinces, and passed for the purpose of amending and adding to the Rent Act of 1859. By section 8 of the Act of 1863, it was provided that the Local Government might invest any officer employed in making or revising settlements of the Land Revenue with the powers of a Collector for the decision of Rent suits. Soon after this Act was passed, proclamations were issued by the Local Government and by the Board of Revenue with the sanction of the Local Government, and under the latter of these, it came to be supposed (erroneously as MR. HOBHOUSE thought) that all Deputy Collectors employed in settlement work, whenever they happened to become so employed, had been invested by the Local Government with the powers of a Collector under this section 8. On considering the terms of those documents, it would be found that they were confined to Deputy Collectors employed at the date of the earlier of the documents, that was to say, on the 21st of April 1863. In point of fact, the general understanding had been the other way, and the practice had prevailed for many years that all Deputy Collectors employed in settlement work should simultaneously exercise jurisdiction over Rent suits.

A few of them had, inconsistently enough, been gazetted as invested with these special powers; but they were only a few, and, as regarded the bulk, it had been considered that their mere appointment as Deputy Collectors employed in settlement work carried with it jurisdiction to try and decide Rent suits.

But the Council would observe that the Act of 1863 said nothing whatever as to the mode in which the Local Government might invest these officers with powers. They were not bound to do it by proclamation, or even by any public or written document. A letter, a verbal direction, a message, a nod or a wink would be quite sufficient, provided only you could prove that the will of the Government was thereby expressed. He did not mean to commend such a method of doing business, and if the Government of which his hon'ble friend (Mr. Inglis) was a distinguished member, were ever to ask his (MR. HOBHOUSE'S) advice about it, he would advise them to invest each officer with the power they wished for by a formal and public document. But still, there was the law that the Government might do as they pleased, and he took it that their will and intention was a simple matter of fact, to be proved, like any other matter of fact, by evidence, circumstantial or direct. For circumstantial evidence they saw a widespread practice known to the Government, to the suitors and to the Courts, and lasting for a number of years. The ordinary inference—and, he would have thought, the legal inference—would be that what was so done was done according to the will and intention of the Government who had the legal right of willing that the officers in question should possess the jurisdiction in question, and the legal right of expressing that will in any mode they thought fit. Direct evidence might be supplied by members of the Government themselves, who were one and all ready to depose that the jurisdiction which had been exercised had been exercised in accordance with the wishes and intentions of Government; and that, if no formal expression had been given to those wishes and intentions, it was by a mere oversight, and because they thought the thing had been done; because they thought that things were in such a state that the mere appointment of a Deputy Collector to settlement-work carried with it his investiture with power to decide Rent suits.

Now, he would read to the Council the passage of the judgment in which the Court had dealt with this part of the case. It was not a full Court, but a Division Court constituted of two able Judges, Mr. Justice Pearson and Mr. Justice Turner. They said :—

'This Deputy Collector is not shown to have been employed in making or revising settlements at the time of the Government Notification, dated 21st April 1863, and did not therefore obtain the special powers described in section 8, Act XIV of 1863, by virtue of that notification. On the contrary, he appears to have been for the first time invested with the powers of a Deputy Collector in the Settlement Department, under Regulation IX of 1833, by the order of Government, dated 16th August 1867. Nor is it shown that he has since been invested with the special powers described in section 8, Act XIV of 1863, by any order subsequent to 16th August 1867. He had therefore no jurisdiction to try the suit had it been originally preferred to him.'

That was all the reference upon that point, and MR. HOBHOUSE thought the Council would feel, as he felt, the difficulty of learning from it the grounds upon which the conclusion was based. The learned Judges did not discuss the bearing of the existing practice, indeed did not so much as refer to it. They did not discuss the applicability of such a maxim as omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta, or such a one as optimus interpres rerum usus, maxims which, though they appeared in barbarous Law Latin, were only plain common sense; they did not discuss whether the burden of proof should not rather lie upon the person who disputed than on him who affirmed the title of a de facto Judge; they called for no evidence on the true issue, whether the will and intentions of the Government had been exercised so as to confer the requisite jurisdiction. But looking at one document, and finding that the requisite powers were not conferred by that, they concluded that such powers did not exist, perhaps deciding, not expressly, but by implication, that written orders were necessary to confer them.

Moreover, from the extreme brevity of the judgment and its silence as to the grounds upon which the conclusion was based, he (MR. HOBHOUSE) confessed that he had very considerable difficulty in knowing what the exact conclusion was. Did the learned Judges mean to say that the Local Government was legally incapable of conferring powers on its officers by classes, and prospectively, or did they mean to say merely that, in point of fact, it had not done so? Each of these conclusions was equally consistent with the written judgment; each of them seemed to him equally probable and tenable in itself. But if we were to give validity to the things which had actually been done, we must take care to cover all possible conclusions upon which their validity might be based.

Before MR. HOBHOUSE quitted this part of the case, he must draw the attention of the Council to another phase of it, namely, its relation to Act XXII of 1872. The Deputy Collector of Etah was, at all events, a Deputy Collector. By the Act of 1872, he must be deemed to be a Deputy Collector in charge of a sub-division. By the Act of 1859, all Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions could take cognizance of Rent suits. But the judgment denied that this officer could do so. It did not, indeed, refer to the Act of 1872 at all; but its words were quite general—"He had no jurisdiction to try this suit had it been originally preferred to him." It therefore seemed directly in the teeth of the Act of 1872.

Now, he had been informed on high authority that, in this respect, the judgment did not express the true meaning of the Court. It was said that they intended to confine their remarks to an enhancement suit brought before a Settlement Officer invested with the powers of a Collector. There was a peculiarity in these suits. A landlord might sue a number of his tenants, and might dispense with a certain preliminary notice, which things were said to have been done in the suit in question. But there was a very obvious distinction between defects in procedure and in the frame of the suit, and defects in the authority of the Judge. The former class of defects need not, by any means, be fatal to the validity of the proceedings, as the latter class must be. Defects in form or procedure might be disputed; if so, the dispute must be decided by the officer who had jurisdiction over the subject-matter; they might be cured; they might be waived; in short, not to trouble the Council with technicalities, the two classes of questions led to wholly different practical results. Again, this judgment was quite general in its terms. There was nothing on the face of it which told us that the suit was in one form or another form. No one who had not access to the original record could tell what the form was. There was nothing in the judgment, or in the report of the case, about the number of tenants sued, or the omission to serve a notice. If the facts were as now stated, it was a pity they were not dwelt upon, and their influence upon the decision brought out. Because this judgment was binding upon all the inferior Courts, and he could not doubt that the inferior Courts would read and interpret it as he had done and still did, namely, as an explicit ruling that an officer circumstanced as the Deputy Collector of Etah had not any original jurisdiction whatever in Rent suits, notwithstanding the Act of 1872. He would presently refer to another decision of the High Court, which seemed to him to make such a conclusion quite inevitable on the part of a subordinate Court. Now, we had to stop litigation, and the Council could not wait until the High Court, which had refused to review this case, took an opportunity of some other appeal coming up to them to state how this judgment should be interpreted. If this case could have been reheard, all might have been made clear on the rehearing. As matters stood, it seemed to him that we had no choice, except between the alternatives of allowing useless litigation to proceed on a large scale, or of declaring that the law was contrary to that plain sense in which the judgment was sure to be read.

He would now pass on to the second division of the case, namely, the jurisdiction which the Deputy Collector derived from the reference to him by the Settlement Officer. The High Court had held that no power to refer existed in the Settlement Officer. He would follow his former method, first stating the grounds upon which the Local Government and the Revenue Courts supposed that such a power did exist.

He had already referred to section 8 of Act XIV of 1863, and had shown that, under that section, the Local Government might invest any officer employed in Settlement work with the powers of a Collector for the decision of Rent suits. Well, by section 150 of Act X of 1859, all powers vested in the Collector by the preceding sections of the Act (an expression which included the jurisdiction over Rent suits) might be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by the Collector. Now, it had hitherto been always supposed that section 150 of Act X of 1859 gave a general power to the Collector to refer to his Deputy any suit which was brought before him. The power to refer suits for decision to another person was a most important power for the decision of suits. It was, in fact, a perfectly indispensable power. If it did not exist, Collectors could not do their work, and the whole machinery of the Revenue administration would break down. In practice, these references had prevailed on an enormous scale, and the Act of 1859 had always been construed on one view, namely, that the power existed. The view that prevailed in Bengal was just the same as that which prevailed in the North-West. Throughout the whole of these two Provinces, Collectors had been in the habit of referring to the Deputy Collectors any suits which were brought before them; and in the North-Western Provinces, Settlement Officers invested with the powers of a Collector had done the same thing to as great an extent.

What the judgment said on this point he would now read. The Judges were speaking of the Settlement Officer, and assuming, for the purposes of argument, that he was himself invested with powers under Act XIV of 1863, they said :—

"But he certainly had no power to refer it to another officer. By section 8 of Act XIV of 1863, the Local Government may invest any officer employed in making or revising settlements of the land revenue with the powers of a Collector as described in Act X of 1859, for the decision of suits arising within the local limits of the jurisdiction assigned to such officer of the nature mentioned in section 23 of the said Act. These are the powers spoken of in section 150 of that Act, and are distinct from such powers as those given to the Collector by the second clause of section 162. The latter powers are granted to a superior officer in respect of his subordinates, while the officers invested under section 8, Act XIV of 1863, are equally invested with the same powers; and under section 10 of that enactment, 'if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before any officer empowered under section 8 to hear the same, such suit shall be heard and determined by such officer;' and it is not provided that he may refer it for trial and decision to another."

Now, that was the whole of the judgment upon this subject, and the Council would see that the judgment rested on two points—

The first was, that the powers of the Collector which were transferable to the Settlement Officer were powers only for the decision of suits. The word 'decision' was emphasized in the judgment both as written and as printed. He might have been misled by the extreme brevity of the judgment; but from the stress laid upon this word, he inferred that the learned Judges considered that the power to refer suits to another officer was not a power for the decision of suits. He would not offer to the Council any arguments to the contrary. He would only say that the idea was a new one, both to the Government and to the Revenue Courts, and had taken them by surprise. In extenuation, if it should be deemed one, of the error of those authorities who had acted on so large a scale on the contrary hypothesis, he ought to add that, having considered the case a great number of times, he was unable, even with the light now thrown upon it, to understand for what purpose the power to refer a suit to another officer was given, unless it was for the purpose of getting that suit decided.

The second point was, that there was a subsequent section, namely, section 10 of Act XIV of 1863, which expressly and positively prohibited such a reference. As it appeared to him that the really important part of the section had escaped the attention of the learned Judges—at all events it was wholly omitted from the judgment—he would read to the Council what the section said. It said—

"If a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before any officer empowered under section VIII of this Act to hear the same, such suit shall be heard and determined by such officer notwithstanding that no notice of enhancement shall have been served under section XIII of the said Act X of 1859 on the party from whom such enhanced rent is claimed."

Now it had always, up to the present moment, been understood that the section in question was simply for the purpose of regulating certain details of procedure peculiar to enhancement suits; that it was for the purpose of dispensing with a preliminary notice, and for providing that the subject-matter of the notice should appear in the statement of claim, not for the purpose of securing the identity of the Judge. The section was confined to enhancement suits; and if the object was to secure the identity of the Judge from the beginning to the end of the suit, it was difficult to understand why enhancement suits should be placed on a different footing from all other Rent suits. Moreover, the inconveniences of this decision would be manifest. Suppose a suit had proceeded some way, and the officer trying it was to die or to be removed to some other place; all the proceedings must then go for nothing, and the litigants be subject to all the expense and inconvenience of going over the same ground again. For, be it remembered, that this was not the case of a permanent office in which an officer's successor might perhaps be taken as identical with himself; but it was the case of an individual clothed with special powers by an isolated act of the Government. There was no such connection, therefore, between predecessor and successor, as could make them the same officer. The result of the judgment was, that the same officer must hear the suit from beginning to end, and if an accident happened to the Judge who was trying the suit, it must be commenced afresh. But he was not there to argue the point. He merely pointed out that the judgment did not refer to the cardinal expressions of the section, nor to the practice under it, nor to the consequence of the new construction. He conceived the old construction to be the only workable one, and it was our duty to restore it to life. He ought to add, as before, that, as far as his ability to understand the matter went, he should and did share the error of the Revenue Courts.

Now, he was informed upon good authority that there was another ground upon which the Judges proceeded, but which was not discoverable in the judgment. He had called attention more than once to section 150 of Act X of 1859—that important section under which Collectors referred cases to Deputy Collectors. Now, it had been suggested that there was no such general power of reference vested in the Collector; and that the only power he had was of a very much more limited character, namely, that, under section 162 of that Act, he might withdraw a suit from one Deputy Collector and then transfer it to another Deputy Collector. But considering what the practice had hitherto been; considering that there must be millions of decisions in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces the validity of which depended upon this power of reference, such a decision was in itself a decision of the very highest importance. It was in fact more important than the rulings which were discoverable in the judgment. If it had been the intention of the Court so to condemn all the existing practice, he should have thought it would not have been done by inference or implication, but that it would have been done by express words, and upon a discussion of the wording of the Act and the universal working of it. But still we were told upon authority which we could not dispute, that this most important assumption really did underlie the whole reasoning of the judgment, and therefore, when we were about to pass a remedial Act, we must bear this in mind, and be very careful to make our foundations sure.

These, then, were the flaws in the title of the Judges who had been trying Rent suits, and these were the flaws which we ought to repair by our legislation. For it was not suggested that any injustice had been done a single individual, or that any public inconvenience had been suffered by this exercise of jurisdiction. The whole controversy had been throughout formal, verbal or technical from beginning to end. The only hardship suffered was by the suitors who had obtained decrees, and then found that their decrees were so much waste paper, or something worse—the materials for an additional law-suit preparatory to the re-opening of the whole original dispute. These people were in no default. They trusted, as they had a perfect right to trust, the visible authority was also the real one. MR. HOBHOUSE could not conceive anything more calculated to shake the people's trust in Government than the sudden discovery that the solemn adjudications of a million suits were so many farces, and the Judges so many impostors: that the people's time and money had been flung away, or had only succeeded in bringing them the mockery of relief, to be again snatched away from them by fresh processes of trouble and expense. It would be waste of time if he were to set himself to prove that, in such a case, the legislature ought to intervene in the speediest and most efficient manner possible.

The question then was, in what manner should we intervene? He thought we ought to pass a declaratory Act which would give validity ex post facto to the decisions which had been made by the Revenue Courts, so that none of them should hereafter be questioned for mere want of authority in the Judge. But here, he was sorry to say, they were met with a fresh difficulty, and they found that the usual form of remedy in such cases, a simple declaratory Act, would not suffice. We tried that last year, and he must now state to the Council what had happened since.

He held in his hand the report of a case in which one Baladeva was the appellant. Before the decision of the High Court in the sub-division case, this Baladeva had obtained a decree from a Deputy Collector for enhancement of rent. When the decision in the sub-division case was made known, a great number of appeals were presented for the purpose of quashing the decrees of the Deputy Collectors. We were perfectly aware of that fact, and openly declared our intention of framing a law in a shape which should cover the disputed ground and repress litigation. We adopted the usual and simple course of an Act declaring the meaning of Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863. Now the Council must know that a declaratory Act was essentially and in its nature retrospective. It fastened upon the original Act and said what its meaning was, and the meaning so declared, took effect as from the date of the original Act, and was not confined to the date of the declaring Act. Every decision made contrary to the meaning so declared was contrary to law, contrary to the meaning of the original Act, and if the soundness of that decision came to be discussed in any Court of justice, that Court of justice was bound to deal with it according to the declared meaning of the original Act.

Well, our friend Baladeva had got his original decree. An appeal was presented to quash that decree, for want of authority in the Deputy Collector. The appeal was heard before Act XXII of 1872 could be passed, and the Judge, obeying the ruling of the High Court, quashed the proceedings of the Court below. When the Act was passed, Baladeva went up with it in his hand to the High Court and said to it: "now the decision of the Judge was wrong, the legislature says so, please to restore me my decree of which I have been unjustly deprived." He no doubt trusted that, when the legislature declared the meaning of an Act to be so and so, the High Court would give that meaning to it, and guide all its proceedings by it. But all he got was a dismissal of his appeal with costs.

The High Court on this occasion consisted of two learned Judges, Mr. Justice Spankie and Mr. Justice Turner; Mr. Spankie considered that they were bound to reverse the decree of the Judge, and to restore that of the Deputy Collector. But Mr. Turner was the Senior Judge; he was of the contrary opinion, and his opinion necessarily prevailed. He laid down broadly that this legislature could not make a law to operate retrospectively on a judicial decision. He insisted upon it that what the High Court declared to be the reading of the law was really the true reading, whatever the legislature might have said to the contrary. He said that the Judge's law was good at the time when he delivered his judgment, and therefore the High Court had no right to say it was bad. But MR. HOBHOUSE had better read to the Council the very words which Mr. Justice Turner had used. He said :—

"At the time the Judge gave the decision from which this special appeal is presented, Act XXII of 1872 had not been passed; it must therefore be held in accordance with the rulings of this Court that his judgment was correct. A new law passed since the decision cannot, it appears to me, make that decision wrong, which was, and still is, in reference to the law then in force, right. After the passing of Act XXII of 1872, which cured no defect in Act X of 1859, but declared that certain officers who had erroneously exercised a jurisdiction they did not possess, should not therefore be deemed not to have had jurisdiction. No one can impugn the exercise by the officers therein mentioned of the jurisdiction which they had erroneously assumed, what was wrong we cannot now say was wrong; but there is nothing in the Act which authorizes me to rule that a decision given in accordance with the law, as it stood before the Act was passed, was contrary to law or usage, having the force of law, at the time the decision was passed. Acts are sometimes passed declaring that the intention of the legislature in a particular enactment has been other than the Courts have construed it to be, but such declarations do not affect cases already decided."

He then passed to another topic with which MR. HOBHOUSE would not trouble the Council, because it appeared to him to be irrelevant, and that the observations required much qualification before they could be accepted as accurate.

Now, that the District Judge in this case was perfectly justified in what he did was clear enough. He only did his duty. He was bound, whatever his own opinion might be, to follow the ruling of the High Court, which was the highest authoritative ruling then in existence. But before the matter came up to the High Court, the legislature had intervened, and had said that the true meaning of the Acts should be taken to be the reverse of that which the High Court had ruled. That was a higher ruling by which all Courts were bound. If a statute said white, and the legislature said it meant black, it was the painful duty of a Court of justice to say that, for the purpose of that particular law, white was to be read in the sense of black. Well, we had done nothing quite so unreasonable here. The High Court thought that the Local Government and the Revenue Courts had misconstrued the statutes. The Government took the view that the construction which had prevailed was the reasonable one, and, indeed, the only one compatible with the due discharge of public business. And the legislature declared that the construction which had prevailed should be taken as the true one.

Now, just suppose that it was the Privy Council who had reversed the ruling of the High Court. It would have been an act of direct disobedience to their superiors if they had not decided every appeal which came before them in accordance with the views of the Privy Council. They would not then have said that, when the Judge delivered his decision, it was in accordance with law, because their superior Court would have admonished them that it was not in accordance with law. But for the purpose of guiding Courts of justice, there was no essential distinction between a declaration of law by a superior Court and a declaration of law by the legislature, except that the legislature was the ultimate authority and the higher of the two. And there was no formal distinction between the two cases except this, that the superior Court would say outright that the Court below was wrong; while the legislature from its position was able to use more courteous terms, not desiring to express an opinion who was right and who was wrong, but merely saying that the law was to be taken in a sense contrary to that given to it by the Judges. He did not for a moment suppose that any such thing was meant, but the Council would see that, in point of fact and of substance, the learned Judge, of whose ability and attainments MR. HOBHOUSE wished to speak with all respect, had set up the ruling of the High Court above the ruling of the legislature, and had refused to recognize our right in such a case as that of Baladeva to validate impugned decisions and so to quiet titles.

Now, he would take upon himself to assure the Council that they could legislate with retrospective effect, and that they could reverse the decisions of Courts of justice, at least as effectively as their superior Courts could. He thought it was a most delicate and disagreeable task, and one which he would shrink from, except under pressure of necessity; but in this case he thought that the public interest demanded it of them. He did not see how in any other way they could effectually quiet titles or avoid a great deal of worry, expense, litigation and confusion. They could not afford to have frequent repetitions of such treatment as the unhappy Baladeva had received. We must then bear this judgment in mind; and we must bear in mind that a simple declaration would not serve our purpose, but that we must make the terms of our law more special, and leave only the alternatives of the accomplishment of our object on the one hand, or, on the other, a clear denial of our power to say that a judicial decision, when once delivered, was wrong, and must be treated as wrong in all Courts of justice.

There was only one other point to which he would refer, and that had been suggested by Mr. Justice Turner. That learned Judge thought that there was at least one other respect in which the procedure of the Revenue Courts might be held to be informal. On enquiry, MR. HOBHOUSE believed that to be the case, but he did not think it necessary to enlarge on the subject. Mr. Turner had suggested a general enactment, providing that the decisions of the Revenue Courts should not be impugned for mere want of authority in the Judge. He (MR. HOBHOUSE) thought the suggestion was a very good one. He confessed he did not, as a rule, like such sweeping provisions. It was said, dolus latet in generalibus: which he would render—'in general expressions, there lurks error;' and it was not uncommonly found that enactments passed in very general terms were not precise enough in some cases, and in other cases carried their principle to an unexpected and undesired extent. But the present case was so peculiar; there were so many flaws found or suspected in the procedure, as to which there had undoubtedly been some irregularity and informality, that he thought it would be a prudent course to run the risk of passing a general enactment as had been suggested. He should therefore ask the Council to adopt the suggestion of Mr. Justice Turner, and begged to thank him for it.

He had now only to explain to the Council the terms of the Bill which he should ask leave to introduce. It was a great deal longer than he could have wished; but those who had followed him through his statement, if only he had been lucky enough to make himself clear to them, would find it simple enough, and would understand the reason for its length. It recited the various enactments which he had referred to, the acts of the Local Government, and the practice which had prevailed in the Revenue Courts. It then recited the several rulings of the High Court as extracted from their judgments. Then, section 1 affirmed the title of the Deputy Collectors and other Revenue Officers under Act XIV of 1863. Section 2 affirmed the all-essential power of Collectors to refer cases to Deputy Collectors. Section 3 affirmed the same thing of Settlement Officers invested with the powers of Collectors. Section 4 explained the meaning of section ten of Act XIV of 1863, and showed that it referred only to details of procedure, and was not intended to secure the identity of the Judge. Section 5 followed out the others, and declared that suits decided according to the received practice should be deemed to have been decided by proper authority.

The object of section 6 he had just explained; it was intended to protect the decisions of Revenue Officers against failure for want of authority, owing to causes hitherto unknown or only conjectured. Section 7 was intended to apply to appeals and to cover such a case as that of Baladeva. Section 8 called the attention of the Courts to certain elements of which no trace was to be found in their decisions, namely, a regard to existing practice, and a presumption, in the absence of evidence, that business had been conducted rightly rather than wrongly.

This Act was intended to extend only to the Provinces under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces. But section 2 related also to the law which ran in Bengal, and though that was now superseded, it might be considered in Committee whether there was ground for extending that part of the Act to Bengal.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE having applied to His Excellency the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business,

THE PRESIDENT declared the Rules suspended.

The Hon'ble MR. HOBHOUSE then introduced the Bill and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report in a week.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The following Select Committee was named :—

On the Bill to declare the true meaning of Acts X of 1859, XIV of 1863 and XXII of 1872——The Hon'ble Messrs. Bayley, Inglis and Dalyell and the Mover.

The Council adjourned to Tuesday, the 23rd December 1873.

FIRST SCHEDULE.—Forms.

SECOND SCHEDULE.—Territories exempted in the first instance, from the operation of the Act.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the recovery of Rent in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends in the first instance to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces, except those specified in the second schedule hereto annexed. But the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to all or any of the territories so excepted.

Save as provided by sections one hundred and seventy-one and one hundred and seventy-two, nothing herein contained applies to land for the time being occupied by dwelling-houses or manufactories, or appurtenant thereto.

Commencement.

This Act shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Acts repealed.

2. Act No. X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), Act No. XIV of 1863 (to amend Act X of 1859), and Act No. XXII of 1872 (to explain and amend Act No. X of 1859) are hereby repealed. But such repeal shall not legalize any practice which, immediately before the passing of this Act, was unlawful.

Rules and orders now in force.

And all rules and orders now in force and made under any of the Acts hereby repealed shall, so far as they are consistent herewith, be deemed to have been made hereunder.

Proceedings heretofore commenced.

All proceedings commenced under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to have been commenced under this Act, except where a decree has been made or an appeal presented: Provided that no proceeding relative to the enhancement of rent shall be deemed to have been commenced before the passing of this Act, merely because the landholder has served a notice under section thirteen of Act No. X of 1859, or because the tenant has contested his liability to pay the enhanced rent, by complaint of excessive demand of rent, under sections fourteen and twenty-three of the same Act.

Acts amended.

Illustration (a) to the Indian Penal Code, section nineteen, and Act No. XI of 1865, section fifty-two, shall be read as if, for "Act X of 1859," the words and figures, "the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873" were substituted. And section fifteen of Act No. XVIII of 1871 (for the levy of rates on land in the North-Western Provinces) shall be read as if, for "section twenty-three of Act No. X of 1859, and in section one of Act No. XIV of 1863," the words and figures "section ninety-four of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873," were substituted, and as if, for "Act No. X of 1859 and Act No. XIV of 1863," the words and figures "the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873," were substituted.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

'Mahál.'

(1.) 'Mahál' means—

(a) any local area held under a separate engagement for the payment of land-revenue, and for which a separate record of rights has been framed;

(b) any local area of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and for which a separate record of rights has been framed:

(2.) 'Rent' means whatever is to be paid, delivered or rendered by a tenant on account of his holding, use or occupation of land :

'Rent.'

(3). 'Landholder' means the person to whom a tenant is liable to pay rent :

'Landholder.'

'Sír-land.'

(4.) 'Sír-land' means—

(a) land recorded as sír at the last settlement of the district in which it is situate, and continuously so recorded since ;

(b.) land continuously cultivated for twelve years by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his servants, or by hired labour ;

(c.) land recognized by village-custom as the special holding of a co-sharer, and treated as such in the distribution of profits or charges among the co-sharers :

(5.) 'Collector of a District' means the chief officer in charge of the Revenue Administration of a District :

'Collector of a District.'

(6.) 'Commissioner of a Division' means the Chief Officer in charge of the Revenue Administration of a Division :

'Commissioner of a Division.'

(7.) 'Board' means the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces :

'Board.'

(8.) 'Civil Jail' means the civil jail of the district, and includes any place appointed by the Local Government for the confinement of prisoners under sentence of any Court constituted under this Act.

CHAPTER II.

Rights and Liabilities of Landholders and Tenants.

Persons holding land at fixed rent without change since permanent settlement to continue to hold at such rent.

4. In the permanently-settled districts, persons who possess a permanent transferable interest in land, and who are intermediate between the proprietor of a mahál and the occupants, and who hold (otherwise than under a terminable lease) at a fixed rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, shall continue to hold at such rent.

Tenants at fixed rates.

5. All tenants in districts or portions of districts permanently settled, who hold lands at fixed rates of rent which have not been changed since the Permanent Settlement, shall have a right of occupancy at those rates, and shall be called "tenants at fixed rates."

Presumption where rent of land not changed for 20 years.

6. Whenever, in any suit to which the provisions of section four or section five apply, it is proved that the rent at which land is held has not been changed for a period of twenty years next before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shown, or unless it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Exproprietary tenants.

7. Every person who may hereafter lose or part with his proprietary rights in any mahál shall have a right of occupancy in the land held by him as sír in such mahál at the date of such loss or parting, at a rent which shall be four annas in the rupee less than the prevailing rate payable by tenants-at-will for land of similar quality and with similar advantages.

Persons having such rights of occupancy shall be called "exproprietary tenants," and shall have all the rights of occupancy-tenants.

Occupancy-tenants.

8. Every tenant who has actually occupied or cultivated land continuously for twelve years has a right of occupancy in the land so occupied or cultivated by him.

Such tenants shall be called "occupancy-tenants."

The occupation or cultivating of the father or other person from whom the tenant inherits, shall be deemed to be the occupation or cultivating of the tenant within the meaning of this section :

Tenants barred from right of occupancy.

Provided that no tenant shall acquire, under this section, a right of occupancy—

(a.) in land which he holds from an occupancy-tenant, or from an exproprietary tenant, or from a tenant at fixed rates ;

(b.) in sír-land ;

(c.) in land held by him in lieu of wages.

Time excluded from reckoning period necessary for acquiring right of occupancy.

Provided also that, when a tenant actually occupies or cultivates land under a written lease without having a right of occupancy in such land, the period of twelve years necessary for acquiring a right of occupancy therein by him or any one claiming under him shall begin on the expiration of the term of such lease. If during the currency of such lease he ceases to occupy the land comprised therein, and sublets it to another, no right of occupancy in such land shall be acquired by the sub-lessee during the currency of the lease.

Rights under sections 7 and 8 when transferable.

9. The right of tenants at fixed rates shall be heritable and transferable. No other right of occupancy shall be transferable by grant, will or otherwise, except as between persons who have become by inheritance co-sharers in such right.

When any person entitled to such last mentioned right dies, the right shall devolve as if it were land : Provided that no collateral relative of the deceased who did not then share in the cultivation of his holding shall be entitled to inherit under this section.

Determination of class of tenure of tenant.

10. On the application of any tenant to have his class of tenure determined, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall determine the class to which he belongs, namely,

whether he is a tenant at fixed rates,

or an exproprietary tenant,

or an occupancy-tenant,

or whether he is a tenant without a right of occupancy.

Bar to enhancement of rent of tenants at fixed rates.

11. The rent paid by tenants at fixed rates shall not be liable to enhancement.

Enhancement in case of exproprietary and occupancy-tenants.

12. The rent paid by exproprietary or occupancy-tenants shall not be liable to enhancement except—

(a) by a written agreement registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1871, or recorded before the patwárí of the village or the kánúngo: or

(b) by order of a Settlement Officer passed under the law for the time being in force: or

(c) by order under this Act.

Grounds of enhancing rent of occupancy-tenants which has not been fixed by order.

13. Where the rent of any occupancy-tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by any such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred, the landholder may apply to enhance the rent of such tenant on one of the following grounds and on no others:—

(a) that the rate of the rent paid by such tenant is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of tenants for land of similar quality with similar advantages,

(b) that the value of the produce has, or the productive powers of the land have, been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the tenant;

(c) that the quantity of land held by the tenant has been proved by measurement to be greater than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

Enhancement of rent of exproprietary tenants which has not been fixed by order.

14. a. Where the rent of any exproprietary tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred, the landholder may apply to enhance or determine the rent of such tenant as if he were an occupancy-tenant: Provided that his rent shall be four annas in the rupee below the prevailing rate for land of a similar quality with similar advantages held by tenants-at-will.

Selection of land for comparison.

b. Whenever the district or tahsíl, or other local area in which such land is situated, has been divided by the Settlement Officer into circles of like capacity and soil, the land of similar quality, with similar advantages, shall, for the purposes of this section and section thirteen, be selected from the same circle.

c. When the Settlement Officer has not so divided the district or other local area as aforesaid, the land regarding which the application has been made shall be compared with land of similar quality and with similar advantages, in the same tahsíl or in a tahsíl immediately adjacent.

Abatement in like cases.

15. Where the rent of any exproprietary tenant or occupancy-tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred, the tenant may apply for an abatement of his rent on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(a) that the area of the land held by him has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise:

(b) that the value of the produce has, or the productive powers of such land have, been decreased by any cause beyond his power.

Time of enhancement or abatement where rent of exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by order under this Act.

16. Subject to the provisions of section seventeen, where the rent of any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by an order under this Act, such rent shall not be liable to be enhanced or abated

(a) until the expiration of ten years from the date on which such order took effect, or

(b) until the revision (before confirmation) of the assessment of the district by order of the Local Government, or

(c) until the conclusion of the period of settlement of the district, whichever of the said three events first occurs.

Grounds of enhancement and abatement where his rent has been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer or under this Act.

17. Where the rent of any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, the landholder may apply to enhance the rent of such tenant during the currency of the term for which the rent has been so fixed, on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(a) that the area of the tenant's holding has been increased by alluvion or otherwise;

(b) that the productive powers of the land held by the tenant have, since the date of the order, been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the tenant:

And the tenant may apply for abatement of his rent on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(c) that the area of the land held by him has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise;

(d) that the productive powers of such land have been decreased by any cause beyond his control.

Grounds of enhancement or abatement of rent of tenant at fixed rates.

18. In the case of a tenant at fixed rates, the landholder may apply to enhance his rent on the ground that the area of the land in his holding has been increased by alluvion or otherwise, and the tenant may apply for abatement of his rent on the ground that the area of the land in his holding has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise.

Day before which applications for enhancement or abatement must be made.

19. Applications for enhancement or abatement of rent must be made on or before the thirty-first day of December next before the year commencing on the first day of July from which the rent is to be enhanced or abated,

Orders when to take effect.

and all orders for enhancement or abatement shall take effect from the first day of July next following the date of the application.

Consideration of caste and class of tenant in determining rate of his rent.

20. In determining, under this chapter, the rate of rent payable by any tenant, his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that, by local custom, caste is taken into account in determining such rate;

and whenever it is found that, by local custom or practice, any class of persons, by reason of their having formerly been proprietors of the soil or otherwise, hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with such custom or practice.

Tenants-at-will.

21. No tenant-at-will of land shall be liable to pay rent in excess of the rent (if any) payable by him in the previous year ending on the thirtieth day of June, unless the landholder and tenant have agreed as to the rent to be paid to the former by the latter, and such agreement has been recorded by the patwárí of the village or the kánúngo of the pargana in which such land is situate.

Rent of exproprietary or occupancy-tenant fixed by agreement.

22. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, when the rent of any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by agreement between the parties, such rent shall not be liable to enhancement or abatement for such term as may be agreed on.

Power to remit or suspend payment of rent where crops have been damaged.

23. Whenever in any land the crops have been damaged or destroyed by any cause beyond the tenant's control, any officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf may, subject to such rules as to appeal, confirmation or otherwise, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Board, order that the whole or any part of the rent then payable for such land shall be remitted, or that the payment thereof shall be suspended for such period as he thinks fit;

And, subject to the same rules, the landholder shall be bound by such order:

And in case of such remission, the Local Government shall remit the revenue due in respect of such land to an amount which shall, at the option of the Local Government, be equal to one-half of the rent remitted, or shall bear the same proportion to the whole of the revenue due in respect of the mahál, as the rent remitted bears to the whole of the rent payable in respect of such mahál;

And in case of such suspension, the Local Government shall suspend for the period of such suspension so much of the revenue payable in respect of the mahál as, at the option of the Local Government, is equal to one half of the rent of which the payment has been suspended, or bears the same proportion to the whole revenue payable in respect of the mahál, as the rent of which the payment has been suspended bears to the whole rent payable in respect of such mahál.

(A).—Leases.

Contents of lease to which every tenant is entitled.

24. Every tenant is entitled to receive from the landholder, and may at any time during the continuance of his holding apply for, a lease containing the following particulars:—

(a.) the quantity of land held by him, and, where the fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field:

(b.) the amount of annual rent payable for such land:

(c.) the instalments in which, and the dates on which, such rent is to be paid:

(d.) any special conditions of the lease:

(e.) if the rent is payable in kind, or is calculated on a valuation of the produce, the proportion of produce to be delivered, the mode of valuation, and the time, manner and place of delivery.

Leases to which tenants at fixed rates are entitled.

25. Tenants at fixed rates are entitled to receive leases at such rates.

Leases to which exproprietary and occupancy-tenants are entitled.

26. Exproprietary and occupancy-tenants are entitled to receive leases at the rates hitherto paid by them, or determined in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Leases to which other tenants are entitled.

27. All other tenants are entitled to leases only on such terms as may be agreed upon between them and the landholders.

Landholder granting lease entitled to reciprocal engagement.

28. Every landholder who grants a lease is entitled to receive a reciprocal engagement from the tenant, executed by the tenant, and conformable with the terms of the lease.

The tender to any tenant of a lease, such as he is entitled to receive, shall entitle the landholder to receive a reciprocal engagement from such tenant.

Lease for period exceeding term of landholder's engagement.

29. If any lease be granted, or if any agreement be entered into, by any landholder under engagement with Government for his land, fixing the rent of land for any period exceeding the term of such engagement, such lease or agreement shall, on the expiration of the term aforesaid, be void at the option of either party.

Resumption of rent-free grants.

30. a. And whereas all grants (whether in writing or otherwise) for holding land exempt from the payment of rent which have been made since the first day of December 1790, by any authority other than that of the Governor-General in Council, were declared by Bengal Regulation XIX of 1793, section ten, to be null and void, and like provisions have been by divers Regulations applied to the several parts of the territories to which this Act extends, and the said Regulation XIX of 1793 also provided that no length of possession should be considered to give validity to any such grant, either with regard to the property in the soil or the rents of it, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Applications to resume.

b. Applications by the proprietor to resume such grants or to assess rent on the land, shall be made to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and, subject to rules to be made under section two hundred and eleven, shall be dealt with as other applications under this Act.

Validity of grants which grantor has expressly agreed not to resume.

c. Grants of land held under a written instrument, by which the grantor expressly agrees that the grant shall not be resumed, shall be held valid as against him (but not as against his representatives after his death) during the continuance of the settlement of the district in which the land is situate, which is current at the date of the grant.

When rent-free tenure confers proprietary right.

d. Where any land has been for fifty years or upwards, and still is, held rent-free and by at least two successors to the original grantee, such holding shall be deemed to confer on the holder a proprietary right.

e. Nothing in the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall bar the right to make an application under this Act to assess to rent land held rent-free.

f. Nothing in this section shall apply to either of the following cases:—

(1) Where land is previously to the passing of this Act held rent-free under a judicial decision:

(2) Where, previously to the passing of this Act, land held rent-free has been purchased for a valuable consideration and resumption thereof has been barred under Act No. X of 1859, section twenty-eight, or under the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, schedule II, No. 130.

(B.)—Relinquishment and Ejectment.

Relinquishment of land by tenant not holding under a lease.

31. Every tenant not holding under a lease shall continue liable for the rent of the land in his holding for the ensuing year, unless on or before the first day of May in any year he gives notice in writing to the landholder, or his recognized agent, of his desire to relinquish such land on the thirtieth day of June next ensuing, and relinquishes it accordingly; or unless it is let to any other person by such landholder or agent.

Service through tahsíldár of notice of relinquishment.

32. If the landholder or his agent refuse to receive such notice, or if he receive it but refuse to sign a receipt for the same, the tenant may make an application to the tahsíldár, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on such landholder or agent, the tenant paying the costs of service.

Mode of serving notice.

33. The notice shall, if practicable, be served personally on the landholder or his agent; but if the landholder or his agent cannot be found, or if he evades service of the notice, service may be made by affixing the notice at his usual place of residence, or, if he does not reside in the district wherein the land is situate, at the chaupál, or other conspicuous place in the village where the land is situate.

Where the delay in serving the notice is owing to the fault of the landholder or his agent, the notice shall be deemed to have been served at the first attempt to serve it.

Liability of tenant to pay interest on arrear and to be ejected.

34. a. When an arrear of rent remains due from any tenant, he shall be liable to pay interest on such arrear at one per cent. per mensem; and if the arrear remains due on the thirtieth day of June, to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear is due:

Bar to ejectment without decree.

b. No tenant at fixed rates, exproprietary tenant, occupancy-tenant, or tenant holding under an unexpired lease, shall be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Ejectment not to be decreed for certain acts or omissions.

c. No ejectment of a tenant or forfeiture of a lease shall be decreed on account of any act or omission of the tenant

(2). which by law, custom, or special agreement does not involve the forfeiture of the lease.

Ejectment of tenant at fixed rates, exproprietary, with right of occupancy, or holding under unexpired lease.

35. If the landholder desire to eject a tenant at fixed rates, an exproprietary tenant, an occupancy-tenant, or a tenant holding under an unexpired lease, against whom a decree for arrears has been passed and remains unsatisfied, he may, after the expiration of the year, ending on the thirtieth day of June, in which such arrears accrued, apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector to eject the tenant.

Such officer shall, on receiving such application, (subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, and of section one hundred and sixty-two of this Act) cause a notice to be served on the tenant, stating the amount due under the decree, and informing him that, if he does not pay such amount into Court within fifteen days from receipt of the notice, he will be ejected from his land.

If such amount be not so paid, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may eject the tenant.

Service of notice on tenant for limited period.

36. If the landholder desire to eject a tenant not having a right of occupancy, or any other tenant holding only for a limited period, after the determination of his tenancy, he may cause a written notice of ejectment to be served on such tenant under the provisions of this Act.

Language and contents of notice.

37. The notice of ejectment shall be written in the vernacular language and character of the district:

it shall specify the land from which the tenant is to be ejected;

and it shall inform him that he must vacate such land on or before the first day of May next following; or that, if he means to contest the right to eject him, he must apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for that purpose on or before that date.

Mode of serving notice.

38. The notice shall be issued and served through the office of the tahsíldár on or before the first day of April, and the landholder shall pay the cost of service: it shall be served personally on the tenant, if practicable; but if he cannot be found, service may be made by affixing the notice to his usual place of residence.

Effect of failure of tenant to institute suit to contest liability to ejectment.

39. a. The tenant, on whom such notice has been served, may, on or before the first day of May next after the service, make an application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, contesting his liability to be ejected.

b. When such an application is made, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall proceed to determine the question between the parties.

c. If no such application is made, the tenancy of the land in respect of which the notice has been served shall be held to cease on the first day of May next after the service; unless, after such service, the landholder authorises the tenant to continue in the occupation of the land.

Procedure to enforce ejectment.

40. If the landholder require assistance to eject the person whose tenancy is alleged to have ceased under the provisions of section thirty-nine, he may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for such assistance before the ploughing for the kharíf harvest commences in the district; and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall order the ejectment of such tenant if he is satisfied—

(a) that the notice was duly served on such tenant under section thirty-eight;

(b) that he has not been authorised by the landholder to continue in occupation,

(c) that the tenant has not made the application mentioned in section thirty-nine, or

(d) that if such application has been made, the question has been determined adversely to the tenant.

Provided that no such application for the ejectment of a farmer on the determination of a lease shall be received if the lease be of the kind in which an advance has been made by the leaseholder, and the proprietor's right of re-entry at the end of the term is contingent on the repayment of such advance either in money or by the usufruct of the land. In all such cases the landholder must proceed by suit in the Civil Court.

Notice of ejectment when void.

41. If the landholder expressly authorise the tenant, on whom the notice of ejectment has been served, or against whom any proceedings in ejectment under section forty have been taken, to remain in occupation of the land, and to prepare it for the kharíf harvest, the proceedings shall become void.

Rights of ejected tenant.

42. a. Any tenant ejected in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to any growing crops or other ungathered products of the earth belonging to the tenant, and growing on the land at the time of his ejectment, and to use the land for the purpose of tending and gathering in such crops or other products paying adequate rent therefor.

Effect of tender by landholder of payment for crops.

b. Provided that, if the landholder desire to purchase such crops or other products, he may tender their price to the tenant; and thereupon the right of the tenant to such crops and other products, and to use the land for the purpose aforesaid, shall cease.

Power to determine rent and price.

c. In the case of a dispute under this section, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, on the application of the landholder or tenant, award the rent and price so payable; and the amount of such award, or of any tender accepted under this section, shall be recoverable as an arrear of rent by suit under this Act.

Set-off of rent.

d. The rent, if any, payable to the landholder by the tenant at the time of his ejectment may be set-off against the price of the said crops or other products.

Application for officer to divide produce or appraise crop.

43. a. Wherever rent is taken by division of the produce in kind, or by estimate or appraisement of the standing crop, or other procedure of a like nature, requiring the presence both of the cultivator and landholder, either personally or by agent,

if either landholder or tenant, personally or by agent, neglect to attend at the proper time, or if there is a dispute as to the amount or value of the crop, an application may be presented by either party to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, requesting that a proper officer be deputed to make the division, estimate, or appraisement.

Procedure on such application.

b. On receiving such application, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall issue a written notice to the opposite party or his agent, to attend on the date and at the time specified in the notice, and shall depute an officer before whom such division, estimate, or appraisement shall be made.

c. If on or before the date appointed, the dispute has not been amicably adjusted, three residents of the village or neighbourhood shall be appointed assessors; one by each of the parties, and one by the officer deputed to divide the grain or estimate or appraise the crops, and the officer deputed shall decide the amount of rent payable by their award, and shall give to the party applying a written authority to divide the grain or cut the crops.

d. Provided that, if either party fail to attend, the officer deputed shall nominate an assessor on his behalf.

e. The officer deputed shall report his proceedings to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall determine the amount of costs properly incurred under this section, and the share of the costs to be paid by either party.

(C.)—Compensation for Improvements made by Tenants.

Tenants' right to compensation for improvements.

44. If any tenant, or any person from whom he has inherited or purchased, make any such improvements on the land in his possession as are hereinafter mentioned, neither he nor his representative shall be ejected from the same land without payment of compensation for such improvements.

Explanation.—The word "improvements" as used in this section means works by which the annual letting value of the land has been, and at the time of demanding compensation continues to be, increased, and comprises—

(a.) tanks, wells and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for agricultural purposes,

(b.) works for the drainage of land, or for the protection of land from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water,

(c.) the reclaiming, clearing, or enclosing of lands for agricultural purposes,

(d.) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto.

Mode of making compensation.

45. Such compensation may, at the option of the landholder or his representative, be made—

1st,—by payment in money;

2nd,—by a rent to be charged on the land;

3rd,—by the grant of a beneficial lease of the land, by the landholder or his representative, to the tenant or his representative;

4th,—partly by one or by any two of the said ways, and partly by the others or other of the same ways.

Settlement of difference as to amount or value of compensation.

46. In case of difference as to the amount or value of the compensation tendered, either party may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector stating the matter in dispute, and requesting a determination thereof.

On receiving such application, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall

(a) cause notice thereof to be served on the other party,

(b) take such evidence as the parties or either of them may adduce,

(c) make such further inquiry as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may deem necessary, and

(d) determine the amount of the payment in money, and the amount and incidence of the rent-charge, and the terms of the lease, or any of such matters.

Considerations in determining compensation.

47. In determining the amount or value mentioned in section forty-six, or the terms of such lease, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall take into account any assistance given to the tenant by the landholder either directly in money, material or labour, for the purpose of making such improvements, or indirectly by allowing the tenant to hold at a favourable rate of rent.

(D.)—Compensation for wrongful Acts and Omissions.

Right of tenant to compensation for exactions in excess of rent or for withholding receipt.

48. Every tenant from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his lease or payable under the provisions of this Act, and every tenant from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the landholder compensation not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid.

Contents of receipt.

Receipts for rent shall specify the period or crop on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid;

and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

Damages for extorting payment of rent by duress.

49. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any tenant by illegal confinement or other duress, he shall be entitled to recover from the person guilty of such extortion such further compensation, not exceeding the sum of two hundred rupees, as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector thinks reasonable.

Liability to punishment for extortion not affected.

An award of compensation under this section shall not bar or affect any penalty or punishment to which the person guilty of such extortion may be subject under the Indian Penal Code.

(E.)—Deposit of Rent in Court.

Deposit of amount tendered by tenant and refused.

50. If any tenant tenders to the landholder full payment of the rent due from him, and if the amount so tendered be not accepted, and a receipt for the amount forthwith granted, the tenant may thereupon apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for leave to deposit such amount in his Court to the credit of the landholder.

Form and verification of application.

51. The application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall be as nearly as may be in the form (A) in the first schedule hereto annexed, and shall be verified in the manner prescribed for the verification of plaints under section one hundred and seven:

Penalty for false statement.

and the person making the verification shall be punishable, if the application contain any averment which he knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true.

Notice to issue on deposit being made.

52. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall receive the amount which the tenant desires to deposit, and shall thereupon issue to the person to whose credit it has so been deposited, a notice in English or the vernacular language of the district in the form (B) in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

And such deposit shall, in all questions between the landholder and the tenant, be deemed to be a payment made by the tenant to the landholder on account of the rent.

Mode of serving notice.

53. Such notice shall be served through the tahsíldár upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his recognized agent.

In their absence, the notice shall be affixed at the chaupál, or other conspicuous place in the village in which the land for which the rent is due is situate.

Payment to person served with notice on his application.

54. If at any time before the expiration of three years from the date of the deposit the person on whom such notice is served, or his recognized agent, appears, and applies that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be paid accordingly, unless it has been repaid or paid in accordance with the provisions next hereinafter contained.

Refund to depositor.

55. If no application be made by such person or his recognized agent, the sum shall be repaid to the depositor on the expiration of three years from the date of the deposit.

And at any time before the expiration of such period, on the joint application of the depositor and the person to whose credit the said sum was deposited, such sum shall be paid in such manner as the joint applicants desire.

CHAPTER III.

DISTRESS.

Produce of land hypothecated for rent.

56. The produce of all land in the occupation of a cultivator shall be deemed to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect of such land;

Recovery of arrears by distress.

and when an arrear of rent is due from any cultivator, the person entitled to receive rent immediately from him may, instead of suing for the arrear as hereinafter provided, recover the same by distress and sale of the produce of the land in respect of which the arrear is due, under the rules contained in this chapter.

57. Provided—

Distress of produce barred by security given for rent.

(a.) that, when a cultivator has given security for the payment of his rent, the produce of the land for the rent of which security has been given, shall not be liable to be distrained:

Sharer when entitled to distrain.

(b.) that no sharer in any mahál shall have power to distrain upon any cultivator unless he is entitled to collect the whole rent from such cultivator:

Distress by manager.

(c.) that no sharer in a joint undivided mahál shall exercise such power otherwise than through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the whole mahál on behalf of all the sharers therein:

Distress in pattídárí mahále.

(d.) that in pattídárí mahále distress shall be made only through a lambardár, or, where the rent of a pattí is not collected by a lambardár, through the pattídár who is entitled to collect the rent.

No distress for overdue arrear, nor, without agreement, for excess over past year's rent.

58. A distress shall not be made for any arrear which has been due in respect of any land for a longer period than one year;

nor for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the same land in the preceding year, unless the rent has been enhanced under the provisions hereinbefore contained, or by order of a Settlement Officer, or unless the cultivator has agreed to pay such excess and such agreement has been attested before the patwárí or kánúngo.

Distress by managers under Court of Wards, &c.

59. The power to distrain conferred by sections fifty-six and fifty-seven may be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, and other persons lawfully entrusted with the charge of immoveable property;

and also by the agents employed by such persons as aforesaid, in the collection of rent, if expressly authorized by power-of-attorney in that behalf:

Liability for illegal act.

If any wrongful act is committed by any such agent, under colour of the exercise of the said power, such agent and his principal shall be jointly and severally liable to make compensation for such act.

Written authority to servants employed to distrain.

60. When any person, empowered to distrain property under section fifty-six, section fifty-seven or section fifty-nine, employs a servant or other person to make the distress, he shall give him a written authority for the same, and the distress shall be made in the name of the person giving such authority.

Standing crops and crops gathered liable to distress.

61. Standing crops and other ungathered products of the earth, and crops or other products when reaped or gathered, and deposited in any threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like, whether in the field or within a homestead, may be distrained by persons invested with power to distrain under the provisions of this Act.

Exception.

But no such crops or products, other than the produce of the land in respect of which an arrear of rent is due, or of land held under the same engagement, and no grain or other produce after it has been stored by the cultivator, and no other property whatsoever, shall be liable to be distrained under this Act.

Defaulter to be served with written demand and account.

62. Before or at the time when a distress is made under this Act, the distrainer shall cause the defaulter to be served with a written demand for the amount of the arrear, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the demand is made.

Mode of service.

The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally on the defaulter; or, if he abscond or conceal himself, so that they cannot be so served, shall be affixed at his usual place of residence.

Distress to be proportionate to arrear.

63. Unless the amount of the demand is immediately paid or tendered, the distrainer may distrain property as aforesaid equal in value, as nearly as may be, to the amount of the arrear and the costs of the distress; and shall prepare a list or description of the said property, and deliver a copy of the same to the owner, or, if he be absent, affix it at his usual place of residence.

List of property to be prepared and copy served on owner.

Standing crops, &c., when distrained, may be reaped and stored.

64. a. Standing crops and other ungathered products may, notwithstanding the distress, be reaped and gathered by the cultivator, and he may store the same in such granaries or other places as are commonly used by him for the purpose.

b. If the cultivator neglect to do so, the distrainer shall cause the said crops or products to be reaped or gathered, and in such case shall store the same either in such granaries or other places as aforesaid, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood.

c. In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of some person appointed by the distrainer for the purpose.

Sale of products which cannot be stored.

d. Crops or products which, from their nature, do not admit of being stored, may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, under the rules hereinafter provided; but in such case, the distress shall be made at least twenty days before the time when the crops, or products, or any part of the same are fit for reaping or gathering.

Assistance to distrainer opposed or apprehending resistance.

65. If a distrainer is opposed, or apprehends resistance, and desires to obtain the assistance of a public officer, he may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who may, if he thinks necessary, depute an officer to assist the distrainer in making the distress.

Distress to be withdrawn on tender of arrear and expenses before sale.

66. If at any time after property has been distrained and before the day fixed for putting it up to sale as hereinafter provided, the owner of the property tenders payment of the arrear demanded of him, and of the expenses of the distress, the distrainer shall receive the same, and shall forthwith withdraw the distress.

Application for sale.

67. Within five days from the time of the storing of any distrained crops or products, or if the crops or products do not from their nature admit of being stored, within five days from the time of making the distress, the distrainer shall apply for sale of the same to the officer for the time being authorized by the Local Government to sell distrained property within the tahsíl in which they are situate.

Contents of application.

68. The application shall be in writing, and shall contain—

(a) an inventory or description of the property distrained,

(b) the name of the defaulter and his place of residence,

(c) the amount due, and the date of the distress, and

(d) the place in which the distrained property is.

Fee for service of notice.

Together with the application, the distrainer shall deliver to the said officer the fee for the service of a notice upon the defaulter as hereinafter provided.

Procedure on receipt of application.

69. Immediately on receipt of the application, the said officer shall send a copy of it to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector; and shall serve a notice in the form (C) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, on the person whose property has been distrained, requiring him either to pay the amount demanded, or to institute a suit to contest the demand before the Collector of the District, or Assistant Collector, within the period of fifteen days from the receipt of the notice.

He shall at the same time send to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, for the purpose of being put up in his office and in the office of the tahsildár, a proclamation fixing a day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than twenty days from the date of the application; and shall deliver a copy of the proclamation to the peon charged with the service of the notice, to be put up by him in the place where the distrained property is deposited.

The proclamation shall contain—

(a) a description of the property,

and shall specify—

(b) the demand for which it is to be sold, and

(c) the place where the sale is to be held.

Suspension of sale on receipt of Collector's certificate of institution of suit.

70. If a suit is instituted before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in pursuance of the aforesaid notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall send to the officer referred to in section sixty-seven, or, if so requested, shall deliver to the owner of the distrained property, a certificate of the institution of such suit; and on such certificate being received by, or presented to, the said officer, he shall suspend the sale.

Suit to contest distrainer's demand before issue of notice of sale.

71. A person whose property has been distrained in manner hereinbefore provided, may immediately after the distress, and before the issue of notice of sale, institute a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer.

When such suit is instituted, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall proceed in the manner prescribed in the last preceding section.

If, thereafter, application for the sale of the property is made to the said officer, he shall send a copy of the application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and suspend further proceedings, pending the decision of the case.

Distress when to be withdrawn.

72. The person whose property has been distrained may, at the time of instituting any such suit as aforesaid, or at any subsequent period, execute a bond with a surety, binding himself to pay whatever sum may be adjudged to be due from him, with interest and costs of suit;

and when such bond is executed, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall give to the owner of the property a certificate to that effect, and, if so requested, shall serve the distrainer with notice of the same;

and upon such certificate being presented to the distrainer by the owner of the property, or served on him by order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, the property shall be released from distress.

When sale may be proceeded with.

73. If the institution of a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer has not been certified, in manner hereinbefore provided, to the said officer, on or before the day fixed in the proclamation of sale, he shall, unless the said demand, with such costs of the distress as are allowed by him, be discharged in full, proceed, in manner hereinafter mentioned, to sell the property or such part of it as may be necessary to satisfy the demand with the costs of distress and sale.

Place of sale.

74. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the said officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

Manner of sale.

The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable;

and if the demand, with the costs of distress and sale, be satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distress shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Withdrawal of distress when demand and costs satisfied.

75. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) be not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or some person authorized to act on his behalf, apply to have the sale postponed until the next day, or, if a market be held at the place of sale, the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until such day and shall be then completed whatever price may be offered for the property.

If fair price be not offered, sale may be postponed and shall be then completed.

76. The price of every lot shall be paid for in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale thinks necessary;

Payment of purchase-money.

and, in default of such payment, the property shall be put up again and sold.

Resale on default.

When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate, describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to purchaser.

77. From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this Act, the officer holding the sale shall make a deduction at the rate of one anna in the rupee on account of the costs of the sale, and shall send the amount so deducted to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Deduction from proceeds of costs of sale.

He shall then pay to the distrainer the expenses incurred by the distrainer on account of the distress, and of the issue of the notice and proclamation of sale prescribed in section sixty-nine, to such amount as, after examining the statement of expenses furnished by the distrainer, he thinks proper to allow.

Payment of distrainer's expenses.

The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale;

Discharge of arrear with interest.

and the surplus (if any) shall be delivered to the person whose property has been sold.

Surplus

78. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by or subordinate to such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Sale-officers and employees prohibited from purchasing.

79. Officers holding sales under this chapter are required to bring to the notice of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector any material irregularities committed by distrainers under colour of this Act;

Report of irregularities by distrainer.

and if, in any case, on proceeding to hold any such sale, the officer holding it find that the owner of the property has not received due notice of the distress and intended sale, he shall postpone the sale and report the case to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall thereupon direct the issue of another notice and proclamation of sale under section sixty-nine, or pass such other order as he thinks fit.

Postponement of sale, and report to Collector when owner has not received due notice.

Order of Collector.

80. When an officer goes to any place for the purpose of holding a sale under this Act, and no sale takes place, either for the reason stated in section seventy-nine, or because the demand of the distrainer has been previously satisfied, no intimation of such satisfaction having been given by the distrainer to such officer, the charge of one anna in the rupee on account of expenses shall be leviable, and shall be calculated on the estimated value of the distrained property.

Levy of charge when sale-officer attends, and no sale takes place.

If the distrainer's demand be not satisfied until the day fixed for the sale, the charge for expenses shall be paid by the owner of the property, and may be recovered by the sale of such portion thereof as may be necessary.

Recovery from owner.

In every other case it shall be paid by the distrainer, and may be recovered by attachment and sale of his property under the warrant of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector:

Recovery from distrainer.

Provided that in no case shall a larger amount than ten rupees be recoverable under this section.

Limit to charge.

81. When a suit has been instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, and the distrained property has not been released on security, if the demand or any portion of it is adjudged to be due, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall issue an order to the officer authorizing the sale of such property;

Order of sale when amount adjudged due.

and, on the application of the distrainer within five days from the receipt of such order by the officer, such officer shall publish a second proclamation in the manner prescribed in section sixty-nine, fixing another day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the date of the proclamation;

Second proclamation of sale.

and, unless the amount adjudged to be due with the costs of distress be paid, shall proceed to sell the property in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Sale on failure to pay debt and costs.

82. a. In all suits instituted to contest the distrainer's demand, he shall be required to prove the arrear in the same manner as if he had himself brought a suit for the amount under the provisions hereinafter contained.

In suit to contest his demand, distrainer to prove arrear.

b. If the demand or any part thereof is found to be due, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make a decree for the amount in favour of the distrainer, and such amount may be recovered by sale of the property,

Recovery of amount decreed in favour of distrainer.

as provided in the last preceding section, if the distress has not been withdrawn ;

and, if any balance remain due after such sale, by execution of the decree against the person and any other property of the defaulter, or if the property have been released on security, by execution of the decree against the person and property of the defaulter and of his surety.

Compensation in case of vexatious distress.

c. If the distress is adjudged to be vexatious or groundless, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, besides directing the release of the distrained property, may award such compensation to the plaintiff as the circumstances of the case require.

Suit by person claiming property distrained for arrears alleged to be due from another.

83. a. If any person claim as his own, property which has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from any other person, the claimant may institute a suit against the distrainer and such other person, to try the right to the property, in the same manner and under the same conditions as to the time of instituting the suit and to the consequent postponement of sale, as a person whose property has been distrained for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from him, may institute a suit to contest the demand.

Release of property on security being given.

b. When any such suit is instituted, the property may be released upon security being given for the value of the same.

Order of Collector when claim dismissed.

c. If the claim is dismissed, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make an order for the sale of the property, or for the recovery of the value thereof, as the case may be, for the benefit of the distrainer.

Decree for release and compensation when claim upheld.

d. If the claim is upheld, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall decree the release of the distrained property with costs, and such compensation (if any) as the circumstances of the case require :

Saving of prior claim of person entitled to rent of land.

e. Provided that no claim to any produce of land liable to distress under this Act, which at the time of the distress may have been found in the possession of a defaulting cultivator, shall bar the prior claim of the person entitled to the rent of the land, nor shall any attachment in execution of a judgment of any Civil Court prevail against such prior claim.

Procedure where right to distrain is claimed by person other than distrainer.

84. If, in any case in which property has been distrained for an arrear of rent, and a suit has been instituted to contest the demand, the right to distrain for such arrears is claimed by or on behalf of any person other than the distrainer, on the ground of such other person being actually and in good faith in the receipt and enjoyment of the rent of the land, such other person shall be made a party to the suit, and the question of the actual receipt and enjoyment of the rent by him before and up to the time of the commencement of the suit shall be enquired into, and in deciding the suit the result of such inquiry shall be taken into consideration.

Saving of right to sue in Civil Court.

Provided that the decision of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall not affect the right of any person who may have a legal title to the rent of the land, to establish his title by suit in the Civil Court if instituted within one year from the date of the decision.

Persons prevented from suing in time to save property from sale, may sue for damages.

85. If any person whose property has been distrained for the recovery of a demand not justly due, or of a demand due or alleged to be due from some other person, is prevented by any sufficient cause from bringing a suit to contest the demand or to try the right to the property, as the case may be, within the period allowed by section ninety-four, and his property is in consequence brought to sale, he may, nevertheless, institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation for the illegal distress and sale of his property.

Wrongful acts of distrainer.

86. If any person empowered to distrain property, or employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, distrain or sell, or cause to be sold, any property for the recovery of an arrear of rent alleged to be due, otherwise than according to the provisions of this Act, or if any distrained property is lost, damaged, or destroyed by reason of the distrainer not having taken proper precautions for the due keeping and preservation thereof, or if the distress is not immediately withdrawn when it is required to be withdrawn by any provision of this Act, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation for any injury which he has thereby sustained through any act or omission mentioned in the former part of this section.

Suit by owner against person distraining or selling without authority.

87. If any person not empowered to distrain property under section fifty-six, fifty-seven or fifty-nine, nor employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, fraudulently distrains or sells, or causes to be sold, any property under colour of this Act, the owner of the property so distrained or sold may institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation from such person for any injury which the plaintiff has sustained from the distress or sale,

Penalty in addition to damages.

and the defendant shall be held to have committed criminal trespass, and shall be subject to the penalties provided for that offence by the Indian Penal Code in addition to any damages which may be awarded against him in such suit.

Limitation of suits under sections 85, 86, 87.

88. Provided that every suit instituted under any of the three last preceding sections shall be commenced within the period allowed by section ninety-four.

Procedure in case of resistance of distress.

89. a. If any person resists a distress of property duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any distrained property, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of the Sub-division, upon complaint being made within fifteen days from the date of such resistance or removal, shall cause the person accused to be arrested and brought with all convenient speed before the Collector or Assistant Collector, who shall, if possible, proceed forthwith to try the case.

b. If the case cannot be at once heard, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, if he think fit, require the party arrested to give security for his person, and, in default of such security, may commit him to the civil jail until the case is tried, and if the offence be proved and the offender be the owner of the property concerned, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may order him to be imprisoned in the civil jail for a term not exceeding six months, unless the whole arrear due to the distrainer, with all expenses and costs, is previously to the expiration of such term paid or levied under warrant of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector by distress and sale of the property of the offender.

c. If the offender be not the owner of the property concerned, he shall make good to the distrainer the value of the same, and shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or, in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a period not exceeding two months.

Proceedings of officers subject to revision and orders of Collector.

90. All proceedings of officers distraining, or assisting distrainers, or holding sales, under this chapter, shall be subject to the revision and orders of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of the District.

CHAPTER IV.

Process.

Mode of serving process.

91. a. Every process issued by a Collector of a District or Assistant Collector under this Act shall be under his seal and signature, and shall be served or executed by the Názir, or by such other officer as the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector may direct, at the cost of the party at whose instance it is issued.

Deposit before issue.

b. The amount of such cost, and, in the case of summons to a witness, the sum required for his travelling expenses, shall be deposited in Court before the process is issued:

Power to direct service gratis.

c. Provided that, if in any case the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector is satisfied that a party is unable to pay the cost of any necessary process, he may direct such process to be served free of charge.

Punishment for resisting process.

92. Any resistance or opposition to the lawful process of a Collector of the District or Assistant Collector under this Act, may be punished by him according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of resistance or opposition to the processes of the Courts of civil justice.

Power to issue summons and warrant.

When, in any such case, the offender is not present, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may summon him to answer to the charge: and if after due service of the summons he fail to attend, may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

CHAPTER V.

Jurisdiction of Courts.

Suits cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

93. Except in the way of appeal as hereinafter provided, no Courts other than Courts of Revenue shall take cognizance of any dispute or matter in which any suit of the nature mentioned in this section might be brought, and such suits shall be heard and determined in the said Courts of Revenue in the manner provided in this Act, and not otherwise:

(a) suits for arrears of rent on account of land or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(b) suits to eject a tenant for any act or omission detrimental to the land in his occupation or inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was let;

(c) suits to cancel a lease for the breach of any condition binding on the tenant, and which, by law, custom or special agreement, involves the forfeiture of the lease;

(d) suits for the recovery of any overpayment of rent, or for compensation under section forty-eight or forty-nine;

(e) suits for compensation for withholding receipt for rent paid;

(f) suits for contesting the exercise of the powers of distress conferred on landholders and others by this Act, or any thing purporting to be done in the exercise of the said power, or for compensation for wrongful acts or omissions of a distrainer;

(g) suits by lambardárs for arrears of Government revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent, and for village-expenses and other dues for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(h) suits by co-sharers for their share of the profits of a mahál, or any part thereof, after payment of the Government revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(i) suits by muáfídárs, or assignees of the Government revenue, for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(j) suits by taluqdárs and other superior proprietors, for arrears of revenue due to them as such.

Limitation of suits under this Act.

94. Suits for arrears of rent or revenue, or for a share of the profits of a mahál, or of village-expenses or other dues, shall not be brought after three years from the day on which the arrears or share became due:

Suits relating to distress shall not be brought after three months from the day on which the right to sue accrued:

All other suits must be brought within one year from the day on which the right to sue accrues, unless otherwise specially provided for in this Act.

The day on which the arrears become due or the day on which the right to sue accrues (as the case may be) shall be excluded in computing the periods of limitation prescribed by this section.

Applications cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

95. No Courts other than Courts of Revenue shall take cognizance of any dispute or matter on which any application of the nature mentioned in this section might be made: and such applications shall be heard and determined in the said Courts in manner provided under this Act, and not otherwise:—

(a) Application to determine the nature and class of a tenant's tenure, under section ten.

(b) Application by a landholder, or his agent, to compel a patwárí to produce his accounts relating to land.

(c) Application to resume rent-free grants under section thirty, and to assess to rent land previously held rent-free.

(d) Application from a landholder to eject a tenant, under section thirty-five or section thirty-six.

(e) Applications made by a tenant, under section thirty-nine.

(f) Application from a landholder under section forty for assistance to eject a tenant.

(g) Application from a tenant or landholder to determine the value of any standing crop, or ungathered products of the earth, belonging to the tenant and being on the land at the time of his ejectment, under section forty-two.

(h) Application by a landholder to determine rent payable for land used by a tenant for the purpose of tending or gathering in the crop, under section forty-two.

(i) Application by a landholder or tenant for assistance in the division or appraisement of a standing crop, under section forty-three.

(j) Application by a landholder or tenant to determine compensation for improvements of land.

(k) Application by a tenant for leave to deposit rent.

(l) Application for enhancement of rent.

(m) Application for compensation for wrongful dispossession.

(n) Application for the recovery of the occupancy of any land of which a tenant has been wrongfully dispossessed.

(o) Application for abatement of rent.

(p) Application for leases or counterparts, and for the determination of the rates of rent at which such leases or counterparts are to be delivered.

For the purposes of the Court Fees Act, 1870, applications under clauses (c), (l), (m), (n), (o) and (p) of this section shall be deemed to be plaints in suits.

Points of procedure relating to applications under section 95.

96. a. All applications under section ninety-five shall be made in the district in which the land, crops or products referred to is or are situate, and may, with the consent of the parties, be referred to arbitration under sections two hundred and twenty to two hundred and thirty-one (both inclusive) of the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873.

b. All orders passed on applications under section ninety-five shall be proved in the same manner, and when proved shall have the same effect, as if they were judgments of the Civil Courts.

c. In cases wherein a specific sum of money is adjudged to be due, or any costs or damages are awarded, all such orders may be executed by any process in use for the recovery of an arrear of revenue or rent.

d. In cases wherein possession of immoveable property is adjudged, the officer making the award may deliver over possession in the same manner, and with the same power, in regard to contempts, resistance and the like, as may be lawfully exercised by the Civil Courts in execution of their own decrees.

e. Applications under heads (m) and (n) of section ninety-five shall not be brought after six months from the date of the wrongful dispossession.

Power to invest officers with Assistant Collector's powers, and withdraw them.

97. The Local Government may invest any officer with the powers of an Assistant Collector of the first or second class under this Act, and may at any time withdraw such powers.

Suits and applications cognizable by Assistant Collectors.

98. Assistant Collectors of either class shall have, as such, power to try suits and applications of the following descriptions:—

(a) suits for arrears of rent on account of land or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(b) suits for compensation for withholding receipts for rent paid, under section forty-eight;

(c) suits to contest the exercise of the powers of distress conferred on landholders and others by this Act, or anything purporting to be done in exercise of the said powers, or for compensation for wrongful acts or omissions of a distrainer;

(d) suits by lambardárs for arrears of Government revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent, and for village-expenses and other dues, for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(e) suits by muáfídárs or assignees of the Government revenue, for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(f) suits by taluqdárs or other superior proprietors for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(g) applications by a landholder, or by an agent employed by a landholder, to compel the production of accounts by patwáris;

(h) applications by a tenant or landholder to determine the value of any standing crops or ungathered products of the earth, and being on the land at the time of his ejectment, under section forty-two;

(i) applications by a landholder to determine the amount of rent payable by a tenant using land for the purpose of tending or gathering in crops, under section forty-two;

(j) applications by a landholder or a tenant for assistance in the division or appraisement of standing crops, under section forty-three;

(k) applications by tenants for leave to deposit rent.

Additional suits and applications triable by Assistant Collectors, first class.

99. Assistant Collectors of the first class, in addition to the suits and applications specified in section ninety-eight, shall have power to try suits and applications of the following descriptions:—

(a) suits to eject a tenant for any act or omission detrimental to the land in his occupation, or inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was let;

(b) suits to cancel a lease for any breach of any condition binding on the tenant;

(c) suits for the recovery of any over-payment of rent or for compensation, under section forty-eight or section forty-nine;

(d) suits by co-sharers for their shares of the profits of a mahál or any part thereof, after payment of the Government revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(e) applications by a landholder to eject a tenant, under section thirty-five or section thirty-six;

(f) applications under section thirty-nine by a tenant contesting notice of ejectment;

(g) applications by a landholder under section forty, for assistance to eject a tenant, on whom notice of ejectment has been served;

(h) applications for compensation for wrongful dispossession;

(i) applications by a landholder or tenant to determine the amount to be paid as compensation for improvements;

(j) applications to recover the occupancy of any land from which a tenant has been wrongfully dispossessed by the landholder.

Additional applications triable by Assistant Collector, first class, with special powers.

100. In addition to the powers specified in sections ninety-eight and ninety-nine, an Assistant Collector of the first class specially empowered by Government in this behalf, shall have power to try the following applications:—

(a) applications for enhancement of rent;

(b) applications for abatement of rent;

(c) applications under section thirty for the resumption of rent-free grants, or for the assessment to rent of land hitherto held rent-free;

(d) applications for leases or counterparts, and the determination of the rates of rent at which such leases or counterparts are to be delivered;

(e) applications to determine the nature or class of a tenant's tenure.

Power to make over cases.

101. The Collector of the District, or any Assistant Collector in charge of a sub-division of a district, may make over any case, or class of cases for inquiry and decision, from his own file, to any of his subordinates competent to deal with such case or class of cases under the provisions of this Act.

Power to withdraw cases.

102. Collectors of Districts, and Assistant Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts, may, respectively, withdraw any case or class of cases from any officers subordinate to them, and may deal with such case or class of cases themselves, or refer it for disposal to any other such Revenue Officer competent to deal with the same under the provisions of this Act.

Powers exercisable by Collector of District.

103. The Collector of the District may exercise

(a) all powers given by this Act to Collectors of Districts,

(b) all powers which by this Act are conferred, or can be conferred, on Assistant Collectors.

Investment of officer in charge of sub-division with powers of Collector of District.

The Local Government may invest any officer in charge of a sub-division of a district with all or any of the powers conferred by this Act on a Collector of a District.

Mode of conferring powers.

In conferring powers under this Act, the Local Government may empower persons specially by name, or classes of officials generally by their official titles.

CHAPTER VI.

PROCEDURE IN SUITS UP TO JUDGMENT.

Place of instituting suits.

104. Suits under this Act shall be instituted in the district in which the subject of the suit, or some part thereof, is situate, Plaint.

and all such suits shall be commenced by presenting to the Court a plaint, which shall contain—

(a) the name, description and place of abode of the plaintiff;

(b) the name, description and place of abode of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;

(c) the subject-matter of the claim, and its amount or value computed according to the Court Fees Act, 1870; and

(d) the date on which the right to sue accrued.

Managers of mahâls to be, for purpose of litigation, deemed landholders.

105. For the purpose of suing or being sued under this Act, the managers of mahâls, whether held under the Court of Wards or under direct management, shall be deemed to be landholders.

Suits by co-sharers in undivided property.

106. No co-sharer in an undivided property shall in that character be entitled separately to sue a tenant under this Act, unless he is authorized to receive from such tenant the whole of the rent payable by such tenant.

Plaint by whom presented.

107. The plaint shall be presented by the plaintiff, or by an agent duly authorized on his behalf, who has personal knowledge of the facts of the case, or by an agent accompanied by a person who has such knowledge.

Verification of plaint.

The plaint shall be subscribed and verified at the foot by the plaintiff or his agent in the manner following, or to the like effect:—

"I, A. B., the plaintiff named in the above plaint, do declare that what is stated therein is true to the best of my knowledge and belief."

False averment.

If the plaint contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, he shall be punishable according to the law for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence.

Document relied on by plaintiff to be presented with plaint.

108. If the plaintiff rely in support of his claim on any document in his possession, he shall deliver the same to the Court at the time of presenting his plaint.

Unless such document be so delivered, or its non-production be sufficiently excused, or unless the Court see fit to extend the time for producing the same, it shall not afterwards be admitted.

Admission afterwards.

109. If the plaintiff require the production of any document in the possession or power of the defendant, he may, at the time of presenting his plaint, deliver to the Court a description of the document, in order that the defendant may be required to produce the same.

Procuring production of document in possession of defendant.

110. If the suit be for the recovery of an arrear of rent or revenue, or of a share of profits or village-expenses, or other dues under section ninety-three, the plaint shall specify the name of the village and estate, and of the pargana or other local division in which the land is situate:

Plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

and, if the suit be for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from any tenant, the plaint shall also specify the quantity of land, and (where fields have been numbered in a Government survey) the number of each field, and yearly rent of the land; the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made; and in all cases coming under this section the plaint shall specify the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due.

111. If the suit be for the ejectment of a tenant, from any land, the plaint shall describe (as circumstances may require) the extent, situation and designation of the land; and, if necessary for its identification, shall set forth its boundaries.

Plaint in suits for ejectment.

112. If the plaint do not contain the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein, or be not subscribed and verified as hereinbefore required, the Court may, at its discretion, return it to the plaintiff, or allow it to be amended.

Return or amendment of plaint.

113. If the plaint be in proper form, the Court, except as otherwise hereinafter specially provided, shall direct the issue of a summons to the defendant,

Issue of summons.

and if the plaintiff require the personal attendance of the defendant, and satisfy the Court that such attendance is necessary, or the Court of its own accord require such attendance, the summons shall contain an order for the defendant to appear personally on a day to be specified in the summons.

Order for personal attendance or appearance by agent.

If the plaintiff or the Court does not require the personal attendance of the defendant, the summons shall order the defendant to appear either personally or by an agent duly authorized on his behalf, who has personal knowledge of the subject, or is accompanied by a person who has such personal knowledge.

114. The day to be specified in the summons shall be fixed with reference to the state of the file and the distance that the defendant may be or be supposed to be at the time from the place where the Court is held,

Fixing of day to be specified in the summons.

and the summons shall order the defendant to produce any document in his possession or power of which the plaintiff demands inspection, or upon which the defendant relies in support of his defence.

Order to produce documents.

It shall also direct him to bring with him his witnesses, if they are willing to attend without issue of process,

Order to bring witnesses.

and it shall be in the form (D) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Form of summons.

115. The summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the defendant personally when practicable;

Mode of serving summons.

or, if the copy cannot be delivered to the defendant personally, by affixing copy of the summons to some conspicuous part of his usual residence, and also affixing a copy of the same in the Court.

116. If the summons be served by delivering a copy to the defendant personally, the Názir shall endorse on the summons the fact of such service.

Endorsement on summons.

If personal service be not effected, the Názir shall endorse on the summons the reason of not serving it personally, and how it has been served.

117. If the usual residence of the defendant be in another district, the summons, together with the cost of the service thereof, shall be sent by the public post to the Collector of such district, who shall issue the summons, and return the same, after service, with the prescribed endorsement, to the officer by whom it was transmitted to him.

Service of summons in another district.

118. The amount of the cost of serving the summons, or, if a warrant be issued as provided in the next following section, of serving the warrant, shall in all cases be deposited in Court by the plaintiff within such time before the issue of such summons or warrant as is fixed by the Court issuing the process.

Deposit of cost of serving summons or warrant.

If the said amount be not so deposited (except where the Court in exercise of the discretion reserved to it in section ninety-one allows the summons to be served gratis), the case shall be struck off the file of suits;

Effect of failure to deposit.

but in such case the plaintiff may present another plaint at any time within the period allowed by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

119. a.—If in any suit against a tenant for the recovery of an arrear of rent, or in any suit for the recovery of an arrear of revenue, or a share of profits or village-expenses or other dues, the plaintiff desires a warrant of arrest to be issued against the defendant, such defendant being resident within the district in which the suit is instituted, the plaintiff shall present, with his plaint, an application for the issue of such warrant.

Procedure when plaintiff desires issue of warrant of arrest.

b.—When such application is presented, the Court shall examine the plaintiff or his agent, according to the law for the time being in force in relation to the examination of witnesses, and inspect the documents adduced by him in support of his claim; and if primâ facie it appear to the Court that the claim is well founded, and that, if a summons be issued, the defendant will abscond instead of appearing to answer the claim, the Court may issue a warrant for his arrest.

c.—The Court shall fix a reasonable time for the return of the warrant, and the officer entrusted with the service thereof shall, at the time of arresting the defendant, deliver to him a notice addressed to the defendant containing the particulars of the claim, and requiring the defendant, if he contest the claim, to bring with him any document upon which he relies in support of his defence.

d.—Every warrant issued and notice delivered under this section, shall be respectively in the forms (E) and (F) in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Procedure after arrest of defendant.

120. If a defendant be arrested under the warrant of arrest, he shall be brought with all convenient speed before the Court.

Procedure when defendant is brought before Court under warrant.

121. When a defendant is brought before the Court under warrant, the Court shall with all convenient speed proceed to try the case in the manner hereinafter provided and if the suit cannot be at once adjudicated, the Court may, if it think fit, require the defendant to give security for his appearance whenever the same may be required at any time whilst the suit is pending, or until execution of the final decree which may be passed thereon, and may commit him to the civil jail to be there detained until he furnishes such security or depósits such sum as the Court orders.

Form of security-bond.

The security-bond shall be in the form (G) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Procedure when defendant cannot be arrested under warrant.

122. If the defendant cannot be arrested under the warrant, the Court, on the application of the plaintiff, shall either postpone the case for such period as to it seems proper, in order that the plaintiff may apply within the said period for another warrant to be issued for the arrest of the defendant, or shall forthwith issue a proclamation, to be affixed in its own office and at the residence of the defendant, appointing a day for the hearing of the case, which shall not be less than ten days from the date of the publication of the notice, at the residence of the defendant.

If the defendant appear in pursuance of the proclamation, he shall be dealt with as provided in the last preceding section.

Compensation for arrest applied for without reasonable cause.

123. If it appear to the Court that the arrest of the defendant was applied for without reasonable cause, the Court may, in its decree, award to him such sum not exceeding one hundred rupees as it may deem a reasonable compensation for any injury or loss which he has sustained by reason of such arrest, or of his detention in jail during the pendency of the suit.

Consequence of neither party appearing on day fixed.

124. If on the day fixed by the summons or proclamation for the appearance of the defendant, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case may be adjourned prior to the recording of an issue for trial as hereinafter provided, neither of the parties appear in person or by an agent, the case may be struck off, with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit, unless precluded by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

Judgment by default.

125. If on any such day the defendant only appear, the Court shall pass judgment against the plaintiff by default, unless the defendant admit the plaintiff's right to the relief which he claims, in which case the Court shall proceed to give judgment for the plaintiff upon such admission without costs:

Judgment upon admission of claim.

Provided that such judgment, if there be more than one defendant, shall be only against the defendant who makes the admission.

Proviso.

If plaintiff only appear, Court may proceed ex parte.

126. If on any such day the plaintiff only appear, the Court, upon proof that the summons or proclamation has been duly served according to the provisions of this Act, shall proceed to examine the plaintiff or his agent, and after considering the allegations of the plaintiff, and any documentary or other evidence adduced by him, may either dismiss the case or postpone the hearing of it to a future day for the attendance of any witness the plaintiff may wish to call, or may pass judgment ex parte against the defendant.

If defendant appear on adjourned hearing, Court may allow him to be heard in answer.

127. If the defendant appear on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit is postponed under the last preceding section, the Court may, upon such conditions, if any, as to costs or otherwise as it thinks proper, allow the defendant to be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his attendance.

No appeal from judgment ex parte or by default;

128. a. No appeal shall lie from a judgment passed ex parte against a defendant who has not appeared, or from a judgment against a plaintiff by default for non-appearance.

But Court may revive suit and alter or rescind decree.

b. But in all such cases, if the party against whom judgment has been given appears, either in person or by agent, if a plaintiff, within fifteen days from the date of the Court's decree, and, if a defendant, within fifteen days after any process for enforcing the judgment has been executed, or at any earlier period, and shows good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and satisfies the Court that there has been a failure of justice, the Court may, upon such terms and conditions as to costs or otherwise as it thinks proper, revive the suit and alter or rescind the judgment according to the justice of the case.

Adverse party to be summoned.

c. But no judgment shall be reversed or altered without previously summoning the adverse party to appear and be heard in support of it.

Examination and cross-examination of parties.

129. When both parties appear in person or by agent on the day named in the summons, or upon any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case may be adjourned, for sufficient reason to be recorded by the Court, the Court shall proceed to examine such of the parties as may be present, and either party or his agent may cross-examine the other party or his agent.

Examination and cross-examination of agents.

130. If either of the parties be not bound to attend personally, any agent by whom he appears, or any person accompanying such agent, may be examined and cross-examined in like manner as the party himself would have been if he had attended personally.

Defendant may file written statement.

131. At the time of the examination, the defendant may, if he think fit, file a written statement in his defence.

Mode of examination.

132. The examination of the parties or their agents, or such other persons as aforesaid, shall be according to the law for the time being in force relative to the examination of witnesses in the Civil Courts.

The substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer, and shall be filed with the record.

Witness produced may be examined.

133. If either of the parties produce a witness on such day, the presiding officer may take the evidence of such witness.

Document relied on by defendant to be produced at first hearing.

134. If the defendant rely on any document in support of his defence, he shall deliver the same into Court at the first hearing of the suit:

and unless such document be so delivered, or its non-production be sufficiently excused, or unless the presiding officer see fit to extend the time for delivering the same, it shall not afterwards be admitted.

Decree after examination, if no further evidence is required.

135. If after the examination required by section one hundred and twenty-nine, and also the examination of any witness who may attend to give evidence on behalf of either of the parties, and after a consideration of the documentary evidence adduced, a decree can be properly made without further evidence, the Court shall make its decree accordingly.

Party to attend in person when his agent is unable to answer.

136. If on such examination as aforesaid either party be absent and his agent be unable to answer any material question relating to the case which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the case to a future day, and direct that the party whose agent was unable to answer as aforesaid shall attend in person on such day;

Judgment or order if he fail to appear.

and if such party fails to appear in person on the day appointed, the Court may pass judgment as in case of default, or make such other order as it deems proper in the circumstances of the case.

Procedure when parties at issue on question requiring evidence.

137. If on such examination as aforesaid it appear that the parties are at issue on any question upon which it is necessary to hear further evidence, the Court shall declare and record such issue, and shall fix a convenient day for the examination of witnesses and the trial of the suit; and the trial shall take place on that day, unless there be sufficient reason for adjourning it, which reason shall be recorded by the Court.

Parties to produce witnesses or procure attendance by summons.

138. The parties shall produce their witnesses on the day of trial, and if either party require assistance to procure the attendance of a witness on such day, either to give evidence or to produce a document, he shall apply to the Court in sufficient time before the day fixed for the trial, to enable the witness to be summoned to attend on that day; and the Court shall thereupon issue a summons requiring such witness to attend.

Provisions regarding attendance, examination, &c., of witnesses.

139. The law and rules for the time being in force relating to the evidence of witnesses, for procuring the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and for the examination, remuneration and punishment of witnesses, whether parties to the case or not, in cases before the Civil Courts, shall, except so far as may be inconsistent with the provisions herein contained, apply to suits under this Act.

Case to be struck off if neither party appears.

140. If on the day fixed for the trial of any issue neither of the parties appear, the case may be struck off, with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit, unless precluded by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

Trial of issue ex parte.

If on any such day one only of the parties appear, the issue may be tried and determined in the absence of the other party, upon such evidence as may be then before the Court.

Provisions to apply when suits are instituted or defended on behalf of landholders by agents.

141. When suits under this Act are instituted or defended by agents employed in the collection of rent or management of land, in the name and on the behalf of the landholders by whom they are so employed, all the provisions of this Act, by which the personal appearance or attendance of parties to a suit is or may be required, shall be applicable to such agents; and anything which, by this Act, is required or permitted to be done by a party in person, may be done by any such agent as aforesaid.

Processes served on such agents.

Processes served on any such agent shall be as effectual for all purposes in relation to the suit, as if the same had been served on the landholder in person:

and all the provisions of this Act relative to the service of processes on a party to the suit shall be applicable to the service of processes on such agent.

Personal attendance of female plaintiff or defendant when not required.

142. A female plaintiff or defendant shall not be required to attend in person, if she be of a rank or class which, according to the custom and manners of the country, would render it improper for her to appear in public.

Parties may employ agents or mukhtárs;

143. Any party to a suit may employ an authorized agent or mukhtár to conduct the case on his behalf:

Personal attendance when not excused.

but the employment of such agent or mukhtár shall not excuse the personal attendance of the plaintiff or defendant, in cases where his personal attendance is required by the summons, or any order of the Court;

Fee for agents not chargeable as costs.

and no fee for any agent or mukhtár shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under this Act, unless the Court certify that, under the circumstances of the case, such fee is proper to be allowed.

Court may grant time or adjourn hearing.

144. The Court may in any case grant time to the plaintiff or defendant to proceed in the prosecution or defence of a suit, and may also, from time to time, in order to the production of further evidence, or for other sufficient reason to be recorded by the Court, adjourn the hearing of any case, to such day as to it may seem fit.

Court may cause local enquiry and report, or may itself enquire.

145. The presiding officer may, at any stage of a case, cause a local inquiry and report respecting the matter in dispute to be made by any officer subordinate to him, or by any other officer of Government, with the consent of the authority to whom such officer is subordinate, or may himself proceed to the spot and make such local inquiry in person.

Provisions applied to such inquiry.

The provisions of the law for the time being in force relative to local inquiries by Amíns or Commissioners, under orders of the Civil Courts, shall apply to any local inquiry made by any officer under this section, and, so far as they are applicable, to inquiries made by the presiding officer of the Court in person.

Record in case of inquiry by Court.

In the latter case the presiding officer, after completing the inquiry, shall record such observations as appear to him appropriate, and the observations so recorded shall form part of the proceedings in the suit.

Defendant may pay admitted debt and costs into Court.

146. The defendant in any suit under this Act may pay into Court such sum of money as he thinks a full satisfaction for the demand of the plaintiff, together with the costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sums shall be paid to the plaintiff.

Plaintiff chargeable with subsequent costs if he proceed and recover no further sum.

If the defendant deposit less than the sum claimed and the plaintiff elect to proceed in the case, and ultimately recover no further sum than has been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with any costs incurred by the defendant in the suit after such payment.

No interest to plaintiff after date of deposit by defendant.

147. No interest shall be allowed to a plaintiff on any sum paid by the defendant into the Court from the date of such payment, whether such sum be in full of the plaintiff's claim, or fall short thereof.

In suits where right to receive rent is disputed, third person who has received it may be made a party.

148. When in any suit between a landholder and a tenant under this Act, the right to receive the rent of the land or tenure cultivated or held by the tenant is disputed on the ground that some third person has actually and in good faith received and enjoyed such rent before and up to the time when the right to sue accrued, such third person may be made a party to the suit, and the question of such receipt and enjoyment of the rent by such third person may be enquired into, and the suit shall be decided according to the result of such enquiry:

Saving of right to sue in Civil Court to prove title to rent.

Provided that the decision of the Court shall not affect the right of either party entitled to the rent of such land, to establish his title by suit in the Civil Court, if instituted within one year from the date of the decision.

Court may allow tenant to repair damage caused by certain acts or omissions.

149. Whenever a decree is given for the ejectment of a tenant, or the cancelment of his lease, on account of any act or omission by which the land in his occupation has been damaged, or which is inconsistent with the purpose for which the land has been let, the Court may, if it think fit, allow him to repair such damage within one month from the date of the decree, or order him to pay such compensation, within such time, or make such other order in the case, as the Court thinks fit.

and if such damage be so repaired, or compensation so paid, or order obeyed, the decree shall not be executed.

Delivery of judgment.

150. Every judgment under this chapter shall be pronounced in open Court.

Its language and contents.

151. The judgment shall be written in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer, and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer at the time it is pronounced:

When it may be in English.

Provided that, where his mother-tongue is not English, the judgment may be written in English, if he is able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language.

Power to hold Court in any place within district.

152. Every officer invested with powers under this Act may hold a Court for hearing and determining suits under this Act in any place within the limits of the district to which he is appointed.

Every hearing shall be in open Court, and the parties to the suit or their authorized agents shall have due notice to attend in such place.

CHAPTER VII.

Procedure in Execution of Decrees in Suits.

Mode of executing decree for ejectment of tenant.

153. If the decree be for the ejectment of any tenant from land occupied by him, the decree shall be executed by giving the possession or occupancy of the land to the person entitled by the decree thereto.

Magistrate to give it effect in case of opposition

If any opposition is made to the execution of the order for giving such possession or occupancy, by the party against whom the order is made, the Magistrate, on the application of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall give effect to the same.

Power to order detention in, or commitment to, civil jail, in certain cases.

154. If the decree be for the payment of arrears of rent or revenue, or of money, and the defendant has been committed to jail, or appear in Court pursuant to the conditions of any security-bond given under section one hundred and twenty-one, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may order that he be detained in, or committed to, the civil jail, unless he immediately pay into Court the amount of the decree with costs, or otherwise comply with the terms of the decree.

Process against surety on failure to deliver judgment-debtor into custody.

155. If the judgment-debtor has given security for his appearance, and is not present when judgment is pronounced, and the surety fails to deliver him into custody when required so to do, process of execution may be taken out against the surety in the same manner as if a decree for the amount due by the debtor had been passed against the surety.

Process of execution against person or property, but not both.

156. a. A writ of execution may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment-debtor;

but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property.

Applications on which may issue.

b. Such writ may be issued on the oral application of the judgment-creditor, his agent, or mukhtár, made at the time the decree is passed, or thereafter, upon the written application of the judgment-creditor, his agent, or mukhtár.

Form of writ of execution.

c. Writ of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (H) or (I) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Execution against moveable property.

157. Any moveable property required to be seized under an execution shall, if practicable, be described in a list to be furnished by the judgment-creditor;

but, if the creditor is unable to furnish such list, he may apply for a general attachment of the debtor's effects, to the amount of the judgment and costs.

In either case, the property to be seized shall be pointed out to the officer entrusted with execution of the process, by the creditor, or his agent:

Articles exempted from attachment.

Provided that no implements of husbandry, or cattle actually employed in agriculture, or tools of artisans, shall be attached under this section.

Date and duration of writs.

158. Every writ of execution shall bear date on the day on which it is signed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and shall continue in force for such period as he may direct (not being more than sixty days) calculated from such date.

Second and successive writs.

159. Second and successive writs of execution may be issued by order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector on the application of the judgment-creditor, after the expiration of the period fixed for the continuance in force of a previous warrant.

After one year execution not to issue without notice to party concerned.

160. Process of execution shall not be issued upon any judgment, without previous notice to the party against whom execution is applied for, if, when application for the issue of the process is made, a period of more than one year has elapsed from the date of the judgment, or from the date of the last previous application for execution.

Execution not to issue against heir or representative of deceased party without notice.

161. Execution on a judgment shall not issue against the heir or other representative of a deceased party, unless notice to appear and be heard has been previously served on such heir or other representative.

No process of execution after three years, unless judgment be for sum exceeding 500 rupees.

162. No process of execution shall be issued on a judgment under this Act, after the lapse of three years from the date of such judgment, unless the judgment be for a sum exceeding five hundred rupees;

Regulation of period in such case.

in which case the period within which execution may be had shall be regulated by the general rules in force in respect to the period allowed for the execution of decrees of the Civil Court.

Procedure in execution of writ against person.

163. If a writ issue for taking any person in execution, the officer charged with the execution of the writ shall bring him with all convenient speed before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

If such person does not then deposit in Court the full amount specified in the writ, or make such arrangement for the payment of the same as is satisfactory to the judgment-creditor, or satisfy the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector that he has no present means of paying the same amount,

the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall send him to the civil jail, there to remain for such time as may be directed by a warrant addressed to the keeper of the jail, unless in the meanwhile he pays the full amount for the payment of which he is liable under the decree:

Limit of imprisonment.

Provided that the time for which a debtor may be confined in execution of a decree under this Act, shall not exceed three months when the amount decreed (exclusive of costs) does not exceed fifty rupees, or six months when such amount does not exceed five hundred rupees, or two years in any other case.

No person to be imprisoned a second time under same judgment.

164. a. Any person once discharged from jail shall not be imprisoned a second time under the same judgment.

When further liability extinguished.

b. If the amount due under the decree does not exceed one hundred rupees, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may declare such discharged person absolved from further liability under that decree, and such liability shall thereupon be extinguished.

When not extinguished.

c. In other cases the discharge shall not extinguish the liability of the discharged person under the decree, or exempt any property belonging to such person from attachment in execution of the same.

Diet-money to be deposited at time of issue of warrant.

165. Every person applying for the issue of a warrant of arrest under section one hundred and nineteen, or suing out process of execution against the person of any judgment-debtor, shall deposit in Court, when the warrant issues, diet-money for thirty days at such rate not exceeding two annas per diem, as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may direct, unless for any special reason he directs that deposit be made at a higher rate, which shall not exceed four annas per diem.

Effect of non-payment of diet-money in advance during imprisonment.

166. Payment of diet-money at the same rate shall be made previously to the commencement of each succeeding month of the imprisonment, on failure of which the party confined shall be discharged.

Diet-money spent to be costs in suit.

167. All diet-money spent in providing subsistence for any prisoner shall be added to the costs in the suit,

Refund of remainder.

and any diet-money not so spent shall be returned to the person who deposited the same.

Procedure in executing writ against moveable property.

168. In executing a writ of execution against the moveable property of a debtor liable under this Act, the officer charged with the execution of the writ shall prepare a list of the property pointed out by the judgment-creditor, and shall publish a proclamation, specifying the day upon which the sale is intended to be held, together with a copy of the said list, at the intended place of sale and at the residence of the debtor.

A copy of the said proclamation and list shall be sent to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and shall be affixed in his office.

Time to elapse before sale of moveable property.

169. No moveable property taken in execution under this Act shall be sold before the expiration of ten days next after the day on which such property is so taken.

Custody meanwhile.

Until such sale the property shall be deposited in some fit place, or it may remain in custody of some fit person approved by the officer executing the writ.

Provisions applied to sale.

The provisions of sections seventy-four to seventy-eight (both inclusive) so far as the same are applicable, shall apply to sales under this section.

Sale not vitiated by irregularity.

170. No irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale of any moveable property under an execution shall vitiate such sale.

Right to sue for compensation.

But any person injured by such irregularity may recover compensation for such injury by suit in the Civil Court:

Limitation.

provided that such suit be brought within one year from the date of sale.

In executing decrees for money, when execution may be applied for against immoveable property.

171. In the execution of any decree for the payment of arrears of rent or revenue, or of money, under this Act, if satisfaction of the judgment cannot be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor, the judgment-creditor may apply for execution against any immoveable property belonging to such debtor.

Process when the immoveable property is not a mahál.

172. If the immoveable property against which execution is applied for be other than a mahál, or share of a mahál, process shall be issued in the same manner as for the attachment and sale of moveable property: and the provisions of sections one hundred and sixty-eight, one hundred and sixty-nine, and one hundred and seventy shall be applicable.

Procedure when it is a mahál.

173. When such property is a mahál, or a share of a mahal, the decree shall be sent for execution to the Collector of the District in which such property is situate, and if the judgment-debtor satisfies the Collector of the District that there is reasonable ground to believe that the amount of the judgment-debt may be raised by mortgage of the property, or by letting it on lease, or by disposing by private sale of a portion of the property or any other property belonging to the judgment-debtor, the Collector of the District may, on the application of the judgment-debtor, postpone the sale for such period as the Collector of the District thinks proper to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount, and if the judgment-debtor satisfies his creditor, the execution shall be stayed, and the Collector shall report the fact to the Court by which the decree was made.

Procedure where judgment-creditor fails to satisfy creditor within further time or Collector thinks sale in expedient.

174. If the judgment-debtor obtaining a postponement of the sale fails to satisfy his creditor within the period so fixed, or if the judgment-debtor does not apply for, or applies for but does not obtain, a postponement of the sale, and the Collector of the District considers that the sale of the mahál or share is inexpedient, and that satisfaction of the decree may be made by means of a temporary alienation of the property, the Collector of the District shall cause an accurate rent-roll of the property to be prepared, and ascertain the annual income derivable therefrom.

If, in the opinion of the Collector of the District, such income is sufficient to pay off the judgment-debt with interest at six per cent. per annum, within any period not exceeding fifteen years from the date of the decree, he may transfer the property to the judgment-creditor, or if the judgment-creditor refuse to take it, to some other person, or he may hold it under his own management, for such period not exceeding fifteen years, as may be sufficient for the recovery of the debt with interest as aforesaid, and on such conditions as to the payment of such debt and interest as he deems expedient.

Power to transfer property to judgment-creditor.

Power to hold property under management.

Orders passed under this section and section one hundred and seventy-three shall be subject to revision by the Commissioner of the Division and the Board, but shall not be open to appeal to the Civil Court.

175. If in the opinion of the Collector of the District the recovery of the debt under section one hundred and seventy-four is impossible, or if the sale of the property appear to him advisable on other grounds, he shall report, through the Commissioner of the Division, the case for orders to the Board.

Report of case to Board.

176. On the receipt of such report, the Board may make, or cause to be made, such further endeavours for the recovery of the debt under the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-four, as to it may seem practicable.

Procedure on receipt of report.

177. If it appear to the Board that the debt cannot be recovered under section one hundred and seventy-four, or if the sale of the property appear to it advisable on other grounds, it shall order the property to be sold, in which case the sale shall be made under the rules in force for the sale of land for arrears of land revenue, but without prejudice to the incumbrances (if any) to which such property may be subject.

Power to order sale of property.

178. If before the day fixed for any sale of any property under this Act, a third party appear before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and claim a right or interest to or in any of the property, he shall examine such party or his agent, according to the law for the time being in force relative to the examination of witnesses,

Examination of third party claiming interest in property.

and, if he see sufficient reason for so doing, may stay the sale of such property.

Stay of sale.

179. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may adjudicate upon such claim, and make such order as he thinks fit between the claimant and the plaintiff and defendant in the original suit.

Adjudication of such claims.

In trying such claim, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall be guided by the rules contained in this Act, so far as they may be applicable.

Rules applied.

180. If the claimant fail to establish his right to the property taken in execution, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, at the time of disposing of the case, order him to pay to the judgment-creditor the costs of the proceedings on the claim, and also such sum as he thinks sufficient to cover any loss of interest or damage which the judgment-creditor may have sustained by reason of the postponement of the sale of the property.

Compensation awardable against claimant failing to establish right.

181. a. No appeal shall lie from any order passed under section one hundred and seventy-nine or section one hundred and eighty by the Collector of the District.

No appeal from order under section 179 or 180.

b. But the party against whom the same is given may bring a suit in the Civil Court to establish his right at any time within one year from the date of the order:

Right to sue in Civil Court.

c. Provided that, if the order be for the sale of the property taken in execution, the suit shall not be for the recovery of such property, but shall be for compensation from the judgment-creditor by whom it was brought to sale.

Proviso.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPEALS.

182. In suits under this Act, tried and decided by a Collector of a District or an Assistant Collector of the first class, his judgment shall be final, and not open to revision or appeal, except as provided by section one hundred and eighty nine.

Judgment of Collector of District or Assistant Collector of first class when final.

183. All decisions of the Assistant Collector of the second class in suits mentioned in section ninety-three shall be appealable to the Collector of the District, whose order thereon shall (subject to the provisions of section one hundred and eighty-nine) be final.

Appeal from decision of Assistant Collector of second class.

184. The petition of appeal shall be presented to the Collector of the District within thirty days from the date of the decree.

Time for presentation.

185. The Collector of the District may either dismiss the petition or may fix a day for hearing the appeal, and in that case he shall cause notice of the same to be served on the respondent in the manner hereinafter prescribed for the service of summons.

Procedure on appeal.

If, on the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant does not appear in person or by an agent, the appeal may be dismissed for default.

If the appellant appears and the respondent does not appear in person or by an agent, the appeal may be heard ex parte.

Re-admission of appeal.

186. If an appeal be dismissed for default of prosecution, the appellant may, within fifteen days from the date of the dismissal, apply to the Collector of the District to re-admit the appeal, and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Collector of the District that the appellant was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Collector of the District may re-admit the appeal.

Judgment in appeal.

187. After hearing the appeal, the Collector of the District shall give judgment in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for giving judgment in original suits.

Re-hearing of suits not open to appeal.

188. In suits in which the judgment of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector is final as provided in section one hundred and eighty two, he may, upon the application of either party, if preferred within thirty days from the date of the decision, order the re-hearing of a suit, upon the ground of the discovery of new evidence or matter material to the issue of the case, which the applicant had no knowledge of, or could not produce, at the time of trial.

Appeal to District Judge.

189. An appeal shall lie to the District Judge from the decision of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector of the first class, in all suits mentioned in section ninety-three in which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, or in which the proprietary title to land has been determined between parties making conflicting claims thereto:

Appeal to High Court.

Provided that, where the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suits exceeds five thousand rupees, the appeal shall lie to the High Court.

Rules as to time of presentation, &c., to apply.

190. The rules for the time being in force in regard to the time within which appeals from the decisions of Civil Courts may be received, and to the manner in which such appeals are heard and determined, and to all proceedings which may be had in respect of such appeals, shall be applicable to appeals to the District Judge or High Court under this Act.

Special appeal to High Court from District Judge.

191. The decisions of District Judges passed in regular appeal under this Act, shall be open to special appeal to the High Court, in the same manner, and subject to the same rules, as the decisions of District Judges passed in regular appeal are open to special appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1871.

(B).— From Orders on Applications or relating to the Execution of Decrees.

(1) Assistant Collectors of the Second Class.

Appeal from Assistant Collector of second class.

192. An appeal to the Collector of the District shall lie from all orders passed under this Act by an Assistant Collector of the second class.

(2) Assistant Collectors of the First Class.

Appeal from orders of Assistant Collectors of first Class on certain applications.

193. An appeal to the Commissioner of the Division shall lie from all orders passed by an Assistant Collector of the first class,

(a) on applications under section ninety-nine, where the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees,

(b) on applications under section one hundred.

Appeal from other orders of Assistant Collector of first Class.

194. An appeal to the Collector of the District shall lie from all other orders passed under this Act by an Assistant Collector of the first class, except—

(a) orders on applications mentioned in section ninety-eight;

(b) orders on applications mentioned in section ninety-nine;

(c) orders passed in the course of a suit and relating to the trial thereof.

Final orders of Assistant Collector of first class.

195. The orders of an Assistant Collector of the first class on the following applications shall be final—

(a) applications mentioned in section ninety-eight;

(b) applications mentioned in section ninety-nine, where the amount or value of the subject-matter does not exceed one hundred rupees.

(3) Collector of the District.

Appeal from certain orders of Collector of District.

196. An appeal to the Commissioner of the Division shall lie from orders passed by the Collector of the District,

(a) under section ninety-nine, when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees,

(b) under section one hundred.

In all other cases orders under this Act passed by the Collector of the District shall be final, subject to review by the Commissioner of the Division or the Board.

(4) Commissioner of the Division.

Finality of orders of Commissioner of Division.

197. Save as provided by section one hundred and ninety-eight, the orders of the Commissioner of the Division on appeals shall be final, subject to review by the Board.

Appeal to Board from his decisions on appeals against orders on applications mentioned in section 100.

198. An appeal from the decisions of the Commissioner of Division on appeals against orders passed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector on the applications mentioned in section one hundred shall lie to the Board, except where the Commissioner of the Division dismisses the appeal.

In such case the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-nine shall apply.

Power of Board to call for cases and pass orders thereon.

199. The Board may at any time call for any case which has come before any Commissioner of Division, or any Court subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon, consistent with this Act, as the Board thinks fit.

Time for appealing.

200. No appeal shall be brought to the Collector of the District after the expiration of thirty days, or to the Commissioner of the Division after the expiration of sixty days, or to the Board of Revenue after ninety days, from the date of the order complained of.

Admission of appeals after prescribed period.

201. Any appeal under this Act may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor when the appellant satisfies the officer to whom he appeals that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period.

No appeal shall lie against an order under this section admitting an appeal.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Time to be excluded in computing limitation period.

202. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit under this Act, the day on which the right to sue accrued shall be excluded.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any appeal under this Act, the day on which the judgment or order complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree or order appealed against, shall be excluded.

Rule as to last day for presentation or deposit, when Court is closed on such day.

203. Whenever a Court is closed on the last day of any period provided in this Act for the presentation of any memorandum of appeal, or for the deposit or payment of any money in or into Court, the day on which the Court re-opens shall be deemed to be such last day.

Power to state case involving point of law for opinion of District Judge.

204. a. If in any suit instituted, or on any application made, under this Act, it appears to the presiding officer that any question in issue involving a point of law is more proper for the decision of a Civil Court, such officer, if a Collector of a District, or the Collector of the District on the representation of such officer, may cause a case to be stated for the opinion of the District Judge, who shall hear the case in such manner as nearly as may be as is prescribed for the hearing of cases by the High Court by sections twenty-four, twenty-five and twenty-six of Act No. XI of 1865.

b. If the District Judge finds that the case is insufficiently stated, he may return it to the Collector of the District for amendment.

c. Subject to any limits of value or time provided by law for cases falling under the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie from the judgment of the District Judge to the High Court.

d. The District Judge shall return the case with the opinion of the Civil Court to the Collector of the District, and the Revenue Courts shall decide the suit or application in accordance with such opinion.

e. The costs attending such case shall be dealt with as costs in the suit or on the application in the Revenue Court.

Power to refer to High Court questions as to jurisdiction.

205. a. If in any suit instituted, or on any appeal presented, in a Civil or Revenue Court, the Judge or presiding officer doubts whether he is precluded by this Act from taking cognizance of the suit or appeal, he may refer the matter to the High Court.

b. On any such reference being made, the High Court may order the Judge or presiding officer, either to proceed with the case, or to return the plaint or appeal for presentation in such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit or appeal.

c. The order of the High Court on any such reference shall be final, and shall not be questioned by the same parties in the same suit.

Procedure where objection that suit was instituted in wrong Court was not taken in Court of first instance.

206. In all suits instituted in any Civil or Revenue Court, in which an appeal lies to the District Judge or High Court, an objection that the suit was instituted in the wrong Court shall not be entertained by the appellate Court, unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance; but the appellate Court shall dispose of the appeal as if the suit had been instituted in the right Court.

Procedure where such objection was taken in Court of first instance.

207. If in any such suit, such objection was taken in the Court of first instance, but the appellate Court has before it all the materials necessary for the determination of the suit, it shall dispose of the appeal as if the suit had been instituted in the right Court.

Procedure where, in such cases, the appellate Court has not materials for determining the suit.

208. If in any such suit the appellate Court has not before it the materials necessary for the determination of the suit, it shall proceed under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals; but if it remands the suit, or frames and refers issues for trial, or requires additional evidence to be taken by the Court of first instance, it may direct its order, either to the Court in which the suit was instituted, or to the Court it may hold competent to entertain the suit, whichever course it may deem most conducive to justice, and the objection that the order of a subordinate appellate Court has been directed to a Court which was not competent to entertain the suit shall not be taken on special appeal.

Suits by co-sharer against lambardár for share of profits.

209. In any suit brought by a co-sharer against a lambardár for a share of the profits, the Court may award to the plaintiff not only a share of the profits actually collected, but also a sum equal to the plaintiff's share in the profits which, through gross negligence or misconduct, the lambardár has omitted to collect.

Tenant's power to implead persons claiming through landholder.

210. In any suit brought by a tenant against a landholder to recover possession of a holding, the plaintiff may join as a defendant to the suit any other person in possession of the holding, who may claim title through the landholder.

Landholder's power to implead persons claiming through tenant.

In any suit brought by a landholder to eject a tenant, the plaintiff may join as a defendant to the suit any other person in possession of the holding, who may claim title through the tenant.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

211. The Local Government may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) for the guidance of officers in determining, under sections thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, seventeen, eighteen, and twenty, the rent payable by tenants,

(b) for the guidance of officers assessing rent under section thirty,

(c) as to the dates on which instalments of rent shall fall due,

(d) as to the procedure to be followed on all applications under section ninety-five.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force

Power of Board to make rules

The Board with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make rules consistent with the provisions herein contained, for the guidance of all persons in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

Instalments when to be deemed in arrear.

212. When the Local Government has made a rule fixing the date on which any instalment of rent shall fall due, no such instalment shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be in arrear unless it remains unpaid after the date fixed by such rule.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Land-Revenue and the jurisdiction of Revenue Officers in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to land-revenue and the jurisdiction of Revenue Officers in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends in the first instance to all the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the said Provinces, except those specified in the first schedule hereto annexed;

But the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to all or any of the territories so excepted.

Commencement.

This Act shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Enactments repealed.

2. The Regulations and Acts mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed are repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

But all rules prescribed, appointments made, powers conferred, and notifications published under any such enactment, and all other rules (if any) now in force and relating to any of the matters hereinafter dealt with, shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) be deemed to have been respectively prescribed, made, conferred and published hereunder.

And all proceedings now pending which have been commenced under any enactment hereby repealed, shall be deemed to be commenced under this Act, except where a decree has been made or an appeal presented.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,

'Mahál.'

(1.) "Mahál" means—

CHAPTER II.

CONSTITUTION AND POWERS OF REVENUE OFFICERS.

Chief controlling authority in revenue matters.

4. The chief controlling authority in all matters connected with the land-revenue of the said territories is vested in the Board, subject to the Local Government.

Subject to the orders of the Local Government, the Board shall sit in any place in the North-Western Provinces that it thinks fit, and it shall have the powers conferred by chapter VII of this Act on Commissioners of Divisions.

Appointment and removal of Members of Board.

5. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, shall appoint, and may from time to time remove, the Members of the Board.

Power to distribute business.

6. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, and subject to rules which it may from time to time prescribe, the Board may distribute its business and make such territorial division of its jurisdiction amongst its members as to the Board may seem fit.

Orders of Member to be orders of Board.

All orders made or decrees passed by a Member of the Board, in accordance with such distribution or division, shall be held to be the orders or decrees (as the case may be) of the Board.

Alteration or reversal of orders.

7. No decree or order coming under the consideration of the Board on appeal or on being called for or reported for orders under section two hundred and fifty-three or section two hundred and fifty-four, shall be altered or reversed without the concurrent judgment of two Members of the Board.

Reference to Local Government in case of difference of opinion.

8. When the Members of the Board are equally divided in opinion as to any order to be made in the course of its non-judicial business, the question regarding which there is such division shall be referred for decision to the Local Government.

Power of Board to review and alter its orders and decrees.

9. The Board may review, and may rescind, alter or confirm, any order made by itself, or by any of its Members, in the course of its non-judicial business.

But no decree passed judicially by it or by any of its members shall be so reviewed except on the application of a party to the cause within ninety days from the passing of the decree, or, if good cause be shown, within any longer period.

Members not empowered to alter each other's orders.

A single Member vested with all or any of the powers of the Board shall not have power to alter or reverse a decree or order passed by the Board or by any Member other than himself.

Power to authorize Member to exercise powers of Board.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Local Government may authorize any Member of the Board to perform or exercise, either generally or in any particular locality, all or any of the duties and powers imposed and conferred on the Board.

Commissioners of Division.

11. The Local Government shall appoint in each Division a Commissioner, who shall within his Division exercise the powers and discharge the duties conferred and imposed on a Commissioner of Division under this Act, or under any other law for the time being in force, and who shall, subject to the control of the Board, exercise authority over all the Revenue Officers in his Division.

Collector of the District.

12. The Local Government shall appoint in each district an officer who shall be the Collector of the District, and who shall exercise, throughout his district, all the powers and discharge all the duties conferred and imposed on a Collector or an Assistant Collector by this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

The Local Government may confer on any Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District all or any of the powers of a Collector of a District, and all powers so conferred shall be exercised subject to the control of the Collecto of the District.

Assistant Collectors.

13. The Local Government may appoint to each district as many other persons as it thinks fit to be Assistant Collectors of the first or second class.

All such Assistant Collectors, and all other persons employed in maintaining revenue-records or otherwise in or about the business of the land-revenue, shall be subordinate to the Collector of the District.

Power to alter limits of Divisions, &c., and to form Sub-divisions.

14. The Local Government may from time to time alter the limits of any Division, District or Tahsíl, and may divide any district into Sub-divisions, and from time to time alter the limits of such Sub-divisions.

All existing tahsíls shall be Sub-divisions of Districts until they are so altered.

Assistant Collector in charge of Sub-division of District.

15. The Local Government may place any Assistant Collector of the first class in charge of one or more Sub-divisions of a District, and may at any time remove him therefrom.

Such Assistant Collector shall be called an Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District, and shall exercise the powers conferred upon him by this Act or by any other law for the time being in force, subject to the control of the Collector of the District.

The Local Government may, from time to time, delegate its powers under this section to the Collector of the District, and may revoke such delegation.

Subordination of Revenue Officers.

16. Every officer of a Sub-division of a District employed in maintaining revenue-records or otherwise in or about the business of the land-revenue shall be subordinate to the Assistant Collector (if any) in charge of such Sub-division, subject to the general control of the Collector of the District.

Conferring of powers.

17. In conferring powers under this Act, the Local Government may empower persons by name, or classes of officials generally, by their official titles.

Transfer of cases to subordinates.

18. The Collector of the District, or any Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District, or Officer in charge of a Settlement, may make over any case, or class of cases, arising under the provisions of this Act or otherwise, for enquiry or decision from his own file to any of his subordinates competent to deal with such case or class,

Power to withdraw cases from subordinates.

or may withdraw any such case or class of cases from any Revenue Officer subordinate to him, and may deal with such case or class himself, or refer the same for disposal to any other such Revenue Officer competent to deal therewith.

Power to vary and cancel powers.

19. The Local Government may vary or cancel any order conferring powers under this Act.

Collector of the District in case of temporary vacancy.

20. If the Collector of the District dies, or is disabled from performing his duties, the officer who succeeds temporarily to the chief executive administration of the district in revenue matters shall be held to be the Collector of the District under this Act until the Local Government appoints a successor to the Collector so dying or disabled, and such successor takes charge of his appointment.

Powers of officers transferred to another district.

21. Whenever any person holding an office in the service of Government, who has been invested with any powers under this Act in any district, is transferred to an equal or higher office of the same nature within another district, he shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, be held to be invested with the same powers in the district to which he is so transferred.

Appointment of Tahsildárs.

22. Tahsíldárs shall be appointed by the Board, subject to such rules as to qualification or otherwise as the Board, subject to the sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Power to form and alter patwáris' circles.

23. The Collector of the District, with the sanction of the Board, may arrange all the villages of such district in patwáris' circles, and may, from time to time, alter the limits of such circles.

But no such arrangement or alteration shall be final unless and until it has been sanctioned by the Board.

Appointment of patwári to each circle.

24. A patwári shall be appointed to each circle, whether the mahále in such circle are assessed to revenue or not.

Nomination and appointment of patwáris to fill vacancies.

25. Whenever a circle is without a patwári, the proprietors of such circle, or their representatives in interest, shall, in accordance with local custom, nominate a person to be such patwári, and he shall be appointed by the Collector of the District, or Assistant Collector.

Which nominee to be appointed in case of disagreement.

26. In case of disagreement as to the nominee, the Collector or Assistant Collector shall ascertain the local custom, if any, and shall appoint the person nominated in accordance therewith.

Where no such custom can be ascertained, the Collector, or Assistant Collector shall appoint the nominee of those proprietors who represent the largest amount of annual value in the circle, or of their representatives in interest.

If a mahál is held under direct management, or if the proprietor of a mahál be under the charge of the Court of Wards, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall be held to be the proprietor for the purpose of nominating a patwári under this section.

Appointment of patwári in case of failure or neglect of person entitled to nominate.

27. If the persons in whom the nomination is vested neglect to nominate a successor to the patwári within fifteen days from the occurrence of the vacancy, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall call on them by notice to make the nomination, and, if they fail to do so within fifteen days from the receipt of notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall make the appointment.

Procedure in case of nomination of unfit person.

28. If the person or persons in whom the nomination is vested nominate a man not qualified to perform the duties of a patwári, or in the nomination neglect to follow the local custom, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall refuse to appoint the nominee; and if no fit person be nominated within fifteen days from the date of the notification of such refusal, he shall himself appoint a person to the vacant office.

Preference to member of patwári's family.

Provided that the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, in making the appointment under this and the last preceding section, shall always give preference to any member of the late patwári's family, qualified to perform the duties of the office.

Payment of patwáris.

29. A rate may be imposed by order of the Collector of the District, on the annual value, or on the cultivated area, of all the mahále composing the circle of each patwári, or partly in the one way, and partly in the other, for defraying the salary of such patwári, and any charges incurred on account of any additional establishment required for the proper supervision, maintenance and correction of the patwári's records.

Fixing amount of rate.

30. The amount of the rate to be imposed under section twenty-nine in any district or Sub-division of a District, shall be determined by the Board under the orders of the Local Government:

Provided that such rate shall not exceed three per cent. on the annual value of the rated mahál, and that the amount to be imposed on each mahál shall be fixed in the temporarily settled districts for the term of settlement, and in permanently settled districts for thirty years, or such shorter period as the Local Government may direct.

Collection of rate.

31. The rate shall be collected with the revenue, and shall, in case of default, be recoverable by the same process as arrears of revenue.

Salaries of patwáris.

32. The salaries of the patwáris shall from time to time be fixed by the Board under the orders of the Local Government.

Appointment of Kánúngos and filling vacancies among them.

33. One or more Kánúngos may be appointed in each tahsíl for the proper supervision, maintenance and correction of the patwári's records.

In case of a vacancy in the office of a Kánúngo, preference shall be given to some duly qualified member of a family in which the office of Kánúngo of the tahsíl or any part thereof is hereditary.

If no such qualified member can be found, then one of the patwáris of the tahsíl shall, if duly qualified, be appointed to the vacancy, and failing any person duly qualified among them, some other fit and competent person shall be appointed thereto.

Amount of Kánúngo's salaries.

34. The salaries of the Kánúngos shall from time to time be fixed by the Local Government.

Kánúngos and patwárís to be public servants, and their records public records.

35. Every Kánúngo and patwárí, and every person appointed temporarily to discharge the duties of any such officer, shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and all official records and papers kept by any such officer shall be held to be public records and the property of Government.

CHAPTER III.

SETTLEMENT.

Notification as to settlement.

36. Whenever the Local Government thinks that any district or other local area liable to be brought under settlement should be so brought, it shall publish a notification specifying such area,

Notification as to record-of-rights.

and if it thinks that a record-of-rights in land, whether permanently settled, temporarily settled or revenue-free, should be prepared for any district or local area, it shall publish a notification to that effect.

Settlement to be deemed in progress until closing notified.

37. Every local area shall be held to be under settlement from the date of any notification published under section thirty-six and relating thereto until the issue of another notification declaring settlement operations to be closed therein.

Settlements now in progress brought under operation of Act.

Every district or other local area under settlement at the time of the passing of this Act, shall be held to be under settlement within the meaning of this section without the issue of the notifications prescribed by section thirty-six.

Appointment and powers of Settlement Officers.

38. The Local Government may from time to time appoint an officer to be in charge of the settlement of one or more districts, or part of a district, and as many Assistant Settlement Officers as to it may seem fit; and such officers shall exercise the powers conferred upon them by this Act so long as such district, part of a district or districts is or are under settlement.

Local Government to issue rules as to mode of assessment.

39. The Local Government shall from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, frame and issue rules regarding the mode in which the revenue demand is to be assessed.

Powers of Settlement Officers as to erection of boundary-marks and decision of disputes.

40. When any district, or part of a district, is under settlement, the Settlement Officer shall have power to call upon all proprietors, by proclamation to be stuck up in some conspicuous place in each village, to erect within fifteen days such boundary-marks as he may think necessary to define the limits of their villages, mahâls, or fields; and in default of their compliance within the time specified in the notice, he may cause such boundary-marks to be erected, and he shall recover the cost of the erection from the proprietors as if it were an arrear of revenue.

In case of dispute concerning any boundary-marks, the Settlement Officer shall decide such dispute on the basis of possession, or may refer it to arbitration, for decision on the merits as provided for in section two hundred and twenty to section two hundred and thirty-one (both inclusive).

Power of settlement and survey officers to do necessary acts.

41. All Settlement Officers and all officers in charge of a survey made in connection with the revenue, and their assistants, servants, agents and workmen, may do all acts necessary for any purpose connected with the settlement or survey, as the case may be.

Power to require attendance of persons concerned,

42. The Settlement Officer may order all persons, whose presence is in his opinion necessary for any of the purposes of this chapter to attend at any specified time and place, and to and production of documents.

produce any written document in their possession or power; and all such persons shall be legally bound to obey such order.

With whom settlement to be made.

43. The settlement shall be made with the proprietor of the land; or, if the proprietor have transferred possession of his land to a mortgagee or conditional vendee, then with such mortgagee or vendee.

Settlement of mahâl in possession of lunatic or minor.

If, at the time of settlement, a mahâl or any share thereof, be in the possession of a lunatic, minor, or other person incapable of making a contract, the settlement shall be made with his guardian or manager on his behalf.

Power to make joint settlement with several proprietors, or their elected representatives.

44. When several persons hold a mahâl, the Settlement Officer shall have power to make a joint settlement with all such persons, or with their representatives elected according to the custom of the mahâl.

Framing and reporting general proposals of assessment.

45. Whenever the Settlement Officer frames general proposals of assessment in accordance with the rules made under section two hundred and fifty-seven, he shall report them through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and after receipt of the orders of the Board thereon, and subject to such orders,

Detailed assessment and declaration thereof to persons concerned.

he shall ascertain the amount of the assessment proper for each mahâl, and declare the same to the person with whom the settlement of such mahâl is to be made.

Such declaration shall be made on a date to be notified by proclamation at the tahsíl in which such mahâl is situate.

Effect of agreement to assessment proposed.

46. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to the assessment so proposed, they and those (if any) whom they represent in interest shall become liable from the date of such agreement, or from such subsequent date as the Board directs, to pay such assessment, and in mahâls in which the land, or part of the land, is held in severalty, the Settlement Officer shall distribute such assessment on the lands so held.

Distribution of assessment.

47. In any mahâl where, by the established custom, the land or the amount of revenue payable by each sharer is subject to periodical re-distribution or re-adjustment, the Settlement Officer may, on application of the co-sharers, enforce such re-distribution or re-adjustment according to the established custom of the mahâl.

Enforcement of custom as to re-distribution of and adjustment of revenue of shares.

48. If the person to be settled with refuse to accept the assessment offered by the Settlement Officer, or fail to accept such assessment within thirty days from the date of the declaration by the Settlement Officer under section forty-five, the Settlement Officer shall report the case through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and the Board may direct that the person so refusing or failing be excluded from the settlement for such term not exceeding fifteen years from the date of such direction, as the Board shall fix. And the Settlement Officer or the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, either farm the mahâl or hold it under direct management during such term or any part thereof.

Exclusion of person declining, or failing to accept, settlement.

In such case, the person so excluded shall be entitled (subject to the orders of the Board) to an allowance out of the profits of the mahâl of not less than five or more than fifteen per cent. on the proposed assessment.

Allowance to person excluded.

49. If, in a pattidârî or imperfect pattidârî mahâl, some of the co-sharers refuse or fail within thirty days from the date of the declaration by the Settlement Officer under section forty-five to accept the proposed assessment, the shares of the persons so refusing or failing shall be dealt with under the provisions of section forty-eight, and they shall receive an allowance as laid down in that section in proportion to their respective shares in the mahâl.

Procedure in case of some of several proprietors refusing assessment.

Provided that the farm of such shares shall be offered in the first instance to those proprietors who have accepted the proposed terms.

Farm of shares of proprietors refusing.

50. Any proprietor excluded from settlement under section forty-eight or forty-nine shall be entitled to hold his sîr land as an exproprietary tenant, and the rent to be paid by him for such land during such exclusion shall be fixed by the Settlement Officer accordingly.

Adjustment of rent of the sîr lands of proprietors of estate farmed under section 48 or 49.

51. The aggregate amount of any allowance assigned under section forty-eight or section forty-nine to any proprietor excluded from settlement and of the difference between the rent fixed under section fifty and the rent which he would be liable to pay if he were a tenant-at-will, shall not be less than five or more than fifteen per cent. on the assessment proposed by the Settlement Officer.

Amount of allowance assigned under section 48 or 49 to excluded proprietor, and of difference between rent fixed under section 50, and rent payable by him if he were a tenant-at-will.

52. On the expiration of the term fixed under section forty-eight, the settlement shall be offered by the Collector of the District to the person then entitled to be settled with in respect of such mahâl or portion, at such assessment for the remainder of the term of settlement of the district as the Board may direct.

Offer of settlement to excluded proprietor on expiry of term of exclusion.

And if such person refuse to accept the offer, the Collector of the District shall report such refusal through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and such person may be excluded from settlement for such period not exceeding the term of the settlement of the district as the Board may direct, and shall then receive the allowance to which he would be entitled if sections forty-eight and forty-nine applied to his case. And the rent to be paid by him as an exproprietary tenant for his sîr land shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in accordance with the North-Western Provinces' Rent Act, 1873.

Procedure on refusal.

53. Whenever several persons possess separate heritable and transferable proprietary interests in any mahâl, such interests being of different kinds, the Settlement Officer may, under the rules for the time being in force, determine

Power to direct which of several parties having separate and different interests shall be admitted to settlement;

(a) which of such persons shall be admitted to engage for the payment of the revenue, due provision being made for securing the rights of the others, and

(b) the manner and proportion in which the nett profits of the mahâl shall be allotted to the several persons possessing separate interests as aforesaid for the term of the settlement.

and to prescribe distribution of profits.

54. If in any mahâl coming under the provisions of section fifty-three, the separate properties bear to each other the relation of superior and inferior, and the settlement be made with the party possessing the superior right, the Settlement Officer may make, on behalf of the superior proprietor, a sub-settlement with the inferior proprietor, by which such inferior shall be bound to pay to the superior an amount equal to the Government demand in respect of the mahâl, together with the share of the profits thereof allotted to the superior proprietor under section fifty-three:

Power to make sub-settlement with inferior proprietor in behalf of superior proprietor of mahâl coming under section 53.

Provided that, if the inferior proprietor refuse to agree to the terms of such sub-settlement, the mahâl shall be made over to the superior proprietor for the term of settlement.

Exclusion of inferior proprietor from sub-settlement in case of refusal of terms.

And in such case the inferior proprietor shall hold as an exproprietary tenant the land (if any) cultivated by him at the date of such refusal, and the superior proprietor shall pay him such annual allowance as, when added to the difference between the rent fixed for such land and the rent which the inferior proprietor would be liable to pay therefor if he were a tenant-at-will, shall not be less than five or more than fifteen per cent. of the profits allotted to him under section fifty-three.

Allowance.

Assessment on inferior proprietor when settlement made with him.

55. If the settlement of a mahál be made with the inferior proprietor, the amount to be paid by him shall be fixed by the Settlement Officer at such a sum as may be equal to the Government demand in respect of such mahál, together with the share of the profits allowed to the superior proprietor under section fifty-three; and in this case the share of the superior proprietor shall be realized as revenue, and paid to him from the Government Treasury.

Power to make arrangements for the benefit of persons possessing rights which do not entitle them to settlement.

56. If in any mahál there exist persons possessing proprietary rights therein which are not of such a nature as to entitle their possessors to settlement, the Settlement Officer may make such arrangements as shall secure such persons in possession of their existing rights, or of an equivalent thereto.

This may be done

(a) by the formation of a sub-settlement on behalf of the proprietors with such persons for any lands actually in their possession, or,

(b) in mahále held as joint undivided property and where the said rights are rights to receive from the tenants any money-payment or portion of the agricultural produce, by assigning, in lieu thereof, the proprietary right in a certain portion of the mahál, the profits of which are equivalent in the opinion of the Settlement Officer to the said payment or portion:

(c) in such other way as shall maintain the persons referred to in the first clause of this section in the enjoyment of, or of an equivalent to, their existing rights.

Separate settlement of waste-land in excess.

57. When the waste-land belonging to, and included at the previous settlement within the boundaries of, any mahál assessed to the payment of revenue is so extensive as, in the opinion of the Settlement Officer, confirmed by the Board, to exceed the requirements of the owner of such mahál with reference to pastoral or agricultural purposes, such officer may make a separate settlement of the waste-land which he considers to be so in excess, and shall offer such waste-land to the owner of the mahál to which it belongs, at such assessment and for such term, not exceeding the period of settlement of the mahál, as the Board may order.

If the owner of the mahál accepts such offer, the Settlement Officer shall make the settlement of such waste-land accordingly, and on the expiration of the term of such settlement, a farther settlement of such waste-land shall be offered on such terms as the Board directs to the person entitled to be settled with in respect thereof.

Allowance to owner of mahál refusing offer of settlement.

If the owner of such mahál refuses such offer, the Settlement Officer shall mark off the quantity so in excess, and declare it to be a separate mahál and at the disposal of Government: Provided that there shall be allowed to the owner of the mahál to which the waste-land originally belonged such annual sum as the Board may direct, being not less than five and not more than ten per cent. on the nett revenue realized by Government from such waste-land.

Procedure as to waste-land not included in any mahál at previous settlements.

58. Waste-land which has neither been judicially declared to be part of any mahál, nor included within the boundaries of any mahál at any previous settlement, shall be marked off by the Settlement Officer, and he shall record a proceeding declaring such land to be the property of Government, and cause a proclamation to that effect to be stuck up in the District Revenue Court and in the office of the tahsíl in which such land is situated, and shall call on all persons having any claims on such land to make the same within three months from the date of the proclamation.

Proclamation to be held an advertisement under Act XXIII of 1863.

59. Such proclamation shall be held to be an advertisement of the disposal of such land within the meaning of Act No. XXIII of 1863 (to provide for the adjudication of claims to waste lands), section one, and any person having claims to such land must proceed according to the provisions of that Act.

Procedure as to waste-land unclaimed or adjudged to belong to Government.

60. If no claim is made to the proprietary right of such waste-land, or if such waste-land is decided to be the property of Government, but the proprietor of the adjoining mahál proves that he has theretofore enjoyed the use of such land for pastoral or agricultural purposes, the Settlement Officer may assign to such mahál so much of such waste-land as he may consider requisite for such purposes; and he shall mark off the remainder and declare it to be the property of Government.

Settlement of waste-land adjudged to belong to claimant.

61. If the claimant obtain a decree under the provisions of the said Act No. XXIII of 1863 for the whole or part of such waste-land, the Settlement Officer may deal with the land to which a title is so established under the provisions of section fifty-seven.

Record-of-Rights.

Contents of record.

62. The Settlement Officer shall frame for each mahál a record containing a list of

(a) all the co-sharers,

(b) all other persons occupying any portion of the land therein, or who are in possession of any heritable or transferable interest in such land, or receiving rent in respect thereof,

(c) the nature and extent of the interest held therein by each of such co-sharers and other persons, and

(d) all persons holding land free of rent, or revenue-free.

Record to include particulars as to tenants.

63. The record shall also specify the persons (if any) holding land at a rent fixed by grant or by contract, or on condition of service or otherwise, and all other tenants in the mahál, the name and caste of each, the area of their holdings, and all conditions of their tenure.

Settlement of disputes as to entries to be made in record.

64. All entries in the record made under sections sixty-two and sixty-three shall be founded on the basis of actual possession, and all disputes regarding such entries, whether taken up by the Settlement Officer of his own motion or upon the complaint of the party concerned, shall be investigated and decided by him on that basis. And all persons not in possession, but claiming the right to be so, shall be referred by him to the proper Court.

Arrangements of co-sharers, to be recorded.

65. The Settlement Officer shall also record the arrangement made by himself or agreed to by the co-sharers,

(a) for the distribution of the profits derived from sources common to the proprietary body,

(b) for fixing the share which each co-sharer is to contribute of the Government revenue and of the cesses levied under any law for the time being in force, and of the village expenses,

(c) as to the manner in which lambardárs or co-sharers are to collect from the cultivators,

(d) the instalments of rent and the respective dates fixed for their payment, and

(e) any other matters which he may be directed to record under rules framed under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Cesses to be consolidated with rent.

66. All cesses which are payable by tenants on account of the occupation of land assessed to revenue and taken into account in such assessment, or which, in the case of land not assessed to revenue, would have been taken into such account had the land been assessed, or in lieu of which proprietary rights have been assigned under section fifty-six, clause (b), shall be consolidated with the rent payable by such tenants.

Cesses to be recorded.

A list of all other cesses levied in accordance with village custom shall, if generally or specially sanctioned by the Local Government, be recorded by the Settlement Officer, and no cesses not so recorded shall be enforced in any Civil or Revenue Court.

Conditions on collection of cesses.

The Local Government may from time to time impose on the collection of any cesses so sanctioned, such conditions as to conservancy, police or other establishments connected with the village, bázár or fair in or on account of which the cesses are levied, as it thinks fit.

Determination of disputes arising under secs. 65 and 66.

67. If it appear to a Settlement Officer that there exist in any mahál under settlement any disputes relative to any of the matters which he is bound to record, under section sixty-five or section sixty-six, he may of his own motion, and without complaint being made, investigate and determine such disputes in accordance with the existing village custom, and frame the record accordingly.

Particulars to be stated in list of tenants.

68. In framing the list of tenants mentioned in section sixty-three, the Settlement Officer shall state as to each tenant the following particulars:—

(a) Whether, under the provisions contained in the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, he is a tenant holding at fixed rates, or an exproprietary tenant, or an occupancy-tenant, or a tenant without a right of occupancy:

(b) The rent which the landholder and the tenant then admit to be payable by the latter:

(c) If he be a tenant without a right of occupancy, the number of years during which he has held the land then in his possession:

(d) Any other condition of the tenure, whether contained in a written lease or otherwise.

Determination of class of tenants.

69. Notwithstanding anything contained in section sixty-four, in case of any dispute respecting the class or tenure of any tenant, the Settlement Officer shall decide according to the principles laid down in sections five, six, seven and eight of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873.

Determination of rent of tenants.

70. In case of any dispute regarding the rent payable by any tenant, the Settlement Officer shall decide according to the principles hereinafter laid down.

Enhancement and determination of rent of exproprietary tenants.

71. If the proprietor apply to the Settlement Officer to enhance or determine the rent of an exproprietary tenant, the Settlement Officer shall fix the rent of such tenant at a rate which shall be four annas in the rupee below the prevailing rate for land of a similar quality with similar advantages held by tenants-at-will in the same circle or tahsíl.

Determination of rent of occupancy tenants by Settlement Officer.

72. If a landholder apply to enhance the rent previously paid by any of his occupancy-tenants, or, if an occupancy-tenant apply for an abatement of the rent previously paid by him, or, if a dispute exists as to the rent to be paid by an occupancy-tenant, the Settlement Officer may fix the rent to be paid by such tenant either by reference to the standard of the rent-rate sanctioned by the Board for purposes of assessment for similar land, with similar advantages, in the circle or tahsíl in which the holding of such tenant is situate or by reference to the customary rate of rent paid by tenants of the same class for similar land, with similar advantages, in the same circle or tahsíl.

Power to commute rent in kind, &c., to fixed money rents.

73. In all cases in which rents have heretofore been paid in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or by rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of such ways and partly in another or others of such ways, application to commute such rent to a fixed money rent may be made to the Settlement Officer either by the landholder or by any exproprietary tenant or occupancy-tenant.

Procedure on receiving application to commute.

74. On receipt of such application the Settlement Officer shall deal with the case as if it were an application under section seventy-one or seventy-two, and shall determine the sum to be paid in commutation in accordance with the provisions of those sections.

Joinder of tenants in applications relating to rent.

75. Whenever an application for enhancement or abatement or commutation of rent, against or by any number of tenants, is brought before a Settlement Officer, such tenants may be sued or may sue collectively: and it shall be no-ground for dismissing or refusing to hear the application, that such tenants are wrongly joined as plaintiffs or defendants, provided all such tenants cultivate in the same mahál;

Proviso.

but no order shall be passed in such case in which enhancement, abatement or commutation of rent is claimed, unless the officer making such order is satisfied that all parties have had an opportunity to appear and make objection to any claims preferred against them.

Order in such cases

76. Every order passed in any such case shall specify the extent to which each of the tenants named in the order shall be affected thereby.

Rent from what date payable.

77. The rent fixed by order of the Settlement Officer shall be payable from the first day of July next following the date of the order of the Settlement Officer, and (subject to the provisions of sections sixteen and seventeen of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873), shall not be liable to enhancement or abatement for ten years from such first day of July.

Bar to enhancement or abatement.

Powers of Local Government as to commutation-suits.

78. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the provisions of section seventy-three applicable to any district or portion of a district not under settlement;

(b) declare what officers are empowered to hear and decide applications under section seventy-three in such district or portion of a district, and lay down rules for their guidance;

(c) withdraw any notification previously published under this section.

Resumption of rent-free grants.

79. And whereas all grants (whether in writing or otherwise) for holding land exempt from the payment of rent which have been made since the first day of December 1790, by any authority other than that of the Governor General in Council were declared by Bengal Regulation XIX of 1793, section ten, to be null and void, and like provisions have been by divers Regulations at different times applied to the several parts of the territories to which this Act extends; and the said Regulation XIX of 1793, also provided that no length of possession should be considered to give validity to any such grant, either with regard to the property in the soil or the rents of it, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Disposal of applications to resume such grants.

Applications by the proprietors to resume such grants or to assess rent on the land shall, when the district in which the land is situate is a district under settlement, be made to the Settlement Officer, who may (subject to this Act and to any rules made hereunder and for the time being in force) make such order thereon as he deems just.

Saving of certain lands held rent-free.

80. Nothing in section seventy-nine applies to either of the following cases,

(a) where land is previously to the passing of this Act held rent-free under a judicial decision,

(b) where, previously to the passing of this Act, land held rent-free has been purchased for a valuable consideration and its resumption has been barred by Act No. X of 1859, section twenty-eight, or by Act IX of 1871, second schedule, No. 130.

Validity of grants which grantor has expressly agreed not to resume.

81. Grants of land held under a written instrument (whether executed before or after the passing of this Act) by which the grantor expressly agrees that the grant shall not be resumed, shall be held valid as against him (but not as against his representatives after his death) during the continuance of the settlement of the district in which the land is situate, which was current at the date of the grant.

When rent-free tenure confers proprietary right.

82. Where any land has been for fifty years or upwards, and still is held rent-free and by at least two successors to the original grantee, such holding shall be deemed to confer on the holder a proprietary right.

Nothing in the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall bar the right to make an application under this Act to assess to rent land held rent-free.

Saving of liability for Government revenue.

83. No length of rent-free occupancy of any land, nor any grant of land made by the proprietor, shall release such land from its liability to be charged with the payment of Government revenue.

Sections 71 and 72, to apply.

84. In assessing rent under section seventy-nine, the Settlement Officer shall be guided by the provisions of sections seventy-one and seventy-two, so far as they apply.

Form of register of revenue-free tenures.

85. The Settlement Officer shall record all revenue-free tenures in such form of register as the Board from time to time prescribes.

Resumption in certain cases of land held revenue-free.

86. The Settlement Officer shall enquire into the case of all lands released, conditionally or for a term, from the payment of revenue, and shall assess such lands if it appear to him that the conditions have been transgressed, or the term has expired.

Title to hold free to be proved.

87. Any person claiming land free of revenue not recorded as revenue-free, shall be bound to prove his title to hold such land free of revenue.

Report to Government where title proved.

88. If he prove his title to the satisfaction of the Settlement Officer, the case shall be reported to the Local Government whose orders thereon shall be final.

Assessment and settlement on failure of proof.

89. If the title be not so proved, the Settlement Officer shall proceed to assess the land, and to make the settlement of it with the person in actual possession as proprietor.

Form and attestation of record-of-rights.

90. The Board shall from time to time prescribe the form in which the record to be made under the provisions of this chapter shall be drawn up, and the manner in which it shall be attested.

Presumption as to entries.

91. All entries in the record so made and attested shall be presumed to be true until the contrary is proved.

Confirmation of settlement and revision of assessment.

92. No settlement shall be considered final until it has been confirmed by the Local Government.

Period for which settlement is to be made.

The Local Government shall at some time before confirming the settlement fix the period for which the settlement is to be made.

Such period shall be fixed with reference to the agricultural year.

Revision of assessment before confirmation.

The assessment may be revised, if the Local Government so directs, at any time before it is confirmed, and in such case the revised assessment shall be proposed to the proprietors, and the provisions of sections forty-three to ninety-one (both inclusive) shall apply.

Power to invest officer with Settlement Officer's powers.

93. At any time during the currency of a settlement, the Local Government may invest any officer with all or any of the powers of an Officer in charge of a Settlement under this Act within such limits, and with such restrictions, and for such period, as it thinks fit;

but not so as to enable him to enhance the total amount of revenue payable on account of any mahál except in respect of land added thereto or becoming liable to payment of revenue since the confirmation of the settlement.

No officer so invested shall alter the classification of tenants made under this Act except on the application of a party concerned.

CHAPTER IV.

Registration and Maintenance of Records.

Collector to maintain record-of-rights,

94. The Collector of the District shall keep and maintain the record-of-rights;

and register changes,

and he shall from time to time cause to be registered all changes that may take place, and anything that may affect any of the rights or interests recorded;

and correct errors.

and shall correct any errors which the parties interested admit to have been made in the record.

Power to order what registers shall be kept.

95. The Board shall order such registers to be kept up as may be necessary for the purposes of the last preceding section;

Changes to be duly authorized.

and no such changes shall be recorded without the order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Power to prescribe fees for mutations.

96. The Local Government may prescribe proper fees for mutations in the registers: Provided that no fee for a single mutation shall exceed one hundred rupees.

Levy of fees.

Appropriation.

Such fees shall be levied from the person in whose favour the mutation is made and shall be expended in such manner as the Local Government thinks fit.

Successions to proprietary rights to be notified.

97. All persons succeeding to any proprietary right in a mahál, or the profits thereof, whether by inheritance, purchase, gift, or other form of transfer, shall notify the same immediately after it has taken place to the tahsíldár of the tahsíl in which the mahál is situated, and the tahsíldár shall report such notice to the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector.

Procedure on notification.

98. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on receiving such report, shall make such enquiry as appears necessary to ascertain the truth of the alleged succession to, or transfer of, the property, and if the succession or transfer appears to have taken place, he shall record the same in the register:

Saving of rights of other persons interested.

Provided that no such entry shall be held to affect the rights of any other person who may claim and establish in any Civil or Revenue Court any interest in the land to which the entry has reference.

Notification in case of minority or other disqualification.

99. If the person so succeeding is a minor or otherwise disqualified, the guardian or other person who has charge of his property shall make the notification required by section ninety-seven.

Fine for neglect to notify.

100. Any person neglecting to make the notification required by sections ninety-seven and ninety-nine within three months from the date of the transfer having taken place shall be liable, at the discretion of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, to a fine not exceeding five times the amount of the fee which would otherwise have been payable under section ninety-six.

Power to put one party in possession in certain cases of dispute.

101. If in the course of inquiry made under section ninety-eight a dispute regarding the possession of the property arises, and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector is unable to satisfy himself as to which party is in possession, he shall ascertain by summary enquiry who is the person best entitled to the property, and shall put such person in possession, and make the necessary entry in the record accordingly, subject to any order that may be subsequently passed by the Civil Court.

Registry of transfers of nonproprietary interests in land.

102. The transfers of all interests in land other than those referred to in section ninety-seven, shall be recorded by the Kánungo and patwárí in such manner as the Board from time to time directs;

Enquiry in disputed cases.

and all disputed cases shall be reported to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall make such enquiry as may be necessary to ascertain the truth, and cause the record to be amended accordingly.

Annual enquiry as to revenue-free grants.

103. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall enquire annually into the cases of all land released conditionally or for a term from the payment of revenue.

If the condition be broken, he shall report the case through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board for orders, and if the term has expired, or (where the grant is for the life of the grantee) if the grantee has died, he shall assess the land and report his proceedings through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board for sanction.

Assessment of land added by alluvion.

104. All land added by alluvion to a mahál is liable to assessment. Such land may be assessed and settled under rules to be framed under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Collector and Assistant Collector to have powers of officer in charge of Settlement.

105. For the purposes of sections one hundred and three and one hundred and four, the Collector of the District and Assistant Collector shall each have the powers of an Officer in charge of a Settlement.

Inspection of records.

106. All records kept under this Act, shall be open to public inspection at such hours and on such conditions as to fees or otherwise as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

PARTITION AND UNION OF MAHÁLS.

Partitions.

107. Partition is either perfect or imperfect.

'Perfect partition.'

'Perfect partition' means the division of a mahál into two or more maháls.

'Imperfect partition.'

'Imperfect partition' means the division of any property into two or more properties, jointly responsible for the revenue assessed on the whole.

Persons entitled to perfect partition.

108. Any recorded co-sharer in a mahál, and any person in whose favour a decree has been passed by any Civil Court, awarding to him the proprietary right in a portion of a mahál, whether such portion consists of a fractional share in the whole or a part of the mahál, or of specific lands, is entitled to claim perfect partition of his share.

Any two or more recorded co-sharers may claim that their shares be divided from the other shares by a perfect partition, and be held by them as a single mahál.

Applications for perfect partition.

109. Applications for perfect partition are to be made in writing to the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the mahál is situated;

and shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the record, showing the share held by the applicant in the mahál.

Provision as to estates situated in more than one district;

Provided that, if the mahál be situated in two or more districts, the application may be made in any one of those districts, and the partition shall be made by such one of the Collectors of those districts as the Board may direct.

and as to estates in more than one sub-division.

110. If the mahál is situated in two or more sub-divisions of a district, the partition shall be made by such one of the Assistant Collectors respectively in charge of such sub-divisions as the Collector of the District may direct.

Notification of application.

111. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on receiving an application for partition shall, if the application be in order and not open to objection on the face of it, publish a notification of the same at his office, and at some conspicuous place on the mahál to which the application relates,

Notice to co-sharers not joining.

and shall serve a notice on all such of the recorded co-sharers in the mahál as have not joined in the application, requiring any co-sharer in possession who may object to the partition to appear before him to state his objection, either in person or by a duly authorized agent, on a day to be specified in the notice. not being less than thirty or more than sixty days from the date on which such notice was issued.

Notification when alone sufficient.

Where, from any cause, notice cannot be personally served on any co-sharer, the notification shall be deemed sufficient notice under this section.

Power to refuse partition when objection admitted.

112. If, on or before the day specified, any objection is made to the partition by any co-sharer in possession, and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on a consideration of such objection, is of opinion that there is any good and sufficient reason why the partition should be absolutely disallowed, he may refuse the application, recording the grounds of his refusal.

Procedure if question of title be raised.

113. If the objection raises any question of title, or of proprietary right, which has not been already determined by a Court of competent jurisdiction, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may either decline to grant the application until the question in dispute has been determined by a competent Court, or he may proceed to inquire into the merits of the objection.

In the latter case the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, after making the necessary inquiry and taking such evidence as may be adduced, shall record a proceeding declaring the nature and extent of the interests of the party or parties applying for the partition, and any other party or parties who may be affected thereby.

Procedure in such cases.

The procedure to be observed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in trying such cases shall be that laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of original suits, and he may with the consent of the parties refer any question

Reference to arbitration.

arising in such case to arbitration, and the provisions of chapter VI (relative to arbitrators) of the same Code shall apply to such references.

Collector's decision equivalent to decision of Civil Court.

114. All orders and decisions passed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector under the last preceding section, for declaring the rights of parties, shall be held to be decisions of a Court of Civil Judicature of first instance, and shall Appeal thereupon.

be open to appeal to the District or High Court,

under the rules applicable to regular appeals to those Courts.

Appellate Court may stay partition.

Upon such appeal being made, the District or High Court, as the case may be, may issue a precept to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, desiring him to stay the partition pending the decision of the appeal.

Special appeal to High Court.

115. From every decision passed under section one hundred and fourteen by a District Court, a special appeal shall lie to the High Court, under the rules for the time being in force relating to special appeals to that Court.

Option to parties to make partition themselves or to appoint arbitrators.

116. When it has been decided to make a partition under this chapter, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may give the parties the option of making the partition themselves, or of appointing arbitrators for the purpose; or he shall make the partition himself or cause it to be made by any Assistant Collector subordinate to him.

If arbitrators are appointed, the provisions of sections two hundred and twenty to two hundred and thirty-one, both inclusive, shall apply.

Power to enter on land for purposes of partition.

117. In making partitions, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and any person appointed by him, shall have the same powers to enter on the land under partition, for marking out the boundaries, surveying the mahál, and other purposes, as have been conferred on Settlement Officers under chapter III.

Partition of lands held only in severalty.

118. Where there are no lands held in common, the lands held in severalty by the applicant for partition shall be declared a separate mahál, and shall be separately assessed to the Government revenue.

Partition of lands some of which are held in common.

119. Where some of the lands are held in common, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall allot to the applicant for partition his share of such lands in accordance with village custom, if any such exist.

If no such custom exist, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make such division as may secure to the applicant his fair portion of the common lands.

Formation of separate mahâls from shares allotted in partition.

120. The portion of the common lands falling by such partition to the share of the applicant shall be added to the land held by him in severalty, and the mahâls thus formed shall be assessed and declared separate mahâls.

Transfers to be effectuated in making partition.

121. In making partitions under sections one hundred and eighteen, one hundred and nineteen and one hundred and twenty, the Collector or Assistant Collector shall give effect to any transfer of lands held in severalty, forming part of the mahál, agreed to by the parties, and made previous to the declaration of the partition.

Partition where all lands held in common.

122. Where all the lands are held in common, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make such a partition as may secure to the applicant his fair share of the mahál.

Mahâls to be compact; partition not to be disallowed for incompactness.

123. In all cases each mahál shall be made as compact as possible: Provided that, except with the sanction of the Board, no partition be disallowed solely on the ground of incompactness.

Rule when dwelling-house of one sharer is included in mahál assigned to another.

124. If in making the partition it be necessary to include in the mahál assigned to one sharer, the land occupied by a dwelling-house or other building in the possession of another co-sharer, such other co-sharer shall be allowed to retain it, with any buildings thereon, on condition of his paying a reasonable ground-rent for it to the sharer into whose portion it may fall.

The limits of such land, and the rent to be paid for it, shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Rule as to sír-land of one sharer being included in mahál assigned to another.

125. No sír-land belonging to any co-sharer shall be included in the mahál assigned on partition to another co-sharer, unless with the consent of the co-sharer who cultivates it, or unless the partition cannot otherwise be conveniently carried out.

If such land be so included, and after partition such co-sharer continue to cultivate it, he shall be an occupancy-tenant of such land, and his rent shall be fixed by order of the Collector of the District or of the Assistant Collector.

Rule as to tanks, wells, water-courses and embankments.

126. Tanks, wells, water-courses and embankments shall be considered as attached to the land for the benefit of which they were originally made.

Where, from the extent, situation or construction of such works, it is found necessary that they should continue the joint property of the proprietors of two or more of the mahâls into which the mahál may be divided, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall determine the extent to which the proprietors of each mahál may make use of the said works, and the proportion of the charges for repairs of such works to be borne by such proprietors respectively, and the manner in which the profits, if any, derived from such works, shall be divided.

Rule as to places of worship and burial-grounds.

127. Places of worship and burial-grounds, held in common previous to the partition of a mahál, shall continue to be so held, unless the parties otherwise agree among themselves.

In such cases they shall state in writing the agreement into which they have entered, and such writing shall be filed with the record.

Determination of revenue payable by each division of a mahál.

128. The amount of revenue to be paid by each portion of the divided mahál shall be determined by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, provided that the aggregate revenue of the new mahâls shall not exceed the revenue assessed on the mahál immediately before partition, and the proprietors of the new mahâls shall be held liable for the portions of the revenue severally assessed on their mahâls, whether new engagements be taken from them or not.

Liability of proprietors.

129. The Board shall make rules for determining the costs of partitions under this Act, and the mode in which such costs are to be apportioned:

Power to make rules as to costs.

Provided that the cost of surveying a mahâl, when such survey is necessary for the purpose of partition, shall be paid rateably by all the co-sharers of the mahâl, according to their shares therein.

Cost of survey.

130. If the costs to be paid by the applicant for partition are not paid within a time to be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, the case may be struck off the file.

Case may be struck off for default as to costs.

And if at any stage of the proceedings there appears to be any reason for stopping the partition, the Collector of the District may of his own motion, or on the report of the Assistant Collector making the partition, stay the partition and order the proceedings to be quashed.

Power to stay partition.

131. Every partition shall either be made by the Collector of the District, or, if made by an Assistant Collector, be reported to the Collector of the District for his sanction and confirmation;

Partitions to be made or confirmed by Collector, and notified to parties.

and on completion of a partition, the Collector of the District shall publish a notification of the fact at his office and at some conspicuous place on each of the new mahâls, or in the village of which they form part;

and it shall take effect from the first day of July next after the date of such notification.

When to take effect.

132. An appeal against the decision of the Collector of the District making or confirming a partition, shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division within one year from the date on which such partition takes effect.

Appeal to Commissioner from orders of Collector.

133. Where the public revenue is fraudulently or erroneously distributed at the time of the partition, the Local Government may, within twelve years from the time of discovery of the fraud or error, order a new allotment of the public revenue upon the several mahâls into which the mahâl has been divided, on an estimate of the assets of each mahâl at the time of the partition, to be made conformably to the best evidence and information procurable respecting the same.

Power to order new allotment of revenue on proof of fraud or error in first distribution.

134. Imperfect partition shall be carried out according to the provisions of the preceding sections, so far as they are applicable:

Making of imperfect partitions.

Provided that no application for imperfect partition shall be entertained unless the consent of all the recorded co-sharers in the property of which partition is sought be first obtained.

Consent required.

135. No Civil Court shall entertain any suit or application for perfect or imperfect partition.

Civil Courts barred from entertaining applications for partition.

136. If two or more revenue-paying mahâls have originally formed portion of the same village, the proprietors shall be entitled to have such mahâls united and to hold them as a single mahâl.

Union of mahâls originally part of same village.

137. Every application for the union of such mahâls shall be made in writing to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the mahâls are situate.

Application for such union.

138. If the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, as the case may be, see no objection, he shall comply with the application, and cause the necessary entries to be made in the records of his office, reporting the case to the Commissioner of the Division.

How to be dealt with.

139. The provisions of this chapter, so far as they are applicable, may be applied by the order of the Collector of the District to the partition or union of mahâls held free of revenue.

Application of chapter to partition or union of revenue-free mahâls.

MAINTENANCE OF BOUNDARIES.

140. The Collector of the District, Assistant Collectors and their subordinates, shall have power to enter upon and survey land, and to demarcate the boundaries of mahâls, villages or fields.

Power of Collector and subordinates to enter and survey land, mark boundaries, and settle disputes.

141. All owners of mahâls, villages or fields are bound to maintain and keep in repair at their own cost the boundary-marks lawfully erected thereon.

Obligations of owners as to boundary-marks.

142. Any person convicted before a Collector of the District or Assistant Collector of wilfully erasing, removing or damaging such boundary-marks, may be ordered by the convicting officer to pay such sum, not exceeding fifty rupees for each mark so erased, removed or damaged, as may be necessary to defray the expense of restoring the boundary-marks so erased, removed or damaged, and of rewarding the informer through whom the conviction was obtained.

Penalty for erasing, removing, or injuring marks.

143. Whenever the person erasing, removing or damaging any such mark cannot be discovered, or if for any other reason it is found impracticable to recover from him the sum which he has been so ordered to pay, the mark shall be re-erected or repaired at the charge of the owner or owners of such one or more of the conterminous fields or mahâls, as to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector seems fit.

Who to be charged for re-erection and repair when offenders not discoverable.

144. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may decide, on the basis of possession, all disputes concerning boundaries, and may at any time direct

Powers of Collector as to boundary-disputes and boundary-marks.

the owners of mahâls, villages or fields, by written notice served upon them,

(a) to cause proper boundary-marks to be erected on such mahâls, villages or fields,

(b) to repair the boundary-marks lawfully erected on such mahâls, villages or fields.

In default of their compliance with such direction within fifteen days from the date of the service of the notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall cause such boundary-marks to be erected or repaired, as the case may be, and shall charge the cost of such erections or repairs to the owners of the conterminous villages, fields or mahâls, in such proportion as he thinks fit.

Recovery of fees, fines and costs.

145. All fees, fines, costs and other sums ordered to be paid under this chapter shall be recoverable as an arrear of revenue.

CHAPTER V.

Collection of Land Revenue.

Responsibility for revenue.

146. In the case of every mahâl the entire mahâl and all the proprietors jointly and severally shall be responsible to Government for the revenue for the time being assessed on the mahâl.

Board may make rules as to payment of revenue.

147. The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, from time to time make rules as to the instalments in which, and the persons, places and times to whom and at which, the revenue payable in respect of any land shall be paid.

Until the issue of such rules, the said revenue shall be paid in the instalments, to the persons, and at the times and places, in which, to whom and at which it is now paid.

Arrear. Defaulters.

148. Any sum not so paid becomes thereupon an arrear of revenue and the persons responsible for it become defaulters.

Interest not chargeable.

No interest shall be demanded on any arrear of land-revenue.

Default where settlement is with lambardár.

If the settlement has been made with a lambardár on behalf of the proprietary body, both the lambardár and the persons so responsible shall be deemed defaulters.

Certified account to be evidence as to arrear.

149. A statement of account certified by the tahsíldár shall be conclusive evidence of the existence of the arrear, of its amount, and of the person who is the defaulter.

Process for recovery of arrears.

150. An arrear of revenue may be recovered by the following processes :—

(a) by serving a writ of demand (dastak) on any of the defaulters;

(b) by arrest and detention of his person;

(c) by distress and sale of his moveable property;

(d) by attachment of the share, or pattí, or mahâl, in respect of which the arrear is due;

(e) by transfer of such share or pattí to a solvent co-sharer in the mahâl;

(f) by annulment of the settlement, of such pattí, or of the whole mahâl;

(g) by sale of such pattí, or of the whole mahâl;

(h) by sale of other immoveable property of the defaulter.

When writs may issue.

151. Writs of demand may be issued on or after the day following that on which the arrear accrues.

Power to frame rules as to writs.

The Board shall from time to time frame rules for the issue of such writs, and fix the costs recoverable from the defaulter as an arrear of revenue, and direct by what officer such writs shall be issued.

Arrest and detention of defaulter.

152. At any time after an arrear becomes due, the defaulter may be arrested and detained in custody for fifteen days, unless the arrear, together with the costs of arrest, is sooner paid.

Power of arrest by whom to be exercised.

The Board may, from time to time, declare by what officers or class of officers the powers of arrest conferred by this Act may be exercised.

Distress and sale of his moveable property.

153. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, whether the defaulter has been arrested or not, distrain and sell his moveable property, with the exception of the implements of husbandry and cattle actually employed by him in agriculture, and, in the case of an artizan, of his tools.

Exceptions.

Power to attach defaulter's land and take it under direct management.

154. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Collector of the District may, in addition to or instead of any of the other processes before specified, cause the share, or pattí, or mahâl, in respect of which the arrear is due, to be attached and taken under the management of himself or any agent whom he appoints for that purpose.

Powers and obligations of manager.

155. The Collector of the District, or the agent so appointed, shall be bound by all the engagements which existed between the person or persons who, immediately before the attachment, was or were in possession of the land attached, and the subordinate proprietors or tenants, if any,

and shall be entitled to manage the land attached, and to receive all rents and profits accruing therefrom to the exclusion of such person or persons, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Collector of the District restores to the management thereof the person or persons whose interest has been attached.

Application of surplus profits.

156. All surplus profits of the land attached, beyond the cost of such attachment and management, including the payment of the current revenue, shall be applied in defraying the said arrear;

and no land shall be attached for the same arrears for a longer term than five years from the first day of July next after the attachment; provided that, if the arrear be sooner liquidated, the land shall be released and the surplus receipts (if any) made over to the proprietor.

Limit to term of attachment.

157. When the arrear is due in respect of a share or pattí of a mahál, the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, transfer such share or pattí, for a term not exceeding fifteen years from the first day of July next after the date of the sanction, to any or all of the other co-sharers, on condition of their paying such arrear and on such terms as the Board in each case may think fit.

Transfer of defaulter's share to co-sharers

This procedure shall not affect the joint and several liability of the co-sharers of the mahál in which it is enforced.

Liability of co-sharers not affected.

158. When any arrear of land-revenue is due and the Collector of the District is of opinion that the processes hereinbefore provided are not sufficient for the recovery of such arrear, he may, in addition to or instead of all or any of such processes, report, through the Commissioner of the Division, the matter to the Board, and the Board may thereupon order the existing settlement of the pattí or mahál, in respect of which the arrear is due, to be annulled.

When report may be made to Board and settlement annulled.

The provisions of this section shall not be put in force for the recovery of any arrear of land-revenue which may have accrued on land,

Exception of certain arrears.

(a) while under attachment under section one hundred and fifty-four, or

(b) while under the charge of the Court of Wards.

159. When the settlement of any land has been annulled, the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, either manage the land himself or through an agent, or he may let it in farm to any person willing to accept the same, for such term and on such conditions as may be sanctioned by the Board:

When settlement annulled, Collector may manage land himself, or by agent, or let it in farm.

Provided that the term for which land may be so held or farmed be not longer than fifteen years from the first day of July next after the date of such annulment.

And no contracts made by the persons who immediately before the annulment of the settlement were in possession of the lands comprised therein, or by the persons through whom they respectively claim, relating to such lands, shall, during such term, be binding on the Collector of the District, or his agent, or lessee.

Suspension of contracts.

160. When the Collector of the District attaches any land under section one hundred and fifty-four, or when the settlement of any land has been annulled under section one hundred and fifty-eight, he shall make public proclamation thereof on the mahál.

Proclamation of attachment or annulment of settlement.

161. No payment made after such proclamation on account of rent or any other asset of the mahál, to any person other than the Collector of the District or his agent, or lessee, shall be credited to the person making such payment, or relieve him from liability to payment to the Collector of the District, his agent or lessee.

Payments thereafter to defaulter not to discharge payer.

162. No payment made to the defaulter, in anticipation of the usual period for the payment of the rents shall, without the special sanction of the Collector, be credited to the person making the same in account with the Collector of the District or with the person to whom he gives possession.

Payments to defaulter in anticipation of due date.

163. When any land has been farmed for arrears of revenue, any balance of revenue due from the farmer may be recovered from him or his surety as an arrear of revenue under the provisions of this Act.

Recovery of revenue due from farmer.

164. Whenever the settlement of a portion of a mahál is annulled under section one hundred and fifty-eight, the joint responsibility of the co-sharers for the revenue of such portion of the mahál subsequently becoming due shall be in abeyance until a new settlement of such portion is made under section one hundred and sixty-five.

Suspension of responsibility of co-sharers for revenue of portion of mahál as to which settlement is annulled.

165. After the expiration of the period for which any land has been farmed, or held pursuant to section one hundred and fifty-nine under direct management for the recovery of an arrear of revenue, the Collector of the District shall offer to the person entitled to be settled with under section forty-three a new settlement, on such conditions as the Board may direct, for the remainder of the term of the settlement of the district; and if he refuse such offer, the Collector of the District may (with the previous sanction of the Board) farm the land to some other person, or hold it under direct management under the provisions of sections forty-eight, forty-nine, fifty and fifty-one.

Offer of settlement to proprietor on expiry of period for which land is farmed or taken under management.

166. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due and the Collector of the District is of opinion that the other processes hereinbefore provided are not sufficient for the recovery of such arrear, he may, in addition to, or instead of, all or any of such other processes, and subject to the provision hereinafter contained, and with the previous sanction of the Board, sell by auction the pattí or mahál in respect of which such arrear is due.

Power to sell by auction defaulter's pattí or mahál.

Provided that no land shall be sold—

Bar to sale for certain arrears.

(a) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was under the charge of the Court of Wards, or was so circumstanced that the Court of Wards might have exercised jurisdiction over it under the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-four, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) or (e);

(b) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was under attachment under section one hundred and fifty-four;

(c) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was held under direct management by the Collector of the District, or in farm by any other person, under section forty-eight, forty-nine, one hundred and fifty-nine or one hundred and sixty-five.

Land to be sold free of incumbrances.

167. Land sold under the last preceding section shall be sold free of all incumbrances,

Grants and contracts void against purchaser.

and all grants and contracts previously made by any person other than the purchaser in respect of such land shall become void as against the purchaser at the auction-sale.

Exceptions.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies—

(a) in districts or portions of districts permanently-settled, to farms granted in good faith at fair rents, and for specified areas, by a former proprietor for terms not exceeding twenty years, under written leases duly registered;

(b) in all districts, to lands held under bonâ fide leases at fair rents, temporary or perpetual, for the erection of dwelling-houses, or manufactories, or for mines, gardens, tanks, canals, places of worship, burying grounds, such lands continuing to be used for the purposes specified in such leases.

Power to proceed against interest of defaulter in property other than that in respect of which default is made.

168. If the arrear cannot be recovered by any of the above processes, and the defaulter owns any other mahál, or any share in any other mahál, or any other immoveable property, the Collector of the District may proceed against such mahál or other immoveable property, as if it were the land on account of which the revenue is due, under the provisions of this Act:

Provided that no other interests save those of the defaulter alone shall be so proceeded against, and no incumbrances created or contracts entered into by him in good faith shall be rendered invalid by such proceeding.

Procedure in effecting sale.

169. On the receipt of the sanction of the Board to the sale of any land, the Collector of the District shall issue a proclamation, in the vernacular language of the district, of the intended sale, specifying the time and place of sale, and (when the land to be sold is a mahál or part of a mahál paying revenue to Government) the revenue assessed upon it, together with any other particulars he may think necessary.

Proclamation of sale.

170. When the land is sold for arrears of revenue due thereon, the proclamation shall declare that the land is to be sold free of any incumbrance except the farms and leases (if any) mentioned in section one hundred and sixty-seven.

Such proclamation shall be made at the head-quarters of the tahsíl in which the land is situate, and also in the village of which it is a part.

Notification of sale.

171. A written notice of the intended sale and of the time and place thereof shall be affixed in the office of the Collector of the District, and, where the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division in which the land is situate has a separate office, then also in such office, and a copy of such notice shall be served on the defaulter.

Sale by whom to be made.

172. The sale shall be made either by the Collector of the District in person or by an Assistant Collector specially appointed by him in this behalf.

Time when sale may be made.

No such sale shall take place on a Sunday or other authorized holiday, or until after the expiration of at least thirty days from the date on which the said notice thereof has been affixed in the office of the Collector of the District, and proclamation of the sale has been made in the village in which the land is situate.

Postponement of sale.

The Collector of the District may from time to time postpone the sale, reporting such postponement to the Commissioner of the Division.

When sale may be stayed.

173. If the defaulter pay the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold at any time before the day fixed for the sale, to the person appointed under section one hundred and forty-seven to receive payment of the land-revenue assessed on such land, or to the Collector of the District, or the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the land is situate, the sale shall be stayed.

Deposit by purchaser.

174. The person declared to be the purchaser shall be required to deposit immediately twenty-five per cent. on the amount of his bid, and in default of such deposit the land shall forthwith be again put up and sold.

Re-sale in default of deposit.

Purchase-money when to be paid.

175. The full amount of purchase-money shall be paid by the purchaser before sunset of the fifteenth day from that on which the sale of the land took place, or, if the said fifteenth day be a Sunday or other authorized holiday, then on the first office day after such fifteenth day;

Effect of default.

and in default of payment within such period, the deposit, after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale, shall be forfeited to Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property, or to any part of the sum for which it may be subsequently sold.

Liability of purchaser for loss by re-sale.

176. If the proceeds of the sale which is eventually made be less than the price bid by such defaulting purchaser, the difference shall be leviable from him under the rules contained in the Code of Civil Procedure for enforcing payment of money in satisfaction of a decree of Court.

Notification before re-sale.

177. Every re-sale of land in default of payment of the purchase-money shall be made after the issue of a fresh notice in the manner prescribed for original sales.

Sale to be reported to Commissioner.

178. Every sale of land under this Act shall be reported by the Collector of the District to the Commissioner of the Division.

Application to set aside sale.

179. At any time within thirty days from the date of the sale, application may be made to the Commissioner of the Division to set aside the sale on the ground of some material irregularity or mistake in publishing or conducting it;

but no sale shall be set aside on such ground unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of the irregularity or mistake complained of.

Order confirming or setting aside.

180. On the expiration of thirty days from the date of the sale, if no such application as is mentioned in the last preceding section has been made, or if such application has been made and rejected, the Commissioner of the Division shall make an order confirming the sale;

and if such application be made and allowed, the Commissioner shall make an order setting aside the sale.

Every order made under this section shall be final.

Bar of claims against Government.

181. If no such application be made within the time allowed by section one hundred and seventy-nine, all claims founded on the irregularity or mistake complained of shall, as against the Government, be barred.

Nothing herein contained shall preclude the institution of a suit in a Civil Court for the purpose of setting aside a sale on the ground of fraud.

Refund of purchase-money when sale set aside.

182. Whenever the sale of any land is set aside, the purchaser shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money, with or without interest, in such manner as the Commissioner of the Division thinks fit.

On confirmation of sale, purchaser to be put in possession.

183. After a sale of land on which an arrear of revenue is due has been confirmed in manner aforesaid, the Collector of the District in which the land is situate shall put the person declared to be the purchaser into possession of the land, and shall grant him a certificate to the effect that he has purchased the land to which the certificate refers, and such certificate shall be deemed to be a valid transfer of such land, but need not be stamped or registered as a conveyance.

Certificate of purchase.

If the land has been sold on account of an arrear due on it, the certificate shall also state that it has been sold free of all incumbrances other than the farms and leases mentioned in section one hundred and sixty-seven.

Bar of suit against certified purchaser.

184. The certificate shall state the name of the person declared at the time of sale to be the actual purchaser; and any suit brought, whether in a Civil or Revenue Court, against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of another person not the certified purchaser, though by agreement the name of the certified purchaser was used, shall be dismissed with costs.

Application of proceeds of sale.

185. When a sale of land under this Act has been confirmed, the proceeds of the sale shall be applied in the first place to defraying the expenses of the sale and to the payment of any arrears due in respect of such land at the date of the confirmation of such sale, and recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue, and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose land has been sold;

or, if the land sold were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively, or according to the amount of their recorded interests, at the discretion of the Collector of the District.

Surplus not to be paid to creditors, nor retained by Government, except under order of Court.

186. Such surplus shall not (except under an order of a Civil Court) be payable to any creditor of the person whose land has been sold, nor shall it (except under a like order) be retained in the Government Treasury.

Liability of purchaser for revenue.

187. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser of any land shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue becoming due in respect of such land subsequently to the date of the confirmation of the sale.

Pre-emption by co-sharers when land sold is a pattí of a mahál.

188. Where any land sold under section one hundred and sixty-six is a pattí of a mahál, any recorded co-sharer, not being himself in arrear with regard to such land, may, if the lot has been knocked down to a stranger, claim to take the said land at the sum last bid:

Provided that the said demand of pre-emption be made on the day of sale, and before the officer conducting the sale has left the office for the day, and provided that the claimant fulfil all the other conditions of the sale.

Payment under protest and suit for recovery.

189. Whenever proceedings are taken under this chapter against any person for the recovery of any arrear of revenue, he may pay the amount claimed under protest to the officer taking such proceedings, and upon such payment the proceedings shall be stayed,

and (subject to the pecuniary limitations prescribed by law) the person against whom such proceedings were taken may sue the Government for the amount so paid in any Civil Court situate in the district where such proceedings were taken;

and in such suit, the plaintiff may, notwithstanding section one hundred and forty-nine, give evidence of the amount which he alleges to be due from him.

Proprietor of mahál attached, &c., holding sír-land therein, to be recorded as exproprietary tenant.

190. Any proprietor of a mahál or portion of a mahál that is attached, transferred, held under direct management, farmed, or sold under the provisions of this Act, who may hold sír-land in such mahál or portion, shall be recorded as an exproprietary tenant of such sír-land; and the rent to be paid by him for such land shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector accordingly.

Tenure of land under expired settlement until new settlement is made.

191. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons with whom a settlement has been made, who continue after the expiration of such term to occupy the land comprised in the expired settlement shall, until a new settlement is made, hold the said land upon the conditions of the expired settlement.

Existing record-of-rights.

In all cases the existing record-of-rights shall remain in force until a new record-of-rights is made.

Provisions applied to arrears due at commencement of Act.

192. The provisions of this Act with regard to the recovery of arrears of revenue shall apply to all arrears of land-revenue and sums of money recoverable as arrears of land-revenue and due when this Act comes into force.

CHAPTER VI.

COURT OF WARDS.

Board to have powers of Court of Wards.

193. The Board shall have the powers of a Court of Wards for the superintendence of the persons and property of all proprietors of mahâls or parts of mahâls who are disqualified for the management of their own lands, or who are put under the charge of the Collector of the District by order of a Civil Court under the provisions of any Act for the time being in force.

Proprietors when disqualified for management of their lands.

194. Proprietors shall be held disqualified to manage their own lands when they are—

(a) females deemed by the Local Government incompetent to manage their estates;

(b) minors;

(c) idiots;

(d) lunatics;

(e) persons otherwise rendered incapable by physical defects or infirmities from managing their own estates;

(f) persons convicted of a non-bailable offence and disqualified, in the opinion of the Local Government, by vice or bad character, from managing their estates;

(g) persons declared by the Local Government, on their own application, to be disqualified from managing their estates.

Power to Court of Wards to decline superintendence.

195. The Court of Wards may, in its discretion, assume or refrain from assuming the superintendence of the person or property of any disqualified proprietor, and may at any time release any person or property from its superintendence:

Proviso as to person or property placed under superintendence.

Provided that such person or property has not been placed under the Court of Wards by any competent authority, whose order is necessary for his or its release.

Collector to report what proprietors are disqualified.

196. The Collector of the District shall ascertain and report to the Court of Wards from time to time what proprietors may come within the description of disqualified landholders under section one hundred and ninety-four;

and the Court of Wards shall, on receipt of the report of the Collector, make such order as may seem to it expedient.

Power to enforce provisions of this chapter without report.

197. Nothing in section one hundred and ninety-six shall prevent the Court of Wards or the Local Government from putting the provisions of this chapter in force without any report from the Collector.

Report to Government when Court of Wards' right of superintendence is disputed.

198. If, in any case not specially provided for by this or any other law in force for the time being, the right of the Court of Wards to assume or retain the superintendence of the person or property of a disqualified proprietor is disputed by such proprietor, or, if he be a minor, by some person on his behalf, the case shall be reported to the Local Government, whose orders thereon shall be final.

Appointment, removal, and control of managers and guardians.

199. The Court of Wards may appoint managers of the property of disqualified proprietors; and, if such proprietors be minors, idiots or lunatics, the Court of Wards may appoint guardians for the care of their persons, and may remove and control such managers and guardians.

Proprietors may appoint guardians for their heirs, if disqualified, by will executed and attested in manner required by the Indian Succession Act, 1865; but such appointments shall not be valid till confirmed by the Court of Wards.

Powers of Court of Wards as to male minors within jurisdiction.

200. The Court of Wards may direct where all male minors under its jurisdiction shall reside for the purpose of education or otherwise.

Powers of manager.

201. The manager appointed by the Court of Wards shall have power to collect the rents of the land entrusted to him as well as all other money due to the disqualified proprietor, and to grant receipts therefor;

and he may, subject to the control of the Court, grant or renew such leases and farms, not being for a longer period than five years, as may be necessary for the good management of the property.

Duties of manager.

202. The manager shall manage the property committed to him diligently and faithfully for the benefit of the proprietor, and shall in every respect act to the best of his judgment for the proprietor's interest as if the property were his own.

Powers of Court of Wards as to property under its charge.

203. The Court of Wards shall have power to give such leases or farms of the whole or parts of the property under its charge, and to mortgage or sell any part of such property, and to do all such other acts, as it may judge to be most for the benefit of the property and the advantage of the disqualified proprietors.

Exercise of their powers by Court of Wards through others.

204. The Court of Wards may exercise all powers conferred on it by this Act through the Collectors of the districts in which any part of the property of its Wards may be situated, or through any other person whom it may appoint for such purpose.

Suits by and against proprietors under guardianship.

205. All disqualified proprietors whose property is in charge of the Court of Wards, and for whom guardians have been appointed, shall sue and be sued by and in the name of their guardians:

Provided that no such suit shall be brought or defended by any such guardian without the sanction of the Court of Wards.

Rules relating to managers.

206. Every manager appointed by the Court of Wards shall—

(a) give such security as the Court of Wards thinks fit, duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the rents and profits of the property for which he is appointed;

(b) pass his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court of Wards directs;

(c) pay the balance due from him thereon;

(d) apply for the sanction of the Court of Wards to any act which may involve the property in expense not previously sanctioned by such Court;

(e) be entitled to such allowance as the Court of Wards thinks fit for his care and pains in the execution of his duties;

(f) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

CHAPTER VII.

Procedure of Revenue Courts.

Place for holding Court.

207. A Commissioner of a Division may hold his Court at any place within his division that he thinks fit.

A Collector of a District, an Assistant Collector (whether in charge or not in charge of a subdivision of a District), or an Officer in charge of a Settlement or Assistant Settlement Officer, may hold his Court at any place within the limits of the district to which he is appointed.

A tahsíldár may hold his Court at any place within the limits of his tahsíl.

Power to summon persons to give evidence and produce documents.

208. Any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven shall have power to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary for the purpose of any investigation, suit, or other business before him.

All persons so summoned shall be bound to attend, either in person or by an authorized agent, as such officer may direct, and to state the truth upon any subject respecting which they are examined or make statements, and to produce such documents and other things as may be required.

Summons to be in writing, signed and sealed.

209. Every summons shall be in writing in duplicate, and shall be signed and sealed by the officer issuing it or by such person as he empowers in this behalf,

Mode of service.

and shall be served by tendering or delivering a copy of it to the person summoned, or, if he cannot be found, by affixing a copy of it to some conspicuous part of his usual residence.

Service in district other than that of issuer.

210. If his usual residence be in another district, the summons may be sent by post to the Collector of that district, who shall serve it in accordance with the preceding section.

Mode of serving notices.

211. Every notice under this Act may be served, either by tendering or delivering a copy thereof to the person on whom it is to be served;

or, if such person is a proprietor of land, to his agent, or by affixing a copy thereof to some conspicuous place on the land to which such notice refers.

Notice not void for error.

No such notice shall be deemed void on account of any error in the name or designation of any person referred to therein, unless when such error has produced substantial injustice.

Procedure for procuring attendance of witnesses.

212. In any suit instituted before any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven, if either party desires the attendance of witnesses, he shall follow the procedure prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure, section one hundred and fifty-one.

Hearing in absence of party neglecting to attend, and order ex parte or by default.

213. Whenever any party to the suit or matter under investigation neglects to attend on the day specified in the summons, the suit or matter may be heard and determined in his absence, and an order passed by default, or ex parte, as the case may be.

No appeal from order ex parte or by default.

214. No appeal shall lie from an order passed ex parte, or by default.

Re-hearing on proof of good cause for non-appearance.

But in all such cases, if the party against whom judgment has been given appears either in person or by agent (if a plaintiff within fifteen days from the date of such order, and if a defendant within fifteen days after any process for enforcing the judgment has been executed, or at any earlier period), and shows good cause for his non-appearance, and satisfies the officer making the order that there has been a failure of justice, such officer may, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as he thinks proper, re-investigate the case and alter or rescind the order according to the justice of the case:

Order not to be altered without summons to adverse party.

Provided that no such order shall be reversed or altered without previously summoning the party in whose favour judgment has been given to appear and be heard in support of it.

Mode of taking evidence in certain cases.

215. In all cases coming under sections one hundred and one, one hundred and three, one hundred and twelve, one hundred and thirteen, one hundred and twenty-six, one hundred and forty-two, and one hundred and forty-four, the evidence shall be taken down in full in writing in the language in ordinary use in the district, by or in the presence and hearing and under the personal superintendence and direction of the officer making the investigation, and shall be signed by him.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in full in writing by the officer making the investigation, he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by such officer with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If such officer is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so.

The Local Government may declare what shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to be the language in ordinary use in any district.

Taking evidence given in English. Translation to be on record.

216. When the evidence is given in English, such officer may take it down in that language with his own hand, and an authenticated translation of the same in the language in ordinary use in the district shall be made and shall form part of the record.

Taking evidence in other cases.

217. In all cases other than those specified in section two hundred and fifteen, such officer may either cause the evidence to be taken down in full as aforesaid, or may make a memorandum in his mother-tongue of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of such witness proceeds.

Memorandum to be in writing signed.

Such memorandum shall be written and signed by such officer with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Writing and explanation of decisions.

218. All decisions under this Act shall be written by the officer passing the same in his own handwriting, and shall be explained by him in open Court to the parties or their agents.

Hearing and decision. Notice to parties.

Every hearing and decision shall be in open Court, and the parties or their authorized agents shall have due notice to attend.

Sections 212—218 to apply to judicial proceedings in Revenue Courts.

219. Sections two hundred and twelve to two hundred and eighteen (both inclusive) shall apply to proceedings of a judicial nature in Revenue Courts.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

Reference to arbitration.

220. A Commissioner of a Division, a Collector of a District, an Assistant Collector of the first class, an Officer in charge of a Settlement, or an Assistant Settlement Officer, may, with the consent of the parties, by order, refer any dispute before him to arbitration, and an Officer in charge of a Settlement or an Assistant Settlement Officer may, by order, refer any dispute before him to arbitration without the consent of the parties, and a Tahsíldár invested with the powers described in sections one hundred and forty to one hundred and forty-four (both inclusive) may, with the consent of the parties, refer to arbitration any dispute arising before him respecting the matters mentioned in the same sections.

What to be specified in order of reference.

221. In referring any such dispute to arbitration, the officer making the reference shall specify, in the order of reference, the precise matter submitted to the arbitrators, and such period as he may think reasonable for the delivery of the award;

and he may from time to time extend such period.

Appointment of arbitrators.

222. The parties to the case may each nominate either one or two arbitrators, provided that each party shall nominate the same number;

and a third or fifth arbitrator (as the case may be) shall be appointed by the officer making the reference.

And in cases when an Officer in charge of a Settlement or an Assistant Settlement Officer refers a dispute without the consent of the parties he shall, if they refuse to nominate arbitrators under the first paragraph of this section, nominate three or five arbitrators as he thinks fit.

Power to excuse arbitrator from serving and to call for nomination of substitute.

223. Every officer making a reference under this chapter may, on good cause shewn, excuse any person from serving as an arbitrator, and may call on the party who nominated such person to nominate another in the place of the person so excused.

Nomination of new arbitrator in place of one dying or failing to act.

224. If an arbitrator die, desire to be discharged, or refuse or become incapable to act, the party who nominated him shall nominate another person in his place.

Nomination by Collector when parties fail.

225. If in any of the cases provided for by section two hundred and twenty-three or section two hundred and twenty-four, any party fail for a week to nominate in manner aforesaid, the officer making the reference shall appoint some person to act as arbitrator.

Award.

The arbitrators shall determine and award concerning the matters referred to them for arbitration; and the parties disputing, and all persons claiming through them respectively, shall abide by and perform the award of the arbitrators.

Summoning parties to give evidence.

226. If the arbitrators require the presence of the parties, or any other persons whose evidence may be necessary, they shall apply to the officer making the reference, who shall summon such parties or persons;

Obligation of persons summoned.

and all such parties or persons shall be bound to attend, either in person or by agent, as the arbitrators may require, and to state the truth and to produce such documents and other things as may be required before the arbitrators.

Preparation and submission of award.

227. The award shall be made in writing under the hands of the arbitrators and shall be submitted by them to the officer making the reference, who shall cause notice to be served on the parties to attend and hear the award.

In what cases award or subject of arbitration may be remitted to arbitrators.

228. The officer making the reference may remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrators,

(a) if the award has left undetermined some of the matters referred to arbitration, or if it determine matters not referred to arbitration;

(b) if the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) if an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of the award.

Grounds on which award may be set aside.

229. No award shall be liable to be set aside except on the ground of corruption or misconduct of all or any of the arbitrators.

Application to set aside.

Any application to set aside an award shall be made within ten days after the day appointed for hearing the award.

Decision according to award.

230. If the officer making the reference does not see cause to remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration in the manner aforesaid, and if no application has been made to set aside the award,

or if he has refused such application,

he shall decide in accordance with the award of the majority of the arbitrators, and shall fix the amount to be allowed for the expenses of the arbitration and direct by and to whom, and in what manner, the same shall be paid.

Bar to appeal and suit in Civil Court.

231. Such decision shall not be open to appeal, and shall be at once carried out;

and no Civil Court shall entertain any suit for the purpose of setting it aside or against the arbitrators on account of their award.

Enforcement of Decisions.

Execution of decisions.

232. Any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven may execute all decisions made by himself or by an appellate Court on appeals in suits instituted in his Court under the provisions of this Act, in cases wherein a specific sum of money is adjudged to be due, or any costs or damages are awarded, by levying the same by any process in use for the recovery of an arrear of revenue or rent.

Delivery of possession of immoveable property.

233. In cases wherein possession of immoveable property is adjudged, the officer making the award may deliver over possession in the same manner, and with the same powers in regard to all contempts, resistance and the like, as may be lawfully exercised by the Civil Courts in execution of their own decrees.

Powers of Collectors.

Powers of Collectors of District.

234. Collectors of Districts may, in addition to their own powers, exercise all the powers conferred by this Act on Assistant Collectors.

Powers of Assistant Collectors in charge of sub-divisions.

235. An Assistant Collector in charge of a sub-division of a district shall, as such, have the following powers:—

(1.) To refer cases for enquiry or decision to his subordinates, under section eighteen:

(2.) To withdraw cases from his subordinates and to deal with them himself, or to refer them for disposal to any other subordinate officer competent to deal with them, under the same section:

(11.) To decide claims to hold land revenue free, under sections eighty-eight and eighty-nine.

Powers of Assistant Settlement Officers.

239. All other powers conferred on Settlement Officers by this Act shall be exercised by Assistant Settlement Officers under such restrictions as the officer in charge of a settlement may from time to time impose.

Investing of Settlement Officers with powers of Collector and Assistant Collector.

240. The Local Government may invest any Officer in charge of a Settlement with all or any of the powers of a Collector of a District under this or any other Act for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces, and any Assistant Settlement Officer with all or any of the powers conferrible on an Assistant Collector under this or any other Act for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces within such limits, and with such restrictions, and for such period, as it thinks fit.

Matters excepted from cognizance of Civil Courts.

241. No Civil Court shall exercise jurisdiction over any of the following matters:—

(a) Claims by any person to any of the offices mentioned in sections twenty-four and thirty-three, or to any emolument appertaining to such office, or in respect of any injury caused by his exclusion therefrom:

(b) The claim of any person to be settled with, or the validity of any engagement with Government for the payment of revenue, or the amount of revenue, cess or rate to be assessed on any mahâl, or share of a mahâl under this or any other Act for the time being in force:

(c) Any claims connected with or arising out of any process enforced on account of neglect or refusal to accept the assessment or terms of sub-settlement proposed by the Settlement Officer:

(d) The formation of the record-of-rights,

the preparation, signing, or attestation of any of the documents contained therein, or the notification of settlement:

(e) The determination of the class of a tenant or the rent payable by him, or the period for which such rent is fixed under this Act:

(f) The distribution of the land or allotment of the revenue of a mahâl by partition; or

(h) Any matters provided for in sections seventy-nine to eighty-nine (both inclusive) and one hundred and three:

(i) Claims connected with, or arising out of, the collection of revenue (other than claims under section one hundred and eighty-nine), or any process enforced on account of an arrear of revenue, or on account of any sum which is by this or any other Act realizable as revenue:

(j) Claims to set aside a sale for arrear of revenue other than claims under section one hundred and eighty-one:

(k) Any matter falling within the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, or on which the jurisdiction of that Court is actively exercised, except for the purpose of recovering property committed by that Court to the charge of the Collector of the District.

In all the above cases, jurisdiction shall rest with the revenue authorities only.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPEALS.

Appeal to Collector of District.

242. An appeal shall lie from any order passed by any Assistant Collector of the first or second class, whether in charge of a Sub-division or not, to the Collector of the District.

Appeal to officer in charge of the settlement.

An appeal shall lie from any order passed by an Assistant Settlement Officer to the officer in charge of the settlement.

Appeal to Commissioner of Division.

243. An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division from any order passed by the Collector of a District or an officer in charge of a settlement, or from any declaration or distribution of assessment under section forty-five, forty-six or forty-seven.

Appeal to Board.

244. Subject to the provisions of section two hundred and forty-nine, an appeal shall lie to the Board from any order passed under this Act by the Commissioner of a Division.

Limitation of appeal.

245. No appeal under section two hundred and forty-two shall be brought after the expiration of thirty days from the date of the order complained of.

No appeal under section two hundred and forty-three shall be brought after the expiration of sixty days from the date of the order complained of.

No appeal under section two hundred and forty-four shall be brought after the expiration of ninety days from the date of the order complained of.

Time to be excluded.

246. In computing the period prescribed for an appeal under this chapter, the day on which the order complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of such order, shall be excluded.

Admission of appeal after period of limitation.

247. Any appeal under this chapter may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor when the appellant satisfies the officer or Board to whom or to which he appeals, that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period.

No appeal shall lie against an order under this section admitting an appeal.

Saving of orders expressly made final.

248. Nothing in this chapter applies to orders expressly made final by this Act or to appeals under section one hundred and thirty-two.

Commissioner's order when not appealable, but subject to revision.

249. In any appeal to the Commissioner of a Division from an order passed by the Collector of the District or Officer in charge of a Settlement, on an appeal from an order of an Assistant Collector of the first or second class, or of an Assistant Settlement Officer, the Commissioner's order shall not be appealable, but shall be subject to revision by the Board under sections two hundred and fifty-three and two hundred and fifty-five.

Powers of Appellate Court.

250. The Appellate Court may either admit or summarily reject the appeal:

If it admit the appeal, it may reverse, modify or confirm the order of the Lower Court, or it may direct the Court to make such further investigation or to take such additional evidence as it may think necessary, or it may itself take such additional evidence.

Power to suspend execution of order of Lower Court.

251. In any case in which an appeal is allowed, the Appellate Court may, pending the order on appeal, direct the execution of the order of the Lower Court to be suspended.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Provision where Court is closed.

252. Whenever a Court is closed on the last day of any period provided in this Act for the presentation of any memorandum of appeal, or for the deposit or payment of any money in or into Court, the day on which the Court re-opens shall be deemed to be such last day.

Power of Board to call for and examine record of case or proceedings of subordinate Revenue Court.

253. The Board may call for and examine the record of any case, or the proceedings of any Revenue Court subordinate to it, for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings of such Court.

Power of Commissioner, Collector, and Officer in charge of Settlement to call for records and proceedings.

254. The Commissioner of a Division, or the Collector of a District, or the Officer in charge of a Settlement, may call for and examine the record or proceedings of any Revenue Court subordinate to him respectively, for the purposes mentioned in section two hundred and fifty-three;

Report to Board.

and if he is of opinion that the proceedings taken or order passed by such subordinate officer, should be modified, cancelled, or reversed, he shall report the case with his opinion thereon for the orders of the Board.

Power of Board in cases called for or reported.

255. If in any case, whether called for by the Board or reported for orders, it appears to the Board that any order or proceedings should be modified, cancelled, or reversed, it may pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Power to Board to make rules.

256. The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make and issue general rules for regulating the practice and procedure of their own Court, or of any Revenue Court subordinate to them, not otherwise provided for by law.

Power of Local Government to invest tahsíldárs with certain powers.

257. The Local Government may invest any tahsíldár with the powers described in sections one hundred and forty to one hundred and forty-four (both inclusive), and may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act,

To make rules.

(a) for regulating the assessment of land gained by alluvion, or the decrease of the assessment of a mahál in consequence of diluvion;

(b) for the guidance of Settlement Officers in fixing rent under section seventy-one or section seventy-two and section seventy-four:

All such rules shall be published in the North-Western Provinces Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Power of Board to make rules.

The Board, subject to the sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act, for

(c) prescribing the duties to be performed respectively by tahsíldárs, kánúngos, and patwáris;

(d) regulating the appointment of tahsíldárs and officers inferior to them in rank, their duties, punishment, suspension and dismissal;

(e) prescribing the manner in which Settlement Officers shall report for sanction the rates and method of assessment and the amounts they propose to assess;

(f) generally for the guidance of all persons in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

Amendment of Act XL of 1858.

258. In Act No. XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), section two shall be read as if, for the words "estates paying revenue to Government," the words "maháls assessed to revenue or held revenue-free," were substituted.

Disposal of suits and applications pending before Settlement Officer when settlement is closed.

259. If while any suit or application under this Act is pending before a Settlement Officer, the settlement of the district in which the subject-matter of the suit or application is situate is closed by the issue of a notification under section thirty-seven, such suit or application shall be made over to the Court of the Collector of the District, and may be by him transferred or otherwise dealt with as if it had been originally instituted in or made to his Court.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ACCOUNTS.

Fort William, the 24th December 1873.

No. 3937.—The following Resolution is published for general information :—

The Governor General in Council having reason to believe that the Government Savings Bank in Bombay was being employed for purposes which it was not intended to serve, caused enquiries to be made as to the character of the more recent accounts, the classes by whom deposits were made and the way in which the accounts were worked.

From these enquiries it appears that there are numerous accounts, many of them recently opened, in which the maximum sum allowed has been deposited at once; and that the limit prescribed as to the amount of each account has been in practice evaded, the same person having opened more than one account.

The object of Government Savings Banks is to afford to the industrial classes and to persons of limited means, facilities for the accumulation of small savings. The essential character of the class of accounts that it is desirable to encourage is, that they are growing accounts. It was not the intention of Government to encourage the deposit at Savings Bank rate of interest of considerable sums of money.

In order, therefore, to ensure that Savings Banks shall be used only for legitimate purposes, His Excellency in Council is pleased to rule as follows :—

1*st.*—Without the special permission of the head of the office, which should be very sparingly given, no one may deposit in any Government Savings Bank in India more than Rs. 500 in one year or more than Rs. 1,000 in all.

2*nd.*—Ordinarily, no one may open for himself or the members of his family more than one account.

FIRST SCHEDULE.—Forms.

SECOND SCHEDULE.—Territories exempted in the first instance, from the operation of the Act.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the recovery of Rent in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873 :"

Local extent.

It extends in the first instance to the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant Governor of the North-Western Provinces, except those specified in the second schedule hereto annexed. But the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to all or any of the territories so excepted.

Save as provided by sections one hundred and seventy-one and one hundred and seventy-two, nothing herein contained applies to land for the time being occupied by dwelling-houses or manufactories, or appurtenant thereto.

Commencement.

This Act shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Acts repealed.

2. Act No. X of 1859 (to amend the law relating to the recovery of Rent in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), Act No. XIV of 1863 (to amend Act X of 1859*)*, and Act No. XXII of 1872 (to explain and amend Act No. X of 1859*)* are hereby repealed. But such repeal shall not legalize any practice which, immediately before the passing of this Act, was unlawful.

Rules and orders now in force.

And all rules and orders now in force and made under any of the Acts hereby repealed shall, so far as they are consistent herewith, be deemed to have been made hereunder.

Proceedings heretofore commenced.

All proceedings commenced under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to have been commenced under this Act, except where a decree has been made or an appeal presented : Provided that no proceeding relative to the enhancement of rent shall be deemed to have been commenced before the passing of this Act, merely because the landholder has served a notice under section thirteen of Act No. X of 1859, or because the tenant has contested his liability to pay the enhanced rent, by complaint of excessive demand of rent, under sections fourteen and twenty-three of the same Act.

Acts amended.

Illustration (a) to the Indian Penal Code, section nineteen, and Act No. XI of 1865, section fifty-two, shall be read as if, for "Act X of 1859," the words and figures, "the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873" were substituted. And section fifteen of Act No. XVIII of 1871 (for the levy of rates on land in the North-Western Provinces) shall be read as if, for "section twenty-three of Act No. X of 1859, and in section one of Act No. XIV of 1863," the words and figures "section ninety-four of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873," were substituted, and as if, for "Act No. X of 1859 and Act No. XIV of 1863," the words and figures "the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873," were substituted.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

'Mahál.'

(1.) 'Mahál' means—

(a) any local area held under a separate engagement for the payment of land-revenue, and for which a separate record of rights has been framed;

(b) any local area of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and for which a separate record of rights has been framed :

(2.) 'Rent' means whatever is to be paid, delivered or rendered by a tenant on account of his holding, use or occupation of land :

'Rent.'

(3). 'Landholder' means the person to whom a tenant is liable to pay rent :

'Landholder.'

'Sír-land.'

(4.) 'Sír-land' means—

(a) land recorded as sír at the last settlement of the district in which it is situate, and continuously so recorded since ;

(b.) land continuously cultivated for twelve years by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his servants, or by hired labour ;

(c.) land recognized by village-custom as the special holding of a co-sharer, and treated as such in the distribution of profits or charges among the co-sharers :

(5.) 'Collector of a District' means the chief officer in charge of the Revenue Administration of a District :

'Collector of a District.'

(6.) 'Commissioner of a Division' means the Chief Officer in charge of the Revenue Administration of a Division :

'Commissioner of a Division.'

(7.) 'Board' means the Board of Revenue for the North-Western Provinces :

'Board.'

(8.) 'Civil Jail' means the civil jail of the district, and includes any place appointed by the Local Government for the confinement of prisoners under sentence of any Court constituted under this Act.

'Civil Jail.'

CHAPTER II.

RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF LANDHOLDERS AND TENANTS.

Persons holding land at fixed rent without change since permanent settlement to continue to hold at such rent.

4. In the permanently-settled districts, persons who possess a permanent transferable interest in land, and who are intermediate between the proprietor of a mahál and the occupants, and who hold (otherwise than under a terminable lease) at a fixed rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, shall continue to hold at such rent.

Tenants at fixed rates.

5. All tenants in districts or portions of districts permanently settled, who hold lands at fixed rates of rent which have not been changed since the Permanent Settlement, shall have a right of occupancy at those rates, and shall be called "tenants at fixed rates."

Presumption where rent of land not changed for 20 years.

6. Whenever, in any suit to which the provisions of section four or section five apply, it is proved that the rent at which land is held has not been changed for a period of twenty years next before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shown, or unless it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Exproprietary tenants.

7. Every person who may hereafter lose or part with his proprietary rights in any mahál shall have a right of occupancy in the land held by him as sír in such mahál at the date of such loss or parting, at a rent which shall be four annas in the rupee less than the prevailing rate payable by tenants-at-will for land of similar quality and with similar advantages.

Persons having such rights of occupancy shall be called "exproprietary tenants," and shall have all the rights of occupancy-tenants.

Occupancy-tenants.

8. Every tenant who has actually occupied or cultivated land continuously for twelve years has a right of occupancy in the land so occupied or cultivated by him.

Such tenants shall be called "occupancy-tenants."

The occupation or cultivating of the father or other person from whom the tenant inherits, shall be deemed to be the occupation or cultivating of the tenant within the meaning of this section :

Tenants barred from right of occupancy.

Provided that no tenant shall acquire, under this section, a right of occupancy—

(a.) in land which he holds from an occupancy-tenant, or from an exproprietary tenant, or from a tenant at fixed rates ;

(b.) in sír-land ;

(c.) in land held by him in lieu of wages.

Time excluded from reckoning period necessary for acquiring right of occupancy.

Provided also that, when a tenant actually occupies or cultivates land under a written lease without having a right of occupancy in such land, the period of twelve years necessary for acquiring a right of occupancy therein by him or any one claiming under him shall begin on the expiration of the term of such lease. If during the currency of such lease he ceases to occupy the land comprised therein, and sublets it to another, no right of occupancy in such land shall be acquired by the sub-lessee during the currency of the lease.

Rights under sections 7 and 8 when transferable.

9. The right of tenants at fixed rates shall be heritable and transferable. No other right of occupancy shall be transferable by grant, will or otherwise, except as between persons who have become by inheritance co-sharers in such right.

When any person entitled to such last mentioned right dies, the right shall devolve as if it were land : Provided that no collateral relative of the deceased who did not then share in the cultivation of his holding shall be entitled to inherit under this section.

Determination of class of tenure of tenant.

10. On the application of any tenant to have his class of tenure determined, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall determine the class to which he belongs, namely,

whether he is a tenant at fixed rates,

or an exproprietary tenant,

or an occupancy-tenant,

or whether he is a tenant without a right of occupancy.

Bar to enhancement of rent of tenants at fixed rates.

11. The rent paid by tenants at fixed rates shall not be liable to enhancement.

Enhancement in case of exproprietary and occupancy-tenants.

12. The rent paid by exproprietary or occupancy-tenants shall not be liable to enhancement except—

(a) by a written agreement registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1871, or recorded before the patwárí of the village or the kánúngo: or

(b) by order of a Settlement Officer passed under the law for the time being in force: or

(c) by order under this Act.

Grounds of enhancing rent of occupancy-tenants which has not been fixed by order.

13. Where the rent of any occupancy-tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by any such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred, the landholder may apply to enhance the rent of such tenant on one of the following grounds and on no others:—

(a) that the rate of the rent paid by such tenant is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of tenants for land of similar quality with similar advantages,

(b) that the value of the produce has, or the productive powers of the land have, been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the tenant;

(c) that the quantity of land held by the tenant has been proved by measurement to be greater than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

Enhancement of rent of exproprietary tenants which has not been fixed by order.

14. a. Where the rent of any exproprietary tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred,

the landholder may apply to enhance or determine the rent of such tenant as if he were an occupancy-tenant: Provided that his rent shall be four annas in the rupee below the prevailing rate for land of a similar quality with similar advantages held by tenants-at-will.

Selection of land for comparison.

b. Whenever the district or tahsíl, or other local area in which such land is situated, has been divided by the Settlement Officer into circles of like capacity and soil, the land of similar quality, with similar advantages, shall, for the purposes of this section and section thirteen, be selected from the same circle.

c. When the Settlement Officer has not so divided the district or other local area as aforesaid, the land regarding which the application has been made shall be compared with land of similar quality and with similar advantages, in the same tahsíl or in a tahsíl immediately adjacent.

Abatement in like cases.

15. Where the rent of any exproprietary tenant or occupancy-tenant has not been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, or where the rent has been fixed by such order, but the term for which it has been fixed has expired,

or where any of the events mentioned in section sixteen has occurred, the tenant may apply for an abatement of his rent on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(a) that the area of the land held by him has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise:

(b) that the value of the produce has, or the productive powers of such land have, been decreased by any cause beyond his power.

Time of enhancement or abatement where rent of exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by order under this Act.

16. Subject to the provisions of section seventeen, where the rent of any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by an order under this Act, such rent shall not be liable to be enhanced or abated

(a) until the expiration of ten years from the date on which such order took effect, or

(b) until the revision (before confirmation) of the assessment of the district by order of the Local Government, or

(c) until the conclusion of the period of settlement of the district, whichever of the said three events first occurs.

Grounds of enhancement and abatement where his rent has been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer or under this Act.

17. Where the rent of any exproprietary or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by order of a Settlement Officer under the North-Western Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1873, or by an order under this Act, the landholder may apply to enhance the rent of such tenant during the currency of the term for which the rent has been so fixed, on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(a) that the area of the tenant's holding has been increased by alluvion or otherwise;

(b) that the productive powers of the land held by the tenant have, since the date of the order, been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the tenant:

And the tenant may apply for abatement of his rent on one of the following grounds, and on no others:—

(c) that the area of the land held by him has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise;

(d) that the productive powers of such land have been decreased by any cause beyond his control.

Grounds of enhancement or abatement of rent of tenant at fixed rates.

18. In the case of a tenant at fixed rates, the landholder may apply to enhance his rent on the ground that the area of the land in his holding has been increased by alluvion or otherwise, and the tenant may apply for abatement of his rent on the ground that the area of the land in his holding has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise.

19. Applications for enhancement or abatement of rent must be made on or before the thirty-first day of December next before the year commencing on the first day of July from which the rent is to be enhanced or abated,

Day before which applications for enhancement or abatement must be made and all orders for enhancement or abatement shall take effect from the first day of July next following the date of the application.

Orders when to take effect.

20. In determining, under this chapter, the rate of rent payable by any tenant, his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that, by local custom, caste is taken into account in determining such rate;

Consideration of caste and class of tenant in determining rate of his rent.

and whenever it is found that, by local custom or practice, any class of persons, by reason of their having formerly been proprietors of the soil or otherwise, hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with such custom or practice.

21. No tenant-at-will of land shall be liable to pay rent in excess of the rent (if any) payable by him in the previous year ending on the thirtieth day of June, unless the landholder and tenant have agreed as to the rent to be paid to the former by the latter, and such agreement has been recorded by the patwárí of the village or the kánúngo of the pargana in which such land is situate.

Tenants at-will.

22. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, when the rent of any expropriatory or occupancy-tenant has been fixed by agreement between the parties, such rent shall not be liable to enhancement or abatement for such term as may be agreed on.

Rent of expropriatory or occupancy-tenant fixed by agreement.

23. Whenever in any land the crops have been damaged or destroyed by any cause beyond the tenant's control, any officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf may, subject to such rules as to appeal, confirmation or otherwise, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Board, order that the whole or any part of the rent then payable for such land shall be remitted, or that the payment thereof shall be suspended for such period as he thinks fit;

Power to remit or suspend payment of rent where crops have been damaged.

And, subject to the same rules, the landholder shall be bound by such order:

And in case of such remission, the Local Government shall remit the revenue due in respect of such land to an amount which shall, at the option of the Local Government, be equal to one-half of the rent remitted, or shall bear the same proportion to the whole of the revenue due in respect of the mahál, as the rent remitted bears to the whole of the rent payable in respect of such mahál;

And in case of such suspension, the Local Government shall suspend for the period of such suspension so much of the revenue payable in respect of the mahál as, at the option of the Local Government, is equal to one half of the rent of which the payment has been suspended, or bears the same proportion to the whole revenue payable in respect of the mahál, as the rent of which the payment has been suspended bears to the whole rent payable in respect of such mahál.

(A).—Leases.

24. Every tenant is entitled to receive from the landholder, and may at any time during the continuance of his holding apply for, a lease containing the following particulars:—

Contents of lease to which every tenant is entitled.

(a.) the quantity of land held by him, and, where the fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field:

(b.) the amount of annual rent payable for such land:

(c.) the instalments in which, and the dates on which, such rent is to be paid:

(d.) any special conditions of the lease:

(e.) if the rent is payable in kind, or is calculated on a valuation of the produce, the proportion of produce to be delivered, the mode of valuation, and the time, manner and place of delivery.

25. Tenants at fixed rates are entitled to receive leases at such rates.

Leases to which tenants at fixed rates are entitled.

26. Expropriatory and occupancy-tenants are entitled to receive leases at the rates hitherto paid by them, or determined in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Leases to which expropriatory and occupancy-tenants are entitled.

27. All other tenants are entitled to leases only on such terms as may be agreed upon between them and the landholders.

Leases to which other tenants are entitled.

28. Every landholder who grants a lease is entitled to receive a reciprocal engagement from the tenant, executed by the tenant, and conformable with the terms of the lease.

Landholder granting lease entitled to reciprocal engagement.

The tender to any tenant of a lease, such as he is entitled to receive, shall entitle the landholder to receive a reciprocal engagement from such tenant.

29. If any lease be granted, or if any agreement be entered into, by any landholder under engagement with Government for his land, fixing the rent of land for any period exceeding the term of such engagement, such lease or agreement shall, on the expiration of the term aforesaid, be void at the option of either party.

Lease for period exceeding term of landholder's engagement.

30. a. And whereas all grants (whether in writing or otherwise) for holding land exempt from the payment of rent which have been made since the first day of December 1790, by any authority other than that of the Governor-General in Council, were declared by Bengal Regulation XIX of 1793, section ten, to be null and void, and like provisions have been by divers Regulations applied to the several parts of the territories to which this Act extends, and the said Regulation XIX of 1793 also provided that no length of possession should be considered to give validity to any such grant, either with regard to the property in the soil or the rents of it, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Resumption of rent-free grants.

b. Applications by the proprietor to resume such grants or to assess rent on the land, shall be made to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and, subject to rules to be made under section two hundred and eleven, shall be dealt with as other applications under this Act.

Applications to resume.

c. Grants of land held under a written instrument, by which the grantor expressly agrees that the grant shall not be resumed, shall be held valid as against him (but not as against his representatives after his death) during the continuance of the settlement of the district in which the land is situate, which is current at the date of the grant.

Validity of grants which grantor has expressly agreed not to resume.

d. Where any land has been for fifty years or upwards, and still is, held rent-free and by at least two successors to the original grantee, such holding shall be deemed to confer on the holder a proprietary right.

When rent-free tenure confers proprietary right.

e. Nothing in the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall bar the right to make an application under this Act to assess to rent land held rent-free.

f. Nothing in this section shall apply to either of the following cases:—

(1) Where land is previously to the passing of this Act held rent-free under a judicial decision:

(2) Where, previously to the passing of this Act, land held rent-free has been purchased for a valuable consideration and resumption thereof has been barred under Act No. X of 1859, section twenty-eight, or under the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, schedule II, No. 130.

(B.)—Relinquishment and Ejectment.

31. Every tenant not holding under a lease shall continue liable for the rent of the land in his holding for the ensuing year, unless on or before the first day of May in any year he gives notice in writing to the landholder, or his recognized agent, of his desire to relinquish such land on the thirtieth day of June next ensuing, and relinquishes it accordingly; or unless it is let to any other person by such landholder or agent.

Relinquishment of land by tenant not holding under a lease.

32. If the landholder or his agent refuse to receive such notice, or if he receive it but refuse to sign a receipt for the same, the tenant may make an application to the tahsíldár, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on such landholder or agent, the tenant paying the costs of service.

Service through tahsíldár of notice of relinquishment.

33. The notice shall, if practicable, be served personally on the landholder or his agent; but if the landholder or his agent cannot be found, or if he evades service of the notice, service may be made by affixing the notice at his usual place of residence, or, if he does not reside in the district wherein the land is situate, at the chaupál, or other conspicuous place in the village where the land is situate.

Mode of serving notice.

Where the delay in serving the notice is owing to the fault of the landholder or his agent, the notice shall be deemed to have been served at the first attempt to serve it.

34. a. When an arrear of rent remains due from any tenant, he shall be liable to pay interest on such arrear at one per cent. per mensem; and if the arrear remains due on the thirtieth day of June, to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear is due:

Liability of tenant to pay interest on arrear and to be ejected.

b. No tenant at fixed rates, expropriatory tenant, occupancy-tenant, or tenant holding under an unexpired lease, shall be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Bar to ejectment without decree.

c. No ejectment of a tenant or forfeiture of a lease shall be decreed on account of any act or omission of the tenant

Ejectment not to be decreed for certain acts or omissions.

(1). which is not detrimental to the land in his occupation, or inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was let, or

(2). which by law, custom, or special agreement does not involve the forfeiture of the lease.

35. If the landholder desire to eject a tenant at fixed rates, an expropriatory tenant, an occupancy-tenant, or a tenant holding under an unexpired lease, against whom a decree for arrears has been passed and remains unsatisfied, he may, after the expiration of the year, ending on the thirtieth day of June, in which such arrears accrued, apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector to eject the tenant.

Ejectment of tenant at fixed rates, expropriatory, with right of occupancy, or holding under unexpired lease.

Such officer shall, on receiving such application, (subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, and of section one hundred and sixty-two of this Act) cause a notice to be served on the tenant, stating the amount due under the decree, and informing him that, if he does not pay such amount into Court within fifteen days from receipt of the notice, he will be ejected from his land.

If such amount be not so paid, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may eject the tenant.

36. If the landholder desire to eject a tenant not having a right of occupancy, or any other tenant holding only for a limited period, after the determination of his tenancy, he may cause a written notice of ejectment to be served on such tenant under the provisions of this Act.

Service of notice on tenant for limited period.

37. The notice of ejectment shall be written in the vernacular language and character of the district:

Language and contents of notice.

it shall specify the land from which the tenant is to be ejected;

and it shall inform him that he must vacate such land on or before the first day of May next following; or that, if he means to contest the right to eject him, he must apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for that purpose on or before that date.

38. The notice shall be issued and served through the office of the tahsíldár on or before the first day of April, and the landholder shall pay the cost of service: it shall be served personally on the tenant, if practicable; but if he cannot be found, service may be made by affixing the notice to his usual place of residence.

Mode of serving notice.

Effect of failure of tenant to institute suit to contest liability to ejectment.

39. a. The tenant, on whom such notice has been served, may, on or before the first day of May next after the service, make an application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, contesting his liability to be ejected.

b. When such an application is made, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall proceed to determine the question between the parties.

c. If no such application is made, the tenancy of the land in respect of which the notice has been served shall be held to cease on the first day of May next after the service; unless, after such service, the landholder authorises the tenant to continue in the occupation of the land.

Procedure to enforce ejectment.

40. If the landholder require assistance to eject the person whose tenancy is alleged to have ceased under the provisions of section thirty-nine, he may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for such assistance before the ploughing for the kharif harvest commences in the district; and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall order the ejectment of such tenant if he is satisfied—

(a) that the notice was duly served on such tenant under section thirty-eight;

(b) that he has not been authorised by the landholder to continue in occupation,

(c) that the tenant has not made the application mentioned in section thirty-nine, or

(d) that if such application has been made, the question has been determined adversely to the tenant.

Provided that no such application for the ejectment of a farmer on the determination of a lease shall be received if the lease be of the kind in which an advance has been made by the leaseholder, and the proprietor's right of re-entry at the end of the term is contingent on the repayment of such advance either in money or by the usufruct of the land. In all such cases the landholder must proceed by suit in the Civil Court.

Notice of ejectment when void.

41. If the landholder expressly authorise the tenant, on whom the notice of ejectment has been served, or against whom any proceedings in ejectment under section forty have been taken, to remain in occupation of the land, and to prepare it for the kharif harvest, the proceedings shall become void.

Rights of ejected tenant.

42. a. Any tenant ejected in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to any growing crops or other ungathered products of the earth belonging to the tenant, and growing on the land at the time of his ejectment, and to use the land for the purpose of tending and gathering in such crops or other products paying adequate rent therefor.

Effect of tender by landholder of payment for crops.

b. Provided that, if the landholder desire to purchase such crops or other products, he may tender their price to the tenant; and thereupon the right of the tenant to such crops and other products, and to use the land for the purpose aforesaid, shall cease.

Power to determine rent and price.

c. In the case of a dispute under this section, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, on the application of the landholder or tenant, award the rent and price so payable; and the amount of such award, or of any tender accepted under this section, shall be recoverable as an arrear of rent by suit under this Act.

Set-off of rent.

d. The rent, if any, payable to the landholder by the tenant at the time of his ejectment may be set-off against the price of the said crops or other products.

Application for officer to divide produce or appraise crop.

43. a. Wherever rent is taken by division of the produce in kind, or by estimate or appraisement of the standing crop, or other procedure of a like nature, requiring the presence both of the cultivator and landholder, either personally or by agent,

if either landholder or tenant, personally or by agent, neglect to attend at the proper time, or if there is a dispute as to the amount or value of the crop, an application may be presented by either party to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, requesting that a proper officer be deputed to make the division, estimate, or appraisement.

Procedure on such application.

b. On receiving such application, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall issue a written notice to the opposite party or his agent, to attend on the date and at the time specified in the notice, and shall depute an officer before whom such division, estimate, or appraisement shall be made.

c. If on or before the date appointed, the dispute has not been amicably adjusted, three residents of the village or neighbourhood shall be appointed assessors; one by each of the parties, and one by the officer deputed to divide the grain or estimate or appraise the crops, and the officer deputed shall decide the amount of rent payable by their award, and shall give to the party applying a written authority to divide the grain or cut the crops.

d. Provided that, if either party fail to attend, the officer deputed shall nominate an assessor on his behalf.

e. The officer deputed shall report his proceedings to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall determine the amount of costs properly incurred under this section, and the share of the costs to be paid by either party.

(C.)—Compensation for Improvements made by Tenants.

Tenants' right to compensation for improvements.

44. If any tenant, or any person from whom he has inherited or purchased, make any such improvements on the land in his possession as are hereinafter mentioned, neither he nor his representative shall be ejected from the same land without payment of compensation for such improvements.

Explanation.—The word "improvements" as used in this section means works by which the annual letting value of the land has been, and at the time of demanding compensation continues to be, increased, and comprises—

(a.) tanks, wells and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for agricultural purposes,

(b.) works for the drainage of land, or for the protection of land from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water,

(c.) the reclaiming, clearing, or enclosing of lands for agricultural purposes,

(d.) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein, or additions thereto.

Mode of making compensation.

45. Such compensation may, at the option of the landholder or his representative, be made—

1*st*,—by payment in money;

2*nd*,—by a rent to be charged on the land;

3*rd*,—by the grant of a beneficial lease of the land, by the landholder or his representative, to the tenant or his representative;

4*th*,—partly by one or by any two of the said ways, and partly by the others or other of the same ways.

Settlement of difference as to amount or value of compensation.

46. In case of difference as to the amount or value of the compensation tendered, either party may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector stating the matter in dispute, and requesting a determination thereof.

On receiving such application, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall

(a) cause notice thereof to be served on the other party,

(b) take such evidence as the parties or either of them may adduce,

(c) make such further inquiry as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may deem necessary, and

(d) determine the amount of the payment in money, and the amount and incidence of the rent-charge, and the terms of the lease, or any of such matters.

Considerations in determining compensation.

47. In determining the amount or value mentioned in section forty-six, or the terms of such lease, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall take into account any assistance given to the tenant by the landholder either directly in money, material or labour, for the purpose of making such improvements, or indirectly by allowing the tenant to hold at a favourable rate of rent.

(D.)—Compensation for wrongful Acts and Omissions.

Right of tenant to compensation for exactions in excess of rent or for withholding receipt.

48. Every tenant from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his lease or payable under the provisions of this Act, and every tenant from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the landholder compensation not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid.

Contents of receipt.

Receipts for rent shall specify the period or crop on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid;

and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

Damages for extorting payment of rent by duress.

49. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any tenant by illegal confinement or other duress, he shall be entitled to recover from the person guilty of such extortion such further compensation, not exceeding the sum of two hundred rupees, as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector thinks reasonable.

Liability to punishment for extortion not affected.

An award of compensation under this section shall not bar or affect any penalty or punishment to which the person guilty of such extortion may be subject under the Indian Penal Code.

(E.)—Deposit of Rent in Court.

Deposit of amount tendered by tenant and refused.

50. If any tenant tenders to the landholder full payment of the rent due from him, and if the amount so tendered be not accepted, and a receipt for the amount forthwith granted, the tenant may thereupon apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector for leave to deposit such amount in his Court to the credit of the landholder.

Form and verification of application.

51. The application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall be as nearly as may be in the form (A) in the first schedule hereto annexed, and shall be verified in the manner prescribed for the verification of plaints under section one hundred and seven:

Penalty for false statement.

and the person making the verification shall be punishable, if the application contain any averment which he knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true.

Notice to issue on deposit being made.

52. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall receive the amount which the tenant desires to deposit, and shall thereupon issue to the person to whose credit it has so been deposited, a notice in English or the vernacular language of the district in the form (B) in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

And such deposit shall, in all questions between the landholder and the tenant, be deemed to be a payment made by the tenant to the landholder on account of the rent.

Mode of serving notice.

53. Such notice shall be served through the tahsíldár upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his recognized agent.

In their absence, the notice shall be affixed at the chaupál, or other conspicuous place in the village in which the land for which the rent is due is situate.

Payment to person served with notice on his application.

54. If at any time before the expiration of three years from the date of the deposit the person on whom such notice is served, or his recognized agent, appears, and applies that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be paid accordingly, unless it has been repaid or paid in accordance with the provisions next hereinafter contained.

Refund to depositor.

55. If no application be made by such person or his recognized agent, the sum shall be repaid to the depositor on the expiration of three years from the date of the deposit.

And at any time before the expiration of such period, on the joint application of the depositor and the person to whose credit the said sum was deposited, such sum shall be paid in such manner as the joint applicants desire.

CHAPTER III.

DISTRESS.

Produce of land hypothecated for rent.

56. The produce of all land in the occupation of a cultivator shall be deemed to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect of such land;

Recovery of arrears by distress.

and when an arrear of rent is due from any cultivator, the person entitled to receive rent immediately from him may, instead of suing for the arrear as hereinafter provided, recover the same by distress and sale of the produce of the land in respect of which the arrear is due, under the rules contained in this chapter.

57. Provided—

Distress of produce barred by security given for rent.

(a.) that, when a cultivator has given security for the payment of his rent, the produce of the land for the rent of which security has been given, shall not be liable to be distrained:

Sharer when entitled to distrain.

(b.) that no sharer in any mahál shall have power to distrain upon any cultivator unless he is entitled to collect the whole rent from such cultivator:

Distress by manager.

(c.) that no sharer in a joint undivided mahál shall exercise such power otherwise than through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the whole mahál on behalf of all the sharers therein:

Distress in pattídárí mahále.

(d.) that in pattídárí mahále distress shall be made only through a lambardár, or, where the rent of a pattí is not collected by a lambardár, through the pattídár who is entitled to collect the rent.

No distress for overdue arrear, nor, without agreement, for excess over past year's rent.

58. A distress shall not be made for any arrear which has been due in respect of any land for a longer period than one year;

nor for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the same land in the preceding year, unless the rent has been enhanced under the provisions hereinbefore contained, or by order of a Settlement Officer, or unless the cultivator has agreed to pay such excess and such agreement has been attested before the patwárí or kánúngo.

Distress by managers under Court of Wards, &c.

59. The power to distrain conferred by sections fifty-six and fifty-seven may be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, and other persons lawfully entrusted with the charge of immoveable property;

and also by the agents employed by such persons as aforesaid, in the collection of rent, if expressly authorized by power-of-attorney in that behalf:

Liability for illegal act.

If any wrongful act is committed by any such agent, under colour of the exercise of the said power, such agent and his principal shall be jointly and severally liable to make compensation for such act.

Written authority to servants employed to distrain.

60. When any person, empowered to distrain property under section fifty-six, section fifty-seven or section fifty-nine, employs a servant or other person to make the distress, he shall give him a written authority for the same, and the distress shall be made in the name of the person giving such authority.

Standing crops and crops gathered liable to distress.

61. Standing crops and other ungathered products of the earth, and crops or other products when reaped or gathered, and deposited in any threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like, whether in the field or within a homestead, may be distrained by persons invested with power to distrain under the provisions of this Act.

Exception.

But no such crops or products, other than the produce of the land in respect of which an arrear of rent is due, or of land held under the same engagement, and no grain or other produce after it has been stored by the cultivator, and no other property whatsoever, shall be liable to be distrained under this Act.

Defaulter to be served with written demand and account.

62. Before or at the time when a distress is made under this Act, the distrainer shall cause the defaulter to be served with a written demand for the amount of the arrear, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the demand is made.

Mode of service.

The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally on the defaulter; or, if he abscond or conceal himself, so that they cannot be so served, shall be affixed at his usual place of residence.

Distress to be proportionate to arrear.

63. Unless the amount of the demand is immediately paid or tendered, the distrainer may distrain property as aforesaid equal in value, as nearly as may be, to the amount of the arrear and the costs of the distress; and shall prepare a list or description of the said property, and deliver a copy of the same to the owner, or, if he be absent, affix it at his usual place of residence.

List of property to be prepared and copy served on owner.

Standing crops, &c., when distrained, may be reaped and stored.

64. a. Standing crops and other ungathered products may, notwithstanding the distress, be reaped and gathered by the cultivator, and he may store the same in such granaries or other places as are commonly used by him for the purpose.

b. If the cultivator neglect to do so, the distrainer shall cause the said crops or products to be reaped or gathered, and in such case shall store the same either in such granaries or other places as aforesaid, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood.

c. In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of some person appointed by the distrainer for the purpose.

Sale of products which cannot be stored.

d. Crops or products which, from their nature, do not admit of being stored, may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, under the rules hereinafter provided; but in such case, the distress shall be made at least twenty days before the time when the crops, or products, or any part of the same are fit for reaping or gathering.

Assistance to distrainer opposed or apprehending resistance.

65. If a distrainer is opposed, or apprehends resistance, and desires to obtain the assistance of a public officer, he may apply to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who may, if he thinks necessary, depute an officer to assist the distrainer in making the distress.

Distress to be withdrawn on tender of arrear and expenses before sale.

66. If at any time after property has been distrained and before the day fixed for putting it up to sale as hereinafter provided, the owner of the property tenders payment of the arrear demanded of him, and of the expenses of the distress, the distrainer shall receive the same, and shall forthwith withdraw the distress.

Application for sale.

67. Within five days from the time of the storing of any distrained crops or products, or if the crops or products do not from their nature admit of being stored, within five days from the time of making the distress, the distrainer shall apply for sale of the same to the officer for the time being authorized by the Local Government to sell distrained property within the tahsíl in which they are situate.

Contents of application.

68. The application shall be in writing, and shall contain—

(a) an inventory or description of the property distrained,

(b) the name of the defaulter and his place of residence,

(c) the amount due, and the date of the distress, and

(d) the place in which the distrained property is.

Fee for service of notice.

Together with the application, the distrainer shall deliver to the said officer the fee for the service of a notice upon the defaulter as hereinafter provided.

Procedure on receipt of application.

69. Immediately on receipt of the application, the said officer shall send a copy of it to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector;

and shall serve a notice in the form (C) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect, on the person whose property has been distrained, requiring him either to pay the amount demanded, or to institute a suit to contest the demand before the Collector of the District, or Assistant Collector, within the period of fifteen days from the receipt of the notice.

He shall at the same time send to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, for the purpose of being put up in his office and in the office of the tahsildár, a proclamation fixing a day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than twenty days from the date of the application; and shall deliver a copy of the proclamation to the peon charged with the service of the notice, to be put up by him in the place where the distrained property is deposited.

The proclamation shall contain—

(a) a description of the property,

and shall specify—

(b) the demand for which it is to be sold, and

(c) the place where the sale is to be held.

Suspension of sale on receipt of Collector's certificate of institution of suit.

70. If a suit is instituted before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in pursuance of the aforesaid notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall send to the officer referred to in section sixty-seven, or, if so requested, shall deliver to the owner of the distrained property, a certificate of the institution of such suit; and on such certificate being received by, or presented to, the said officer, he shall suspend the sale.

Suit to contest distrainer's demand before issue of notice of sale.

71. A person whose property has been distrained in manner hereinbefore provided, may immediately after the distress, and before the issue of notice of sale, institute a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer.

When such suit is instituted, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall proceed in the manner prescribed in the last preceding section.

If, thereafter, application for the sale of the property is made to the said officer, he shall send a copy of the application to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and suspend further proceedings, pending the decision of the case.

Distress when to be withdrawn.

72. The person whose property has been distrained may, at the time of instituting any such suit as aforesaid, or at any subsequent period, execute a bond with a surety, binding himself to pay whatever sum may be adjudged to be due from him, with interest and costs of suit;

and when such bond is executed, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall give to the owner of the property a certificate to that effect, and, if so requested, shall serve the distrainer with notice of the same;

and upon such certificate being presented to the distrainer by the owner of the property, or served on him by order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, the property shall be released from distress.

When sale may be proceeded with.

73. If the institution of a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer has not been certified, in manner hereinbefore provided, to the said officer, on or before the day fixed in the proclamation of sale, he shall, unless the said demand, with such costs of the distress as are allowed by him, be discharged in full, proceed, in manner hereinafter mentioned, to sell the property or such part of it as may be necessary to satisfy the demand with the costs of distress and sale.

Place of sale.

74. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort, if the said officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

Manner of sale.

The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots, as the officer holding the sale may think advisable;

and if the demand, with the costs of distress and sale, be satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distress shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Withdrawal of distress when demand and costs satisfied.

75. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) be not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or some person authorized to act on his behalf, apply to have the sale postponed until the next day, or, if a market be held at the place of sale, the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until such day and shall be then completed whatever price may be offered for the property.

If fair price be not offered, sale may be postponed and shall be then completed.

76. The price of every lot shall be paid for in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale thinks necessary;

Payment of purchase-money.

and, in default of such payment, the property shall be put up again and sold.

Resale on default.

When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate, describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to purchaser.

77. From the proceeds of every sale of distrained property under this Act, the officer holding the sale shall make a deduction at the rate of one anna in the rupee on account of the costs of the sale, and shall send the amount so deducted to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Deduction from proceeds of costs of sale.

He shall then pay to the distrainer the expenses incurred by the distrainer on account of the distress, and of the issue of the notice and proclamation of sale prescribed in section sixty-nine, to such amount as, after examining the statement of expenses furnished by the distrainer, he thinks proper to allow.

Payment of distrainer's expenses.

The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale;

Discharge of arrear with interest.

and the surplus (if any) shall be delivered to the person whose property has been sold.

Surplus.

78. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by or subordinate to such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Sale-officers and employees prohibited from purchasing.

79. Officers holding sales under this chapter are required to bring to the notice of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector any material irregularities committed by distrainers under colour of this Act;

Report of irregularities by distrainer.

and if, in any case, on proceeding to hold any such sale, the officer holding it find that the owner of the property has not received due notice of the distress and intended sale, he shall postpone the sale and report the case to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall thereupon direct the issue of another notice and proclamation of sale under section sixty-nine, or pass such other order as he thinks fit.

Postponement of sale, and report to Collector when owner has not received due notice.

Order of Collector.

80. When an officer goes to any place for the purpose of holding a sale under this Act, and no sale takes place, either for the reason stated in section seventy-nine, or because the demand of the distrainer has been previously satisfied, no intimation of such satisfaction having been given by the distrainer to such officer, the charge of one anna in the rupee on account of expenses shall be leviable, and shall be calculated on the estimated value of the distrained property.

Levy of charge when sale-officer attends, and no sale takes place.

If the distrainer's demand be not satisfied until the day fixed for the sale, the charge for expenses shall be paid by the owner of the property, and may be recovered by the sale of such portion thereof as may be necessary.

Recovery from owner.

In every other case it shall be paid by the distrainer, and may be recovered by attachment and sale of his property under the warrant of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector:

Recovery from distrainer.

Provided that in no case shall a larger amount than ten rupees be recoverable under this section.

Limit to charge.

81. When a suit has been instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, and the distrained property has not been released on security, if the demand or any portion of it is adjudged to be due, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall issue an order to the officer authorizing the sale of such property;

Order of sale when amount adjudged due.

and, on the application of the distrainer within five days from the receipt of such order by the officer, such officer shall publish a second proclamation in the manner prescribed in section sixty-nine, fixing another day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the date of the proclamation;

Second proclamation of sale.

and, unless the amount adjudged to be due with the costs of distress be paid, shall proceed to sell the property in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Sale on failure to pay debt and costs.

82. a. In all suits instituted to contest the distrainer's demand, he shall be required to prove the arrear in the same manner as if he had himself brought a suit for the amount under the provisions hereinafter contained.

In suit to contest his demand, distrainer to prove arrear.

b. If the demand or any part thereof is found to be due, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make a decree for the amount in favour of the distrainer, and such amount may be recovered by sale of the property,

Recovery of amount decreed in favour of distrainer.

as provided in the last preceding section, if the distress has not been withdrawn;

and, if any balance remain due after such sale, by execution of the decree against the person and any other property of the defaulter, or if the property have been released on security, by execution of the decree against the person and property of the defaulter and of his surety.

Compensation in case of vexatious distress.

c. If the distress is adjudged to be vexatious or groundless, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, besides directing the release of the distrained property, may award such compensation to the plaintiff as the circumstances of the case require.

Suit by person claiming property distrained for arrears alleged to be due from another.

83. a. If any person claim as his own, property which has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from any other person, the claimant may institute a suit against the distrainer and such other person, to try the right to the property, in the same manner and under the same conditions as to the time of instituting the suit and to the consequent postponement of sale, as a person whose property has been distrained for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from him, may institute a suit to contest the demand.

Release of property on security being given.

b. When any such suit is instituted, the property may be released upon security being given for the value of the same.

Order of Collector when claim dismissed.

c. If the claim is dismissed, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make an order for the sale of the property, or for the recovery of the value thereof, as the case may be, for the benefit of the distrainer.

Decree for release and compensation when claim upheld.

d. If the claim is upheld, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall decree the release of the distrained property with costs, and such compensation (if any) as the circumstances of the case require:

Saving of prior claim of person entitled to rent of land.

e. Provided that no claim to any produce of land liable to distress under this Act, which at the time of the distress may have been found in the possession of a defaulting cultivator, shall bar the prior claim of the person entitled to the rent of the land, nor shall any attachment in execution of a judgment of any Civil Court prevail against such prior claim.

Procedure where right to distrain is claimed by person other than distrainer.

84. If, in any case in which property has been distrained for an arrear of rent, and a suit has been instituted to contest the demand, the right to distrain for such arrears is claimed by or on behalf of any person other than the distrainer, on the ground of such other person being actually and in good faith in the receipt and enjoyment of the rent of the land, such other person shall be made a party to the suit, and the question of the actual receipt and enjoyment of the rent by him before and up to the time of the commencement of the suit shall be enquired into, and in deciding the suit the result of such inquiry shall be taken into consideration.

Saving of right to sue in Civil Court.

Provided that the decision of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall not affect the right of any person who may have a legal title to the rent of the land, to establish his title by suit in the Civil Court if instituted within one year from the date of the decision.

Persons prevented from suing in time to save property from sale, may sue for damages.

85. If any person whose property has been distrained for the recovery of a demand not justly due, or of a demand due or alleged to be due from some other person, is prevented by any sufficient cause from bringing a suit to contest the demand or to try the right to the property, as the case may be, within the period allowed by section ninety-four, and his property is in consequence brought to sale, he may, nevertheless, institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation for the illegal distress and sale of his property.

Wrongful acts of distrainer.

86. If any person empowered to distrain property, or employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, distrain or sell, or cause to be sold, any property for the recovery of an arrear of rent alleged to be due, otherwise than according to the provisions of this Act, or if any distrained property is lost, damaged, or destroyed by reason of the distrainer not having taken proper precautions for the due keeping and preservation thereof, or if the distress is not immediately withdrawn when it is required to be withdrawn by any provision of this Act, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation for any injury which he has thereby sustained through any act or omission mentioned in the former part of this section.

Suit by owner against person distraining or selling without authority.

87. If any person not empowered to distrain property under section fifty-six, fifty-seven or fifty-nine, nor employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, fraudulently distrains or sells, or causes to be sold, any property under colour of this Act, the owner of the property so distrained or sold may institute a suit under this Act to recover compensation from such person for any injury which the plaintiff has sustained from the distress or sale,

Penalty in addition to damages.

and the defendant shall be held to have committed criminal trespass, and shall be subject to the penalties provided for that offence by the Indian Penal Code in addition to any damages which may be awarded against him in such suit.

Limitation of suits under sections 85, 86, 87.

88. Provided that every suit instituted under any of the three last preceding sections shall be commenced within the period allowed by section ninety-four.

Procedure in case of resistance of distress.

89. a. If any person resists a distress of property duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any distrained property, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of the Sub-division, upon complaint being made within fifteen days from the date of such resistance or removal, shall cause the person accused to be arrested and brought with all convenient speed before the Collector or Assistant Collector, who shall, if possible, proceed forthwith to try the case.

b. If the case cannot be at once heard, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, if he think fit, require the party arrested to give security for his person, and, in default of such security, may commit him to the civil jail until the case is tried, and if the offence be proved and the offender be the owner of the property concerned, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may order him to be imprisoned in the civil jail for a term not exceeding six months, unless the whole arrear due to the distrainer, with all expenses and costs, is previously to the expiration of such term paid or levied under warrant of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector by distress and sale of the property of the offender.

c. If the offender be not the owner of the property concerned, he shall make good to the distrainer the value of the same, and shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or, in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a period not exceeding two months.

Proceedings of officers subject to revision and orders of Collector.

90. All proceedings of officers distraining, or assisting distrainers, or holding sales, under this chapter, shall be subject to the revision and orders of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of the District.

CHAPTER IV.

PROCESS.

Mode of serving process.

91. a. Every process issued by a Collector of a District or Assistant Collector under this Act shall be under his seal and signature, and shall be served or executed by the Názir, or by such other officer as the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector may direct, at the cost of the party at whose instance it is issued.

Deposit before issue.

b. The amount of such cost, and, in the case of summons to a witness, the sum required for his travelling expenses, shall be deposited in Court before the process is issued:

Power to direct service gratis.

c. Provided that, if in any case the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector is satisfied that a party is unable to pay the cost of any necessary process, he may direct such process to be served free of charge.

Punishment for resisting process.

92. Any resistance or opposition to the lawful process of a Collector of the District or Assistant Collector under this Act, may be punished by him according to the provisions of the law for the time being in force for the punishment of resistance or opposition to the processes of the Courts of civil justice.

Power to issue summons and warrant.

When, in any such case, the offender is not present, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may summon him to answer to the charge: and if after due service of the summons he fail to attend, may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

CHAPTER V.

JURISDICTION OF COURTS.

Suits cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

93. Except in the way of appeal as hereinafter provided, no Courts other than Courts of Revenue shall take cognizance of any dispute or matter in which any suit of the nature mentioned in this section might be brought, and such suits shall be heard and determined in the said Courts of Revenue in the manner provided in this Act, and not otherwise:

(a) suits for arrears of rent on account of land or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(b) suits to eject a tenant for any act or omission detrimental to the land in his occupation or inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was let;

(c) suits to cancel a lease for the breach of any condition binding on the tenant, and which, by law, custom or special agreement, involves the forfeiture of the lease;

(d) suits for the recovery of any overpayment of rent, or for compensation under section forty-eight or forty-nine;

(e) suits for compensation for withholding receipt for rent paid;

(f) suits for contesting the exercise of the powers of distress conferred on landholders and others by this Act, or any thing purporting to be done in the exercise of the said power, or for compensation for wrongful acts or omissions of a distrainer;

(g) suits by lambardárs for arrears of Government revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent, and for village-expenses and other dues for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(h) suits by co-sharers for their share of the profits of a mahál, or any part thereof, after payment of the Government revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(i) suits by muáfídárs, or assignees of the Government revenue, for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(j) suits by taluqdárs and other superior proprietors, for arrears of revenue due to them as such.

Limitation of suits under this Act.

94. Suits for arrears of rent or revenue, or for a share of the profits of a mahál, or of village-expenses or other dues, shall not be brought after three years from the day on which the arrears or share became due:

Suits relating to distress shall not be brought after three months from the day on which the right to sue accrued:

All other suits must be brought within one year from the day on which the right to sue accrues, unless otherwise specially provided for in this Act.

The day on which the arrears become due or the day on which the right to sue accrues (as the case may be) shall be excluded in computing the periods of limitation prescribed by this section.

Applications cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

95. No Courts other than Courts of Revenue shall take cognizance of any dispute or matter on which any application of the nature mentioned in this section might be made: and such applications shall be heard and determined in the said Courts in manner provided under this Act, and not otherwise:—

(a) Application to determine the nature and class of a tenant's tenure, under section ten.

(b) Application by a landholder, or his agent, to compel a patwárí to produce his accounts relating to land.

(c) Application to resume rent-free grants under section thirty, and to assess to rent land previously held rent-free.

(d) Application from a landholder to eject a tenant, under section thirty-five or section thirty-six.

(e) Applications made by a tenant, under section thirty-nine.

(f) Application from a landholder under section forty for assistance to eject a tenant.

(g) Application from a tenant or landholder to determine the value of any standing crop, or ungathered products of the earth, belonging to the tenant and being on the land at the time of his ejectment, under section forty-two.

(h) Application by a landholder to determine rent payable for land used by a tenant for the purpose of tending or gathering in the crop, under section forty-two.

(i) Application by a landholder or tenant for assistance in the division or appraisement of a standing crop, under section forty-three.

(j) Application by a landholder or tenant to determine compensation for improvements of land.

(k) Application by a tenant for leave to deposit rent.

(l) Application for enhancement of rent.

(m) Application for compensation for wrongful dispossession.

(n) Application for the recovery of the occupancy of any land of which a tenant has been wrongfully dispossessed.

(o) Application for abatement of rent.

(p) Application for leases or counterparts, and for the determination of the rates of rent at which such leases or counterparts are to be delivered.

For the purposes of the Court Fees Act, 1870, applications under clauses (c), (l), (m), (n), (o) and (p) of this section shall be deemed to be plaints in suits.

Points of procedure relating to applications under section 95.

96. a. All applications under section ninety-five shall be made in the district in which the land, crops or products referred to is or are situate, and may, with the consent of the parties, be referred to arbitration under sections two hundred and twenty to two hundred and thirty-one (both inclusive) of the North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873.

b. All orders passed on applications under section ninety-five shall be proved in the same manner, and when proved shall have the same effect, as if they were judgments of the Civil Courts.

c. In cases wherein a specific sum of money is adjudged to be due, or any costs or damages are awarded, all such orders may be executed by any process in use for the recovery of an arrear of revenue or rent.

d. In cases wherein possession of immoveable property is adjudged, the officer making the award may deliver over possession in the same manner, and with the same power, in regard to contempts, resistance and the like, as may be lawfully exercised by the Civil Courts in execution of their own decrees.

e. Applications under heads (m) and (n) of section ninety-five shall not be brought after six months from the date of the wrongful dispossession.

Power to invest officers with Assistant Collector's powers, and withdraw them.

97. The Local Government may invest any officer with the powers of an Assistant Collector of the first or second class under this Act, and may at any time withdraw such powers.

Suits and applications cognizable by Assistant Collectors.

98. Assistant Collectors of either class shall have, as such, power to try suits and applications of the following descriptions:—

(a) suits for arrears of rent on account of land or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(b) suits for compensation for withholding receipts for rent paid, under section forty-eight;

(c) suits to contest the exercise of the powers of distress conferred on landholders and others by this Act, or anything purporting to be done in exercise of the said powers, or for compensation for wrongful acts or omissions of a distrainer;

(d) suits by lambardárs for arrears of Government revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers whom they represent, and for village-expenses and other dues, for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(e) suits by muáfidárs or assignees of the Government revenue, for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(f) suits by taluqdárs or other superior proprietors for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(g) applications by a landholder, or by an agent employed by a landholder, to compel the production of accounts by patwárís;

(h) applications by a tenant or landholder to determine the value of any standing crops or ungathered products of the earth, and being on the land at the time of his ejectment, under section forty-two;

(i) applications by a landholder to determine the amount of rent payable by a tenant using land for the purpose of tending or gathering in crops, under section forty-two;

(j) applications by a landholder or a tenant for assistance in the division or appraisement of standing crops, under section forty-three;

(k) applications by tenants for leave to deposit rent.

Additional suits and applications triable by Assistant Collectors, first class.

99. Assistant Collectors of the first class, in addition to the suits and applications specified in section ninety-eight, shall have power to try suits and applications of the following descriptions:—

(a) suits to eject a tenant for any act or omission detrimental to the land in his occupation, or inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was let;

(b) suits to cancel a lease for any breach of any condition binding on the tenant;

(c) suits for the recovery of any over-payment of rent or for compensation, under section forty-eight or section forty-nine;

(d) suits by co-sharers for their shares of the profits of a mahál or any part thereof, after payment of the Government revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(e) applications by a landholder to eject a tenant, under section thirty-five or section thirty-six;

(f) applications under section thirty-nine by a tenant contesting notice of ejectment;

(g) applications by a landholder under section forty, for assistance to eject a tenant, on whom notice of ejectment has been served;

(h) applications for compensation for wrongful dispossession;

(i) applications by a landholder or tenant to determine the amount to be paid as compensation for improvements;

(j) applications to recover the occupancy of any land from which a tenant has been wrongfully dispossessed by the landholder.

Additional applications triable by Assistant Collector, first class, with special powers.

100. In addition to the powers specified in sections ninety-eight and ninety-nine, an Assistant Collector of the first class specially empowered by Government in this behalf, shall have power to try the following applications:—

(a) applications for enhancement of rent;

(b) applications for abatement of rent;

(c) applications under section thirty for the resumption of rent-free grants, or for the assessment to rent of land hitherto held rent-free;

(d) applications for leases or counterparts, and the determination of the rates of rent at which such leases or counterparts are to be delivered;

(e) applications to determine the nature or class of a tenant's tenure.

Power to make over cases.

101. The Collector of the District, or any Assistant Collector in charge of a sub-division of a district, may make over any case, or class of cases for inquiry and decision, from his own file, to any of his subordinates competent to deal with such case or class of cases under the provisions of this Act.

Power to withdraw cases.

102. Collectors of Districts, and Assistant Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts, may, respectively, withdraw any case or class of cases from any officers subordinate to them, and may deal with such case or class of cases themselves, or refer it for disposal to any other such Revenue Officer competent to deal with the same under the provisions of this Act.

Powers exercisable by Collector of District.

103. The Collector of the District may exercise

(a) all powers given by this Act to Collectors of Districts,

(b) all powers which by this Act are conferred, or can be conferred, on Assistant Collectors.

Investment of officer in charge of sub-division with powers of Collector of District.

The Local Government may invest any officer in charge of a sub-division of a district with all or any of the powers conferred by this Act on a Collector of a District.

Mode of conferring powers.

In conferring powers under this Act, the Local Government may empower persons specially by name, or classes of officials generally by their official titles.

CHAPTER VI.

PROCEDURE IN SUITS UP TO JUDGMENT.

Place of instituting suits.

104. Suits under this Act shall be instituted in the district in which the subject of the suit, or some part thereof, is situate, Plaint.

and all such suits shall be commenced by presenting to the Court a plaint, which shall contain—

(a) the name, description and place of abode of the plaintiff;

(b) the name, description and place of abode of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained;

(c) the subject-matter of the claim, and its amount or value computed according to the Court Fees Act, 1870; and

(d) the date on which the right to sue accrued.

Managers of mahále to be, for purpose of litigation, deemed landholders.

105. For the purpose of suing or being sued under this Act, the managers of mahále, whether held under the Court of Wards or under direct management, shall be deemed to be landholders.

Suits by co-sharers in undivided property.

106. No co-sharer in an undivided property shall in that character be entitled separately to sue a tenant under this Act, unless he is authorized to receive from such tenant the whole of the rent payable by such tenant.

Plaint by whom presented.

107. The plaint shall be presented by the plaintiff, or by an agent duly authorized on his behalf, who has personal knowledge of the facts of the case, or by an agent accompanied by a person who has such knowledge.

Verification of plaint.

The plaint shall be subscribed and verified at the foot by the plaintiff or his agent in the manner following, or to the like effect:—

"I, A. B., the plaintiff named in the above plaint, do declare that what is stated therein is true to the best of my knowledge and belief."

False averment.

If the plaint contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, he shall be punishable according to the law for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence.

Document relied on by plaintiff to be presented with plaint.

108. If the plaintiff rely in support of his claim on any document in his possession, he shall deliver the same to the Court at the time of presenting his plaint.

Unless such document be so delivered, or its non-production be sufficiently excused, or unless the Court see fit to extend the time for producing the same, it shall not afterwards be admitted.

Admission afterwards.

109. If the plaintiff require the production of any document in the possession or power of the defendant, he may, at the time of presenting his plaint, deliver to the Court a description of the document, in order that the defendant may be required to produce the same.

Procuring production of document in possession of defendant.

110. If the suit be for the recovery of an arrear of rent or revenue, or of a share of profits or village-expenses, or other dues under section ninety-three, the plaint shall specify the name of the village and estate, and of the pargana or other local division in which the land is situate:

Plaint in suits for arrears of rent.

and, if the suit be for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from any tenant, the plaint shall also specify the quantity of land, and (where fields have been numbered in a Government survey) the number of each field, and yearly rent of the land; the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made; and in all cases coming under this section the plaint shall specify the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due.

111. If the suit be for the ejectment of a tenant, from any land, the plaint shall describe (as circumstances may require) the extent, situation and designation of the land; and, if necessary for its identification, shall set forth its boundaries.

Plaint in suits for ejectment.

112. If the plaint do not contain the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein, or be not subscribed and verified as hereinbefore required, the Court may, at its discretion, return it to the plaintiff, or allow it to be amended.

Return or amendment of plaint.

113. If the plaint be in proper form, the Court, except as otherwise hereinafter specially provided, shall direct the issue of a summons to the defendant,

Issue of summons.

and if the plaintiff require the personal attendance of the defendant, and satisfy the Court that such attendance is necessary, or the Court of its own accord require such attendance, the summons shall contain an order for the defendant to appear personally on a day to be specified in the summons.

Order for personal attendance or appearance by agent.

If the plaintiff or the Court does not require the personal attendance of the defendant, the summons shall order the defendant to appear either personally or by an agent duly authorized on his behalf, who has personal knowledge of the subject, or is accompanied by a person who has such personal knowledge.

114. The day to be specified in the summons shall be fixed with reference to the state of the file and the distance that the defendant may be or be supposed to be at the time from the place where the Court is held,

Fixing of day to be specified in the summons.

and the summons shall order the defendant to produce any document in his possession or power of which the plaintiff demands inspection, or upon which the defendant relies in support of his defence.

Order to produce documents.

It shall also direct him to bring with him his witnesses, if they are willing to attend without issue of process,

Order to bring witnesses.

and it shall be in the form (D) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Form of summons.

115. The summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the defendant personally when practicable;

Mode of serving summons.

or, if the copy cannot be delivered to the defendant personally, by affixing copy of the summons to some conspicuous part of his usual residence, and also affixing a copy of the same in the Court.

116. If the summons be served by delivering a copy to the defendant personally, the Názir shall endorse on the summons the fact of such service.

Endorsement on summons.

If personal service be not effected, the Názir shall endorse on the summons the reason of not serving it personally, and how it has been served.

117. If the usual residence of the defendant be in another district, the summons, together with the cost of the service thereof, shall be sent by the public post to the Collector of such district, who shall issue the summons, and return the same, after service, with the prescribed endorsement, to the officer by whom it was transmitted to him.

Service of summons in another district.

118. The amount of the cost of serving the summons,

Deposit of cost of serving summons or warrant.

or, if a warrant be issued as provided in the next following section, of serving the warrant, shall in all cases be deposited in Court by the plaintiff within such time before the issue of such summons or warrant as is fixed by the Court issuing the process.

If the said amount be not so deposited (except where the Court in exercise of the discretion reserved to it in section ninety-one allows the summons to be served gratis), the case shall be struck off the file of suits;

Effect of failure to deposit.

but in such case the plaintiff may present another plaint at any time within the period allowed by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

119. a.—If in any suit against a tenant for the recovery of an arrear of rent, or in any suit for the recovery of an arrear of revenue, or a share of profits or village-expenses or other dues, the plaintiff desires a warrant of arrest to be issued against the defendant, such defendant being resident within the district in which the suit is instituted, the plaintiff shall present, with his plaint, an application for the issue of such warrant.

Procedure when plaintiff desires issue of warrant of arrest.

b.—When such application is presented, the Court shall examine the plaintiff or his agent, according to the law for the time being in force in relation to the examination of witnesses, and inspect the documents adduced by him in support of his claim; and if primâ facie it appear to the Court that the claim is well founded, and that, if a summons be issued, the defendant will abscond instead of appearing to answer the claim, the Court may issue a warrant for his arrest.

c.—The Court shall fix a reasonable time for the return of the warrant, and the officer entrusted with the service thereof shall, at the time of arresting the defendant, deliver to him a notice addressed to the defendant containing the particulars of the claim, and requiring the defendant, if he contest the claim, to bring with him any document upon which he relies in support of his defence.

d.—Every warrant issued and notice delivered under this section, shall be respectively in the forms (E) and (F) in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Procedure after arrest of defendant.

120. If a defendant be arrested under the warrant of arrest, he shall be brought with all convenient speed before the Court.

Procedure when defendant is brought before Court under warrant.

121. When a defendant is brought before the Court under warrant, the Court shall with all convenient speed proceed to try the case in the manner hereinafter provided and if the suit cannot be at once adjudicated, the Court may, if it think fit, require the defendant to give security for his appearance whenever the same may be required at any time whilst the suit is pending, or until execution of the final decree which may be passed thereon, and may commit him to the civil jail to be there detained until he furnishes such security or deposits such sum as the Court orders.

Form of security-bond.

The security-bond shall be in the form (G) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Procedure when defendant cannot be arrested under warrant.

122. If the defendant cannot be arrested under the warrant, the Court, on the application of the plaintiff, shall either postpone the case for such period as to it seems proper, in order that the plaintiff may apply within the said period for another warrant to be issued for the arrest of the defendant, or shall forthwith issue a proclamation, to be affixed in its own office and at the residence of the defendant, appointing a day for the hearing of the case, which shall not be less than ten days from the date of the publication of the notice, at the residence of the defendant.

If the defendant appear in pursuance of the proclamation, he shall be dealt with as provided in the last preceding section.

Compensation for arrest applied for without reasonable cause.

123. If it appear to the Court that the arrest of the defendant was applied for without reasonable cause, the Court may, in its decree, award to him such sum not exceeding one hundred rupees as it may deem a reasonable compensation for any injury or loss which he has sustained by reason of such arrest, or of his detention in jail during the pendency of the suit.

Consequence of neither party appearing on day fixed.

124. If on the day fixed by the summons or proclamation for the appearance of the defendant, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case may be adjourned prior to the recording of an issue for trial as hereinafter provided, neither of the parties appear in person or by an agent, the case may be struck off, with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit, unless precluded by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

Judgment by default.

125. If on any such day the defendant only appear, the Court shall pass judgment against the plaintiff by default, unless the defendant admit the plaintiff's right to the relief which he claims, in which case the Court shall proceed to give judgment for the plaintiff upon such admission without costs:

Judgment upon admission of claim.

Proviso.

Provided that such judgment, if there be more than one defendant, shall be only against the defendant who makes the admission.

If plaintiff only appear, Court may proceed ex parte.

126. If on any such day the plaintiff only appear, the Court, upon proof that the summons or proclamation has been duly served according to the provisions of this Act, shall proceed to examine the plaintiff or his agent, and after considering the allegations of the plaintiff, and any documentary or other evidence adduced by him, may either dismiss the case or postpone the hearing of it to a future day for the attendance of any witness the plaintiff may wish to call, or may pass judgment ex parte against the defendant.

If defendant appear on adjourned hearing, Court may allow him to be heard in answer.

127. If the defendant appear on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit is postponed under the last preceding section, the Court may, upon such conditions, if any, as to costs or otherwise as it thinks proper, allow the defendant to be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his attendance.

No appeal from judgment ex parte or by default;

128. a. No appeal shall lie from a judgment passed ex parte against a defendant who has not appeared, or from a judgment against a plaintiff by default for non-appearance.

But Court may revive suit and alter or rescind decree.

b. But in all such cases, if the party against whom judgment has been given appears, either in person or by agent, if a plaintiff, within fifteen days from the date of the Court's decree, and, if a defendant, within fifteen days after any process for enforcing the judgment has been executed, or at any earlier period, and shows good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and satisfies the Court that there has been a failure of justice, the Court may, upon such terms and conditions as to costs or otherwise as it thinks proper, revive the suit and alter or rescind the judgment according to the justice of the case.

Adverse party to be summoned.

c. But no judgment shall be reversed or altered without previously summoning the adverse party to appear and be heard in support of it.

Examination and cross-examination of parties.

129. When both parties appear in person or by agent on the day named in the summons, or upon any subsequent day to which the hearing of the case may be adjourned, for sufficient reason to be recorded by the Court, the Court shall proceed to examine such of the parties as may be present, and either party or his agent may cross-examine the other party or his agent.

Examination and cross-examination of agents.

130. If either of the parties be not bound to attend personally, any agent by whom he appears, or any person accompanying such agent, may be examined and cross-examined in like manner as the party himself would have been if he had attended personally.

Defendant may file written statement.

131. At the time of the examination, the defendant may, if he think fit, file a written statement in his defence.

Mode of examination.

132. The examination of the parties or their agents, or such other persons as aforesaid, shall be according to the law for the time being in force relative to the examination of witnesses in the Civil Courts.

The substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer, and shall be filed with the record.

Witness produced may be examined.

133. If either of the parties produce a witness on such day, the presiding officer may take the evidence of such witness.

Document relied on by defendant to be produced at first hearing.

134. If the defendant rely on any document in support of his defence, he shall deliver the same into Court at the first hearing of the suit:

and unless such document be so delivered, or its non-production be sufficiently excused, or unless the presiding officer see fit to extend the time for delivering the same, it shall not afterwards be admitted.

Decree after examination, if no further evidence is required.

135. If after the examination required by section one hundred and twenty-nine, and also the examination of any witness who may attend to give evidence on behalf of either of the parties, and after a consideration of the documentary evidence adduced, a decree can be properly made without further evidence, the Court shall make its decree accordingly.

Party to attend in person when his agent is unable to answer.

136. If on such examination as aforesaid either party be absent and his agent be unable to answer any material question relating to the case which the Court is of opinion that the party whom he represents ought to answer, and is likely to be able to answer if interrogated in person, the Court may postpone the hearing of the case to a future day, and direct that the party whose agent was unable to answer as aforesaid shall attend in person on such day;

Judgment or order if he fail to appear.

and if such party fails to appear in person on the day appointed, the Court may pass judgment as in case of default, or make such other order as it deems proper in the circumstances of the case.

Procedure when parties at issue on question requiring evidence.

137. If on such examination as aforesaid it appear that the parties are at issue on any question upon which it is necessary to hear further evidence, the Court shall declare and record such issue, and shall fix a convenient day for the examination of witnesses and the trial of the suit; and the trial shall take place on that day, unless there be sufficient reason for adjourning it, which reason shall be recorded by the Court.

Parties to produce witnesses or procure attendance by summons.

138. The parties shall produce their witnesses on the day of trial, and if either party require assistance to procure the attendance of a witness on such day, either to give evidence or to produce a document, he shall apply to the Court in sufficient time before the day fixed for the trial, to enable the witness to be summoned to attend on that day; and the Court shall thereupon issue a summons requiring such witness to attend.

Provisions regarding attendance, examination, &c., of witnesses.

139. The law and rules for the time being in force relating to the evidence of witnesses, for procuring the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and for the examination, remuneration and punishment of witnesses, whether parties to the case or not, in cases before the Civil Courts, shall, except so far as may be inconsistent with the provisions herein contained, apply to suits under this Act.

Case to be struck off if neither party appears.

140. If on the day fixed for the trial of any issue neither of the parties appear, the case may be struck off, with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit, unless precluded by the rules herein contained for the limitation of suits.

Trial of issue ex parte.

If on any such day one only of the parties appear, the issue may be tried and determined in the absence of the other party, upon such evidence as may be then before the Court.

Provisions to apply when suits are instituted or defended on behalf of landholders by agents.

141. When suits under this Act are instituted or defended by agents employed in the collection of rent or management of land, in the name and on the behalf of the landholders by whom they are so employed, all the provisions of this Act, by which the personal appearance or attendance of parties to a suit is or may be required, shall be applicable to such agents;

and anything which, by this Act, is required or permitted to be done by a party in person, may be done by any such agent as aforesaid.

Processes served on such agents.

Processes served on any such agent shall be as effectual for all purposes in relation to the suit, as if the same had been served on the landholder in person:

and all the provisions of this Act relative to the service of processes on a party to the suit shall be applicable to the service of processes on such agent.

142. A female plaintiff or defendant shall not be required to attend in person, if she be of a rank or class which, according to the custom and manners of the country, would render it improper for her to appear in public.

Personal attendance of female plaintiff or defendant when not required.

143. Any party to a suit may employ an authorized agent or mukhtár to conduct the case on his behalf:

Parties may employ agents or mukhtárs;

but the employment of such agent or mukhtár shall not excuse the personal attendance of the plaintiff or defendant, in cases where his personal attendance is required by the summons, or any order of the Court;

Personal attendance when not excused.

and no fee for any agent or mukhtár shall be charged as part of the costs of suit in any case under this Act, unless the Court certify that, under the circumstances of the case, such fee is proper to be allowed.

Fee for agents not chargeable as costs.

144. The Court may in any case grant time to the plaintiff or defendant to proceed in the prosecution or defence of a suit,

Court may grant time or adjourn hearing.

and may also, from time to time, in order to the production of further evidence, or for other sufficient reason to be recorded by the Court, adjourn the hearing of any case, to such day as to it may seem fit.

145. The presiding officer may, at any stage of a case, cause a local inquiry and report respecting the matter in dispute to be made by any officer subordinate to him, or by any other officer of Government, with the consent of the authority to whom such officer is subordinate, or may himself proceed to the spot and make such local inquiry in person.

Court may cause local enquiry and report, or may itself enquire.

The provisions of the law for the time being in force relative to local inquiries by Amíns or Commissioners, under orders of the Civil Courts, shall apply to any local inquiry made by any officer under this section, Provisions applied to such inquiry.

and, so far as they are applicable, to inquiries made by the presiding officer of the Court in person.

In the latter case the presiding officer, after completing the inquiry, shall record such observations as appear to him appropriate, and the observations so recorded shall form part of the proceedings in the suit.

Record in case of inquiry by Court.

146. The defendant in any suit under this Act may pay into Court such sum of money as he thinks a full satisfaction for the demand of the plaintiff, together with the costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sums shall be paid to the plaintiff.

Defendant may pay admitted debt and costs into Court.

If the defendant deposit less than the sum claimed and the plaintiff elect to proceed in the case, and ultimately recover no further sum than has been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with any costs incurred by the defendant in the suit after such payment.

Plaintiff chargeable with subsequent costs if he proceed and recover no further sum.

147. No interest shall be allowed to a plaintiff on any sum paid by the defendant into the Court from the date of such payment, whether such sum be in full of the plaintiff's claim, or fall short thereof.

No interest to plaintiff after date of deposit by defendant.

148. When in any suit between a landholder and a tenant under this Act, the right to receive the rent of the land or tenure cultivated or held by the tenant is disputed on the ground that some third person has actually and in good faith received and enjoyed such rent before and up to the time when the right to sue accrued, such third person may be made a party to the suit,

In suits where right to receive rent is disputed, third person who has received it may be made a party.

and the question of such receipt and enjoyment of the rent by such third person may be enquired into, and the suit shall be decided according to the result of such enquiry:

Provided that the decision of the Court shall not affect the right of either party entitled to the rent of such land, to establish his title by suit in the Civil Court, if instituted within one year from the date of the decision.

Saving of right to sue in Civil Court to prove title to rent.

149. Whenever a decree is given for the ejectment of a tenant, or the cancelment of his lease, on account of any act or omission by which the land in his occupation has been damaged, or which is inconsistent with the purpose for which the land has been let, the Court may, if it think fit, allow him to repair such damage within one month from the date of the decree, or order him to pay such compensation, within such time, or make such other order in the case, as the Court thinks fit.

Court may allow tenant to repair damage caused by certain acts or omissions.

and if such damage be so repaired, or compensation so paid, or order obeyed, the decree shall not be executed.

150. Every judgment under this chapter shall be pronounced in open Court.

Delivery of judgment.

151. The judgment shall be written in the mother-tongue of the presiding officer, and shall contain the reasons for the same, and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer at the time it is pronounced:

Its language and contents.

Provided that, where his mother-tongue is not English, the judgment may be written in English, if he is able to write a clear and intelligible decision in that language.

When it may be in English.

152. Every officer invested with powers under this Act may hold a Court for hearing and determining suits under this Act in any place within the limits of the district to which he is appointed.

Power to hold Court in any place within district.

Every hearing shall be in open Court, and the parties to the suit or their authorized agents shall have due notice to attend in such place.

CHAPTER VII.

PROCEDURE IN EXECUTION OF DECREES IN SUITS.

Mode of executing decree for ejectment of tenant.

153. If the decree be for the ejectment of any tenant from land occupied by him, the decree shall be executed by giving the possession or occupancy of the land to the person entitled by the decree thereto.

Magistrate to give it effect in case of opposition

If any opposition is made to the execution of the order for giving such possession or occupancy, by the party against whom the order is made, the Magistrate, on the application of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall give effect to the same.

Power to order detention in, or commitment to, civil jail, in certain cases.

154. If the decree be for the payment of arrears of rent or revenue, or of money, and the defendant has been committed to jail, or appear in Court pursuant to the conditions of any security-bond given under section one hundred and twenty-one, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may order that he be detained in, or committed to, the civil jail, unless he immediately pay into Court the amount of the decree with costs, or otherwise comply with the terms of the decree.

Process against surety on failure to deliver judgment-debtor into custody.

155. If the judgment-debtor has given security for his appearance, and is not present when judgment is pronounced, and the surety fails to deliver him into custody when required so to do, process of execution may be taken out against the surety in the same manner as if a decree for the amount due by the debtor had been passed against the surety.

Process of execution against person or property, but not both.

156. a. A writ of execution may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment-debtor;

but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both person and property.

Applications on which may issue.

b. Such writ may be issued on the oral application of the judgment-creditor, his agent, or mukhtár, made at the time the decree is passed, or thereafter, upon the written application of the judgment-creditor, his agent, or mukhtár.

Form of writ of execution.

c. Writ of execution against the person or moveable property of a debtor shall be in the form (H) or (I) contained in the first schedule hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

Execution against moveable property.

157. Any moveable property required to be seized under an execution shall, if practicable, be described in a list to be furnished by the judgment-creditor;

but, if the creditor is unable to furnish such list, he may apply for a general attachment of the debtor's effects, to the amount of the judgment and costs.

In either case, the property to be seized shall be pointed out to the officer entrusted with execution of the process, by the creditor, or his agent:

Articles exempted from attachment.

Provided that no implements of husbandry, or cattle actually employed in agriculture, or tools of artisans, shall be attached under this section.

Date and duration of writs.

158. Every writ of execution shall bear date on the day on which it is signed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and shall continue in force for such period as he may direct (not being more than sixty days) calculated from such date.

Second and successive writs.

159. Second and successive writs of execution may be issued by order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector on the application of the judgment-creditor after the expiration of the period fixed for the continuance in force of a previous warrant.

After one year execution not to issue without notice to party concerned.

160. Process of execution shall not be issued upon any judgment, without previous notice to the party against whom execution is applied for, if, when application for the issue of the process is made, a period of more than one year has elapsed from the date of the judgment, or from the date of the last previous application for execution.

Execution not to issue against heir or representative of deceased party without notice.

161. Execution on a judgment shall not issue against the heir or other representative of a deceased party, unless notice to appear and be heard has been previously served on such heir or other representative.

No process of execution after three years, unless judgment be for sum exceeding 500 rupees.

162. No process of execution shall be issued on a judgment under this Act, after the lapse of three years from the date of such judgment, unless the judgment be for a sum exceeding five hundred rupees;

Regulation of period in such case.

in which case the period within which execution may be had shall be regulated by the general rules in force in respect to the period allowed for the execution of decrees of the Civil Court.

Procedure in execution of writ against person.

163. If a writ issue for taking any person in execution, the officer charged with the execution of the writ shall bring him with all convenient speed before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

If such person does not then deposit in Court the full amount specified in the writ, or make such arrangement for the payment of the same as is satisfactory to the judgment-creditor, or satisfy the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector that he has no present means of paying the same amount,

the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall send him to the civil jail, there to remain for such time as may be directed by a warrant addressed to the keeper of the jail, unless in the meanwhile he pays the full amount for the payment of which he is liable under the decree:

Limit of imprisonment.

Provided that the time for which a debtor may be confined in execution of a decree under this Act, shall not exceed three months when the amount decreed (exclusive of costs) does not exceed fifty rupees, or six months when such amount does not exceed five hundred rupees, or two years in any other case.

No person to be imprisoned a second time under same judgment.

164. a. Any person once discharged from jail shall not be imprisoned a second time under the same judgment.

When further liability extinguished.

b. If the amount due under the decree does not exceed one hundred rupees, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may declare such discharged person absolved from further liability under that decree, and such liability shall thereupon be extinguished.

When not extinguished.

c. In other cases the discharge shall not extinguish the liability of the discharged person under the decree, or exempt any property belonging to such person from attachment in execution of the same.

Diet-money to be deposited at time of issue of warrant.

165. Every person applying for the issue of a warrant of arrest under section one hundred and nineteen, or suing out process of execution against the person of any judgment-debtor, shall deposit in Court, when the warrant issues, diet-money for thirty days at such rate not exceeding two annas per diem, as the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may direct, unless for any special reason he directs that deposit be made at a higher rate, which shall not exceed four annas per diem.

Effect of non-payment of diet-money in advance during imprisonment.

166. Payment of diet-money at the same rate shall be made previously to the commencement of each succeeding month of the imprisonment, on failure of which the party confined shall be discharged.

Diet-money spent to be costs in suit.

167. All diet-money spent in providing subsistence for any prisoner shall be added to the costs in the suit,

Refund of remainder.

and any diet-money not so spent shall be returned to the person who deposited the same.

Procedure in executing writ against moveable property.

168. In executing a writ of execution against the moveable property of a debtor liable under this Act, the officer charged with the execution of the writ shall prepare a list of the property pointed out by the judgment-creditor, and shall publish a proclamation, specifying the day upon which the sale is intended to be held, together with a copy of the said list, at the intended place of sale and at the residence of the debtor.

A copy of the said proclamation and list shall be sent to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and shall be affixed in his office.

Time to elapse before sale of moveable property.

169. No moveable property taken in execution under this Act shall be sold before the expiration of ten days next after the day on which such property is so taken.

Custody meanwhile.

Until such sale the property shall be deposited in some fit place, or it may remain in custody of some fit person approved by the officer executing the writ.

Provisions applied to sale.

The provisions of sections seventy-four to seventy-eight (both inclusive) so far as the same are applicable, shall apply to sales under this section.

Sale not vitiated by irregularity.

170. No irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale of any moveable property under an execution shall vitiate such sale.

Right to sue for compensation.

But any person injured by such irregularity may recover compensation for such injury by suit in the Civil Court:

Limitation.

provided that such suit be brought within one year from the date of sale.

In executing decrees for money, when execution may be applied for against immoveable property.

171. In the execution of any decree for the payment of arrears of rent or revenue, or of money, under this Act, if satisfaction of the judgment cannot be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor, the judgment-creditor may apply for execution against any immoveable property belonging to such debtor.

Process when the immoveable property is not a mahál.

172. If the immoveable property against which execution is applied for be other than a mahál, or share of a mahál, process shall be issued in the same manner as for the attachment and sale of moveable property: and the provisions of sections one hundred and sixty-eight, one hundred and sixty-nine, and one hundred and seventy shall be applicable.

Procedure when it is a mahál.

173. When such property is a mahál, or a share of a mahal, the decree shall be sent for execution to the Collector of the District in which such property is situate, and if the judgment-debtor satisfies the Collector of the District that there is reasonable ground to believe that the amount of the judgment-debt may be raised by mortgage of the property, or by letting it on lease, or by disposing by private sale of a portion of the property or any other property belonging to the judgment-debtor, the Collector of the District may, on the application of the judgment-debtor, postpone the sale for such period as the Collector of the District thinks proper to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount, and if the judgment-debtor satisfies his creditor, the execution shall be stayed, and the Collector shall report the fact to the Court by which the decree was made.

Procedure where judgment-creditor fails to satisfy creditor within further time or Collector thinks sale in expedient.

174. If the judgment-debtor obtaining a postponement of the sale fails to satisfy his creditor within the period so fixed, or if the judgment-debtor does not apply for, or applies for but does not obtain, a postponement of the sale, and the Collector of the District considers that the sale of the mahâl or share is inexpedient, and that satisfaction of the decree may be made by means of a temporary alienation of the property, the Collector of the District shall cause an accurate rent-roll of the property to be prepared, and ascertain the annual income derivable therefrom.

If, in the opinion of the Collector of the District, such income is sufficient to pay off the judgment-debt with interest at six per cent. per annum, within any period not exceeding fifteen years from the date of the decree, he may transfer the property to the judgment-creditor, or if the judgment-creditor refuse to take it, to some other person, or he may hold it under his own management, for such period not exceeding fifteen years, as may be sufficient for the recovery of the debt with interest as aforesaid, and on such conditions as to the payment of such debt and interest as he deems expedient.

Power to transfer property to judgment-creditor.

Power to hold property under management.

Orders passed under this section and section one hundred and seventy-three shall be subject to revision by the Commissioner of the Division and the Board, but shall not be open to appeal to the Civil Court.

175. If in the opinion of the Collector of the District the recovery of the debt under section one hundred and seventy-four is impossible, or if the sale of the property appear to him advisable on other grounds, he shall report, through the Commissioner of the Division, the case for orders to the Board.

Report of case to Board.

176. On the receipt of such report, the Board may make, or cause to be made, such further endeavours for the recovery of the debt under the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-four, as to it may seem practicable.

Procedure on receipt of report.

177. If it appear to the Board that the debt cannot be recovered under section one hundred and seventy-four, or if the sale of the property appear to it advisable on other grounds, it shall order the property to be sold, in which case the sale shall be made under the rules in force for the sale of land for arrears of land revenue, but without prejudice to the incumbrances (if any) to which such property may be subject.

Power to order sale of property.

178. If before the day fixed for any sale of any property under this Act, a third party appear before the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and claim a right or interest to or in any of the property, he shall examine such party or his agent, according to the law for the time being in force relative to the examination of witnesses,

Examination of third party claiming interest in property.

and, if he see sufficient reason for so doing, may stay the sale of such property.

Stay of sale.

179. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may adjudicate upon such claim, and make such order as he thinks fit between the claimant and the plaintiff and defendant in the original suit.

Adjudication of such claims.

In trying such claim, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall be guided by the rules contained in this Act, so far as they may be applicable.

Rules applied.

180. If the claimant fail to establish his right to the property taken in execution, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, at the time of disposing of the case, order him to pay to the judgment-creditor the costs of the proceedings on the claim, and also such sum as he thinks sufficient to cover any loss of interest or damage which the judgment-creditor may have sustained by reason of the postponement of the sale of the property.

Compensation awardable against claimant failing to establish right.

181. a. No appeal shall lie from any order passed under section one hundred and seventy-nine or section one hundred and eighty by the Collector of the District.

No appeal from order under section 179 or 180.

b. But the party against whom the same is given may bring a suit in the Civil Court to establish his right at any time within one year from the date of the order:

Right to sue in Civil Court.

c. Provided that, if the order be for the sale of the property taken in execution, the suit shall not be for the recovery of such property, but shall be for compensation from the judgment-creditor by whom it was brought to sale.

Proviso.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPEALS.

182. In suits under this Act, tried and decided by a Collector of a District or an Assistant Collector of the first class, his judgment shall be final, and not open to revision or appeal, except as provided by section one hundred and eighty nine.

Judgment of Collector of District or Assistant Collector of first class when final.

183. All decisions of the Assistant Collector of the second class in suits mentioned in section ninety-three shall be appealable to the Collector of the District, whose order thereon shall (subject to the provisions of section one hundred and eighty-nine) be final.

Appeal from decision of Assistant Collector of second class.

184. The petition of appeal shall be presented to the Collector of the District within thirty days from the date of the decree.

Time for presentation.

185. The Collector of the District may either dismiss the petition or may fix a day for hearing the appeal, and in that case he shall cause notice of the same to be served on the respondent in the manner hereinafter prescribed for the service of summons.

Procedure on appeal.

If, on the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant does not appear in person or by an agent, the appeal may be dismissed for default.

If the appellant appears and the respondent does not appear in person or by an agent, the appeal may be heard ex parte.

Re-admission of appeal.

186. If an appeal be dismissed for default of prosecution, the appellant may, within fifteen days from the date of the dismissal, apply to the Collector of the District to re-admit the appeal, and if it be proved to the satisfaction of the Collector of the District that the appellant was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Collector of the District may re-admit the appeal.

Judgment in appeal.

187. After hearing the appeal, the Collector of the District shall give judgment in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for giving judgment in original suits.

Re-hearing of suits not open to appeal.

188. In suits in which the judgment of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector is final as provided in section one hundred and eighty two, he may, upon the application of either party, if preferred within thirty days from the date of the decision, order the re-hearing of a suit, upon the ground of the discovery of new evidence or matter material to the issue of the case, which the applicant had no knowledge of, or could not produce, at the time of trial.

Appeal to District Judge.

189. An appeal shall lie to the District Judge from the decision of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector of the first class, in all suits mentioned in section ninety-three in which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, or in which the proprietary title to land has been determined between parties making conflicting claims thereto:

Appeal to High Court.

Provided that, where the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suits exceeds five thousand rupees, the appeal shall lie to the High Court.

Rules as to time of presentation, &c., to apply.

190. The rules for the time being in force in regard to the time within which appeals from the decisions of Civil Courts may be received, and to the manner in which such appeals are heard and determined, and to all proceedings which may be had in respect of such appeals, shall be applicable to appeals to the District Judge or High Court under this Act.

Special appeal to High Court from District Judge.

191. The decisions of District Judges passed in regular appeal under this Act, shall be open to special appeal to the High Court, in the same manner, and subject to the same rules, as the decisions of District Judges passed in regular appeal are open to special appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure and the Indian Limitation Act, 1871.

(B).—From Orders on Applications or relating to the Execution of Decrees.

(1) Assistant Collectors of the Second Class.

Appeal from Assistant Collector of second class.

192. An appeal to the Collector of the District shall lie from all orders passed under this Act by an Assistant Collector of the second class.

(2) Assistant Collectors of the First Class.

Appeal from orders of Assistant Collectors of first Class on certain applications.

193. An appeal to the Commissioner of the Division shall lie from all orders passed by an Assistant Collector of the first class,

(a) on applications under section ninety-nine, where the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees,

(b) on applications under section one hundred.

Appeal from other orders of Assistant Collector of first Class.

194. An appeal to the Collector of the District shall lie from all other orders passed under this Act by an Assistant Collector of the first class, except—

(a) orders on applications mentioned in section ninety-eight;

(b) orders on applications mentioned in section ninety-nine;

(c) orders passed in the course of a suit and relating to the trial thereof.

Final orders of Assistant Collector of first class.

195. The orders of an Assistant Collector of the first class on the following applications shall be final—

(a) applications mentioned in section ninety-eight;

(b) applications mentioned in section ninety-nine, where the amount or value of the subject-matter does not exceed one hundred rupees.

(3) Collector of the District.

Appeal from certain orders of Collector of District.

196. An appeal to the Commissioner of the Division shall lie from orders passed by the Collector of the District,

(a) under section ninety-nine, when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees,

(b) under section one hundred.

In all other cases orders under this Act passed by the Collector of the District shall be final, subject to review by the Commissioner of the Division or the Board.

(4) Commissioner of the Division.

Finality of orders of Commissioner of Division.

197. Save as provided by section one hundred and ninety-eight, the orders of the Commissioner of the Division on appeals shall be final, subject to review by the Board.

Appeal to Board from his decisions on appeals against orders on applications mentioned in section 100.

198. An appeal from the decisions of the Commissioner of Division on appeals against orders passed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector on the applications mentioned in section one hundred shall lie to the Board, except where the Commissioner of the Division dismisses the appeal.

In such case the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-nine shall apply.

Power of Board to call for cases and pass orders thereon.

199. The Board may at any time call for any case which has come before any Commissioner of Division, or any Court subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon, consistent with this Act, as the Board thinks fit.

Time for appealing.

200. No appeal shall be brought to the Collector of the District after the expiration of thirty days, or to the Commissioner of the Division after the expiration of sixty days, or to the Board of Revenue after ninety days, from the date of the order complained of.

Admission of appeals after prescribed period.

201. Any appeal under this Act may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor when the appellant satisfies the officer to whom he appeals that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period.

No appeal shall lie against an order under this section admitting an appeal.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Time to be excluded in computing limitation period.

202. In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any suit under this Act, the day on which the right to sue accrued shall be excluded.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any appeal under this Act, the day on which the judgment or order complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree or order appealed against, shall be excluded.

Rule as to last day for presentation or deposit, when Court is closed on such day.

203. Whenever a Court is closed on the last day of any period provided in this Act for the presentation of any memorandum of appeal, or for the deposit or payment of any money in or into Court, the day on which the Court re-opens shall be deemed to be such last day.

Power to state case involving point of law for opinion of District Judge.

204. a. If in any suit instituted, or on any application made, under this Act, it appears to the presiding officer that any question in issue involving a point of law is more proper for the decision of a Civil Court, such officer, if a Collector of a District, or the Collector of the District on the representation of such officer, may cause a case to be stated for the opinion of the District Judge, who shall hear the case in such manner as nearly as may be as is prescribed for the hearing of cases by the High Court by sections twenty-four, twenty-five and twenty-six of Act No. XI of 1865.

b. If the District Judge finds that the case is insufficiently stated, he may return it to the Collector of the District for amendment.

c. Subject to any limits of value or time provided by law for cases falling under the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie from the judgment of the District Judge to the High Court.

d. The District Judge shall return the case with the opinion of the Civil Court to the Collector of the District, and the Revenue Courts shall decide the suit or application in accordance with such opinion.

e. The costs attending such case shall be dealt with as costs in the suit or on the application in the Revenue Court.

Power to refer to High Court questions as to jurisdiction.

205. a. If in any suit instituted, or on any appeal presented, in a Civil or Revenue Court, the Judge or presiding officer doubts whether he is precluded by this Act from taking cognizance of the suit or appeal, he may refer the matter to the High Court.

b. On any such reference being made, the High Court may order the Judge or presiding officer, either to proceed with the case, or to return the plaint or appeal for presentation in such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit or appeal.

c. The order of the High Court on any such reference shall be final, and shall not be questioned by the same parties in the same suit.

Procedure where objection that suit was instituted in wrong Court was not taken in Court of first instance.

206. In all suits instituted in any Civil or Revenue Court, in which an appeal lies to the District Judge or High Court, an objection that the suit was instituted in the wrong Court shall not be entertained by the appellate Court, unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance; but the appellate Court shall dispose of the appeal as if the suit had been instituted in the right Court.

Procedure where such objection was taken in Court of first instance.

207. If in any such suit, such objection was taken in the Court of first instance, but the appellate Court has before it all the materials necessary for the determination of the suit, it shall dispose of the appeal as if the suit had been instituted in the right Court.

Procedure where, in such cases, the appellate Court has not materials for determining the suit.

208. If in any such suit the appellate Court has not before it the materials necessary for the determination of the suit, it shall proceed under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals; but if it remands the suit, or frames and refers issues for trial, or requires additional evidence to be taken by the Court of first instance, it may direct its order, either to the Court in which the suit was instituted, or to the Court it may hold competent to entertain the suit, whichever course it may deem most conducive to justice, and the objection that the order of a subordinate appellate Court has been directed to a Court which was not competent to entertain the suit shall not be taken on special appeal.

Suits by co-sharer against lambardár for share of profits.

209. In any suit brought by a co-sharer against a lambardár for a share of the profits, the Court may award to the plaintiff not only a share of the profits actually collected, but also a sum equal to the plaintiff's share in the profits which, through gross negligence or misconduct, the lambardár has omitted to collect.

Tenant's power to implead persons claiming through landholder.

210. In any suit brought by a tenant against a landholder to recover possession of a holding, the plaintiff may join as a defendant to the suit any other person in possession of the holding, who may claim title through the landholder.

Landholder's power to implead persons claiming through tenant.

In any suit brought by a landholder to eject a tenant, the plaintiff may join as a defendant to the suit any other person in possession of the holding, who may claim title through the tenant.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

211. The Local Government may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) for the guidance of officers in determining, under sections thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, seventeen, eighteen, and twenty, the rent payable by tenants,

(b) for the guidance of officers assessing rent under section thirty,

(c) as to the dates on which instalments of rent shall fall due,

(d) as to the procedure to be followed on all applications under section ninety-five.

All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Power of Board to make rules

The Board with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make rules consistent with the provisions herein contained, for the guidance of all persons in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

Instalments when to be deemed in arrear.

212. When the Local Government has made a rule fixing the date on which any instalment of rent shall fall due, no such instalment shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be in arrear unless it remains unpaid after the date fixed by such rule.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Land-Revenue and the jurisdiction of Revenue Officers in the North-Western Provinces.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to land-revenue and the jurisdiction of Revenue Officers in the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Land-Revenue Act, 1873:"

Local extent.

It extends in the first instance to all the territories for the time being under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the said Provinces, except those specified in the first schedule hereto annexed;

But the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the whole or any part of this Act to all or any of the territories so excepted.

Commencement.

This Act shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Enactments repealed.

2. The Regulations and Acts mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed are repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

But all rules prescribed, appointments made, powers conferred, and notifications published under any such enactment, and all other rules (if any) now in force and relating to any of the matters hereinafter dealt with, shall (so far as they are consistent with this Act) be deemed to have been respectively prescribed, made, conferred and published hereunder.

And all proceedings now pending which have been commenced under any enactment hereby repealed, shall be deemed to be commenced under this Act, except where a decree has been made or an appeal presented.

Interpretation-clause.

3. In this Act—unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,

'Mahál.'

(1.) "Mahál" means—

CHAPTER II.

CONSTITUTION AND POWERS OF REVENUE OFFICERS.

Chief controlling authority in revenue matters.

4. The chief controlling authority in all matters connected with the land-revenue of the said territories is vested in the Board, subject to the Local Government.

Subject to the orders of the Local Government, the Board shall sit in any place in the North-Western Provinces that it thinks fit, and it shall have the powers conferred by chapter VII of this Act on Commissioners of Divisions.

Appointment and removal of Members of Board.

5. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, shall appoint, and may from time to time remove, the Members of the Board.

Power to distribute business.

6. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, and subject to rules which it may from time to time prescribe, the Board may distribute its business and make such territorial division of its jurisdiction amongst its members as to the Board may seem fit.

Orders of Member to be orders of Board.

All orders made or decrees passed by a Member of the Board, in accordance with such distribution or division, shall be held to be the orders or decrees (as the case may be) of the Board.

Alteration or reversal of orders.

7. No decree or order coming under the consideration of the Board on appeal or on being called for or reported for orders under section two hundred and fifty-three or section two hundred and fifty-four, shall be altered or reversed without the concurrent judgment of two Members of the Board.

Reference to Local Government in case of difference of opinion.

8. When the Members of the Board are equally divided in opinion as to any order to be made in the course of its non-judicial business, the question regarding which there is such division shall be referred for decision to the Local Government.

Power of Board to review and alter its orders and decrees.

9. The Board may review, and may rescind, alter or confirm, any order made by itself, or by any of its Members, in the course of its non-judicial business.

But no decree passed judicially by it or by any of its members shall be so reviewed except on the application of a party to the cause within ninety days from the passing of the decree, or, if good cause be shown, within any longer period.

Members not empowered to alter each other's orders.

A single Member vested with all or any of the powers of the Board shall not have power to alter or reverse a decree or order passed by the Board or by any Member other than himself.

Power to authorize Member to exercise powers of Board.

10. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the Local Government may authorize any Member of the Board to perform or exercise, either generally or in any particular locality, all or any of the duties and powers imposed and conferred on the Board.

Commissioners of Division.

11. The Local Government shall appoint in each Division a Commissioner, who shall within his Division exercise the powers and discharge the duties conferred and imposed on a Commissioner of Division under this Act, or under any other law for the time being in force, and who shall, subject to the control of the Board, exercise authority over all the Revenue Officers in his Division.

Collector of the District.

12. The Local Government shall appoint in each district an officer who shall be the Collector of the District, and who shall exercise, throughout his district, all the powers and discharge all the duties conferred and imposed on a Collector or an Assistant Collector by this Act or any other law for the time being in force.

The Local Government may confer on any Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District all or any of the powers of a Collector of a District, and all powers so conferred shall be exercised subject to the control of the Collector of the District.

Assistant Collectors.

13. The Local Government may appoint to each district as many other persons as it thinks fit to be Assistant Collectors of the first or second class.

All such Assistant Collectors, and all other persons employed in maintaining revenue-records or otherwise in or about the business of the land-revenue, shall be subordinate to the Collector of the District.

Power to alter limits of Divisions, &c., and to form Sub-divisions.

14. The Local Government may from time to time alter the limits of any Division, District or Tahsíl, and may divide any district into Sub-divisions, and from time to time alter the limits of such Sub-divisions.

All existing tahsíls shall be Sub-divisions of Districts until they are so altered.

Assistant Collector in charge of Sub-division of District.

15. The Local Government may place any Assistant Collector of the first class in charge of one or more Sub-divisions of a District, and may at any time remove him therefrom.

Such Assistant Collector shall be called an Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District, and shall exercise the powers conferred upon him by this Act or by any other law for the time being in force, subject to the control of the Collector of the District.

The Local Government may, from time to time, delegate its powers under this section to the Collector of the District, and may revoke such delegation.

Subordination of Revenue Officers.

16. Every officer of a Sub-division of a District employed in maintaining revenue-records or otherwise in or about the business of the land-revenue shall be subordinate to the Assistant Collector (if any) in charge of such Sub-division, subject to the general control of the Collector of the District.

Conferring of powers.

17. In conferring powers under this Act, the Local Government may empower persons by name, or classes of officials generally, by their official titles.

Transfer of cases to subordinates.

18. The Collector of the District, or any Assistant Collector in charge of a Sub-division of a District, or Officer in charge of a Settlement, may make over any case, or class of cases, arising under the provisions of this Act or otherwise, for enquiry or decision from his own file to any of his subordinates competent to deal with such case or class,

Power to withdraw cases from subordinates.

or may withdraw any such case or class of cases from any Revenue Officer subordinate to him, and may deal with such case or class himself, or refer the same for disposal to any other such Revenue Officer competent to deal therewith.

Power to vary and cancel powers.

19. The Local Government may vary or cancel any order conferring powers under this Act.

Collector of the District in case of temporary vacancy.

20. If the Collector of the District dies, or is disabled from performing his duties, the officer who succeeds temporarily to the chief executive administration of the district in revenue matters shall be held to be the Collector of the District under this Act until the Local Government appoints a successor to the Collector so dying or disabled, and such successor takes charge of his appointment.

Powers of officers transferred to another district.

21. Whenever any person holding an office in the service of Government, who has been invested with any powers under this Act in any district, is transferred to an equal or higher office of the same nature within another district, he shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, be held to be invested with the same powers in the district to which he is so transferred.

Appointment of Tahsildars

22. Tahsíldárs shall be appointed by the Board, subject to such rules as to qualification or otherwise as the Board, subject to the sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Power to form and alter patwáris' circles.

23. The Collector of the District, with the sanction of the Board, may arrange all the villages of such district in patwáris' circles, and may, from time to time, alter the limits of such circles.

But no such arrangement or alteration shall be final unless and until it has been sanctioned by the Board.

Appointment of patwári to each circle.

24. A patwári shall be appointed to each circle, whether the maháls in such circle are assessed to revenue or not.

Nomination and appointment of patwáris to fill vacancies.

25. Whenever a circle is without a patwári, the proprietors of such circle, or their representatives in interest, shall, in accordance with local custom, nominate a person to be such patwári, and he shall be appointed by the Collector of the District, or Assistant Collector.

Which nominee to be appointed in case of disagreement.

26. In case of disagreement as to the nominee, the Collector or Assistant Collector shall ascertain the local custom, if any, and shall appoint the person nominated in accordance therewith.

Where no such custom can be ascertained, the Collector, or Assistant Collector shall appoint the nominee of those proprietors who represent the largest amount of annual value in the circle, or of their representatives in interest.

If a mahál is held under direct management, or if the proprietor of a mahál be under the charge of the Court of Wards, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall be held to be the proprietor for the purpose of nominating a patwári under this section.

Appointment of patwári in case of failure or neglect of person entitled to nominate.

27. If the persons in whom the nomination is vested neglect to nominate a successor to the patwári within fifteen days from the occurrence of the vacancy, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall call on them by notice to make the nomination, and, if they fail to do so within fifteen days from the receipt of notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, shall make the appointment.

Procedure in case of nomination of unfit person.

28. If the person or persons in whom the nomination is vested nominate a man not qualified to perform the duties of a patwári, or in the nomination neglect to follow the local custom, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall refuse to appoint the nominee, and if no fit person be nominated within fifteen days from the date of the notification of such refusal, he shall himself appoint a person to the vacant office.

Preference to member of patwári's family.

Provided that the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, in making the appointment under this and the last preceding section, shall always give preference to any member of the late patwári's family, qualified to perform the duties of the office.

Payment of patwáris.

29. A rate may be imposed by order of the Collector of the District, on the annual value, or on the cultivated area, of all the maháls composing the circle of each patwári, or partly in the one way, and partly in the other, for defraying the salary of such patwári, and any charges incurred on account of any additional establishment required for the proper supervision, maintenance and correction of the patwári's records.

Fixing amount of rate.

30. The amount of the rate to be imposed under section twenty-nine in any district or Sub-division of a District, shall be determined by the Board under the orders of the Local Government:

Provided that such rate shall not exceed three per cent. on the annual value of the rated mahál, and that the amount to be imposed on each mahál shall be fixed in the temporarily settled districts for the term of settlement, and in permanently settled districts for thirty years, or such shorter period as the Local Government may direct.

Collection of rate.

31. The rate shall be collected with the revenue, and shall, in case of default, be recoverable by the same process as arrears of revenue.

Salaries of patwáris.

32. The salaries of the patwáris shall from time to time be fixed by the Board under the orders of the Local Government.

Appointment of Kánúngos and filling vacancies among them.

33. One or more Kánúngos may be appointed in each tahsíl for the proper supervision, maintenance and correction of the patwári's records.

In case of a vacancy in the office of a Kánúngo, preference shall be given to some duly qualified member of a family in which the office of Kánúngo of the tahsíl or any part thereof is hereditary.

If no such qualified member can be found, then one of the patwáris of the tahsíl shall, if duly qualified, be appointed to the vacancy, and failing any person duly qualified among them, some other fit and competent person shall be appointed thereto.

Amount of Kánúngo's salaries.

34. The salaries of the Kánúngos shall from time to time be fixed by the Local Government.

Kánungos and patwárí to be public servants, and their records public records.

35. Every Kánúngo and patwárí, and every person appointed temporarily to discharge the duties of any such officer, shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code, and all official records and papers kept by any such officer shall be held to be public records and the property of Government.

CHAPTER III.

SETTLEMENT.

Notification as to settlement.

36. Whenever the Local Government thinks that any district or other local area liable to be brought under settlement should be so brought, it shall publish a notification specifying such area,

Notification as to record-of-rights.

and if it thinks that a record-of-rights in land, whether permanently settled, temporarily settled or revenue-free, should be prepared for any district or local area, it shall publish a notification to that effect.

Settlement to be deemed in progress until closing notified.

37. Every local area shall be held to be under settlement from the date of any notification published under section thirty-six and relating thereto until the issue of another notification declaring settlement operations to be closed therein.

Settlements now in progress brought under operation of Act.

Every district or other local area under settlement at the time of the passing of this Act, shall be held to be under settlement within the meaning of this section without the issue of the notifications prescribed by section thirty-six.

Appointment and powers of Settlement Officers.

38. The Local Government may from time to time appoint an officer to be in charge of the settlement of one or more districts, or part of a district, and as many Assistant Settlement Officers as to it may seem fit; and such officers shall exercise the powers conferred upon them by this Act so long as such district, part of a district or districts is or are under settlement.

Local Government to issue rules as to mode of assessment.

39. The Local Government shall from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, frame and issue rules regarding the mode in which the revenue demand is to be assessed.

Powers of Settlement Officers as to erection of boundary-marks and decision of disputes.

40. When any district, or part of a district, is under settlement, the Settlement Officer shall have power to call upon all proprietors, by proclamation to be stuck up in some conspicuous place in each village, to erect within fifteen days such boundary-marks as he may think necessary to define the limits of their villages, mahâls, or fields; and in default of their compliance within the time specified in the notice, he may cause such boundary-marks to be erected, and he shall recover the cost of the erection from the proprietors as if it were an arrear of revenue.

In case of dispute concerning any boundary-marks, the Settlement Officer shall decide such dispute on the basis of possession, or may refer it to arbitration, for decision on the merits as provided for in section two hundred and twenty to section two hundred and thirty-one (both inclusive).

Power of settlement and survey officers to do necessary acts.

41. All Settlement Officers and all officers in charge of a survey made in connection with the revenue, and their assistants, servants, agents and workmen, may do all acts necessary for any purpose connected with the settlement or survey, as the case may be.

Power to require attendance of persons concerned,

42. The Settlement Officer may order all persons, whose presence is in his opinion necessary for any of the purposes of this chapter to attend at any specified time and place, and to and production of documents.

produce any written document in their possession or power; and all such persons shall be legally bound to obey such order.

With whom settlement to be made.

43. The settlement shall be made with the proprietor of the land; or, if the proprietor have transferred possession of his land to a mortgagee or conditional vendee, then with such mortgagee or vendee.

Settlement of mahâl in possession of lunatic or minor.

If, at the time of settlement, a mahâl or any share thereof, be in the possession of a lunatic, minor, or other person incapable of making a contract, the settlement shall be made with his guardian or manager on his behalf.

Power to make joint settlement with several proprietors, or their elected representatives.

44. When several persons hold a mahâl, the Settlement Officer shall have power to make a joint settlement with all such persons, or with their representatives elected according to the custom of the mahâl.

Framing and reporting general proposals of assessment.

45. Whenever the Settlement Officer frames general proposals of assessment in accordance with the rules made under section two hundred and fifty-seven, he shall report them through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and after receipt of the orders of the Board thereon, and subject to such orders,

Detailed assessment and declaration thereof to persons concerned.

he shall ascertain the amount of the assessment proper for each mahâl, and declare the same to the person with whom the settlement of such mahâl is to be made.

Such declaration shall be made on a date to be notified by proclamation at the tahsíl in which such mahâl is situate.

Effect of agreement to assessment proposed.

46. If the persons with whom the settlement is to be made agree to the assessment so proposed, they and those (if any) whom they represent in interest shall become liable from the date of such agreement, or from such subsequent date as the Board directs, to pay such assessment, and in mahâls in which the land, or part of the land, is held in severalty, the Settlement Officer shall distribute such assessment on the lands so held.

Distribution of assessment.

47. In any mahâl where, by the established custom, the land or the amount of revenue payable by each sharer is subject to periodical re-distribution or re-adjustment, the Settlement Officer may, on application of the co-sharers, enforce such re-distribution or re-adjustment according to the established custom of the mahâl.

Enforcement of custom as to re-distribution of and adjustment of revenue of shares.

48. If the person to be settled with refuse to accept the assessment offered by the Settlement Officer, or fail to accept such assessment within thirty days from the date of the declaration by the Settlement Officer under section forty-five, the Settlement Officer shall report the case through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and the Board may direct that the person so refusing or failing be excluded from the settlement for such term not exceeding fifteen years from the date of such direction, as the Board shall fix. And the Settlement Officer or the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, either farm the mahâl or hold it under direct management during such term or any part thereof.

Exclusion of person declining, or failing to accept, settlement.

In such case, the person so excluded shall be entitled (subject to the orders of the Board) to an allowance out of the profits of the mahâl of not less than five or more than fifteen per cent. on the proposed assessment.

Allowance to person excluded.

49. If, in a pattidârí or imperfect pattidârí mahâl, some of the co-sharers refuse or fail within thirty days from the date of the declaration by the Settlement Officer under section forty-five to accept the proposed assessment, the shares of the persons so refusing or failing shall be dealt with under the provisions of section forty-eight, and they shall receive an allowance as laid down in that section in proportion to their respective shares in the mahâl.

Procedure in case of some of several proprietors refusing assessment.

Provided that the farm of such shares shall be offered in the first instance to those proprietors who have accepted the proposed terms.

Farm of shares of proprietors refusing.

50. Any proprietor excluded from settlement under section forty-eight or forty-nine shall be entitled to hold his sír land as an exproprietary tenant, and the rent to be paid by him for such land during such exclusion shall be fixed by the Settlement Officer accordingly.

Adjustment of rent of the sír lands of proprietors of estate farmed under section 48 or 49.

51. The aggregate amount of any allowance assigned under section forty-eight or section forty-nine to any proprietor excluded from settlement and of the difference between the rent fixed under section fifty and the rent which he would be liable to pay if he were a tenant-at-will, shall not be less than five or more than fifteen per cent. on the assessment proposed by the Settlement Officer.

Amount of allowance assigned under section 48 or 49 to excluded proprietor, and of difference between rent fixed under section 50, and rent payable by him if he were a tenant-at-will.

52. On the expiration of the term fixed under section forty-eight, the settlement shall be offered by the Collector of the District to the person then entitled to be settled with in respect of such mahâl or portion, at such assessment for the remainder of the term of settlement of the district as the Board may direct.

Offer of settlement to excluded proprietor on expiry of term of exclusion.

And if such person refuse to accept the offer, the Collector of the District shall report such refusal through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board, and such person may be excluded from settlement for such period not exceeding the term of the settlement of the district as the Board may direct, and shall then receive the allowance to which he would be entitled if sections forty-eight and forty-nine applied to his case. And the rent to be paid by him as an exproprietary tenant for his sír land shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in accordance with the North-Western Provinces' Rent Act, 1873.

Procedure on refusal.

53. Whenever several persons possess separate heritable and transferable proprietary interests in any mahâl, such interests being of different kinds, the Settlement Officer may, under the rules for the time being in force, determine

Power to direct which of several parties having separate and different interests shall be admitted to settlement;

(a) which of such persons shall be admitted to engage for the payment of the revenue, due provision being made for securing the rights of the others, and

and to prescribe distribution of profits.

54. If in any mahâl coming under the provisions of section fifty-three, the separate properties bear to each other the relation of superior and inferior, and the settlement be made with the party possessing the superior right, the Settlement Officer may make, on behalf of the superior proprietor, a sub-settlement with the inferior proprietor, by which such inferior shall be bound to pay to the superior an amount equal to the Government demand in respect of the mahâl, together with the share of the profits thereof allotted to the superior proprietor under section fifty-three:

Power to make sub-settlement with inferior proprietor in behalf of superior proprietor of mahâl coming under section 53.

Provided that, if the inferior proprietor refuse to agree to the terms of such sub-settlement, the mahâl shall be made over to the superior proprietor for the term of settlement.

Exclusion of inferior proprietor from sub-settlement in case of refusal of terms.

And in such case the inferior proprietor shall hold as an exproprietary tenant the land (if any) cultivated by him at the date of such refusal, and the superior proprietor shall pay him such annual allowance as, when added to the difference between the rent fixed for such land and the rent which the inferior proprietor would be liable to pay therefor if he were a tenant-at-will, shall not be less than five or more than fifteen per cent. of the profits allotted to him under section fifty-three.

Allowance.

Assessment on inferior proprietor when settlement made with him.

55. If the settlement of a mahál be made with the inferior proprietor, the amount to be paid by him shall be fixed by the Settlement Officer at such a sum as may be equal to the Government demand in respect of such mahál, together with the share of the profits allowed to the superior proprietor under section fifty-three; and in this case the share of the superior proprietor shall be realized as revenue, and paid to him from the Government Treasury.

Power to make arrangements for the benefit of persons possessing rights which do not entitle them to settlement.

56. If in any mahál there exist persons possessing proprietary rights therein which are not of such a nature as to entitle their possessors to settlement, the Settlement Officer may make such arrangements as shall secure such persons in possession of their existing rights, or of an equivalent thereto.

This may be done

(a) by the formation of a sub-settlement on behalf of the proprietors with such persons for any lands actually in their possession, or,

(b) in mahále held as joint undivided property and where the said rights are rights to receive from the tenants any money-payment or portion of the agricultural produce, by assigning, in lieu thereof, the proprietary right in a certain portion of the mahál, the profits of which are equivalent in the opinion of the Settlement Officer to the said payment or portion:

(c) in such other way as shall maintain the persons referred to in the first clause of this section in the enjoyment of, or of an equivalent to, their existing rights.

Separate settlement of waste-land in excess.

57. When the waste-land belonging to, and included at the previous settlement within the boundaries of, any mahál assessed to the payment of revenue is so extensive as, in the opinion of the Settlement Officer, confirmed by the Board, to exceed the requirements of the owner of such mahál with reference to pastoral or agricultural purposes, such officer may make a separate settlement of the waste-land which he considers to be so in excess, and shall offer such waste-land to the owner of the mahál to which it belongs, at such assessment and for such term, not exceeding the period of settlement of the mahál, as the Board may order.

If the owner of the mahál accepts such offer, the Settlement Officer shall make the settlement of such waste-land accordingly, and on the expiration of the term of such settlement, a farther settlement of such waste-land shall be offered on such terms as the Board directs to the person entitled to be settled with in respect thereof.

Allowance to owner of mahál refusing offer of settlement.

If the owner of such mahál refuses such offer, the Settlement Officer shall mark off the quantity so in excess, and declare it to be a separate mahál and at the disposal of Government: Provided that there shall be allowed to the owner of the mahál to which the waste-land originally belonged such annual sum as the Board may direct, being not less than five and not more than ten per cent. on the nett revenue realized by Government from such waste-land.

Procedure as to waste-land not included in any mahál at previous settlements.

58. Waste-land which has neither been judicially declared to be part of any mahál, nor included within the boundaries of any mahál at any previous settlement, shall be marked off by the Settlement Officer, and he shall record a proceeding declaring such land to be the property of Government, and cause a proclamation to that effect to be stuck up in the District Revenue Court and in the office of the tahsíl in which such land is situated, and shall call on all persons having any claims on such land to make the same within three months from the date of the proclamation.

Proclamation to be held an advertisement under Act XXIII of 1863.

59. Such proclamation shall be held to be an advertisement of the disposal of such land within the meaning of Act No. XXIII of 1863 (to provide for the adjudication of claims to waste lands), section one, and any person having claims to such land must proceed according to the provisions of that Act.

Procedure as to waste-land unclaimed or adjudged to belong to Government.

60. If no claim is made to the proprietary right of such waste-land, or if such waste-land is decided to be the property of Government, but the proprietor of the adjoining mahál proves that he has theretofore enjoyed the use of such land for pastoral or agricultural purposes, the Settlement Officer may assign to such mahál so much of such waste-land as he may consider requisite for such purposes; and he shall mark off the remainder and declare it to be the property of Government.

Settlement of waste-land adjudged to belong to claimant.

61. If the claimant obtain a decree under the provisions of the said Act No. XXIII of 1863 for the whole or part of such waste-land, the Settlement Officer may deal with the land to which a title is so established under the provisions of section fifty-seven.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS.

Contents of record.

62. The Settlement Officer shall frame for each mahál a record containing a list of

(a) all the co-sharers,

(b) all other persons occupying any portion of the land therein, or who are in possession of any heritable or transferable interest in such land, or receiving rent in respect thereof,

(c) the nature and extent of the interest held therein by each of such co-sharers and other persons, and

(d) all persons holding land free of rent, or revenue-free.

Record to include particulars as to tenants.

63. The record shall also specify the persons (if any) holding land at a rent fixed by grant or by contract, or on condition of service or otherwise, and all other tenants in the mahál, the name and caste of each, the area of their holdings, and all conditions of their tenure.

Settlement of disputes as to entries to be made in record.

64. All entries in the record made under sections sixty-two and sixty-three shall be founded on the basis of actual possession, and all disputes regarding such entries, whether taken up by the Settlement Officer of his own motion or upon the complaint of the party concerned, shall be investigated and decided by him on that basis. And all persons not in possession, but claiming the right to be so, shall be referred by him to the proper Court.

Arrangements of co-sharers, to be recorded.

65. The Settlement Officer shall also record the arrangement made by himself or agreed to by the co-sharers,

(a) for the distribution of the profits derived from sources common to the proprietary body,

(b) for fixing the share which each co-sharer is to contribute of the Government revenue and of the cesses levied under any law for the time being in force, and of the village expenses,

(c) as to the manner in which lambardárs or co-sharers are to collect from the cultivators,

(d) the instalments of rent and the respective dates fixed for their payment, and

(e) any other matters which he may be directed to record under rules framed under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Cesses to be consolidated with rent.

66. All cesses which are payable by tenants on account of the occupation of land assessed to revenue and taken into account in such assessment, or which, in the case of land not assessed to revenue, would have been taken into such account had the land been assessed, or in lieu of which proprietary rights have been assigned under section fifty-six, clause (b), shall be consolidated with the rent payable by such tenants.

Cesses to be recorded.

A list of all other cesses levied in accordance with village custom shall, if generally or specially sanctioned by the Local Government, be recorded by the Settlement Officer, and no cesses not so recorded shall be enforced in any Civil or Revenue Court.

Conditions on collection of cesses.

The Local Government may from time to time impose on the collection of any cesses so sanctioned, such conditions as to conservancy, police or other establishments connected with the village, bázár or fair in or on account of which the cesses are levied, as it thinks fit.

Determination of disputes arising under secs. 65 and 66.

67. If it appear to a Settlement Officer that there exist in any mahál under settlement any disputes relative to any of the matters which he is bound to record, under section sixty-five or section sixty-six, he may of his own motion, and without complaint being made, investigate and determine such disputes in accordance with the existing village custom, and frame the record accordingly.

Particulars to be stated in list of tenants.

68. In framing the list of tenants mentioned in section sixty-three, the Settlement Officer shall state as to each tenant the following particulars:—

(a) Whether, under the provisions contained in the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, he is a tenant holding at fixed rates, or an exproprietary tenant, or an occupancy-tenant, or a tenant without a right of occupancy:

(b) The rent which the landholder and the tenant then admit to be payable by the latter:

(c) If he be a tenant without a right of occupancy, the number of years during which he has held the land then in his possession:

(d) Any other condition of the tenure, whether contained in a written lease or otherwise.

Determination of class of tenants.

69. Notwithstanding anything contained in section sixty-four, in case of any dispute respecting the class or tenure of any tenant, the Settlement Officer shall decide according to the principles laid down in sections five, six, seven and eight of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873.

Determination of rent of tenants.

70. In case of any dispute regarding the rent payable by any tenant, the Settlement Officer shall decide according to the principles hereinafter laid down.

Enhancement and determination of rent of exproprietary tenants.

71. If the proprietor apply to the Settlement Officer to enhance or determine the rent of an exproprietary tenant, the Settlement Officer shall fix the rent of such tenant at a rate which shall be four annas in the rupee below the prevailing rate for land of a similar quality with similar advantages held by tenants-at-will in the same circle or tahsíl.

Determination of rent of occupancy tenants by Settlement Officer.

72. If a landholder apply to enhance the rent previously paid by any of his occupancy-tenants, or, if an occupancy-tenant apply for an abatement of the rent previously paid by him, or, if a dispute exists as to the rent to be paid by an occupancy-tenant,

the Settlement Officer may fix the rent to be paid by such tenant either by reference to the standard of the rent-rate sanctioned by the Board for purposes of assessment for similar land, with similar advantages, in the circle or tahsíl in which the holding of such tenant is situate or by reference to the customary rate of rent paid by tenants of the same class for similar land, with similar advantages, in the same circle or tahsíl.

Power to commute rent in kind, &c., to fixed money rents.

73. In all cases in which rents have heretofore been paid in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or by rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of such ways and partly in another or others of such ways, application to commute such rent to a fixed money rent may be made to the Settlement Officer either by the landholder or by any exproprietary tenant or occupancy-tenant.

Procedure on receiving application to commute.

74. On receipt of such application the Settlement Officer shall deal with the case as if it were an application under section seventy-one or seventy-two, and shall determine the sum to be paid in commutation in accordance with the provisions of those sections.

Joinder of tenants in applications relating to rent.

75. Whenever an application for enhancement or abatement or commutation of rent, against or by any number of tenants, is brought before a Settlement Officer, such tenants may be sued or may sue collectively: and it shall be no ground for dismissing or refusing to hear the application, that such tenants are wrongly joined as plaintiffs or defendants, provided all such tenants cultivate in the same mahál;

Proviso.

but no order shall be passed in such case in which enhancement, abatement or commutation of rent is claimed, unless the officer making such order is satisfied that all parties have had an opportunity to appear and make objection to any claims preferred against them.

Order in such cases

76. Every order passed in any such case shall specify the extent to which each of the tenants named in the order shall be affected thereby.

Rent from what date payable.

77. The rent fixed by order of the Settlement Officer shall be payable from the first day of July next following the date of the order of the Settlement Officer, and (subject to the provisions of sections sixteen and seventeen of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1873), shall not be liable to enhancement or abatement for ten years from such first day of July.

Bar to enhancement or abatement.

Powers of Local Government as to commutation-suits.

78. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette,

(a) declare the provisions of section seventy-three applicable to any district or portion of a district not under settlement;

(b) declare what officers are empowered to hear and decide applications under section seventy-three in such district or portion of a district, and lay down rules for their guidance;

(c) withdráw any notification previously published under this section.

Resumption of rent-free grants.

79. And whereas all grants (whether in writing or otherwise) for holding land exempt from the payment of rent which have been made since the first day of December 1790, by any authority other than that of the Governor General in Council were declared by Bengal Regulation XIX of 1793, section ten, to be null and void, and like provisions have been by divers Regulations at different times applied to the several parts of the territories to which this Act extends; and the said Regulation XIX of 1793, also provided that no length of possession should be considered to give validity to any such grant, either with regard to the property in the soil or the rents of it, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Disposal of applications to resume such grants.

Applications by the proprietors to resume such grants or to assess rent on the land shall, when the district in which the land is situate is a district under settlement, be made to the Settlement Officer, who may (subject to this Act and to any rules made hereunder and for the time being in force) make such order thereon as he deems just.

Saving of certain lands held rent-free.

80. Nothing in section seventy-nine applies to either of the following cases,

(a) where land is previously to the passing of this Act held rent-free under a judicial decision,

(b) where, previously to the passing of this Act, land held rent-free has been purchased for a valuable consideration and its resumption has been barred by Act No. X of 1859, section twenty-eight, or by Act IX of 1871, second schedule, No. 130.

Validity of grants which grantor has expressly agreed not to resume.

81. Grants of land held under a written instrument (whether executed before or after the passing of this Act) by which the grantor expressly agrees that the grant shall not be resumed, shall be held valid as against him (but not as against his representatives after his death) during the continuance of the settlement of the district in which the land is situate, which was current at the date of the grant.

When rent-free tenure confers proprietary right.

82. Where any land has been for fifty years or upwards, and still is held rent-free and by at least two successors to the original grantee, such holding shall be deemed to confer on the holder a proprietary right.

Nothing in the Indian Limitation Act, 1871, shall bar the right to make an application under this Act to assess to rent land held rent-free.

Saving of liability for Government revenue.

83. No length of rent-free occupancy of any land, nor any grant of land made by the proprietor, shall release such land from its liability to be charged with the payment of Government revenue.

Sections 71 and 72, to apply.

84. In assessing rent under section seventy-nine, the Settlement Officer shall be guided by the provisions of sections seventy-one and seventy-two, so far as they apply.

Form of register of revenue-free tenures.

85. The Settlement Officer shall record all revenue-free tenures in such form of register as the Board from time to time prescribes.

Resumption in certain cases of land held revenue-free.

86. The Settlement Officer shall enquire into the case of all lands released, conditionally or for a term, from the payment of revenue, and shall assess such lands if it appear to him that the conditions have been transgressed, or the term has expired.

Title to hold free to be proved.

87. Any person claiming land free of revenue not recorded as revenue-free, shall be bound to prove his title to hold such land free of revenue.

Report to Government where title proved.

88. If he prove his title to the satisfaction of the Settlement Officer, the case shall be reported to the Local Government whose orders thereon shall be final.

Assessment and settlement on failure of proof.

89. If the title be not so proved, the Settlement Officer shall proceed to assess the land, and to make the settlement of it with the person in actual possession as proprietor.

Form and attestation of record-of-rights.

90. The Board shall from time to time prescribe the form in which the record to be made under the provisions of this chapter shall be drawn up, and the manner in which it shall be attested.

Presumption as to entries.

91. All entries in the record so made and attested shall be presumed to be true until the contrary is proved.

Confirmation of settlement and revision of assessment.

92. No settlement shall be considered final until it has been confirmed by the Local Government.

Period for which settlement is to be made.

The Local Government shall at some time before confirming the settlement fix the period for which the settlement is to be made.

Such period shall be fixed with reference to the agricultural year.

Revision of assessment before confirmation.

The assessment may be revised, if the Local Government so directs, at any time before it is confirmed, and in such case the revised assessment shall be proposed to the proprietors, and the provisions of sections forty-three to ninety-one (both inclusive) shall apply.

Power to invest officer with Settlement Officer's powers.

93. At any time during the currency of a settlement, the Local Government may invest any officer with all or any of the powers of an Officer in charge of a Settlement under this Act within such limits, and with such restrictions, and for such period, as it thinks fit;

but not so as to enable him to enhance the total amount of revenue payable on account of any mahál except in respect of land added thereto or becoming liable to payment of revenue since the confirmation of the settlement.

No officer so invested shall alter the classification of tenants made under this Act except on the application of a party concerned.

CHAPTER IV.

REGISTRATION AND MAINTENANCE OF RECORDS.

Collector to maintain record-of-rights.

94. The Collector of the District shall keep and maintain the record-of-rights;

and register changes.

and he shall from time to time cause to be registered all changes that may take place, and anything that may affect any of the rights or interests recorded;

and correct errors.

and shall correct any errors which the parties interested admit to have been made in the record.

Power to order what registers shall be kept.

95. The Board shall order such registers to be kept up as may be necessary for the purposes of the last preceding section;

Changes to be duly authorized.

and no such changes shall be recorded without the order of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Power to prescribe fees for mutations.

96. The Local Government may prescribe proper fees for mutations in the registers: Provided that no fee for a single mutation shall exceed one hundred rupees.

Levy of fees.

Such fees shall be levied from the person in whose favour the mutation is made and shall be expended in such manner as the Local Government thinks fit.

Appropriation.

Successions to proprietary rights to be notified.

97. All persons succeeding to any proprietary right in a mahál, or the profits thereof, whether by inheritance, purchase, gift, or other form of transfer, shall notify the same immediately after it has taken place to the tahsíldár of the tahsíl in which the mahál is situated, and the tahsíldár shall report such notice to the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector.

Procedure on notification.

98. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on receiving such report, shall make such enquiry as appears necessary to ascertain the truth of the alleged succession to, or transfer of, the property, and if the succession or transfer appears to have taken place, he shall record the same in the register:

Saving of rights of other persons interested.

Provided that no such entry shall be held to affect the rights of any other person who may claim and establish in any Civil or Revenue Court any interest in the land to which the entry has reference.

Notification in case of minority or other disqualification.

99. If the person so succeeding is a minor or otherwise disqualified, the guardian or other person who has charge of his property shall make the notification required by section ninety-seven.

Fine for neglect to notify.

100. Any person neglecting to make the notification required by sections ninety-seven and ninety-nine within three months from the date of the transfer having taken place shall be liable, at the discretion of the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, to a fine not exceeding five times the amount of the fee which would otherwise have been payable under section ninety-six.

Power to put one party in possession in certain cases of dispute.

101. If in the course of inquiry made under section ninety-eight a dispute regarding the possession of the property arises, and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector is unable to satisfy himself as to which party is in possession, he shall ascertain by summary enquiry who is the person best entitled to the property, and shall put such person in possession, and make the necessary entry in the record accordingly, subject to any order that may be subsequently passed by the Civil Court.

Registry of transfers of nonproprietary interests in land.

102. The transfers of all interests in land other than those referred to in section ninety-seven, shall be recorded by the Kánungo and patwárí in such manner as the Board from time to time directs;

Enquiry in disputed cases.

and all disputed cases shall be reported to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, who shall make such enquiry as may be necessary to ascertain the truth, and cause the record to be amended accordingly.

Annual enquiry as to revenue-free grants.

103. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall enquire annually into the cases of all land released conditionally or for a term from the payment of revenue.

If the condition be broken, he shall report the case through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board for orders, and if the term has expired, or (where the grant is for the life of the grantee) if the grantee has died, he shall assess the land and report his proceedings through the Commissioner of the Division to the Board for sanction.

Assessment of land added by alluvion.

104. All land added by alluvion to a mahál is liable to assessment. Such land may be assessed and settled under rules to be framed under section two hundred and fifty-seven.

Collector and Assistant Collector to have powers of officer in charge of Settlement.

105. For the purposes of sections one hundred and three and one hundred and four, the Collector of the District and Assistant Collector shall each have the powers of an Officer in charge of a Settlement.

Inspection of records.

106. All records kept under this Act, shall be open to public inspection at such hours and on such conditions as to fees or otherwise as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe.

PARTITION AND UNION OF MAHÁLS.

Partitions.

107. Partition is either perfect or imperfect.

'Perfect partition.'

'Perfect partition' means the division of a mahál into two or more mahále.

'Imperfect partition.'

'Imperfect partition' means the division of any property into two or more properties, jointly responsible for the revenue assessed on the whole.

Persons entitled to perfect partition.

108. Any recorded co-sharer in a mahál, and any person in whose favour a decree has been passed by any Civil Court, awarding to him the proprietary right in a portion of a mahál, whether such portion consists of a fractional share in the whole or a part of the mahál, or of specific lands, is entitled to claim perfect partition of his share.

Any two or more recorded co-sharers may claim that their shares be divided from the other shares by a perfect partition, and be held by them as a single mahál.

Applications for perfect partition.

109. Applications for perfect partition are to be made in writing to the Collector of the District or the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the mahál is situated;

and shall be accompanied by a certified copy of the record, showing the share held by the applicant in the mahál.

Provision as to estates situated in more than one district;

Provided that, if the mahál be situated in two or more districts, the application may be made in any one of those districts, and the partition shall be made by such one of the Collectors of those districts as the Board may direct.

and as to estates in more than one sub-division.

110. If the mahál is situated in two or more sub-divisions of a district, the partition shall be made by such one of the Assistant Collectors respectively in charge of such sub-divisions as the Collector of the District may direct.

Notification of application.

111. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on receiving an application for partition shall, if the application be in order and not open to objection on the face of it, publish a notification of the same at his office, and at some conspicuous place on the mahál to which the application relates,

Notice to co-sharers not joining.

and shall serve a notice on all such of the recorded co-sharers in the mahál as have not joined in the application, requiring any co-sharer in possession who may object to the partition to appear before him to state his objection, either in person or by a duly authorized agent, on a day to be specified in the notice, not being less than thirty or more than sixty days from the date on which such notice was issued.

Notification when alone sufficient.

Where, from any cause, notice cannot be personally served on any co-sharer, the notification shall be deemed sufficient notice under this section.

Power to refuse partition when objection admitted.

112. If, on or before the day specified, any objection is made to the partition by any co-sharer in possession, and the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, on a consideration of such objection, is of opinion that there is any good and sufficient reason why the partition should be absolutely disallowed, he may refuse the application, recording the grounds of his refusal.

Procedure if question of title be raised.

113. If the objection raises any question of title, or of proprietary right, which has not been already determined by a Court of competent jurisdiction, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may either decline to grant the application until the question in dispute has been determined by a competent Court, or he may proceed to inquire into the merits of the objection.

In the latter case the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, after making the necessary inquiry and taking such evidence as may be adduced, shall record a proceeding declaring the nature and extent of the interests of the party or parties applying for the partition, and any other party or parties who may be affected thereby.

Procedure in such cases.

The procedure to be observed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in trying such cases shall be that laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of original suits, and he may with the consent of the parties refer any question arising in such case to arbitration, and the provisions of chapter VI (relative to arbitrators) of the same Code shall apply to such references.

Reference to arbitration.

Collector's decision equivalent to decision of Civil Court.

114. All orders and decisions passed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector under the last preceding section, for declaring the rights of parties, shall be held to be decisions of a Court of Civil Judicature of first instance, and shall be open to appeal to the District or High Court, Appeal thereupon.

under the rules applicable to regular appeals to those Courts.

Appellate Court may stay partition.

Upon such appeal being made, the District or High Court, as the case may be, may issue a precept to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, desiring him to stay the partition pending the decision of the appeal.

Special appeal to High Court.

115. From every decision passed under section one hundred and fourteen by a District Court, a special appeal shall lie to the High Court, under the rules for the time being in force relating to special appeals to that Court.

Option to parties to make partition themselves or to appoint arbitrators.

116. When it has been decided to make a partition under this chapter, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may give the parties the option of making the partition themselves, or of appointing arbitrators for the purpose; or he shall make the partition himself or cause it to be made by any Assistant Collector subordinate to him.

If arbitrators are appointed, the provisions of sections two hundred and twenty to two hundred and thirty-one, both inclusive, shall apply.

Power to enter on land for purposes of partition.

117. In making partitions, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, and any person appointed by him, shall have the same powers to enter on the land under partition, for marking out the boundaries, surveying the mahál, and other purposes, as have been conferred on Settlement Officers under chapter III.

Partition of lands held only in severalty.

118. Where there are no lands held in common, the lands held in severalty by the applicant for partition shall be declared a separate mahál, and shall be separately assessed to the Government revenue.

Partition of lands some of which are held in common.

119. Where some of the lands are held in common, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall allot to the applicant for partition his share of such lands in accordance with village custom, if any such exist.

If no such custom exist, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make such division as may secure to the applicant his fair portion of the common lands.

Formation of separate mahále from shares allotted in partition.

120. The portion of the common lands falling by such partition to the share of the applicant shall be added to the land held by him in severalty, and the mahále thus formed shall be assessed and declared separate mahále.

Transfers to be effectuated in making partition.

121. In making partitions under sections one hundred and eighteen, one hundred and nineteen and one hundred and twenty, the Collector or Assistant Collector shall give effect to any transfer of lands held in severalty, forming part of the mahál, agreed to by the parties, and made previous to the declaration of the partition.

Partition where all lands held in common.

122. Where all the lands are held in common, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall make such a partition as may secure to the applicant his fair share of the mahál.

Mahále to be compact; partition not to be disallowed for incompactness.

123. In all cases each mahál shall be made as compact as possible: Provided that, except with the sanction of the Board, no partition be disallowed solely on the ground of incompactness.

Rule when dwelling-house of one sharer is included in mahál assigned to another.

124. If in making the partition it be necessary to include in the mahál assigned to one sharer, the land occupied by a dwelling-house or other building in the possession of another co-sharer, such other co-sharer shall be allowed to retain it, with any buildings thereon, on condition of his paying a reasonable ground-rent for it to the sharer into whose portion it may fall.

The limits of such land, and the rent to be paid for it, shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector.

Rule as to sír-land of one sharer being included in mahál assigned to another.

125. No sír-land belonging to any co-sharer shall be included in the mahál assigned on partition to another co-sharer, unless with the consent of the co-sharer who cultivates it, or unless the partition cannot otherwise be conveniently carried out.

If such land be so included, and after partition such co-sharer continue to cultivate it, he shall be an occupancy-tenant of such land, and his rent shall be fixed by order of the Collector of the District or of the Assistant Collector.

Rule as to tanks, wells, water-courses and embankments.

126. Tanks, wells, water-courses and embankments shall be considered as attached to the land for the benefit of which they were originally made.

Where, from the extent, situation or construction of such works, it is found necessary that they should continue the joint property of the proprietors of two or more of the mahále into which the mahál may be divided, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall determine the extent to which the proprietors of each mahál may make use of the said works, and the proportion of the charges for repairs of such works to be borne by such proprietors respectively, and the manner in which the profits, if any, derived from such works, shall be divided.

Rule as to places of worship and burial-grounds.

127. Places of worship and burial-grounds, held in common previous to the partition of a mahál, shall continue to be so held, unless the parties otherwise agree among themselves.

In such cases they shall state in writing the agreement into which they have entered, and such writing shall be filed with the record.

Determination of revenue payable by each division of a mahál.

128. The amount of revenue to be paid by each portion of the divided mahál shall be determined by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, provided that the aggregate revenue of the new mahále shall not exceed the revenue assessed on the mahál immediately before partition, and the proprietors of the new mahâls shall be held liable for the portions of the revenue severally assessed on their mahâls, whether new engagements be taken from them or not.

Liability of proprietors.

129. The Board shall make rules for determining the costs of partitions under this Act, and the mode in which such costs are to be apportioned:

Power to make rules as to costs.

Provided that the cost of surveying a mahâl, when such survey is necessary for the purpose of partition, shall be paid rateably by all the co-sharers of the mahâl, according to their shares therein.

Cost of survey.

130. If the costs to be paid by the applicant for partition are not paid within a time to be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, the case may be struck off the file.

Case may be struck off for default as to costs.

And if at any stage of the proceedings there appears to be any reason for stopping the partition, the Collector of the District may of his own motion, or on the report of the Assistant Collector making the partition, stay the partition and order the proceedings to be quashed.

Power to stay partition.

131. Every partition shall either be made by the Collector of the District, or, if made by an Assistant Collector, be reported to the Collector of the District for his sanction and confirmation;

Partitions to be made or confirmed by Collector, and notified to parties.

and on completion of a partition, the Collector of the District shall publish a notification of the fact at his office and at some conspicuous place on each of the new mahâls, or in the village of which they form part;

and it shall take effect from the first day of July next after the date of such notification.

When to take effect.

132. An appeal against the decision of the Collector of the District making or confirming a partition, shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division within one year from the date on which such partition takes effect.

Appeal to Commissioner from orders of Collector.

133. Where the public revenue is fraudulently or erroneously distributed at the time of the partition, the Local Government may, within twelve years from the time of discovery of the fraud or error, order a new allotment of the public revenue upon the several mahâls into which the mahâl has been divided, on an estimate of the assets of each mahâl at the time of the partition, to be made conformably to the best evidence and information procurable respecting the same.

Power to order new allotment of revenue on proof of fraud or error in first distribution.

134. Imperfect partition shall be carried out according to the provisions of the preceding sections, so far as they are applicable:

Making of imperfect partitions.

Provided that no application for imperfect partition shall be entertained unless the consent of all the recorded co-sharers in the property of which partition is sought be first obtained.

Consent required.

135. No Civil Court shall entertain any suit or application for perfect or imperfect partition.

Civil Courts barred from entertaining applications for partition.

136. If two or more revenue-paying mahâls have originally formed portion of the same village, the proprietors shall be entitled to have such mahâls united and to hold them as a single mahâl.

Union of mahâls originally part of same village.

137. Every application for the union of such mahâls shall be made in writing to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the mahâls are situate.

Application for such union.

138. If the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector, as the case may be, see no objection, he shall comply with the application, and cause the necessary entries to be made in the records of his office, reporting the case to the Commissioner of the Division.

How to be dealt with.

139. The provisions of this chapter, so far as they are applicable, may be applied by the order of the Collector of the District to the partition or union of mahâls held free of revenue.

Application of chapter to partition or union of revenue-free mahâls.

MAINTENANCE OF BOUNDARIES.

140. The Collector of the District, Assistant Collectors and their subordinates, shall have power to enter upon and survey land, and to demarcate the boundaries of mahâls, villages or fields.

Power of Collector and subordinates to enter and survey land, mark boundaries, and settle disputes.

141. All owners of mahâls, villages or fields are bound to maintain and keep in repair at their own cost the boundary-marks lawfully erected thereon.

Obligations of owners as to boundary-marks.

142. Any person convicted before a Collector of the District or Assistant Collector of wilfully erasing, removing or damaging such boundary-marks, may be ordered by the convicting officer to pay such sum, not exceeding fifty rupees for each mark so erased, removed or damaged, as may be necessary to defray the expense of restoring the boundary-marks so erased, removed or damaged, and of rewarding the informer through whom the conviction was obtained.

Penalty for erasing, removing, or injuring marks.

143. Whenever the person erasing, removing or damaging any such mark cannot be discovered, or if for any other reason it is found impracticable to recover from him the sum which he has been so ordered to pay, the mark shall be re-erected or repaired at the charge of the owner or owners of such one or more of the conterminous fields or mahâls, as to the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector seems fit.

Who to be charged for re-erection and repair when offenders not discoverable.

144. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may decide, on the basis of possession, all disputes concerning boundaries, and may at any time direct

Powers of Collector as to boundary-disputes and boundary-marks.

the owners of mahâls, villages or fields, by written notice served upon them,

(a) to cause proper boundary-marks to be erected on such mahâls, villages or fields,

(b) to repair the boundary-marks lawfully erected on such mahâls, villages or fields.

In default of their compliance with such direction within fifteen days from the date of the service of the notice, the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector shall cause such boundary-marks to be erected or repaired, as the case may be, and shall charge the cost of such erections or repairs to the owners of the conterminous villages, fields or mahâls, in such proportion as he thinks fit.

Recovery of fees, fines and costs.

145. All fees, fines, costs and other sums ordered to be paid under this chapter shall be recoverable as an arrear of revenue.

CHAPTER V.

COLLECTION OF LAND REVENUE.

Responsibility for revenue.

146. In the case of every mahâl the entire mahâl and all the proprietors jointly and severally shall be responsible to Government for the revenue for the time being assessed on the mahâl.

Board may make rules as to payment of revenue.

147. The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, from time to time make rules as to the instalments in which, and the persons, places and times to whom and at which, the revenue payable in respect of any land shall be paid.

Until the issue of such rules, the said revenue shall be paid in the instalments, to the persons, and at the times and places, in which, to whom and at which it is now paid.

Arrear. Defaulters.

148. Any sum not so paid becomes thereupon an arrear of revenue and the persons responsible for it become defaulters.

Interest not chargeable.

No interest shall be demanded on any arrear of land-revenue.

Default where settlement is with lambardár.

If the settlement has been made with a lambardár on behalf of the proprietary body, both the lambardár and the persons so responsible shall be deemed defaulters.

Certified account to be evidence as to arrear.

149. A statement of account certified by the tahsíldár shall be conclusive evidence of the existence of the arrear, of its amount, and of the person who is the defaulter.

Process for recovery of arrears.

150. An arrear of revenue may be recovered by the following processes :—

(a) by serving a writ of demand (dastak) on any of the defaulters ;

(b) by arrest and detention of his person ;

(c) by distress and sale of his moveable property ;

(d) by attachment of the share, or pattí, or mahâl, in respect of which the arrear is due ;

(e) by transfer of such share or pattí to a solvent co-sharer in the mahâl ;

(f) by annulment of the settlement, of such pattí, or of the whole mahâl ;

(g) by sale of such pattí, or of the whole mahâl ;

(h) by sale of other immoveable property of the defaulter.

When writs may issue.

151. Writs of demand may be issued on or after the day following that on which the arrear accrues.

Power to frame rules as to writs.

The Board shall from time to time frame rules for the issue of such writs, and fix the costs recoverable from the defaulter as an arrear of revenue, and direct by what officer such writs shall be issued.

Arrest and detention of defaulter.

152. At any time after an arrear becomes due, the defaulter may be arrested and detained in custody for fifteen days, unless the arrear, together with the costs of arrest, is sooner paid.

Power of arrest by whom to be exercised.

The Board may, from time to time, declare by what officers or class of officers the powers of arrest conferred by this Act may be exercised.

Distress and sale of his moveable property.

153. The Collector of the District or Assistant Collector may, whether the defaulter has been arrested or not, distrain and sell his moveable property, with the exception of the implements of husbandry and cattle actually employed by him in agriculture, and, in the case of an artizan, of his tools.

Exceptions.

Power to attach defaulter's land and take it under direct management.

154. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due, the Collector of the District may, in addition to or instead of any of the other processes before specified, cause the share, or pattí, or mahâl, in respect of which the arrear is due, to be attached and taken under the management of himself or any agent whom he appoints for that purpose.

Powers and obligations of manager.

155. The Collector of the District, or the agent so appointed, shall be bound by all the engagements which existed between the person or persons who, immediately before the attachment, was or were in possession of the land attached, and the subordinate proprietors or tenants, if any,

and shall be entitled to manage the land attached, and to receive all rents and profits accruing therefrom to the exclusion of such person or persons, until the arrears of land-revenue due therefrom have been satisfied, or until the Collector of the District restores to the management thereof the person or persons whose interest has been attached.

Application of surplus profits.

156. All surplus profits of the land attached, beyond the cost of such attachment and management, including the payment of the current revenue, shall be applied in defraying the said arrear ;

and no land shall be attached for the same arrears for a longer term than five years from the first day of July next after the attachment; provided that, if the arrear be sooner liquidated, the land shall be released and the surplus receipts (if any) made over to the proprietor.

Limit to term of attachment.

157. When the arrear is due in respect of a share or pattí of a mahál, the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, transfer such share or pattí, for a term not exceeding fifteen years from the first day of July next after the date of the sanction, to any or all of the other co-sharers, on condition of their paying such arrear and on such terms as the Board in each case may think fit.

Transfer of defaulter's share to co-sharers.

This procedure shall not affect the joint and several liability of the co-sharers of the mahál in which it is enforced.

Liability of co-sharers not affected.

158. When any arrear of land-revenue is due and the Collector of the District is of opinion that the processes hereinbefore provided are not sufficient for the recovery of such arrear, he may, in addition to or instead of all or any of such processes, report, through the Commissioner of the Division, the matter to the Board, and the Board may thereupon order the existing settlement of the pattí or mahál, in respect of which the arrear is due, to be annulled.

When report may be made to Board and settlement annulled.

The provisions of this section shall not be put in force for the recovery of any arrear of land-revenue which may have accrued on land,

Exception of certain arrears.

(a) while under attachment under section one hundred and fifty-four, or

(b) while under the charge of the Court of Wards.

159. When the settlement of any land has been annulled, the Collector of the District may, with the previous sanction of the Board, either manage the land himself or through an agent, or he may let it in farm to any person willing to accept the same, for such term and on such conditions as may be sanctioned by the Board:

When settlement annulled, Collector may manage land himself, or by agent, or let it in farm.

Provided that the term for which land may be so held or farmed be not longer than fifteen years from the first day of July next after the date of such annulment.

And no contracts made by the persons who immediately before the annulment of the settlement were in possession of the lands comprised therein, or by the persons through whom they respectively claim, relating to such lands, shall, during such term, be binding on the Collector of the District, or his agent, or lessee.

Suspension of contracts.

160. When the Collector of the District attaches any land under section one hundred and fifty-four, or when the settlement of any land has been annulled under section one hundred and fifty-eight, he shall make public proclamation thereof on the mahál.

Proclamation of attachment or annulment of settlement.

161. No payment made after such proclamation on account of rent or any other asset of the mahál, to any person other than the Collector of the District or his agent, or lessee, shall be credited to the person making such payment, or relieve him from liability to payment to the Collector of the District, his agent or lessee.

Payments thereafter to defaulter not to discharge payer.

162. No payment made to the defaulter, in anticipation of the usual period for the payment of the rents shall, without the special sanction of the Collector, be credited to the person making the same in account with the Collector of the District or with the person to whom he gives possession.

Payments to defaulter in anticipation of due date.

163. When any land has been farmed for arrears of revenue, any balance of revenue due from the farmer may be recovered from him or his surety as an arrear of revenue under the provisions of this Act.

Recovery of revenue due from farmer.

164. Whenever the settlement of a portion of a mahál is annulled under section one hundred and fifty-eight, the joint responsibility of the co-sharers for the revenue of such portion of the mahál subsequently becoming due shall be in abeyance until a new settlement of such portion is made under section one hundred and sixty-five.

Suspension of responsibility of co-sharers for revenue of portion of mahál as to which settlement is annulled.

165. After the expiration of the period for which any land has been farmed, or held pursuant to section one hundred and fifty-nine under direct management for the recovery of an arrear of revenue, the Collector of the District shall offer to the person entitled to be settled with under section forty-three a new settlement, on such conditions as the Board may direct, for the remainder of the term of the settlement of the district; and if he refuse such offer, the Collector of the District may (with the previous sanction of the Board) farm the land to some other person, or hold it under direct management under the provisions of sections forty-eight, forty-nine, fifty and fifty-one.

Offer of settlement to proprietor on expiry of period for which land is farmed or taken under management.

166. When an arrear of land-revenue has become due and the Collector of the District is of opinion that the other processes hereinbefore provided are not sufficient for the recovery of such arrear, he may, in addition to, or instead of, all or any of such other processes, and subject to the provision hereinafter contained, and with the previous sanction of the Board, sell by auction the pattí or mahál in respect of which such arrear is due.

Power to sell by auction defaulter's pattí or mahál.

Provided that no land shall be sold—

Bar to sale for certain arrears.

(a) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was under the charge of the Court of Wards, or was so circumstanced that the Court of Wards might have exercised jurisdiction over it under the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-four, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) or (e);

(b) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was under attachment under section one hundred and fifty-four;

(c) for any arrear which may have accrued while it was held under direct management by the Collector of the District, or in farm by any other person, under section forty-eight, forty-nine, one hundred and fifty-nine or one hundred and sixty-five.

Land to be sold free of incumbrances.

167. Land sold under the last preceding section shall be sold free of all incumbrances,

Grants and contracts void against purchaser.

and all grants and contracts previously made by any person other than the purchaser in respect of such land shall become void as against the purchaser at the auction-sale.

Exceptions.

Nothing in the former part of this section applies—

(a) in districts or portions of districts permanently-settled, to farms granted in good faith at fair rents, and for specified areas, by a former proprietor for terms not exceeding twenty years, under written leases duly registered;

(b) in all districts, to lands held under bonâ fide leases at fair rents, temporary or perpetual, for the erection of dwelling-houses, or manufactories, or for mines, gardens, tanks, canals, places of worship, burying grounds, such lands continuing to be used for the purposes specified in such leases.

Power to proceed against interest of defaulter in property other than that in respect of which default is made.

168. If the arrear cannot be recovered by any of the above processes, and the defaulter owns any other mahál, or any share in any other mahál, or any other immoveable property, the Collector of the District may proceed against such mahál or other immoveable property, as if it were the land on account of which the revenue is due, under the provisions of this Act:

Provided that no other interests save those of the defaulter alone shall be so proceeded against, and no incumbrances created or contracts entered into by him in good faith shall be rendered invalid by such proceeding.

Procedure in effecting sale

169. On the receipt of the sanction of the Board to the sale of any land, the Collector of the District shall issue a proclamation, in the vernacular language of the district, of the intended sale, specifying the time and place of sale, and (when the land to be sold is a mahál or part of a mahál paying revenue to Government) the revenue assessed upon it, together with any other particulars he may think necessary.

Proclamation of sale.

170. When the land is sold for arrears of revenue due thereon, the proclamation shall declare that the land is to be sold free of any incumbrance except the farms and leases (if any) mentioned in section one hundred and sixty-seven.

Such proclamation shall be made at the head-quarters of the tahsíl in which the land is situate, and also in the village of which it is a part.

Notification of sale.

171. A written notice of the intended sale and of the time and place thereof shall be affixed in the office of the Collector of the District, and, where the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division in which the land is situate has a separate office, then also in such office, and a copy of such notice shall be served on the defaulter.

Sale by whom to be made.

172. The sale shall be made either by the Collector of the District in person or by an Assistant Collector specially appointed by him in this behalf.

Time when sale may be made.

No such sale shall take place on a Sunday or other authorized holiday, or until after the expiration of at least thirty days from the date on which the said notice thereof has been affixed in the office of the Collector of the District, and proclamation of the sale has been made in the village in which the land is situate.

Postponement of sale.

The Collector of the District may from time to time postpone the sale, reporting such postponement to the Commissioner of the Division.

When sale may be stayed.

173. If the defaulter pay the arrear in respect of which the land is to be sold at any time before the day fixed for the sale, to the person appointed under section one hundred and forty-seven to receive payment of the land-revenue assessed on such land, or to the Collector of the District, or the Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division of the district in which the land is situate, the sale shall be stayed.

Deposit by purchaser.

174. The person declared to be the purchaser shall be required to deposit immediately twenty-five per cent. on the amount of his bid, and in default of such deposit the land shall forthwith be again put up and sold.

Re-sale in default of deposit.

Purchase-money when to be paid.

175. The full amount of purchase-money shall be paid by the purchaser before sunset of the fifteenth day from that on which the sale of the land took place, or, if the said fifteenth day be a Sunday or other authorized holiday, then on the first office day after such fifteenth day;

Effect of default.

and in default of payment within such period, the deposit, after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale, shall be forfeited to Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property, or to any part of the sum for which it may be subsequently sold.

Liability of purchaser for loss by re-sale.

176. If the proceeds of the sale which is eventually made be less than the price bid by such defaulting purchaser, the difference shall be leviable from him under the rules contained in the Code of Civil Procedure for enforcing payment of money in satisfaction of a decree of Court.

Notification before re-sale.

177. Every re-sale of land in default of payment of the purchase-money shall be made after the issue of a fresh notice in the manner prescribed for original sales.

Sale to be reported to Commissioner.

178. Every sale of land under this Act shall be reported by the Collector of the District to the Commissioner of the Division.

Application to set aside sale.

179. At any time within thirty days from the date of the sale, application may be made to the Commissioner of the Division to set aside the sale on the ground of some material irregularity or mistake in publishing or conducting it;

but no sale shall be set aside on such ground unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of the irregularity or mistake complained of.

Order confirming or setting aside.

180. On the expiration of thirty days from the date of the sale, if no such application as is mentioned in the last preceding section has been made, or if such application has been made and rejected, the Commissioner of the Division shall make an order confirming the sale;

and if such application be made and allowed, the Commissioner shall make an order setting aside the sale.

Every order made under this section shall be final.

Bar of claims against Government.

181. If no such application be made within the time allowed by section one hundred and seventy-nine, all claims founded on the irregularity or mistake complained of shall, as against the Government, be barred.

Nothing herein contained shall preclude the institution of a suit in a Civil Court for the purpose of setting aside a sale on the ground of fraud.

Refund of purchase-money when sale set aside.

182. Whenever the sale of any land is set aside, the purchaser shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money, with, or without interest, in such manner as the Commissioner of the Division thinks fit.

On confirmation of sale, purchaser to be put in possession.

183. After a sale of land on which an arrear of revenue is due has been confirmed in manner aforesaid, the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, shall put the person declared to be the purchaser into possession of the land, and shall grant him a certificate to the effect that he has purchased the land to which the certificate refers, and such certificate shall be deemed to be a valid transfer of such land, but need not be stamped or registered as a conveyance.

Certificate of purchase.

If the land has been sold on account of an arrear due on it, the certificate shall also state that it has been sold free of all incumbrances other than the farms and leases mentioned in section one hundred and sixty-seven.

Bar of suit against certified purchaser.

184. The certificate shall state the name of the person declared at the time of sale to be the actual purchaser; and any suit brought, whether in a Civil or Revenue Court, against the certified purchaser on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of another person not the certified purchaser, though by agreement the name of the certified purchaser was used, shall be dismissed with costs.

Application of proceeds of sale.

185. When a sale of land under this Act has been confirmed, the proceeds of the sale shall be applied in the first place to defraying the expenses of the sale and to the payment of any arrears due in respect of such land at the date of the confirmation of such sale, and recoverable as an arrear of land-revenue, and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose land has been sold;

or, if the land sold were held in shares, then to the co-sharers collectively, or according to the amount of their recorded interests, at the discretion of the Collector of the District.

Surplus not to be paid to creditors, nor retained by Government, except under order of Court.

186. Such surplus shall not (except under an order of a Civil Court) be payable to any creditor of the person whose land has been sold, nor shall it (except under a like order) be retained in the Government Treasury.

Liability of purchaser for revenue.

187. The person named in the certificate of title as purchaser of any land shall be liable for all instalments of land-revenue becoming due in respect of such land subsequently to the date of the confirmation of the sale.

Pre-emption by co-sharers when land sold is a pattí of a mahál.

188. Where any land sold under section one hundred and sixty-six is a pattí of a mahál, any recorded co-sharer, not being himself in arrear with regard to such land, may, if the lot has been knocked down to a stranger, claim to take the said land at the sum last bid:

Provided that the said demand of pre-emption be made on the day of sale, and before the officer conducting the sale has left the office for the day, and provided that the claimant fulfil all the other conditions of the sale.

Payment under protest and suit for recovery.

189. Whenever proceedings are taken under this chapter against any person for the recovery of any arrear of revenue, he may pay the amount claimed under protest to the officer taking such proceedings, and upon such payment the proceedings shall be stayed,

and (subject to the pecuniary limitations prescribed by law) the person against whom such proceedings were taken may sue the Government for the amount so paid in any Civil Court situate in the district where such proceedings were taken;

and in such suit, the plaintiff may, notwithstanding section one hundred and forty-nine, give evidence of the amount which he alleges to be due from him.

Proprietor of mahál attached, &c., holding sír-land therein, to be recorded as exproprietary tenant.

190. Any proprietor of a mahál or portion of a mahál that is attached, transferred, held under direct management, farmed, or sold under the provisions of this Act, who may hold sír-land in such mahál or portion, shall be recorded as an exproprietary tenant of such sír-land; and the rent to be paid by him for such land shall be fixed by the Collector of the District or Assistant Collector accordingly.

Tenure of land under expired settlement until new settlement is made.

191. If the term for which any settlement has been made expires before a new settlement is made, all persons with whom a settlement has been made, who continue after the expiration of such term to occupy the land comprised in the expired settlement shall, until a new settlement is made, hold the said land upon the conditions of the expired settlement.

Existing record-of-rights.

In all cases the existing record-of-rights shall remain in force until a new record-of-rights is made.

Provisions applied to arrears due at commencement of Act.

192. The provisions of this Act with regard to the recovery of arrears of revenue shall apply to all arrears of land-revenue and sums of money recoverable as arrears of land-revenue and due when this Act comes into force.

CHAPTER VI.

COURT OF WARDS.

Board to have powers of Court of Wards.

193. The Board shall have the powers of a Court of Wards for the superintendence of the persons and property of all proprietors of mahâls or parts of mahâls who are disqualified for the management of their own lands, or who are put under the charge of the Collector of the District by order of a Civil Court under the provisions of any Act for the time being in force.

Proprietors when disqualified for management of their lands.

194. Proprietors shall be held disqualified to manage their own lands when they are—

(a) females deemed by the Local Government incompetent to manage their estates;

(b) minors;

(c) idiots;

(d) lunatics;

(e) persons otherwise rendered incapable by physical defects or infirmities from managing their own estates;

(f) persons convicted of a non-bailable offence and disqualified, in the opinion of the Local Government, by vice or bad character, from managing their estates;

(g) persons declared by the Local Government, on their own application, to be disqualified from managing their estates.

Power to Court of Wards to decline superintendence.

195. The Court of Wards may, in its discretion, assume or refrain from assuming the superintendence of the person or property of any disqualified proprietor, and may at any time release any person or property from its superintendence:

Proviso as to person or property placed under superintendence.

Provided that such person or property has not been placed under the Court of Wards by any competent authority, whose order is necessary for his or its release.

Collector to report what proprietors are disqualified.

196. The Collector of the District shall ascertain and report to the Court of Wards from time to time what proprietors may come within the description of disqualified landholders under section one hundred and ninety-four;

and the Court of Wards shall, on receipt of the report of the Collector, make such order as may seem to it expedient.

Power to enforce provisions of this chapter without report.

197. Nothing in section one hundred and ninety-six shall prevent the Court of Wards or the Local Government from putting the provisions of this chapter in force without any report from the Collector.

Report to Government when Court of Wards' right of superintendence is disputed.

198. If, in any case not specially provided for by this or any other law in force for the time being, the right of the Court of Wards to assume or retain the superintendence of the person or property of a disqualified proprietor is disputed by such proprietor, or, if he be a minor, by some person on his behalf, the case shall be reported to the Local Government, whose orders thereon shall be final.

Appointment, removal, and control of managers and guardians.

199. The Court of Wards may appoint managers of the property of disqualified proprietors; and, if such proprietors be minors, idiots or lunatics, the Court of Wards may appoint guardians for the care of their persons, and may remove and control such managers and guardians.

Proprietors may appoint guardians for their heirs, if disqualified, by will executed and attested in manner required by the Indian Succession Act, 1865; but such appointments shall not be valid till confirmed by the Court of Wards.

Powers of Court of Wards as to male minors within jurisdiction.

200. The Court of Wards may direct where all male minors under its jurisdiction shall reside for the purpose of education or otherwise.

Powers of manager.

201. The manager appointed by the Court of Wards shall have power to collect the rents of the land entrusted to him as well as all other money due to the disqualified proprietor, and to grant receipts therefor;

and he may, subject to the control of the Court, grant or renew such leases and farms, not being for a longer period than five years, as may be necessary for the good management of the property.

Duties of manager.

202. The manager shall manage the property committed to him diligently and faithfully for the benefit of the proprietor, and shall in every respect act to the best of his judgment for the proprietor's interest as if the property were his own.

Powers of Court of Wards as to property under its charge.

203. The Court of Wards shall have power to give such leases or farms of the whole or parts of the property under its charge, and to mortgage or sell any part of such property, and to do all such other acts, as it may judge to be most for the benefit of the property and the advantage of the disqualified proprietors.

Exercise of their powers by Court of Wards through others.

204. The Court of Wards may exercise all powers conferred on it by this Act through the Collectors of the districts in which any part of the property of its Wards may be situated, or through any other person whom it may appoint for such purpose.

Suits by and against proprietors under guardianship.

205. All disqualified proprietors whose property is in charge of the Court of Wards, and for whom guardians have been appointed shall sue and be sued by and in the name of their guardians:

Provided that no such suit shall be brought or defended by any such guardian without the sanction of the Court of Wards.

Rules relating to managers.

206. Every manager appointed by the Court of Wards shall—

(a) give such security as the Court of Wards thinks fit, duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the rents and profits of the property for which he is appointed;

(b) pass his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court of Wards directs;

(c) pay the balance due from him thereon;

(d) apply for the sanction of the Court of Wards to any act which may involve the property in expense not previously sanctioned by such Court;

(e) be entitled to such allowance as the Court of Wards thinks fit for his care and pains in the execution of his duties;

(f) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence.

CHAPTER VII.

PROCEDURE OF REVENUE COURTS.

Place for holding Court.

207. A Commissioner of a Division may hold his Court at any place within his division that he thinks fit.

A Collector of a District, an Assistant Collector (whether in charge or not in charge of a subdivision of a District), or an Officer in charge of a Settlement or Assistant Settlement Officer, may hold his Court at any place within the limits of the district to which he is appointed.

A tahsíldár may hold his Court at any place within the limits of his tahsíl.

Power to summon persons to give evidence and produce documents.

208. Any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven shall have power to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary for the purpose of any investigation, suit, or other business before him.

All persons so summoned shall be bound to attend, either in person or by an authorized agent, as such officer may direct,

and to state the truth upon any subject respecting which they are examined or make statements, and to produce such documents and other things as may be required.

Summons to be in writing, signed and sealed

209. Every summons shall be in writing in duplicate, and shall be signed and sealed by the officer issuing it or by such person as he empowers in this behalf,

Mode of service.

and shall be served by tendering or delivering a copy of it to the person summoned, or, if he cannot be found, by affixing a copy of it to some conspicuous part of his usual residence.

Service in district other than that of issuer.

210. If his usual residence be in another district, the summons may be sent by post to the Collector of that district, who shall serve it in accordance with the preceding section.

Mode of serving notices.

211. Every notice under this Act may be served, either by tendering or delivering a copy thereof to the person on whom it is to be served;

or, if such person is a proprietor of land, to his agent, or by affixing a copy thereof to some conspicuous place on the land to which such notice refers.

Notice not void for error.

No such notice shall be deemed void on account of any error in the name or designation of any person referred to therein, unless when such error has produced substantial injustice.

Procedure for procuring attendance of witnesses

212. In any suit instituted before any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven, if either party desires the attendance of witnesses, he shall follow the procedure prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure, section one hundred and fifty-one.

Hearing in absence of party neglecting to attend, and order ex parte or by default.

213. Whenever any party to the suit or matter under investigation neglects to attend on the day specified in the summons, the suit or matter may be heard and determined in his absence, and an order passed by default, or ex parte, as the case may be.

No appeal from order ex parte or by default.

214. No appeal shall lie from an order passed ex parte, or by default.

Re-hearing on proof of good cause for non-appearance.

But in all such cases, if the party against whom judgment has been given appears either in person or by agent (if a plaintiff within fifteen days from the date of such order, and if a defendant within fifteen days after any process for enforcing the judgment has been executed, or at any earlier period), and shows good cause for his non-appearance, and satisfies the officer making the order that there has been a failure of justice, such officer may, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as he thinks proper, re-investigate the case and alter or rescind the order according to the justice of the case:

Order not to be altered without summons to adverse party.

Provided that no such order shall be reversed or altered without previously summoning the party in whose favour judgment has been given to appear and be heard in support of it.

Mode of taking evidence in certain cases.

215. In all cases coming under sections one hundred and one, one hundred and three, one hundred and twelve, one hundred and thirteen, one hundred and twenty-six, one hundred and forty-two, and one hundred and forty-four, the evidence shall be taken down in full in writing in the language in ordinary use in the district, by or in the presence and hearing and under the personal superintendence and direction of the officer making the investigation, and shall be signed by him.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in full in writing by the officer making the investigation, he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by such officer with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If such officer is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so.

The Local Government may declare what shall, for the purpose of this section, be deemed to be the language in ordinary use in any district.

Taking evidence given in English. Translation to be on record.

216. When the evidence is given in English, such officer may take it down in that language with his own hand, and an authenticated translation of the same in the language in ordinary use in the district shall be made and shall form part of the record.

Taking evidence in other cases.

217. In all cases other than those specified in section two hundred and fifteen, such officer may either cause the evidence to be taken down in full as aforesaid, or may make a memorandum in his mother-tongue of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of such witness proceeds.

Memorandum to be in writing signed.

Such memorandum shall be written and signed by such officer with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

Writing and explanation of decisions.

218. All decisions under this Act shall be written by the officer passing the same in his own handwriting, and shall be explained by him in open Court to the parties or their agents.

Hearing and decision. Notice to parties.

Every hearing and decision shall be in open Court, and the parties or their authorized agents shall have due notice to attend.

Sections 212—218 to apply to judicial proceedings in Revenue Courts.

219. Sections two hundred and twelve to two hundred and eighteen (both inclusive) shall apply to proceedings of a judicial nature in Revenue Courts.

REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

Reference to arbitration.

220. A Commissioner of a Division, a Collector of a District, an Assistant Collector of the first class, an Officer in charge of a Settlement, or an Assistant Settlement Officer, may, with the consent of the parties, by order, refer any dispute before him to arbitration, and an Officer in charge of a Settlement or an Assistant Settlement Officer may, by order, refer any dispute before him to arbitration without the consent of the parties, and a Tahsildár invested with the powers described in sections one hundred and forty to one hundred and forty-four (both inclusive) may, with the consent of the parties, refer to arbitration any dispute arising before him respecting the matters mentioned in the same sections.

What to be specified in order of reference.

221. In referring any such dispute to arbitration, the officer making the reference shall specify, in the order of reference, the precise matter submitted to the arbitrators, and such period as he may think reasonable for the delivery of the award;

and he may from time to time extend such period.

Appointment of arbitrators.

222. The parties to the case may each nominate either one or two arbitrators, provided that each party shall nominate the same number;

and a third or fifth arbitrator (as the case may be) shall be appointed by the officer making the reference.

And in cases when an Officer in charge of a Settlement or an Assistant Settlement Officer refers a dispute without the consent of the parties he shall, if they refuse to nominate arbitrators under the first paragraph of this section, nominate three or five arbitrators as he thinks fit.

Power to excuse arbitrator from serving and to call for nomination of substitute.

223. Every officer making a reference under this chapter may, on good cause shewn, excuse any person from serving as an arbitrator, and may call on the party who nominated such person to nominate another in the place of the person so excused.

Nomination of new arbitrator in place of one dying or failing to act.

224. If an arbitrator die, desire to be discharged, or refuse or become incapable to act, the party who nominated him shall nominate another person in his place.

Nomination by Collector when parties fail.

225. If in any of the cases provided for by section two hundred and twenty-three or section two hundred and twenty-four, any party fail for a week to nominate in manner aforesaid, the officer making the reference shall appoint some person to act as arbitrator.

Award.

The arbitrators shall determine and award concerning the matters referred to them for arbitration; and the parties disputing, and all persons claiming through them respectively, shall abide by and perform the award of the arbitrators.

Summoning parties to give evidence.

226. If the arbitrators require the presence of the parties, or any other persons whose evidence may be necessary, they shall apply to the officer making the reference, who shall summon such parties or persons;

Obligation of persons summoned.

and all such parties or persons shall be bound to attend, either in person or by agent, as the arbitrators may require, and to state the truth and to produce such documents and other things as may be required before the arbitrators.

Preparation and submission of award.

227. The award shall be made in writing under the hands of the arbitrators and shall be submitted by them to the officer making the reference, who shall cause notice to be served on the parties to attend and hear the award.

In what cases award or subject of arbitration may be remitted to arbitrators.

228. The officer making the reference may remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrators,

(a) if the award has left undetermined some of the matters referred to arbitration, or if it determine matters not referred to arbitration;

(b) if the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) if an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of the award.

Grounds on which award may be set aside.

229. No award shall be liable to be set aside except on the ground of corruption or misconduct of all or any of the arbitrators.

Application to set aside.

Any application to set aside an award shall be made within ten days after the day appointed for hearing the award.

Decision according to award.

230. If the officer making the reference does not see cause to remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration in the manner aforesaid, and if no application has been made to set aside the award,

or if he has refused such application,

he shall decide in accordance with the award of the majority of the arbitrators, and shall fix the amount to be allowed for the expenses of the arbitration and direct by and to whom, and in what manner, the same shall be paid.

Bar to appeal and suit in Civil Court.

231. Such decision shall not be open to appeal, and shall be at once carried out;

and no Civil Court shall entertain any suit for the purpose of setting it aside or against the arbitrators on account of their award.

ENFORCEMENT OF DECISIONS.

Execution of decisions.

232. Any officer mentioned in section two hundred and seven may execute all decisions made by himself or by an appellate Court on appeals in suits instituted in his Court under the provisions of this Act, in cases wherein a specific sum of money is adjudged to be due, or any costs or damages are awarded, by levying the same by any process in use for the recovery of an arrear of revenue or rent.

Delivery of possession of immoveable property.

233. In cases wherein possession of immoveable property is adjudged, the officer making the award may deliver over possession in the same manner, and with the same powers in regard to all contempts, resistance and the like, as may be lawfully exercised by the Civil Courts in execution of their own decrees.

POWERS OF COLLECTORS.

Powers of Collectors of District.

234. Collectors of Districts may, in addition to their own powers, exercise all the powers conferred by this Act on Assistant Collectors.

Powers of Assistant Collectors in charge of sub-divisions.

235. An Assistant Collector in charge of a sub-division of a district shall, as such, have the following powers:—

(1.) To refer cases for enquiry or decision to his subordinates, under section eighteen:

(2.) To withdraw cases from his subordinates and to deal with them himself, or to refer them for disposal to any other subordinate officer competent to deal with them, under the same section:

(11.) To decide claims to hold land revenue free, under sections eighty-eight and eighty-nine.

Powers of Assistant Settlement Officers.

239. All other powers conferred on Settlement Officers by this Act shall be exercised by Assistant Settlement Officers under such restrictions as the officer in charge of a settlement may from time to time impose.

Investing of Settlement Officers with powers of Collector and Assistant Collector.

240. The Local Government may invest any Officer in charge of a Settlement with all or any of the powers of a Collector of a District under this or any other Act for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces, and any Assistant Settlement Officer with all or any of the powers conferrible on an Assistant Collector under this or any other Act for the time being in force in the North-Western Provinces within such limits, and with such restrictions, and for such period, as it thinks fit.

Matters excepted from cognizance of Civil Courts.

241. No Civil Court shall exercise jurisdiction over any of the following matters:—

(a) Claims by any person to any of the offices mentioned in sections twenty-four and thirty-three, or to any emolument appertaining to such office, or in respect of any injury caused by his exclusion therefrom:

(b) The claim of any person to be settled with, or the validity of any engagement with Government for the payment of revenue, or the amount of revenue, cess or rate to be assessed on any mahâl, or share of a mahâl under this or any other Act for the time being in force:

(c) Any claims connected with or arising out of any process enforced on account of neglect or refusal to accept the assessment or terms of sub-settlement proposed by the Settlement Officer:

(d) The formation of the record-of-rights,

the preparation, signing, or attestation of any of the documents contained therein, or the notification of settlement:

(e) The determination of the class of a tenant or the rent payable by him, or the period for which such rent is fixed under this Act:

(f) The distribution of the land or allotment of the revenue of a mahâl by partition; or

(g) Any matters provided for in sections fifty-three to sixty-one (both inclusive):

(h) Any matters provided for in sections seventy-nine to eighty-nine (both inclusive) and one hundred and three:

(i) Claims connected with, or arising out of, the collection of revenue (other than claims under section one hundred and eighty-nine), or any process enforced on account of an arrear of revenue, or on account of any sum which is by this or any other Act realizable as revenue:

(j) Claims to set aside a sale for arrear of revenue other than claims under section one hundred and eighty-one:

(k) Any matter falling within the jurisdiction of the Court of Wards, or on which the jurisdiction of that Court is actively exercised, except for the purpose of recovering property committed by that Court to the charge of the Collector of the District.

In all the above cases, jurisdiction shall rest with the revenue authorities only.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPEALS.

Appeal to Collector of District.

242. An appeal shall lie from any order passed by any Assistant Collector of the first or second class, whether in charge of a Sub-division or not, to the Collector of the District.

Appeal to officer in charge of the settlement.

An appeal shall lie from any order passed by an Assistant Settlement Officer to the officer in charge of the settlement.

Appeal to Commissioner of Division.

243. An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division from any order passed by the Collector of a District or an officer in charge of a settlement, or from any declaration or distribution of assessment under section forty-five, forty-six or forty-seven.

Appeal to Board.

244. Subject to the provisions of section two hundred and forty-nine, an appeal shall lie to the Board from any order passed under this Act by the Commissioner of a Division.

Limitation of appeal.

245. No appeal under section two hundred and forty-two shall be brought after the expiration of thirty days from the date of the order complained of.

No appeal under section two hundred and forty-three shall be brought after the expiration of sixty days from the date of the order complained of.

No appeal under section two hundred and forty-four shall be brought after the expiration of ninety days from the date of the order complained of.

Time to be excluded.

246. In computing the period prescribed for an appeal under this chapter, the day on which the order complained of was pronounced, and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of such order, shall be excluded.

Admission of appeal after period of limitation.

247. Any appeal under this chapter may be admitted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor when the appellant satisfies the officer or Board to whom or to which he appeals, that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period.

No appeal shall lie against an order under this section admitting an appeal.

Saving of orders expressly made final.

248. Nothing in this chapter applies to orders expressly made final by this Act or to appeals under section one hundred and thirty-two.

Commissioner's order when not appealable, but subject to revision

249. In any appeal to the Commissioner of a Division from an order passed by the Collector of the District or Officer in charge of a Settlement, on an appeal from an order of an Assistant Collector of the first or second class, or of an Assistant Settlement Officer, the Commissioner's order shall not be appealable, but shall be subject to revision by the Board under sections two hundred and fifty-three and two hundred and fifty-five.

Powers of Appellate Court.

250. The Appellate Court may either admit or summarily reject the appeal:

If it admit the appeal, it may reverse, modify or confirm the order of the Lower Court, or it may direct the Court to make such further investigation or to take such additional evidence as it may think necessary, or it may itself take such additional evidence.

Power to suspend execution of order of Lower Court.

251. In any case in which an appeal is allowed, the Appellate Court may, pending the order on appeal, direct the execution of the order of the Lower Court to be suspended.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Provision where Court is closed.

252. Whenever a Court is closed on the last day of any period provided in this Act for the presentation of any memorandum of appeal, or for the deposit or payment of any money in or into Court, the day on which the Court re-opens shall be deemed to be such last day.

Power of Board to call for and examine record of case or proceedings of subordinate Revenue Court.

253. The Board may call for and examine the record of any case, or the proceedings of any Revenue Court subordinate to it, for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings of such Court.

Power of Commissioner, Collector, and Officer in charge of Settlement to call for records and proceedings.

254. The Commissioner of a Division, or the Collector of a District, or the Officer in charge of a Settlement, may call for and examine the record or proceedings of any Revenue Court subordinate to him respectively, for the purposes mentioned in section two hundred and fifty-three;

Report to Board.

and if he is of opinion that the proceedings taken or order passed by such subordinate officer, should be modified, cancelled, or reversed, he shall report the case with his opinion thereon for the orders of the Board.

Power of Board in cases called for or reported.

255. If in any case, whether called for by the Board or reported for orders, it appears to the Board that any order or proceedings should be modified, cancelled, or reversed, it may pass such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Power to Board to make rules.

256. The Board may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make and issue general rules for regulating the practice and procedure of their own Court, or of any Revenue Court subordinate to them, not otherwise provided for by law.

Power of Local Government to invest tahsíldárs with certain powers.

257. The Local Government may invest any tahsíldár with the powers described in sections one hundred and forty to one hundred and forty-four (both inclusive), and may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act,

To make rules.

(a) for regulating the assessment of land gained by alluvion, or the decrease of the assessment of a mahál in consequence of diluvion;

(b) for the guidance of Settlement Officers in fixing rent under section seventy-one or section seventy-two and section seventy-four:

All such rules shall be published in the North-Western Provinces Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Power of Board to make rules.

The Board, subject to the sanction of the Local Government, may from time to time make rules consistent with this Act, for

(c) prescribing the duties to be performed respectively by tahsíldárs, kánúngos, and patwáris;

(d) regulating the appointment of tahsíldárs and officers inferior to them in rank, their duties, punishment, suspension and dismissal;

(e) prescribing the manner in which Settlement Officers shall report for sanction the rates and method of assessment and the amounts they propose to assess;

(f) generally for the guidance of all persons in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

Amendment of Act XL of 1858.

258. In Act No. XL of 1858 (for making better provision for the care of the persons and property of minors in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), section two shall be read as if, for the words "estates paying revenue to Government," the words "maháls assessed to revenue or held revenue-free," were substituted.

Disposal of suits and applications pending before Settlement Officer when settlement is closed.

259. If while any suit or application under this Act is pending before a Settlement Officer, the settlement of the district in which the subject-matter of the suit or application is situate is closed by the issue of a notification under section thirty-seven, such suit or application shall be made over to the Court of the Collector of the District, and may be by him transferred or otherwise dealt with as if it had been originally instituted in or made to his Court.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th December 1873, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a week :—

No. 22 OF 1873.

A Bill to declare the true meaning of Acts X of 1859, XIV of 1863, and XXII of 1872.

Preamble.

WHEREAS, by Act XIV of 1863, section eight, the Local Government of the North-Western Provinces was empowered to invest any officer employed in making or revising settlements of the land-revenue with the powers of a Collector as described in Act X of 1859, for the decision of suits arising within the local limits of the jurisdiction assigned to such officer, of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of the same Act, or in the said Act XIV of 1863, while such officer is so employed:

And whereas, in the year 1863, the Local Government resolved that all Collectors, Assistant Collectors and Deputy Collectors at any time employed in making or revising settlements, should, during such employment, be invested with the powers described in section eight of Act XIV of 1863, and such officers have in fact from that time exercised such powers from the date of their employment in the duties aforesaid, and large numbers of suits of the nature mentioned in the same section have been heard and decided by such officers notwithstanding that their employment commenced subsequently to the year 1863, and notwithstanding that the Local Government may not have expressed their intention to invest them with the said powers otherwise than by appointing them to such employment:

And whereas it has recently been ruled that Deputy Collectors whose employment in settlement-work commenced subsequently to the twenty-first day of April 1863, have not been invested with the said powers:

And whereas, by Act X of 1859, section one hundred and fifty, it is enacted that all the powers vested in the Collector by the preceding sections of that Act may be exercised by any Deputy Collector in cases referred to him by a Collector; and in all cases without such reference, by any Deputy Collector placed in charge of any sub-division of a District:

And whereas, by section ten of Act XIV of 1863, it is enacted that if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before any officer empowered under section eight of that Act to hear the same, such suit shall be heard and determined by such officer, notwithstanding that no notice of enhancement shall have been served under section thirteen of the said Act X of 1859 on the party from whom such enhanced rent is claimed: and that in such case the statement of claim should set forth the grounds on which such enhancement of rent is claimed:

And whereas, by Act XXII of 1872, it was enacted that all Deputy Collectors and all other persons theretofore or thereafter invested with all or some of the powers of Deputy Collectors for the purposes of Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, should be deemed to have been or to be (as the case might be) Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts within the meaning of the same Acts, or Assistants to Collectors invested with the powers of Deputy Collectors in such charge: and it was also enacted that all suits preferred and applications made to, and orders made and acts done by, such Deputy Collectors and other persons in the exercise of such powers should be deemed to have been and to be as duly preferred, made and done as if the said Deputy Collectors and other persons had been Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions of districts within the meaning of the same Acts:

And whereas, by force of the said Acts, all Deputy Collectors in the North-Western Provinces have ever since the passing of Act X of 1859, been of like authority with Deputy Collectors in charge of sub-divisions, and, as such, have had jurisdiction to hear all suits of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of that Act and in Act XIV of 1863, and all Collectors have had and have exercised very largely the power of referring to Deputy Collectors cases brought before themselves:

And whereas, since the passing of Act XXII of 1872, it has been held that a Deputy Collector not invested with powers under section eight of Act XIV of 1863, has not any jurisdiction to hear a suit of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of Act X of 1859:

And whereas it has also recently been held that the said Act XXII of 1872 has no operation in cases in which a decision has been delivered contrary to the true meaning of the said Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, as declared in Act XXII of 1872, but prior to the passing of Act XXII of 1872:

And whereas, ever since the passing of Act XIV of 1863, officers invested with the powers of Collectors under section eight of that Act have been in the habit of exercising that power which is vested in Collectors by section one hundred and fifty of Act X of 1859, and of referring to Deputy Collectors employed as aforesaid suits of the nature mentioned in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 for the purpose of having such suits heard and decided by such Deputy Collectors, and great numbers of suits have been so heard and decided:

And whereas it has recently been held that officers engaged in making or revising settlements, and invested with the powers of Collectors under section eight of Act XIV of 1863, have not the power of referring suits to Deputy Collectors; and also that, if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before such an officer, he is bound by section ten of Act XIV of 1863 to hear and determine it in person:

And whereas, by the effect of such holdings, great numbers of decisions in suits of the nature mentioned in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 have become open to question, and for the quieting of titles, and the avoidance of litigation, it is necessary that the validity of such decisions should be affirmed, and that the meaning of the said Acts should be declared:

And whereas it is apprehended that other objections may be made to the authority of officers who have decided suits of the nature mentioned in Act XIV of 1863, and it is expedient that such decisions should not be impeached for any defect in such authority;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Powers of Deputy Collectors under Regulation IX of 1833.

1. All Collectors, Assistant Collectors and Deputy Collectors under Regulation IX of 1833, employed in making or serving settlements, have been, and are, and are intended to be, invested with the powers described in section eight of Act XIV of 1863 during the term of such employment.

Power of Collectors to refer cases to Deputy Collectors.

2. By section one hundred and fifty of Act X of 1859, it was intended, and has always been the law, that Collectors should refer to Deputy Collectors such of the cases brought before themselves as they think fit.

Act XIV of 1863, section 8, explained.

3. By section eight of Act XIV of 1863, it was intended that when the officers therein mentioned have been invested with the powers therein mentioned, they should have, and it has always been the law that they have had, the whole, and not a portion only, of such powers, and in particular the power of reference conferred on Collectors by Act X of 1859, section one hundred and fifty.

Act XIV of 1863, section 10, explained.

4. The meaning of section ten of Act XIV of 1863 was, and has always been, that in the suits therein mentioned the want of such notice as therein mentioned shall not be a bar to the progress of the suit, and not that the suits therein mentioned must be heard and decided by the same officer from the beginning to the end.

Suits heard by officers pursuant to the said Acts, to be deemed properly heard.

5. All suits heard and decided by any officers in pursuance of the said Acts and of the intentions of the said Local Government as herein explained, have been heard and decided by proper authority, and the decisions given in such suits are valid decisions, subject only to such appeals as are by law provided.

Decisions of officers acting under said Acts in certain suits validated.

6. No decision made by any Collector, Assistant Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer purporting to act under the provisions of Act X of 1859 or Act XIV of 1863 in any suit of the nature mentioned in section twenty-three of Act X of 1859 or in Act XIV of 1863 shall be impugned or deprived of effect by reason of the objection that such officer did not possess the jurisdiction legally necessary for deciding the suit, but all such decisions shall be dealt with by every Appellate Court as if they had been made by a tribunal possessing the authority to entertain and decide the suit.

Suits to be decided in accordance with this Act and Act XXII of 1872.

7. Every suit instituted, or question arising, under Act X of 1859, or Act XIV of 1863, and which comes before any Court of Justice, shall be decided in accordance with this Act, and in accordance with Act XXII of 1872, at whatever time such suit may have been commenced, or such question may have arisen, and at whatever time any decision may have been delivered affecting such suit or question.

Presumption in favour of judicial and official acts.

8. In construing the said Acts and in deciding on the validity of judicial proceedings thereunder, all Judges and Courts of Justice shall have regard to the practice which has actually prevailed, and shall also, in the absence of evidence or clear law to the contrary, presume that what purports to have been done by public authority has been rightly done.

Local extent.

Commencement.

9. This Act extends only to the territories under the government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and shall come into force at once.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces has recently ruled—

(a) that Deputy Collectors, whose employment in settlement-work commenced after 21st April 1863, have not been invested with the powers described in Act XIV of 1863, section eight:

(b) that a Deputy Collector not invested with powers under the same section, has no jurisdiction to hear suits of the nature mentioned in Act X of 1859, section 23:

(c) that Settlement Officers invested with the powers of Collectors under that section, have not the power which Collectors possess of referring suits to Deputy Collectors, and that, if a suit for enhancement of rent be brought before such an officer, he is bound by Act XIV of 1863, section ten, to hear and determine it in person: Punchum Singh v. Musamut Hoomut-oon-nissa:

(d) that Act XXII of 1872 has no operation in cases in which a decision has been delivered contrary to the true meaning of Acts X of 1859 and XIV of 1863, but prior to the passing of Act XXII of 1872, by which that meaning was declared (Buldeo v. Lutchmun, 5 N. W. P. High Court Reports, 106).

The effect of these rulings is to render questionable great numbers of decisions in suits of the nature mentioned in Act XIV of 1863, section eight; it is expedient to quiet titles and preclude litigation; and for these reasons it is necessary to affirm the validity of these decisions, and to declare the meaning of the above enactments. This, briefly, is the object of the present Bill, which has been prepared at the desire of the Local Government.

CALCUTTA, The 10th December 1873. } A. HOBHOUSE.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[First Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd December 1873, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a month:—

No. 23 OF 1873.

A Bill to control recruiting in British India for the service of Foreign States.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient that the Governor General in Council should exercise full control over recruiting in British India for the service of Foreign States; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Foreign Recruiting Act, 1874":

Local extent.

It extends to the whole of British India;

Commencement.

And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

Interpretation-clause.

2. In this Act—

"Foreign State."

"Foreign State" includes any person or persons exercising or assuming to exercise the powers of Government in or over any country, colony, province, or people beyond the limits of British India.

Power to prohibit or permit recruiting.

3. If any person is, within the limits of British India, obtaining or attempting to obtain recruits for the service of any Foreign State in any capacity, the Governor General in Council may, by order in writing signed by a Secretary to the Government of India, either prohibit such person from so doing, or permit him to do so subject to any conditions which the Governor General in Council thinks fit to impose.

Power to impose conditions.

4. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by general order notified in the Gazette of India, either prohibit recruiting for the service of any Foreign State, or impose upon such recruiting any conditions which he thinks fit.

Power to rescind or vary orders.

5. The Governor General in Council may rescind or vary any order made under this Act in such manner as he thinks fit.

Offences.

6. Whoever, in violation of the prohibition of the Governor General in Council, or of any condition subject to which permission to recruit may have been accorded,

(a) induces or attempts to induce any person to accept or agree to accept or to proceed to any place with a view to obtaining any commission or employment in the service of any Foreign State, or

(b) knowingly aids in the engagement of any person so induced, by forwarding or conveying him or by advancing money or in any other way whatever, shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

Place of trial.

7. Any offence against this Act may be enquired into and tried, as well in any district in which the person accused may be found, as in any district in which it might be enquired into and tried under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the present state of the law, as appears from a legal opinion lately submitted to the Government of India, there is nothing to prevent our Indian territories being made a recruiting ground for Foreign States on the Continent of India or elsewhere. It seems that the agents of such States may beat up for recruits in a way to expose the Government to serious embarrassment, with foreign nations if they do not interfere, and with their own subjects if they do.

It is only when the recruiting is for the "service of any Foreign State at war with any Foreign State at peace with Her Majesty" that the provisions of the English Foreign Enlistment Act (33 & 34 Vic., cap. 90) apply, and the Indian Emigration Act, to which a reference is naturally made in connection with a matter of this kind, is confined in its operation to emigrant labourers, that is to say, taking the word in its ordinary acceptation, to persons emigrating with a view to obtaining employment in husbandry or manufactures.

The object of the present Bill is to confer on the Governor General in Council the power of control which thus appears to be wanting, and which at the same time it is manifestly desirable he should possess.

Remarks.

Ganges Canal.—Water entered the Canal head on the 9th of the month, but was hardly required, as the Khurreef irrigation had ceased, and that for the Rubbee crops had not commenced.

Eastern Jumna Canal.—There was a demand for Sugar-cane, and in some parts for late sown maize; the heavy rain, which fell in the middle of September, caused a reduction in the area of the latter and of rice, for which a demand had just commenced.

Dhoon Canals.—No remarks.

Traffic.—Operations commenced in the lower Divisions on the 20th of the month. Navigation channels in the Northern Division were closed throughout the month.

RESOLUTION.—In September 1871 the attention of the Governor General in Council was drawn to the deleterious effects alleged to be produced by the abuse of ganja and other preparations of the hemp plant.

2. The local Governments were thereupon requested to enquire into the use and abuse of the several preparations of hemp, with reference not only to their effect upon health but also to their alleged influence in exciting to violent crime. The opinion of the authorities was invited as to the expediency of restricting the use of these drugs, or even suppressing the cultivation of the plant.

The Government of Bengal was further requested to report whether there was any evidence to show that Bengal ganja grown in the district of Rajshahye differed from, and was more deleterious than, the ganja produced in other parts of India.

3. From the replies which have now been received, it appears that though on some points the local officers are almost unanimous, yet on others there is wide disagreement. On the whole, the general opinion seems to be that the evil effects of ganja have been exaggerated.

4. The Government of Madras state that hemp is little used in that presidency as compared with other parts of India. The papers forwarded point to the opinion that the abuse of ganja tends to impair the intellect and nervous system generally; but there is no evidence to show that the drug acts especially as an incentive to crime, or is employed for that purpose. The Government of Madras concurring with the Board of Revenue are of opinion that the evil effects of the use of ganja have not assumed such proportions as to necessitate legislation.

5. Ganja is not extensively cultivated or consumed in Mysore, and its influence in exciting to crime is stated to be very slight. It is however reported that out of a total of 280 admissions to the Lunatic Asylum in Bangalore during the past five years, ganja was assigned as the cause of insanity of 82 persons, of whom 64 subsequently recovered their reason and were discharged.

The Chief Commissioner does not consider that any special measures of restriction are necessary, but he recommends that the sale of ganja and similar drugs should not be permitted except by vendors specially licensed for the purpose, and that the highest possible excise duty should be imposed on them, so as to limit consumption without encouraging smuggling.

6. The Resident at Hyderabad reports that the use of ganja and bhang in Berar is not extensive, that these drugs are resorted to either before or after the commission of a crime to strengthen the nervous system, and that their habitual use undermines and destroys the constitution, though it is not believed to be specially conducive to the commission of crime.

Mr. Saunders is of opinion that the abuse of these drugs is not so great in Berar as to necessitate any special legislative measures.

7. The Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, reports that there is a considerable difference of opinion regarding the evil effects attendant on a continual indulgence in ganja-smoking. The people generally are said to be of opinion that continued indulgence inevitably leads to permanent insanity, but this opinion is not borne out by the statistics of the lunatic asylums. Of 317 lunatics received into the Nagpur asylum since 1864, there were 61 in whom insanity had been occasioned by an immoderate use of ganja. Of these 10 have died, 28 have been discharged cured, and 23 remain uncured, and from this result it is inferred that excess in ganja-smoking does produce an insanity which is transient if the habit be relinquished, but otherwise permanent.

The Superintendent of the asylum at Jubbulpore states that out of 120 lunatics at present confined, 37 indulged in ganja-smoking, and he deduces from certain statistics which he has collected that there is only one lunatic from all causes for every three hundred ganja-consumers. The data on which these statistics are founded are not however given. The Chief Commissioner further reports that ganja and bhang do not act as direct incentives to crime, but that they are often taken by persons about to commit grave offences in order to brace themselves up for the dangers they may have to undergo. Several officers are stated to insist on the fact that the use of ganja is always injurious, never beneficial, and that in this respect there exists a material difference between ganja and spirits; but others assert, and with some show of reason, that persons, such as palki-bearers, whose employment subjects them to great exertion and fatigue, are enabled to perform the wonderful feats they not unfrequently do by being supported and rendered insensible to fatigue by ganja, and that the use of ganja leaves in them no after effects of an injurious kind.

It is admitted that the consumption of drugs has of late years materially increased in the Central Provinces, and fears have been expressed by district officers that since the introduction of the public central distillery system and the consequent rise in the price of spirits, many people who formerly drank spirits have taken to drugs as a substitute. At the same time persons whose opinions are entitled to weight declare that the tastes for spirits and drugs are independent and not affected one by the other.

Taking all the facts into consideration, Mr. Morris is of opinion that some action should be taken by Government to impose restrictions on the cultivation, possession and sale of ganja, and recommends that the cultivation of ganja without a license be absolutely prohibited, and that the issue of licenses be restricted to places where the cultivation and out-turn could be checked by the ordinary revenue establishments.

The imposition of such restrictions would not, the Chief Commissioner thinks, be a matter of much difficulty in the Central Provinces, but to be effectual they must be extended to all contiguous provinces.

8. In Bombay ganja is said to produce insanity, but even in regard to this there is not unanimity, and the Government of Bombay, while desiring that ganja and bhang should be treated as other intoxicating drugs or spirits and the present restrictions on their sale maintained, consider it unnecessary to take measures for the limitation or suppression of the cultivation of the hemp plant.

9. The Punjab Government report that the amount of crime that can be traced to the use of the preparations of hemp is exceedingly small, so small as to make it altogether impolitic and unnecessary to attempt to restrict the sale of the products of the plant by law.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor states that, though harmless when taken in small quantities, the abuse of hemp may and often does produce mental derangement, and it appears that of the total number of cases of insanity treated in the Delhi Lunatic Asylum a large proportion is due to the use of preparations of hemp.

This percentage in each year from 1867 to 1871 was as follows :—

1867	...	...	...	...	11 92 per cent.
1868	...	...	...	...	16 61 „
1869	...	...	...	...	17·68 „
1870	...	...	...	...	20 60 „
1871	...	...	...	...	17·14 „

His Honor is of opinion that if people were prohibited from using the preparations of hemp and opium, they would in all probability have recourse to some other stimulant, such as alcohol, the crime resulting from the abuse of which would be much greater than that resulting from the abuse of those drugs.

10. The reports of the officers consulted in the North-Western Provinces disclose a wide variety of opinion, the prevalent impression being that ganja and charas are exciting in their effect as opposed to bhang which is described as being lethargic. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor believes, however, that there is but a slender ground-work of facts for this opinion, and that even the returns of the lunatic asylums are based on hearsay reports and have no scientific value.

It appears to His Honor that if the effects of the use of ganja were nearly as bad as is sometimes supposed, either as inciting to crime or as injuring health, such a wide enquiry would have resulted in a more general and decided consensus of opinion and in the production of numerous facts bearing out that opinion. Accordingly His Honor does not recommend the adoption of any special measures to limit or stop the production of the plant. As it grows freely in the country lying along the foot of the Himalayas, and can be cultivated in every moist and lowlying tract, to prevent its production would, His Honor apprehends, be almost impossible.

It is further stated that as the duty on ganja is at present collected in the North-Western Provinces by letting in farm the right to sell the drug in each district or part of a district, it would be impossible to enhance the duty unless the sale were made a monopoly and treated by Government in a similar way to that of opium.

11. The Chief Commissioner, Oudh, reports that the conclusion to be drawn from his enquiries is that the evil effects of the use of hemp have been exaggerated; that there is nothing to show that bhang, if used at all, must be used immoderately, or that if used in moderation, it has mischievous consequences. Ganja, however, when used immoderately, is said to have a tendency to produce asthma.

The Chief Commissioner adds that, though the criminal class makes an immoderate use of these drugs, their consumption does not act as a direct incentive to violent crime, and they are merely taken by those about to commit crime in order to give them fictitious and temporary courage.

The Chief Commissioner believes that any interference with the cultivation and use of hemp and its preparations, is not called for on moral grounds, and that arbitrarily to stop their use would merely drive the people to the use of still more deleterious drugs.

12. In Bengal the method of levying the excise duty on ganja differs from that in force in any other province.

A variety of the hemp plant grows wild throughout the whole or greater portion of the province, and another variety is cultivated to a limited extent in the Gurjat in Orissa, and its produce pays a duty of 8 annas a seer. The ganja produced from this plant is consumed in Orissa, but the amount so consumed which pays duty has never exceeded 40 maunds in one year. The variety of plant which produces the well known Bengal ganja is cultivated only in a small portion of the Rajshahye and Bograh Districts; the quantity of land devoted to its production every year being about 500 or 600 acres. Its cultivation requires much care, and the produce when prepared is stored and sold under excise supervision. The rate of duty payable per seer varies from Rs. 2-8 to Rs. 4, according to the quantity of wood mixed with it.

Before the year 1853, the duty on ganja was collected either by farming the monopoly of sale, or by requiring each seller of ganja to obtain a license and charging fees for these licenses. In 1853 a duty of one rupee per seer was levied, and this rate continued until 1859-60 when the system was introduced of charging duty at three different rates according to the manner in which the drug was prepared and packed, so as to equalise the incidence of the tax on the intoxicating principle. The rates fixed were Rs. 4, Rs. 3 and Rs. 2, and these rates continued in force till the beginning of 1872-73, when the rate of Rs. 2 was increased to Rs. 2-8 a seer.

These measures have been highly successful, for while consumption has been checked, the revenue has been largely increased. The following statement shows the quantity of ganja exported every year since 1854-55, and the revenue realised both from duty and fees on retail licenses :—

13. The Lieutenant-Governor reports that the excessive smoking of ganja does harm and is believed to produce temporary insanity and loss of health, and that officers in charge of lunatic ayslums are very generally of opinion that a considerable proportion of the lunatics under their charge have lost their reason from excessive ganja-smoking. As the number of people who are known to have become insane from ganja-smoking is extremely small in comparison to the whole population, and as ganja has been growing dearer and dearer of late years, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that the absolute prohibition of the use of ganja is not called for, more especially as such a prohibition would be very difficult to enforce, and would probably have the effect of leading the people to have recourse to some other, and possibly a more hurtful drug.

The connection between ganja-smoking and violent crime is reported to be not so close or so strong as to warrant the prohibition of the use of ganja on that ground, though it may be the case that men who have decided on committing a specific crime to be accompanied by danger or violence, fortify their bodies or their spirits, or both, by the use of ganja.

No satisfactory explanation has yet been given why the Rajshahye ganja should be more sought after than other sorts. It does not appear to contain on the average a larger proportion of the principle peculiar to the hemp plant than do other varieties, and it undoubtedly contains less than some of them, and His Honor is of opinion that it is more sought after simply because it is a finer and better grown drug than that produced elsewhere.

14. The Chief Commissioner, British Burma, reports that ganja is very little used by the Burmese, and that what consumption there is in British Burma is almost confined to coolies and immigrants from India. The Chief Commissioner is therefore in favor of absolutely prohibiting the consumption of ganja before a taste for it shall have spread throughout the Province.

15. Upon a consideration of all the opinions thus collected, it does not appear to the Governor General in Council to be specifically proved that hemp incites to crime more than other drugs or than spirits. And there is some evidence to show that on rare occasions this drug, usually so noxious, may be usefully taken. There can, however, be no doubt that its habitual use does tend to produce insanity.

The total number of cases of insanity is small in proportion to the population, and not large even in proportion to the number of ganja-smokers; but of the cases of insanity produced by the excessive use of drugs or spirits, by far the largest number must be attributed to the abuse of hemp.

In Lower Bengal the circumstances have admitted of a system under which the consumption of ganja has been reduced one-half, while the amount of duty levied on it has been doubled. It would be very desirable to control the cultivation and preparation of ganja and bhang elsewhere in the same way. But it is believed that this would not be easy; indeed, it would probably be impracticable.

16. Moreover, with the exception of the Chief Commissioners of British Burma and the Central Provinces, the local Governments are not in favour of altering existing arrangements. His Excellency in Council, however, trusts that the various local Governments and Administrations will endeavour, wherever it may be possible, to discourage the consumption of ganja and bhang by placing restrictions on their cultivation, preparation and retail, and imposing on their use as high a rate of duty as can be levied without inducing illicit practices.

17. As regards British Burma, the Chief Commissioner has already been informed that the Governor General in Council concurs with him in thinking that the cultivation and consumption of ganja should be absolutely prohibited, and it has been prohibited from the beginning of the year 1873-74.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to the Department of Agriculture, Revenue and Commerce, and the several local Governments and Administrations.

Ordered also, that a copy be forwarded to the Home Department for publication in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

ORDER.—Ordered that the Despatches read be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India, for general information.

K. C. PYE, Captain,
Assistant Secretary.

No. 86 R, dated 9th April 1873.

From—The Government of India,

To—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Our Despatch No. 143 R, dated 14th August 1872, on the subject of the Carwar Railway project, forwarded copies of papers which had induced our Government to request that the Government of Bombay would appoint an impartial Committee to enquire fully into the financial aspect of the proposed line, and to consider the question of the improvement of the port of Carwar. Before this Despatch could reach England, we received Despatches Nos. 94 R and 99 R of 1872, in which your Grace expressed doubt as to the commercial prospects of the railway, and asked for more precise information on the subject before sanctioning the construction of the line. We have now the honour to forward copies of later papers received from the Government of Bombay bearing on this subject, and also a copy of a letter from the Madras Government containing a memorandum by Mr. Strange, advocating, in lieu of the Carwar Line, an extension of the Madras Railway from Bellary to Gudduck.

2. In forwarding the report of the Committee appointed to enquire further into the calculations of the cost and financial prospects of the proposed Carwar and Gudduck Railway, the Government of Bombay have treated of two subjects, first, the Committee's Report dealing with the scheme on its merits; and secondly, a proposal made by Messrs. Nicol and Co. to the effect that they should become the Agents for constructing and working the railway. We propose now to record our views on the first of these subjects, leaving Messrs. Nicol and Co.'s tender to be considered in a separate Despatch No. 87 R of to-day's date.

3. The Committee was composed of five members, viz:—

The Revenue Commissioner, Southern Division, Mr. Havelock, C. S.;

The Survey and Settlement Commissioner, Colonel A. C. Anderson;

The Superintending Engineer of the Southern Division of the Bombay Presidency, Colonel Wilkins, R. E.;

The Acting Consulting Engineer for Railways at Bombay, Lieutenant-Colonel Hancock, R. E.; and

The Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, Mr. Currey. Their deliberations appear to have been full and careful, and their report is distinctly in favour of the scheme. The Committe say that if the alternative rested between an isolated railway from the sea at Carwar to Gudduck, and an extension of the existing railway system from Sholapoor or Deoksal to Hooblee, they would prefer the extension of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, but they allege that the alternative is not of this simple character. They believe that the Government intend eventually to carry out a regular system of railways in the Southern Maharatta Country, having Carwar as the new port, and extending to Bellary, while extensions may hereafter be made southwards towards Mysore, and northwards to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. These latter extensions they leave for future consideration, and they recommend that the Carwar Line shall be made now: not, however, as an isolated railway, but to proceed at once to Bellary, with, perhaps, a branch to Bunkapoor, thus—Miles.

Carwar to Gudduck	145
Gudduck to Bellary	90
Hooblee to Bunkapoor	30
	265

The Committee estimate that the first 145 miles will cost £1,100,000, including interest during construction, but exclusive of improvements to the port of Carwar, such as extension to the present pier and wharf, moorings, &c., which are estimated to cost £25,000. No similar estimate has been made of the 90 miles from Gudduck to Bellary, or of the branch to Bunkapoor, but it is known that these portions of the line will be much cheaper.

4. It is estimated that, when the railway has been completed three years, the gross traffic receipts on the line between Carwar and Gudduck will amount to—

	£
Cotton	40,000
Salt	5,200
Timber	6,000
Other goods	17,500
Passengers	29,000
Miscellaneous	2,500
	100,200

The principal source of revenue, it is calculated, will be cotton, of which it is expected that the railway will carry about two-thirds of the whole estimated annual quantity shipped from the ports supplied from the districts within range of the railway. And the Committee have assumed that the railway will carry about the same proportion of other goods traffic as of the cotton, that is about two-thirds.

5. The general aspect of the whole question is not materially altered by the Committee's report. They have formed a rather less favourable opinion regarding the commercial prospects of the railway than that formerly expressed by the Government of Bombay, but, concurring in the advisability of undertaking ultimately a complete system of railways in the Southern Maharatta Country which will affect a large area, and will be of imperial importance, they recommend the construction in the first instance of a railway from Carwar, not to stop at Gudduck, but to be extended to Bellary, and connected there with the Madras Railway.

6. The Bombay Government attach importance to the military and political considerations, as well as to the general advantanges alluded to by the Committee; and the importance of opening out on the western coast of India another efficient port, in easy communication with the interior, is pointed out with some force. After again considering the question in all its bearings, the Government of Bombay recommend strongly the construction of a railway from Carwar to Bellary with a branch to Bunkapoor as proposed by the Committee.

7. Our Government have been much assisted by the able and impartial manner in which the Committee have investigated this important subject. We think that the Committee's estimate of the probable cost of the original project, allowing for interest during construction, and for the enhanced price of iron, is a fair one, and we think that their calculations of the anticipated net earnings are not over-sanguine, and may be reasonably accepted. And we agree in the opinion expressed both by the Committee and by the Government of Bombay in favour of the larger scheme now proposed, viz., from Carwar to Bellary, though we do not contemplate the early construction of branches. We possess a carefully prepared estimate of the cost of a railway from Carwar to Gudduck, and we have requested the Government of Bombay to have an equally trustworthy estimate made of the cost of an extension from Gudduck to Bellary. The urgency of this project as compared with other lines, concerning which we have from time to time addressed Her Majesty's Government, will be considered by us, in the event of your Grace's sanction being received to these proposals.

8. With these remarks we desire to recommend the construction of a metre gauge railway from Carwar to Gudduck and Bellary for your Grace's favourable consideration and sanction.

No. 87 R., dated 9th April 1873.

From—The Government of India,

To—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

In our Despatch No. 86 R. of this day's date, we have recommended the construction of a railway from Carwar to Gudduck and Bellary. We desire now to deal with a proposal which Messrs. Nicol & Co. of Bombay have made, to construct and work the line on certain terms.

2. Messrs. Nicol and Co.'s offer will be found detailed in their various letters to the Government of Bombay. Their proposal has two main features. The first is the novel one of raising, by means of a Company, a guarantee capital to be placed at the disposal of the Government to draw upon in case of the railway not earning 4 per cent. net on the capital expended; while, on the other hand, if the earnings exceed that rate, the excess is to form the divident of the guaranteeing Company. The other point is that the same Company is to receive and disburse the Government capital to be laid out on the construction of the line under certain conditions which are not yet clearly settled.

3. It is claimed for this proposal that it will save the Government from risk, enlist private interests in the construction of railways, and induce native capitalists to invest their money in these undertakings. It is urged also that the vigilant interest of the shareholders, thus made to depend so greatly on the construction and working of the line, would be a superior inducement to economy and sucessful working, than any that could be devised under direct Government control. While, if investment of present capital in railway enterprises thus becomes profitable, such projects would be largely undertaken, and the development of the railway system in India would be accelerated beyond what any mere Government efforts could effect, and would result in corresponding advantages to the resources and trade of the country.

4. Admitting to some extent the force of these arguments, it is to be urged on the other side, that the management of railways by the State is now often advocated even in England, and the peculiar relations of the people in the country to the Government may be considered an additional reason for Government management here.

5. We readily recognise the fact that this offer presents the features of private individuals coming forward to risk money on the construction of this railway. This is a satisfactory corroboration of the Committee's opinion. And did we entertain doubt of the general soundness of the Committee's views, we might be disposed to recommend the acceptance, with some modifications, of Messrs. Nicol, Fleming and Co.'s offer.

6. Modifications would doubtless be necessary, and these would affect mainly the extent of the guarantee capital to be offered, and that part of the proposal which gives the guaranteeing Company also the contract for constructing the line.

7. The cost of the line to Gudduck is likely to be about £1,015,000 without interest, if the views of the Committee are correct. Messrs. Nicol and Co. proposed in the first instance, to receive and disburse this money, subject to a certain amount of supervision from Government officers, in the construction and working of the line. The interest which may accrue on the capital during construction is estimated at £85,000, and the total capital expenditure, including interest, is reckoned at £1,100,000. If, after the line is opened, the net receipts are insufficient to cover 4 per cent. interest on the capital expended, the balance is to be made up from a sum of £100,000 deposited by Messrs. Nicol and Co. and their co-guarantors until it is exhausted. Messrs. Nicol and Co. think that it is highly improbable that this Deposit Fund will be exhausted before 20 years have expired. The Government of Bombay believe that, if the minimum net interest calculated by the minority of the Committee, namely, 3·63 per cent., be correct, it will take above 100 years before the Guarantee Fund is exhausted.

8. These statements should be examined. The Committee think that the traffic may be expected to yield a gross annual revenue of £100,000 after the line has been open three years, and that then the working expenses will be 55 or 60 per cent. on £100,000, yielding a net return of 4·09 per cent., or 3·63 per cent. on £1,100,000. When the Committee mention this term of three years, they probably mean that the advance of the traffic receipts will be gradual, and that they will be small at first, gradually developing until the gross annual income of £100,000 is reached. Thus, if the following be taken as gross earnings—

£25,000 for 1st year,
£50,000 for 2nd ,,
£75,000 for 3rd ,,
£100,000 after the 3rd year, averaging for the first three years after opening, £50,000 gross per annum. Similarly, the working expenses may not be so low as 55 or 60 per cent. during the early years, when the fixed charges will bear a high proportion to the whole, but the Committee expect that at the commencement of the 4th year, when the traffic has been developed, the working expenses will become as low as 55 or 60 per cent. Therefore, accepting the figures in the Committee's report, 60 per cent. for working expenses is possibly rather low for the first three years. But, on the assumption that they will be only 60 per cent., the state of the Deposit Fund at the end of three years from opening, will, on this view, be as under—

Due for interest on Capital £1,100,000 × 4 per cent. × 3 years=£132,000. Net receipts from traffic £50,000 × 40 per cent. × 3 years=£60,000, and the difference between these two amounts, or £72,000, will have been deducted from the Deposit Fund of £100,000.

9. We believe that the estimates of the Committee have been carefully framed, but still, from causes which cannot at present be foreseen, the time occupied in construction may be longer than calculated on, and the cost of the line may be greater, and the anticipated net receipts may not be quite so soon realized. That is, if any margin at all is allowed on the estimates of the Committee, the sum, viz., £100,000, deposited as a guarantee for the interest on the capital, may all be expended within four years after the line is opened for traffic.

10. It will be seen that Messrs. Nicol and Co.'s offer of a guarantee of £100,000 is coupled with the condition that they shall have the contract for the construction of the line, and in considering this, it should be remembered that our Consulting Engineer for State Railways, Mr. Molesworth, after going over the line from Carwar to Gudduck, gave as his opinion that it could be constructed for £820,000. The Committee now say £1,010,000. Mr. Molesworth, no doubt, allowed prices which a contractor could work at with a reasonable profit, and his opinion may, after all, be better than that of the Committee. Still, the Government could hardly refuse the contract on the basis of the Committee's report. If these positions be accepted, Messrs. Nicol and Co. may well risk £100,000 to receive the profit of at least £200,000 on the contract.

11. Messrs. Nicol and Co. in para. 7 of their letter of 21st September, and para. 9 of their letter of 16th October 1872, mentioned the terms which they propose. They first expressed a wish to keep in their own hands the control of the manner and cost of supplying material, and all details of the construction and working of the line, leaving to the Government officers only such control as is exercised by the Board of Trade in England. They consider that the spur of self-interest and the respectability of the proposed concessionaries is sufficient guarantee against undue expenditure. As the money, however, to be spent on the construction of the line is public money, full accounts of all transactions in which the public money is spent must be open at all times to the inspection and audit of the Government officers. It is essential also that funds shall be advanced only on the usual conditions of paying money to contractors. It would not be proper to pay half a million of money for English stores with no power to see that it is laid out for the object intended, or that the materials and workmanship of the articles are good. The Government may have full faith in the integrity of the present partners of the firm of Nicol and Co., and their associates; but their legal rights may pass to others, or they may be defrauded by their Agents. However difficult it may be to exercise an efficient control, the Government is bound, in duty to the tax-payers, to do what it can to ensure the proper application of the funds, and must insist both on accounts and evidence of a quid pro quo when the payment of public money is involved.

12. It will be observed that the Bombay Government have to some extent anticipated these serious objections. We are told that "Messrs. Nicol and Co. have since informed this Government that the matter as now put involves only a question of principle, and that if the principle be accepted, the details can be modified to suit the views of Government; and further, that they would be prepared to agree to the same amount of control and supervision as regards construction and working as is exercised by Government in the case of the Guaranteed Lines, and to the general terms of the contract with the Guaranteed Railway Companies as far as applicable."

These explanations are still not quite definite, but we understand from them that Messrs. Nicol and Co. are prepared, in some measure at least, to amend their terms so as to meet the objections which have occurred to us.

13. Next, as regards working the line after it has been constructed. The interests of a Company are not identical with those of the State. A Company simply desires to make a railway pay, whereas in the interests of the State it might be found desirable to reduce fares and freights to the lowest rates possible, sacrificing, in a measure, the commercial prospects of the railway to the general welfare and development of the country.

14. It is further to be observed on the whole proposal that it is a novel one, and may not be easily set out in a workable legal form. The Government may be committing itself to unknown liabilities, while in the construction of the line under the usual arrangements, the extent of the risk is known, and there is a good prospect of such return as will justify the outlay of the capital required, without any special arrangement.

15. We have laid before your Grace the several aspects in which the subject has presented itself to us in some detail, as we desire that the recommendations of the Bombay Government have full consideration. We ourselves incline to the opinion that it will be best to construct the line as a State Railway, but we leave it to your Grace to decide whether or not Messrs. Nicol and Co.'s offer should be accepted.

No. 161 R, dated India Office, London, the 6th November 1873.

From—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

I have had before me in Council, and carefully considered, your Excellency's letters, Nos. 86 and 87, of the 9th April last, and the papers therewith enclosed, relative to the project for connecting the port of Carwar with the interior of the country by a railway through Gudduck to Bellary.

2. The renewed examination of the merits of this scheme, which has recently been made by a Committee specially appointed for the purpose by the Government of Bombay, has induced your Government to recommend it for early execution; but I regret to say that the new facts and arguments adduced in its favour have failed to remove the doubts as to its expediency intimated by me in my Despatch, No. 94 of 14th August last.

3. Although, in common with all other railways whatsoever, the proposed line might, on occasion, possibly prove of some political or military advantage, the objects of its construction would be mainly, indeed almost exclusively, commercial; and no purely commercial railway can, consistently with the principle prescribed for the expenditure of loan funds in public works in India, be undertaken, unless its estimated net revenue be at the very least equal to the interest payable on the capital proposed to be invested in it. The Committee, however, hold out very faint hopes that such would be the result in the present instance. They calculate the total cost of the 145 miles between Carwar and Gudduck at 1,100,000*l.*, and the receipts of the same section at about 100,000*l.* gross, and 40,000*l.* or 45,000*l.* net, that is, 3·63 or 4·09 per cent., on the outlay. According to this view, the line would barely pay at best, while either a very slight excess in the estimated cost, or an equally slight defect in the estimated receipts, would suffice to turn the scale the other way, and there is much room for apprehending that the expected receipts would not be realized. The assumed aggregate of future traffic credited with the 100,000*l.* set down on this account is made up of items in respect to most of which scarcely any positive data exist, though it seems to be confidently assumed that the railway will attract to itself two-thirds of all the cotton produced within reach of the railway, and also the same proportion of most other kinds of the traffic of the neighbourhood. In this way cotton figures in the estimate for 40,000*l.*, or two-fifths of the annual total of revenue; yet it cannot be denied that, in consequence of the rapidly recovering ability of the United States to meet the English demand, the export of cotton from Carwar, which in 1870-71 was under 4,000 tons, may not improbably fall still lower instead of rising above that amount.

4. Under these circumstances there is a considerable risk that the Carwar Railway, if constructed, would prove a disappointment; and, as long, therefore, as the prospects of the Indian Cotton Trade remain as uncertain as at present, I am unwilling to sanction the construction of the railway, as the Government undertaking. The altered prospects of a demand for cotton from the districts concerned appear to call for a corresponding change in the action of Government with regard to it.

5. This conclusion might not, indeed, necessarily prevent acceptance of the offer made by Messrs. Nicol and Co. of Bombay, for the execution of the work by their own agency, and, in a certain measure, at their own risk. But of this proposal, which is discussed at length in one of your Excellency's letters under reply, I will only mention, as a sufficient reason for declining it, that the securities offered seem to me, as they do to you, very inadequate to protect Government against heavy pecuniary loss.
